The character of the clothing generally is not a matter of dictation. We cannot expect the children of poor parents to wear "good clothes," but what is worn can be clean, and there is no excuse for their being otherwise. From this time out until school closes in the spring, children should wear flannel next to the skin, and let mothers remember that underclothing worn during the day must not be worn during the night while in bed. Children, as well as adults, must have undershirts for night wear, and the one taken off at bedtime should be spread over a chair to dry and air well. A word here about the sleeping room. Our poorer people are forced to content themselves with a few small rooms, and, as a rule, they are sadly overcrowded. That cannot be helped in many instances, but such rooms can be properly ventilated. Open—throw wide open—the windows of the bedroom a little while before the children go to bed, and then, when they are ready to undress, go in and partially, but not entirely, close them. Leave them open as much as the weather will permit. A disinclination to ventilate their rooms properly is one glaring and fatal fault with ignorant people. To that cause alone can be attributed much of the sickness and many of the deaths among them.

Some mothers allow their children to remain in bed in the morning until late and then hurry them away to school. The consequence is breakfast must be bolted. It ought not to be necessary to say that children should have ample time in which to eat, and should be forced to do so slowly. Tea and coffee are injurious to them. If mothers will insist in allowing them to have those drinks, then let the quantity be small, and in much milk. Cocoa is liked by every child, and, if not made too strong, it is wholesome and nourishing. One thing more about breakfast; be sure that the children eat enough. Even if they eat heartily, as a rule they will be hungry before dinner time comes; therefore, provide them with a light luncheon—bread and butter and some sound, ripe fruit if possible. "Early to bed and early to rise" is a rule which cannot safely be violated by children. That they need much more sleep than adults, every one should know. Let the hour before retiring be passed quietly in some form of amusement.

To allow them to go to bed excited either by hard play, by study, or by a "story book," means wakeful hours or sleep disturbed by dreams. When a child appears to be ailing he should be kept out of school until he is himself again. By teachers much too high a premium is put upon punctuality and unbroken attendance. In consequence, children are encouraged to go to school when they are really quite sick enough to be at home and in bed. Scarlet fever, measles, diphtheria and the like are very easily transmitted from an affected child to one in perfect health. The former need not be very ill; he may, in fact, be in school and appear but slightly ailing, and yet it is quite possible for him to bear about with him the germs of disease, and communicate them to those with whom he is brought in contact. All must remember that a case of infectious disease need not be severe to be a source of great danger to others. A child is just as likely to "catch the disease" from one who has only a very light attack of an infectious nature as he would were the attack of deadly intensity.

Again, the first sufferer may be only slightly ill—in fact, be up playing about the house, or even in school—and yet the one to whom he transmits the disease may become terribly ill with it and die. Hence, there is but one rule for mothers and teachers to follow: Never send a child to school who appears to be ailing, no matter how confident you may be that the trouble is but trifling. And a teacher should never allow a child to remain in school a moment after she detects a sign which leads her to suspect that he is not well. If this rule is rigorously observed, the death rate will be measurably decreased.—Boston Herald.

SELF EXTINGUISHMENT OF FIRES.

Automatic Sprinklers—A Tinsmith's Experience—Several Curious Instances.

The apparatus which is most promptly used in cases of burning buildings, and also with the least efficacy, is the human voice, notwithstanding the historical fact that blowing has accomplished nothing since the days of Jericho. Yet there are numerous instances where fires have been extinguished through causes connected with their origin, and so completely outside of precedence that they serve as instances of the happening of the unexpected. In this connection we do not refer to the fires extinguished by automatic sprinklers, where the result is clearly what has been expected to happen. Notwithstanding the fact that when a fire occurs on property protected by automatic sprinklers, those present avail themselves of all the means of grace in the shape of the usual fire apparatus at hand, yet there are numerous instances where fires have occurred at night or in rooms vacant at the time, where the fact has been made known only by water percolating through the floors, or the sound of the automatic fire alarms, or from the sprinklers which have already come into active operation, the fire having called down means for self extinguishment.

But the instances which we have in mind are those where the means of extinguishment were not expected, as in the well known cathedral building in Boston, where a fire, caused by spontaneous ignition in a storeroom, melted the lead water pipes, and the water issuing from them extinguished the fire. A similar instance happened in a building in Market street, Philadelphia. Some sheet metal pails were returned by the purchaser to a tinsmith in Chester, Pa., with the complaint that they were not tightly made. The manufacturer resoldered them, and in order to test his work filled them with water and hung them upon hooks at the ceiling. While the men were at dinner during the noon hour, a fire heated the upper part of the room so that the bails connecting the handles to the pails became unsoldered, and the dropping of the pails of water dashed out the fire.

Some waste left upon the top of a steam pump at Watertown, Mass., blazed from spontaneous ignition, and this in turn set fire to the lagging around the steam cylinders and the feed pipe, where it melted the soldered attachments of a continuous automatic oiler. The steam from the feed pipe was discharged through the small tubes formerly leading to the oiler, and extinguished the fire. There have been numerous instances of fires which have ceased for want of air. During the war of the rebellion attempts were made to burn New York city, as the result of a conspiracy, fires being started in several hotels; but in order to prevent premature detection the culprits closed up the rooms so tightly that the fires were smothered. At a hotel in Woonsocket the steam pipes caused a fire in the spaces in the walls of the building, which was extinguished for want of air to support combustion. The time of the fire is unknown, as its occurrence was not discovered until some time afterward, when in the progress of some alteration to the building the facts were made apparent.

It may be interesting to know that in this instance the steam heating service was ordinarily used at a pressure of about four pounds to the square inch during the coldest weather, and that the safety valve was so arranged that the pressure could never exceed ten pounds. A spark of static electricity proceeding from a belt ignited leaking gas, and this in turn set cotton on fire, which operated the automatic sprinklers and extinguished it. An attempt was made to destroy a block of new dwellings at Brookline, Mass., before the buildings were entirely finished. Some people, alarmed by the smoke which was seen in each division of the structure, rushed in to save doors and portable fixtures, when it was noticed that the fires did not appear to gain any headway, and when the smoke had entirely died away, it was found that the incendiary had placed lighted candles in sawdust and other inflammable material in drawers and closets, but with such limited supplies of air that combustion could not be supported and the fires became smothered.—Engineering.

The Denunciation of Noise.

"I can bear the heat very well," said a student forced to spend a summer in the city, "but I cannot endure the noise." Possibly he did not stop to consider that, in making such a declaration, he placed himself in illustrious company. Thomas Carlyle "could not abide" a noise, especially that of the morning crowing of cocks. Wallenstein, accustomed as he was to the din of battle, had an unconquerable dread of the barking of dogs, and even the clatter of the large spurs fashionable in his day. In order to insure quiet, he engaged twelve patrols to make regular circuits about his house night and day.

Neither Julius Cæsar nor the philosopher, Kant, could tolerate the crowing of poor chanticleer, who, indeed, seems to have very few friends among the studious and sensitive. Schippenhauer exceeds almost all lovers of quiet in the extravagance of his denunciation of noise. He declares that the amount which a man can bear with ease is in inverse ratio to his mental power.

"If I hear a dog barking for hours on the threshold of a house," he writes, "I know well enough what kind of brains I may expect from its inhabitants."—Youth's Companion.

The Victims of Fright.

The Oriental legend that represents cholera meeting the traveler flying from the scourge, and telling him that the majority of the dead were the victims of fright, not of the plague, seems to apply to the yellow fever scare in the United States. If the same number of people who die in New York in a single season of pneumonia, consumption, or avoidable accidents, fell victims to yellow fever or any other epidemic, the city would be emptied of inhabitants, and panic and consternation would prevail. The scare created causes much more suffering and disturbance than the disease itself. Hence in some southern countries where it is endemic it attracts no more notice than most of the other evils that afflict the human family. Courage is one of the best of medicines.—Once a Week.

A Suggestive Exhibit.

From the New York Tribune's record of the President's appointments in the Civil Service, in its issue of July 23d, 1888.

The list of criminals embraces 137, not including twenty-two persons guilty of political crimes, or fifty-nine other persons directly connected with the criminal classes. This savory list includes two murderers and the tools of two others, five notorious duelists and three rioters—one to be judge of the very court by which he had been imprisoned six weeks. It includes five persons who had been indicted or convicted for frauds against the revenue, appointed to be officers of the revenue service. It includes a jury-fixer, dead beat, a lawyer guilty of defrauding clients and an attorney who had cleared notorious bandits by contriving a defeat of justice, all appointed to be judges. Persons have been appointed pension agents who have been indicted for violating pension laws. Persons guilty of robbing the mails have been appointed postmasters or mail agents—one when appointed was in jail for robbing the very office to which he was appointed! Liquor sellers, their sons or attorneys, have been appointed internal revenue officials. An impeached state treasurer, defrauding county or town treasurers, seven forgers—one of whom had served two terms for that offence, but "knew Cleveland personally"—and men guilty of robbery, embezzlement, theft, malfeasance, tapping a church till, grand larceny, bribery, obtaining money under false pretences, of a printing steal, a mileage steal and a patent fraud, of keeping gambling houses and houses of resort for the vile of both sexes, of assault and battery, fist-fighting and insulting women, of assaulting a lady temperance lecturer with a club, of wife-beating, of blackmailing and selling offices and of selling official information, with an editor of a rogues' paper and a Brooklyn police officer who was dismissed for arresting in her bed at two A. M. a sick woman against whom there was no charge and compelling her to walk a mile to a station—all these are chosen instruments of reform.

A full alphabetical list of the appointments has been before the public for nearly three months, with quotations from papers that support Mr. Cleveland for re-election authenticating more than three-fourths of the charges, and accompanied by the Tribune's promise to correct any and all errors. Just one correction has been asked for, and made.

The Cheapest Yet.

There have been many cheap excursions to California, but the lowest price yet offered is named for the party that will leave Boston for San Bernadino, Pasadena, Los Angeles, San Diego, etc., Tuesday, Nov. 7th. It is a special "one way" trip, and is not likely soon to be duplicated. The price of a ticket through from Boston to Los Angeles, is only $61.75. Residents of Vermont and New Hampshire, can join the party at convenient points en route. Send to A. MacGregor, 296 Washington street, Boston, for a circular and time-table.

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY POINT, ME., Oct. 17th.

There was a slight mistake made in the name of Mr. Wasson's skiff last week, the first name only being given. Its full name is "Aquopimoquk Transmagnificandubandanjualita."

Mr. John N. Allen is having his house extensively repaired. It is being raised about eighteen inches from the ground, chimneys rebuilt, cellar wall repaired, etc. The work is being done by Mr. Jesse F. Patch.

The fall term of school in district No. 5 closed last Saturday noon.

There was a large fleet of vessels in the harbor last Sunday.

The bad weather of Sunday had a rather bad effect on the church-going people here, but it could not have affected Mr. E. R. Phillips (pastor of the Christian church) much, for he delivered an excellent sermon from I John, 3:14.

The Ladies' Circle of the Christian church met with Mrs. Bowman last Monday evening.

There was a donation party at the Christian parsonage last Tuesday evening.

S. Frisbee & Co. will erect a building soon for the Kittery Fish Co., which will commence business about the first of November, under the management of Mr. Thomas of Gloucester, Mass.

John Wentworth, Esq., of North Kittery, has already gathered over 200 bbls. of apples, and has as many to gather.

UNCLE MOSES.

ITEMS FROM RYE.

RYE, Oct. 16th.

The frame for the new church which is about to be erected by the Christian society has arrived, as has also the timber. The former was furnished, and all framed, by the Kennebeck Lumber Co. Mr. Dame of Epping has taken the contract to furnish the rest of the material, with the exception of the pews, and to do the work; he is already on the ground, and is in hopes to get the edifice up and covered in before the snow flies.

Mrs. Sarah J. Haskell, of Boston, is repairing the old Col. Garland house at Rye Centre, which is one of the oldest houses in town. It was formerly a tavern, and more recently was for many years the residence of the late Thomas G. Berry, who was years ago a merchant of Portsmouth, occupying the store where John Laighton does business at the present time. A fine glass decanter, undoubtedly filled many times with West India rum, and emptied too, in old Revolutionary times, is still in existence, and is prized very highly by its owner.

Mr. Lewis Shaw has taken the old blacksmith stand at the Centre, recently carried on by Frank Marden, who now resides in Portsmouth.

The news of the burning of a barn at the south end on Sunday morning was learned by most of our residents by reading about it in the Boston Journal Monday noon!

The Christian society have announced a harvest supper at the town hall on Wednesday evening, the 17th. Besides the supper, which will of course be a good one, there will be an entertainment on the stage, and Spear's band are down for an open-air concert in front of the hall.

The Congregational society are also to have a supper of the same kind next week, for which great preparations are being made, and which promises to be a very enjoyable affair.

The apple crop is immense, and loads of empty flour barrels are seen every fair day—followed of course the next day by rain or snow. As a barrel costs about thirty cents and apples are not expected to bring more than a dollar a barrel, including the barrel, there won't be likely to be many fortunes made this year by the owners of apple trees. At present there doesn't seem to be a market for the fruit at any price.

NAT.

Women Vote in November.

Twenty-five thousand women have registered in Boston to vote at the coming election; and thousands more will register. What does it mean? Simply this: "When women will, they will." Silently mothers, sisters, sweethearts, has [illegible] our country's end, causing them to be respected as are no other women on the face of the earth. Then why deny them the right to vote? If a woman can teach school better than a man, why pay her ten dollars a week and him twenty? And so on in other avocations. Just as surely as that a woman can tend a baby better than a man, just so certainly can she care for any animal better; raise flowers and eggs, tend chickens, etc. A man, living near Boston, clears $15,000 yearly raising poultry and eggs. Two women, living at Auburndale, formerly school teachers on small salaries, now bid fair to outstrip the man before mentioned; their eggs, always fresh, have become famous. Every wife or daughter living near a village or large market, can make many dollars each year raising eggs. For example, Mrs. Eunice Goodwin, East Livermore, Me., says: "In four weeks, last autumn, my thirty hens laid 131 eggs. I then fed them with Sheridan's Condition Powder, advertised to make hens lay; and in eight weeks they laid 487. Having sold twelve, the remainder laid 815 eggs in eight weeks, by feeding Sheridan's Powder. I sold the eggs for $15,93, making clear $13.38 from only eighteen hens in eight weeks. I am satisfied the Powder is excellent. One of my Polish hens which I could not buy for $2.00 would have died but for Sheridan's Powder. So much for it sure." The new edition of a book just published, called the Farmers' Poultry Guide, contains much information upon the above subject. I. S. Johnson & Co., No. 22 Custom House street, Boston, Mass., (the only manufacturers of Sheridan's Powder, to make hens lay,) will send a Guide, postpaid, to any address for twenty-five cents in stamps; or two 25-cent packs of Sheridan's Powder and the book for sixty cents; five packs $1. A large 2 1-4 pound can of the Powder and Guide sent for $1.20, postpaid; six cans, $5, express pre-paid. A testimonial circular free.

The Yellow Fever.

Jacksonville had twenty-five new cases and three deaths on the 15th.

Unsanitary Habitations.

Dr. Hall (a lady) at the recent meeting of the Social Science Association gave a realistic picture of the sanitary conditions of country houses. The paper should be circulated as a tract. She gave the story of sixty-five houses, which she had critically examined from a health point of view. All of them were unsanitary, in one or more of the following ways: Slops were thrown about the doors; wells unprotected from surface drainage; sleeping rooms on the first floor; bed rooms that the sun could never penetrate, or dark altogether; pig styes and other nuisances in close contiguity to the house. One critic added, lugubriously, that the paper was right, but people would go on wrong all the same. He thought they might waken up to their situation when they died, and found what had killed them. On the whole, it was the only thing to be done in the case. He might be right. But it is well enough for sensible people, like Dr. Hall, to go on giving them no excuse for dying of filth and folly.

By a collision between a freight train and a gravel train on the Lehigh Valley railroad, Oct. 16th, six men were killed and twenty injured.

Don't Wait

Until your hair becomes dry, thin, and gray before giving the attention needed to preserve its beauty and vitality. Keep on your toilet-table a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor—the only dressing you require for the hair—and use a little, daily, to preserve the natural color and prevent baldness.

Thomas Munday, Sharon Grove, Ky., writes: "Several months ago my hair commenced falling out, and in a few weeks my head was almost bald. Tried many remedies, but they did no good. I finally bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, after using only a part of the contents, my head was covered with a heavy growth of hair. I recommend your preparation as the best hair-restorer in the world."

"My hair was faded and dry," writes Mabel C. Hardy, of Delavan, Ill.; "but after using a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor it became black and glossy."

Mrs. Leonard C. Cook of North Kittery is reported to be quite sick with nervous prostration, at the residence of her brother, E. C. Spinney, Esq.

Mr. Daniel Parker Spinney of South Eliot brought into town on Tuesday for Moses Bros. six barrels of Sheldon pears and two barrels of Bue-de-Clare pears, raised in his orchard; the fruit was large and very fine looking.

Biddeford Journal: "Business is reported to be remarkably active in the navy yards. America's naval supremacy on election day must be maintained at all hazards."

Mr. Dennis A. Manson, son of Mr. Dennis Manson of North Kittery, and well known locally as a mechanical genius and earnest student, who some time ago took service as an oiler in the engineer's department under Capt. Redford W. Sargent of Kittery, now commanding the Red Star line steamship Ohio, recently as a candidate for the position of first assistant engineer passed a rigid examination at Philadelphia, and was at once promoted. The young man has but just reached his majority.

Be Sure

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation, curative power superior to any other article. A Boston lady who knew what she wanted, and whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

To Get

"In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me their's would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was. I had taken it, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other.

Hood's

When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable, suffering a great deal with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked, and had for some time, like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it." MRS. ELLA A. GOFF, 61 Terrace Street, Boston.

THE WEATHER.

For New England to-day:—
Light rains, warmer, southerly winds.

FIRE.

The alarm on Tuesday evening shortly before eight o'clock was caused by a fire in the house of Mr. Harrie W. W. Jackson on Islington street. The house has recently been extensively remodelled and improved, the work having been going on all summer, and the carpenters only removed their tools from the building on Tuesday. The fire was inside the plastering, and caught from an overheated pipe, as strong fires were being kept up to render the building dry enough for occupation. The fire worked around inside the partitions, and many holes had to be cut to get at it. The house had been fitted up at very great expense, and the loss must be large.

REPUBLICAN BATTALION.

The republican marching battalion met at the headquarters on Tuesday evening, adopted the name of Winchester Cadets, and elected officers as follows;

Major, G. H. Brown;
Adjutant, H. W. Oxford;
Captain of 1st division, Rodney M. Palmer; 1st lieutenant, Harry Herrick; 2d lieutenant, John Kingsbury;
Captain of 2d division, Frank Lougee; 1st lieutenant, Ed. S. Downs; 2d lieutenant Frank Leavitt.

BOLD THEFT.

About three o'clock Monday afternoon, as Mrs. Hines, wife of Frederick Hines, who lives near the Creek, was going down Court street, carrying in her hand a pocket-book containing about fifty-four dollars, when near the Children's Home a smooth-faced man dressed in dark clothes and wearing a soft felt hat snatched the pocket-book and ran away, making good his escape. The lady is reported to have gone quietly in quest of a police officer, instead of raising a grand outcry on the spot, as most of her sex would have done, and which would probably have resulted in the snatch-thief being caught immediately.

DEMOCRATIC RALLY.

The democrats propose to have a rally this evening—a parade of their campaign companies, with two bands and the drum corps, flag raisings at the democratic headquarters and near Fay's store, and a meeting in Music hall, with speaking by Samuel B. Page of Woodsville, and F. W. McGettrick of Vermont.

POLICE COURT---BATCHELDER J.

TUESDAY, Oct. 16th.

William Hood, drunk, fine $3, costs $6.90; paid.

John Condon, drunk, fine $5; John B. Harrington and Edward Howe, drunk, fine $3 each; costs $6.90 in each case, and Brentwood for the lot, in default of payment.

William Quinn, charged with an assault on David Slaney, had his case continued to Wednesday forenoon, the 16th, at ten o'clock.

SUPREME COURT, OCTOBER TERM.

The October term of the supreme court for Rockingham county opened at the court house in this city at eleven o'clock Tuesday forenoon, the 16th, Judge Carpenter presiding. The grand and petit jurors were duly sworn, and Rev. O. S. Baketel, pastor of Trinity church, offered prayer. The grand jury, after being addressed by the judge, retired, in charge of Deputy Sheriff Chase. The petit jurors were excused for the day.

The following is a list of the grand jurors: Leonard A. Morrison, (foreman,) Windham; Joseph Page, Kingston; Clarence M. Platts, Londonderry; Benjamin Amazeen, Newcastle; Granville W. Knox, Newington; Albert T. Stackpole, Newmarket; Geo. W. Marston, Newton; Frank C. Norton, North Hampton; Charles Hill, Northwood; Ira Bennett, Nottingham; John H. Pollard, Plaistow; Henry R. Stoddard, ward one, Portsmouth; Enoch H. Gilman, Raymond; J. Jenness Rand, Rye; William B. Ayer, Salem; Russell K. Hook, Sandown; John M. Weare, Seabrook; Emilus J. Randall, South Hampton; Horace Clough, South Newmarket; Simon Veasey, Stratham; Isaac S. Noyes, Atkinson; Alvin W. Pingrey, Auburn.

The petit jurors in attendance were Benjamin Adams, John E. Webster, Derry; Nathaniel B. Collins, George L. Sanborn, Elbridge A. Goodwin, Exeter; Joseph Watson, Clark Mathes, Newmarket; Portsmouth—D. S. Philbrook, J. Mooney, J. R. Curtis, ward one, James C. Lamos, James R. Connell, Charles H. Joy, ward two, Daniel F. Akerman, ward three, John A. Peterson, ward four; Charles E. Knight, George O. Wheeler, Salem; John P. Leavitt, North Hampton; Henry Knowlton, Northwood; Henry C. Clement, Plaistow; Jonathan A. Lane, Raymond; Charles J. Mace, Rye; Alden E. Pillsbury, Sandown; Samuel S. Walton, Seabrook; Samuel P. Eaton, South Hampton; Daniel C. Langlaris, South Newmarket; Otis B. French, Stratham; Joseph P. Crowell, Windham; Edgar P. Shannon, Atkinson; Harrison Burnham, Auburn; Henry P. Daniels, Nottingham.

MYSTERIOUS LANGUAGE.

The Times is conscientiously opposed to betting, and we are grieved to notice in our esteemed contemporary, the Chronicle, an article this morning calling attention to a wicked daily of this city, in which there have been for several days offers to bet. The Chronicle closes its article by an insinuation that the democrats do not care to stake money on the result of the election. We have the highest regard for the opinion of our esteemed contemporary, and so we print on the fourth page of the Times to-day an offer which speaks for itself. It is headed "Cleveland will win."

We found the above in our State street democratic contemporary one day last week, and turning to its fourth page read as follows:

We are now near election. The most of us have settled in our minds the name of the winner. A gentleman who has the courage of his convictions, has left at the office of the Times the following offers, and the money to back them: $500 that Grover Cleveland carries New York; $500 that Grover Cleveland carries New Jersey; $500 that Grover Cleveland carries Indiana; and $500 that Grover Cleveland is elected. All four of these bets to be taken, or none of them. Those gentlemen who have been shouting that Cleveland cannot carry a single northern state, can put up or crawl under cover.

It was with grief that would not down at our bidding that we persued the foregoing items, because they seemed to indicate that at some time in the past our democratic brother had been acquainted with the sinful game of poker, as we believe it is called, and has not yet wholly forgotten the practices of the unregenerate when playing the same. In this game, we have been told, when the player with a pocket full of money and who has been betting on two pair, finds that his antagonist sees and raises his bets with alacrity indicative of the possession of a full hand or four of a kind, either of which we understand will beat two pair, —whatever two pair or a full hand may mean,—it would be folly for him to call, his only sensible alternative being to either deck his hand, or raise the pot so high as to drive the other fellow out. This description of the game may not be technically correct, but it is the impression we have gained of it from reading about it in the story papers.

Now when a wicked daily newspaper publishes offers to lay a number of small election wagers, aggregating a few hundred dollars, and a daily conscientiously opposed to betting replies to it, not by seeing the wicked one's bets, but by offering four others aggregating $2000—take all or none—it looks very like a big bluff on the part of the player with the largest pile. How many persons are there in the city, outside of the editorial profession, who are accustomed to carry $2000 around in their trowsers pocket?—and editors are opposed to betting so heavily as that, on high moral grounds, besides being afraid they might lose, in which case it would make three months' salary look sick. We fear our State street contemporary's offer is intended as a raise-out rather than a call.

[NOTE. The foregoing was written by a gentleman of whom we have a very good opinion; just what he means we cannot say, but presume his article is some kind of new-fangled enigma.—Ed. Chronicle.]

MUSIC HALL.

At Fernandina, Fla., on Saturday, there were twenty-six new cases of yellow fever, five of the patients being white. A telegram from there says at least $20,000 will be needed to carry the population through to November without great distress. A chance to contribute, and at the same time secure an evening's refined pleasure, is afforded our citizens by the benefit concert to be given at Music hall on Thursday evening by the Boston Symphony Club Orchestra, tickets for which can now be secured at Goodrich's.

Those who wish good seats in Music hall on Friday evening, when "Ruddigore" will be sung by the Stetson Opera Co. of Boston, should look after them at once. The sale commenced Tuesday at Goodrich's, and the plan was crisscrossed all over before the store closed in the evening.

OBITUARY.

Hon. John Wentworth, better known as "Long John Wentworth," for many years past a familiar figure on our streets during the summer season, died at his home in Chicago on the morning of the 16th inst., at the age of seventy-three years. He was one of Chicago's oldest residents; had been mayor of the city, six years a member of Congress, and long editor and proprietor of the leading daily paper of Chicago. He leaves a large fortune. He was born in Sandwich, this state, graduated from Dartmouth college and Harvard law school, and then went west, where he ever afterward resided. In early life he was a democratic leader, but many years ago became a stalwart republican.

PERSONAL.

Miss Alice Parker, daughter of Mr. Benjamin M. Parker of this city, has entered the St. Lawrence divinity school at Canton, New York, with the purpose of becoming a Universalist minister.

Dr. Young and wife of Littleton, this state, are guests of Mrs. John O. Varrell of State street. Miss Minnie Tilton, of Littleton, is visiting Mr. James Cunningham and wife of South street.

Robert Amee, driver of Jackson & Co.'s Express, who has been for some two months on the sick list, resumed duty on Monday.

The Young People's Society of Trinity Methodist church will give a supper in the vestry from 6:30 to 8:00 o'clock this evening, with clam chowder, coffee, ice cream and cake; afterward, an entertainment and sale of flowers and fancy articles. Admission ten cents; chowder ten cents a plate.

The opening display of fashionable hats and bonnets at Mrs. Tebbetts' millinery rooms on Market street will continue through to-day.

The best Red Fire for illuminations can be purchased at Grace's drug store for fifty cents a pound.

The daily call at Staples' Dry Goods store: "Got any more of those remnants of drilling at 6 1-2 cents?"
We have.

The Portsmouth band rendered good music on Monday evening, for the republican rally.

The leaves were falling from the shade trees about the city on Tuesday in a continuous shower.

Officers Stott and Reagan did their duty at Music hall on Monday evening with equal efficiency and good judgment.

Hon. Alonzo P. Carpenter, presiding justice at the term of the supreme court now being held in this city, it is said has not been in attendance at court here until now since 1361, twenty-seven years ago.

A half-drunken bummer who attempted to disturb the republican meeting at Music hall on Monday evening, and was expelled by the police, got wholly drunk afterward, got before the police court next day, and got a sentence which will send him to Brentwood unless his party friends think it worth while to pay his fine and costs for the sake of his vote. He will probably stop at the county boarding house until election day, anyway.

The Harvard Clock Co. of Boston on Monday commenced to put into the tower of the new Jones brewery the works of the big clock which is to show the time there day and night.

The yard tug Leyden on Monday gave the U. S. S. Constellation a good send-off, towing her ten miles beyond the Isles of Shoals, and until in plain sight of the lighthouses on Thatcher's island. This was probably the longest tow seaward ever given to any vessel out of this harbor, excepting only such as were towed from port to port. Fancy the look Capt. Albert Rand would put on if he was asked to tow a vessel ten miles outside of the Shoals.

It is said that Mr. Leary, the great Nova Scotian lumber dealer, has come to the conclusion that rafting logs to the United States in any shape won't pay. The expenses of construction and breaking up of the raft exceeds that of transportation by shipboard.

An alderman of ward two, who deals in furniture on Market street, upon being applied to by a vice president of the republican meeting of Monday night for the use of chairs for the Democratic Harrison & Morton Club, replied: "You should not have a chair if you were to cover my desk with silver." He owes his election to the clemency of the republicans of his ward, and may never be there or in a place of honor again. He probably will be called upon to preside over the obsequies of his party soon after Nov. 6th. V.

Miss Lizzie Drake of North Kittery has growing some extra fine chrysanthemums, and those less fortunate in this respect are generously remembered by her.

Miss Ruth Parker, who has been visiting relatives and friends in North Kittery and vicinity for several months past, returned to her home in Boston on Monday of this week. She proposes passing the rest of the autumn in Middleboro, Mass. Her niece, Miss Nellie LaMos, sailed from Liverpool on the 10th inst. for New York, after an extended tour through Great Britain, Switzerland, Germany and France.

Capt. Charles H. Grant, of the steamer Zealand of the Red Star line, arrived at his former home in Kittery on Saturday last for a brief stay until his ship is ready to sail from New York. Mrs. Grant and family are living in Antwerp, Belgium.

NEW HAMPSHIRE
TRUST COMPANY,
Manchester, N. H.
CASH CAPITAL, - - $250,000.

The quarterly statement herewith presented indicates the continued growth and prosperity of the Institution. The confidence reposed in its securities is attested by the fact that they are held by most of the leading banks, and by nearly all the Fire Insurance companies in New Hampshire; by Banks, Insurance companies, Religious, Educational and Charitable institutions, and by a multitude of private investors in this and other states. The business has grown steadily from a small beginning to its present proportions because the public appreciates the conservative policy of the management. The CAPITAL was paid up in CASH, and nothing of a doubtful nature is counted in its assets. The power of the Company TO CREATE LIABILITIES IS LIMITED; its stockholders cannot borrow its funds; it is managed by men of experience and well-known financial standing. It is not only "under supervision of the Bank Commissioners" of New Hampshire, but is ANNUALLY EXAMINED by them in accordance with law, and the findings of the Commissioners published in the annual Bank Report.

It loans money in the West through salaried employees, and on FIRST MORTGAGES ONLY. It has not impaired its capital by guaranteeing loans at high rates of interest, on inferior security, or to an unsafe amount. The Company offer for investment 6 per cent First Mortgages on Real Estate with its guaranty, covering principal and interest, in amounts from $200 upwards, running from 3 to 5 years. Also, ITS OWN 6 PER CENT BONDS running 10 years, coupons payable semi-annually, amounts from $100 to $1,000 each. These bonds besides being the direct obligation of the Company are further secured by First Mortgages on Real Estate pledged with the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust Company as Trustee for the payment of these bonds and for no other purpose. The bonds are listed at the Boston Stock Exchange; they can be registered in the owner's name if desired; can be held without publicity and transferred without trouble; they are as safe as any security can be and combine a good rate of interest without the risk attending the ordinary Western investments.

Other desirable securities are occasionally offered, of the more conservative class, such as municipal, county, school and other bonds. No security is offered or recommended which has not been carefully investigated and believed to be worthy of confidence. It is the intention to avoid the more hazardous investments and hence no unreasonable rates of interest can be offered.

The Company is also authorized to act as Trustee in the management of trust funds; to serve as Trustee in corporate mortgages; and to assume all similar trust business. Deposits are received on favorable terms.

S.S.S. FOR THE BLOOD
TRADE MARK
An Important Announcement
About six weeks ago, while in business, I was suddenly attacked with excruciating pains in my feet, knees and hands. So severe the attack, that it took my breath completely, and in two or three days my joints were swollen to almost double their natural size, and sleep was driven from me. After suffering the most excruciating pain for a week, using liniments and various other remedies, a friend who sympathized with my helpless condition, said to me:
"Why, don't you get Swift's Specific and use it. I will guarantee a cure, and if it does not the medicine shall cost you nothing."
I at once secured the S. S. S., and after using it the first day, had a quiet night and refreshing sleep. In a week I felt greatly benefited. In three weeks I could sit up and walk about the room, and after using six bottles I was out and able to go to business. Since then I have been regular at my post of duty, and stand on my feet from nine to ten hours a day, and am entirely free from pain. These are the plain and simple facts in my case, and I will cheerfully answer all inquiries relative thereto, when personally or by mail.
THOMAS MARSILLIS,
11 W. 13th Street, New York City.
NASHVILLE, TENN.—I have warded off a severe attack of rheumatism by a timely resort to Swift's Specific. In all cases where a permanent relief is sought this medicine commends itself for a constitutional treatment that thoroughly eradicates the seeds of disease from the system.
Rev. W. P. HARRISON, D. D.
NEW YORK, 51 7TH AVE.—After spending $200 to be relieved of Blood Poison without any benefit, a few bottles of Swift's Specific worked a perfect cure. C. PORTER.
VIENNA, GA.—My little girl, aged six, and boy, aged four years, had scrofula in the worst aggravated shape. They were puny and sickly. Today they are healthy and robust, all the result of taking S. S. S.
JOE T. COLLINS.
LADY LAKE, SUMTER CO., FLA.—Your S. S. S. has proved a wonderful success in my case. The cancer on my face, no doubt would have soon hurried me to my grave. I do think it is wonderful, and has no equal.
M. H. BYRD, Postmaster.
WACO, TEXAS, May 9, 1888.
S. S. S. Co., Atlanta, Ga.:
Gentlemen—Knowing that you appreciate voluntary testimonials, we take pleasure in stating that one of our lady customers has regained her health by the use of four large bottles of your great remedy, after having been an invalid for several years. Her trouble was extreme debility, caused by a disease peculiar to her sex. Wilson & Co., Druggists.

OH, WHAT A COLD!
This is the season for sudden changes in the weather, and a great many "take cold" either in their Head or on their Lungs, causing Coughs, Hoarseness, and Sore Throat. These troubles can be soon relieved and cured by taking Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs, entirely removing these difficulties.
Cured his boy of Croup.
C. M. BROOKS, Lowell, Mass., says: "I take great pleasure in recommending Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific as a cure for Coughs, Colds, and Croup. I used it in my family last winter with the best results. Two or three doses cured my little boy of Croup, for which I am very thankful."
You can cure that Cough in a short time. You can cure your Catarrh if you persist in its use, as it will stop the secretion of Catarrhal matter in the head; it will relieve Croup in from three to five minutes.
The best he ever saw.
"The best medicine for Coughs and Consumptive Complaints that ever I saw is Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific," so says JOHN MCLAUGHLIN, of Boston.
Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific is sold by all Druggists. Price 50 cents and $1. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

At Uncle Sam's Sub-Treasury.
There are other advantages derived from the sub-treasury. Bills become worn and unfit for service, and these, in amounts of $500, will be taken at the depositories and fresh, new bills be given in exchange. Then, too, coin is being called in at certain times to give place to later coinage. The silver dollars in circulation before the Bland bill of 1878, commonly known as "the dollars of our daddies," and appearing on the assistant treasurer's report as "dads," have been called in. Twenty-cent coins and fractional currency have been called in by the department. These coins or currency when received at any of the sub-treasuries are held until an amount of sufficient worth is received, when it is shipped to Washington, the silver being recoined and the currency destroyed.
The reporter asked Assistant Treasurer Shultz regarding counterfeit money and as to whether it was ever received in his office. He replied that it was seldom any counterfeits were received, as the principal part of their business was transacted through banks, and it is rarely the case that a bad bill or a spurious coin passes the vigilant eyes of the tellers. When bills or coins are received the money passes through the hands of his chief teller or his assistant, and they are each experts in detecting counterfeits. A bill passing through their hands and having the slightest appearance of being spurious is closely examined and then it becomes apparent at once that some outside party is trading upon the good name and credit of Uncle Sam. None of the counterfeits are perfect. In bills there is a deficiency in the size or a poor job of engraving on the vignette, a difference in the thickness of the paper, a something which is at once apparent to the experts and it is at once thrown aside. An iron stamp, bearing the word "counterfeit," in raised letters, is then heated in a gas jet, and the word fumed into the bill so that it can never be defaced. This is then given back the owner—as though that were any consolation. A silver piece found to be spurious is cut in two and the pieces returned. An average of probably three or four bills come into the sub-treasury in the course of a month and are thus treated.—St. Louis Republic.

Delights of the Alhambra.
Granada during the hot weather was very delightful indeed. Everybody knows the delights of the Alhambra, and, as the best part of the town stands high, it was comparatively cool. We had rooms in one of its towers, bringing a couple of our own servants with us, and when we did not feel inclined to have cooking done at home, could go to the hotels close by, which were always crowded at that season and very amusing by reason of the mixture of nationalities to be met there. In this enchanted city, dirty though it be, you might persuade yourself easily enough that you had left behind the bustle and toil and confusion of the present; time moves so gently that a hundred years more or less does not seem to matter much—there is a quiet retrospective air about things which is eminently soothing, and on the breezy heights of the Alhambra the noise and jar of cities appear as far off as if they belong to another world. Everything is full of an ineffable sense of repose, of peace, of long unbroken silences, save when the irrepressible tourist breaks in upon you unobserved and disturbs your sense of the fitness of things.
As you stand at your window at nightfall you may hear the nightingales singing in the elms beneath, and as you wake next morning and see Granada dimly shining in the golden mist of dawn far below, the white, snowy crest of the Sierra Nevada in the distance and the nearer hills, all blue and purple as a background to the fairy palace at whose gates you dwell, you may well feel that you have rarely looked on a fairer scene, or at all events one more full of deep and abiding interest.—Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.

English Simplicity of Manner.
If there is anything which Englishwomen dislike more than another it is making a fuss. They do not gush over a new acquaintance or over an old one; it is the avoidance of fuss and gush and sloppy compliments which has gained them a reputation for coldness of manner. The coldness of manner is simplicity of manner; that and nothing else, and it is simplicity of nature which dictates the simple manner. Lunch may mean a party of twenty people, but whether twenty or two, there is no ceremony. The ladies walk into the dining room by themselves, the men straggle after, and find their way to such seats as suit them. The talk is as easy as if you were sitting about a fire, or more so. If the lunch is a small one, the talk ripples about the table; if large, you have to take your chance with the two fellow creatures next you—men or women, as chance, you or superior strategy may have determined. Society does not object to serious topics, or even to the serious treatment of them; what it objects to is pedantry, pretention, dullness—to that which is heavy as distinguished from that which is serious. It has preferences and strong preferences, but it will endure much. What it will not endure is the professor who brings into its presence the solemnities of the lecture room, or the man who arrives with a mission.—G. W. Smalley in New York Tribune.

A Gang of Greeks.
It was pleasant to look at the gang of Greek immigrants that had been brought to Castle Garden by a steamship from one of the Mediterranean ports. They had come from the vicinity of ancient Athens to try their fortunes in New York. It was evident to any one who looked at their garb as they set foot upon our shores and meandered through Battery park that they were very poor people, whose lives had been very hard, but you could not find on this globe finer specimens of any race of mankind. They would have made models for a sculptor. Their figures had been cast in an antique mold, worthy of the time of Pericles; their limbs were lithe, their features classical, and they bore themselves proudly as they glanced around at the novel scenes of the locality. The immigrants from Greece who landed at Castle Garden last year numbered over 600 men and women.—New York Evening Sun.

We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform, 1888.

The presidential election will be fought out on the lines laid down months ago. President Cleveland has been accused of having shrunk from the free trade policy he then advocated. The accusation is unjust. * * * President Cleveland is substantially in favor of a financial policy which will impose duties mainly for revenue purposes, will take duties off raw materials, and so widen the market of the American purchaser. These are the aims and this is the policy of the free traders of all countries.—London Saturday Review, Sept. 15th, 1888.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

A Double Help for the Bilious.

In addition to that chief remedial measure—the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters—persons suffering from an acute bilious attack, will facilitate recovery by the use at first of milk and lime water and thin gruels, and by a very gradual return to the use of solid foods. Fatty substances should be excluded from the diet. Blue pill is a remedy of doubtful safety, particularly if there be nausea and vomiting, frequent concomitants of liver trouble. The bitters, provided its reformatory action be not retarded and marred by gross indiscretions in diet, will soon restore the equilibrium of and action of the liver, stomach and bowels, all these disordered by billiousness. In all forms of malarial disease, which in every one of its phases presents indications of liver trouble, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the foremost of specifics. The light of over thirty years' experience also shows it to be a fine remedy for rheumatism, kidney troubles, dyspepsia, nervousness and debility.

Persons prematurely gray can have their hair restored to its youthful beauty, by using Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer, the best article in the market.

Our manufactures require the systematic and fostering care of the government. * * Equally important it is to provide at home a market for our raw materials.—James Monroe.

Every wife and mother in the country should know the great value of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, as a blood purifier. It gives tone, health, and strength, to the vital organs, corrects all irregularities, and expels impurities from the system. Young and old use it. Price $1.

When our manufactures are grown to a certain proportion, as they will under the fostering care of the government, * * the farmer will find a ready market for his surplus produce, and, what is of almost equal consequence, a certain and cheap supply for all his wants.—John C. Calhoun.

Are You Going

To travel? If so you must be very careful of your health, or your doctor's bills will cost you more than your travelling expenses. A bottle of Sulpher Bitters will protect you from all sickness incident to change of climate.

It is to the New World that the Cobden Club is chiefly looking as the most likely sphere for its vigorous foreign policy. It has done what it can in Europe, and is now turning its eye westward and bracing itself for the struggle which is to come. It cannot rest while the United States are unsubdued.—London Times, July 18th, 1880.

An Important Element

Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. The familiar headline "100 Doses One Dollar," is stolen by imitators, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This can easily be proven by any one who desires to test the matter. For real economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists.

Jacksonville had twenty-five new cases and three deaths on the 15th.

The president is careful to state that he frankly declares his indifference to the charge of favoring free trade. His policy, he says, may be called by that or another name, but it is the policy he recommends to Congress, and which, he does not affect to deny, must alter the terms on which foreigners have access to the American market.—London Saturday Review.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. non,wed,fri,otjal

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietors of Allcock's Porous Plasters, for Complaints and Colds, does it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles at 50c and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption.

THE SPECTER.

I made a grave deep down in my heart
For a love that was dumb and dead;
"There, darkly buried and far apart
It will rest in peace," I said;
I laid it away without sorrow or smart
And never a tear I shed.

And now that I would in my heart enfold
Another love fair as the May,
There has risen a ghost of the love of old,
A specter weird and gray,
And my sweet young love with her hair's soft gold,
She sorrows and turns away.
—Clinton Scollard in Home Journal.

The Perusal of a Book.

Select books that are informing, and so far as in your power equip yourselves with wide knowledge in all branches of history, literature and affairs. Are you deficient in any of these? Then seek the best authorities and bring yourself to the highest standard in that field without delay. Let your intellectual progress be marked with positive accumulations. When you read a book that is really worth the time you spend with it, do not cram your mind with others as a man in a hurry is apt to cram his gripsack, but do a little earnest and profitable thinking before you take up its successor in your reading course. The perusal of a book gives birth to ideas in no way connected with the subject of which it treats. All careful readers should, however, avoid dwelling too long upon one line of study or thought. Light and varied reading should be interspersed with the solid and useful. An extreme in either direction is to be avoided.—Magazine of American History.

Profits of Watch Repairing.

There is more profit in the repairing department of watch making than there is in any other trade in the country, unless, possibly, it is plumbing. Take, for instance, the main spring of a watch. The general price for replacing one is anywhere from $1.50 to $2. Now, a main spring to a jeweler costs little more, all told and set, than 25 cents. Then there is the extravagant price that is always demanded for cleaning a watch. Few jewelers ever charge less than $1.50 for such work. The time usually taken in doing this class of work is not more than from a half to three-quarters of an hour. The main spring itself costs on an average about 8 cents. Then there is an enormous profit made on watch crystals. The standard price for them is 25 cents each. The jeweler buys them by the gross or in lesser quantities for 20 cents per dozen.—Retired Jeweler in Globe-Democrat.

Weed Farming in Japan.

One might say that weed farming was a genuine part of the Japanese agricultural system, since the entire crop was utilized in some fashion, either for forage, food, bedding, beauty, mulching or manure. Not a savage plant was allowed to lead a useless life, or to devote its energies to the undoing of the farmer's work. Though the harmless and pretty weeds were in some cases permitted to flourish in the road gutters as well as the borders—and this is no joke—in such cases they were themselves sedulously weeded. It does not take deep or intense reflection to perceive that this thorough system of weed culture, so to speak, relieves the farmers of one heavy tax on their industry, which their brethren in America abandon themselves to paying.—American Agriculturist.

Manufacturing Unbreakable Glass.

An unbreakable substitute for glass is made by Mons. L. C. A. Marguerie, of Paris, by immersing wire gauze in a heated state in a thin paste formed of soluble glass, gelatine and glycerine, or glucose, in proportions varying according to the use for which the material was designed. When nearly dry the sheets are dipped in a concentrated solution of chrome alum or bichromate of potash. Any desired coloring matter may be incorporated with the gelatine, and copal or other protective varnish may be applied to the "vitreo-metallic" panes.—Arkansaw Traveler.

Stuck for a Word.

A Springfield teacher had given her class in geography some oral instruction about the middle states, mentioning among other things that the inhabitants were "enterprising, wide awake and go ahead people." The next day she was questioning the class on the subject, when a small boy replied to a question about the inhabitants that "they were enterprising, wide awake and"—here he was stuck for a word, but got it finally—"move on people."—Springfield Union.

Inherited Dental Deficiency.

Dr. Cryer says, in The Philadelphia Medical Times, that he has among his patients members of the same family, representing five generations, each lacking the left lower lateral incisor tooth. An interesting feature of this remarkable instance of heredity is that one of the members of the same family has a supernumerary lower incisor.—Science.

A Novel Writer's Thoroughness.

THE MANUFACTURE OF GAS.

A Simple Explanation of the Way Illuminating Gas Is Made.

How few people can intelligibly explain some of the most ordinary things in every day life. An official of the city gas works was heard to say not long ago that if he might judge by the number of times he was asked for information, not more than two people in ten know how common illuminating gas is made. They all seem to understand, he said, that it comes out of soft coal, but they are ignorant of the process by which it is extracted. We do not doubt this at all, for it is the common things that we are apt to overlook in our search for information.

Now, let us give you a simple explanation of gas making. Break up a piece of bituminous coal into small fragments and fill the bowl of a clay tobacco pipe with them. Cover the mouth of the bowl with wet clay and then thoroughly dry it. Put the bowl of the pipe into a fire where it will get red hot, and you will soon see a yellowish smoke come out of the stem, and if you touch a light to the smoke it will burn brightly, for it is nothing more or less than the gas from the coal.

You can purify and collect this gas in a simple way. Fill a bottle with water and turn it upside down in a bowl of water. You know the water will not run out of the bottle because the air pressure on the water in the bowl will prevent it. Put the end of the pipe stem under the mouth of the bottle, and the gas will bubble up through the water into the bottle, gradually displacing the water, and if the pipe were large enough to make a great deal of gas the bottle would be entirely filled with it.

You have seen the immense quantities of coke which they have at the gas works; that is what is left of the coal after the gas has been burned out of it. Coke is carbon, only a small part of what was in the coal having gone off with the gas. Take the clay covering off your pipe and you will find the bowl filled with this coke.

Now, that is precisely the way gas is made in large quantities at the gas works. Instead of pipe bowls they use big retorts, and these are heated red hot by furnace, for the fire must be outside of the retorts. Heating coal red hot in a closed retort is different from burning it in the open air. A large pipe from the retort carries off the product of the coal, consisting of steam, tar, air and ammonia, as well as gas. The ammonia and the tar go into tanks, and the gas into coolers, and then over lime, which takes up the acids in it into the immense iron gas holders which you have seen at the works.

These holders are open at the bottom, and stand, or rather swing, in tanks of water, being adjusted by means of weights. As the gas comes into them they rise up out of the water, but the bottoms are always submerged, so that the gas cannot escape. The large gas pipes, or mains as they are called, connect with the holders and conduct the gas through the streets to the houses where it is used. The pressure is given to the gas by the weight of the iron holders, which are always bearing down on the gas they contain.

How to Live Long.

Milk is not always admirable as a dinner drink, especially when fish plays any part in the menu. Tea or coffee taken with meat is simply suicidal. These hot beverages turn the meat into something resembling leather, and the result interferes sadly with digestion. The man who desires long life must not give a place to "high tea" in his daily programme. Of tea itself it can only be said that it is harmless if not taken too often or made too strong. The American lady who after several calls and a cup of tea at each remarked that she could "always worry down another cup" was probably unaware of the mischief she was doing herself. No one need totally abstain from tea if they only take the precaution to buy it good, not to make it strong, not to let it infuse long, never to take it more than twice a day and to abjure it after 5 in the afternoon.

The morning tub is indispensable to all who wish to live a long and healthy life. It is true that there have been centenarians who have known nothing of this luxury, but their longevity has been in spite of that fact, not because of it. The bath is good, but not too much bath. Walking is good, but it must not be overdone. Dickens overdid it. Most of us, however, underdo it, and scarcely walk enough. Flesh accumulates upon us in middle age because we do not take sufficient exercise, and then we give up long walks because we are stout and consequently lazy, thus reversing the process of cause and effect. The health suffers seriously, and a way is opened to many maladies.—Cor. London News.

Wild Horse of the Plains.

So much has been written of the horse of the plains, which, foaled upon the dew kissed grass of the prairie, has never known a halter or the touch of a man's hand, that descriptive reference to their fleetness, wariness and oftentimes their graceful beauty, particularly among the stallions, would at this day lack interest. But one curious fact is known to but few aside from those who have followed them for hundreds of miles and studied their habits closely. If there are enough in a band these animals group by thirteens. With every stallion there are twelve mares. What becomes of the weaker males whom the stronger fight away—whether they bide their time to get the quota of females or, in the despondency of equine bachelorhood, go off alone and starve themselves—is not known. The matrimonial regulations of the wild horse, however this may be, allow to each male twelve consorts, and, the remarkable feature is, no more. They draw the line at an even dozen. Even when the bands that roamed these great plains, then tenantless except by other wild creatures, numbered in the hundreds and more than a thousand this peculiar division into families was plainly noticeable. They kept a little apart and never voluntarily mingled.—Colorado Cor. Chicago Tribune.

A Waste of Fiber.

It is stated that two-thirds of the wood used in paper making is waste, though experiments indicate that this can be profitably converted into fertilizers.

"Who's Afraid ?"

Secretary Whitney expresses the opinion that this country could whip England on the seas, even with what navy we now have. Now we understand why the democratic party so persistently opposed appropriations for the increase of the efficiency of the navy—until they could have the spending of the money themselves. We can whip all creation with what we have now. The secretary is the first to announce this important discovery.

The Yellow Fever.

Three cases of fever were reported at Decatur, Ala., on the 16th, all colored; no deaths.

A despatch of the 16th from Montgomery, Ala., says: Montgomery has removed her quarantine regulations against all points in Alabama except Decatur, and at all other points except against Jackson, Miss.

At Jacksonville, Fla., on the 16th, there were fifty-eight new cases and two deaths. Total cases to date, 3627; deaths, 318.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17th.—Mayor Hewitt has at last formally accepted the citizens' nomination for mayor which was made at Cooper Union on the 4th of October. Having taken this step there will now be no turning back on the part of the old gentleman who has administered affairs in this city the past two years. He has driven home the nail of his steadfast purpose to run, and doubly clinched it.

His letter, like most of his public documents, is tediously long, and yet entertainingly discursive regarding some of the personalities of politics which are now uppermost in the public mind here. About one-third of the letter is taken up with the wholesale denunciation of Tammany Hall, which he characterizes as a political trust administered in secret for the purpose of securing the spoils of office to a small clique of men and their followers. He says that if there is any sincerity in Tammany's professions of concern as to the effect of divided democratic local nominations upon the national ticket, Tammany should promptly offer to the citizens' committee the privilege of naming a respectable and independent democrat for mayor. But if Tammany declines to do this, Mr. Hewitt has concluded that it is his duty to test the question whether the city government is for the people or whether it is for the benefit of Tammany Hall.

The mayor well knew when he wrote these words that there was not the slightest possibility of Tammany receding from its nomination, or of Sheriff Grant withdrawing after the severe verbal scarifying he gave Mayor Hewitt in his speech of acceptance of the mayoralty nomination.

The conditions which have been humorously proposed by both candidates with the foreknowledge and conviction of each that neither would accede thereto, emphasizes most clearly the stubborn determination of Tammany and the County Democracy, whose candidate Mayor Hewitt also is, to fight to the bitter end. The mayor's letter has been the subject of animated discussion at the Hoffman, the St. James and other public resorts, and the manner in which its sentiments were received by leading politicians at the national democratic headquarters showed most conclusively that they did not coincide with the expressed views of the letter that this local issue could have no bearing upon the national contest.

The American Woman Suffrage Association will hold its twentieth annual meeting in Cincinnati during November.

Mrs. Parks, of the surveyor's staff of women inspectors in New York, now represents the surveyor permanently at Castle Garden. She is one of his most efficient officers.

The proposed appropriation of $80,000 for a woman's home in Utah, the project urged by Mrs. Angie Newman, was defeated in the house of representatives.

The Woman's Democratic club of Milwaukee is becoming quite prominent as an organization. It has as its object the acquirement of information on the political issues of the day.

There are two political clubs of young women at Cerro Gordo, Ill. One is a democratic, the other a republican club. These young ladies' marching clubs will take an active part in the campaign, and will be uniformed.

A "Broom Brigade" of uniformed young women was a picturesque feature of a republican parade at Newton, Ia., recently.

More than fifty of the best known ladies of Battle Creek, Mich., have formed a dress-reform club, and declared themselves against bustles, high heels, tight shoes, stiff corsets, etc.

An Episcopalian school is about to be started in Tokio for the education of the high caste Japanese ladies. Miss Martha Aldrich, of Ashland, this state, sails this month to take charge of it.

Miss Myrtle Furman has been elected instructor of elocution in Swarthmore college. She must be a young woman of remarkable ability, for she carries on her work successfully, although she is blind.

Among the exhibits in the late Mechanics' fair at San Francisco were a dozen finely-made horseshoes, the product of the skill of a girl fifteen years old, named Annie Bole, the daughter of a teamster. She learned the art for amusement.

A Lack of Taste.

One of the most irritating of the recent idiocies of tourists is the fashion of leaving cards at the tombs of distinguished people. The bust of Longfellow in Westminster Abbey is constantly surrounded by these inappropriate bits of pasteboard, and the grave of "H. H." is said to be literally covered with the visiting cards left by tourists who climbed the lonely mountain near Colorado Springs to visit the last resting place of the poet and novelist. Nothing but an abundance of the most egregious vanity and absolute lack of taste could prompt an action so idiotic as the following of this absurd custom.—Boston Courier.

The Long Coach Whip Pennant.

Many people have wondered what is the significance of the long pennant carried at the main truck of all vessels of war in commission. When the Dutch Admiral Van Tromp hoisted a broom at the top of the mast of his vessel to indicate his intention to sweep the English from the sea, the English admiral hoisted a horse whip, indicating his intention to chastise the Dutchman. Hence the coach whip pennant was adapted as the distinctive insignia of a war vessel in commission for service.—New York Tribune.

Another Use for Photography.

The latest use to which the magnesium flash light has been put is the photography of the human eye. At the suggestion of Du Bois Reymond, a normal eye, after a quarter of an hour's rest in a darkened room, was photographed life size, the result being that the photograph showed the pupil of the eye dilated to its fullest extent. As these photographs permit of measurement, they cannot fail to be of great value to medical science.—Photographic News.

An Incentive to Industry.

While it is ordinarily the custom of carpenters, masons and painters to contract for their work by the day or by the job, there are occasional deviations from it. One expert carpenter in Philadelphia makes his contracts by the job, specifying that he shall receive a bonus if he finishes before a certain time. As he is a rapid workman he contrives to earn considerably more than he would if contracting in the customary way.—Chicago News.

Don't Wait

Until your hair becomes dry, thin, and gray before giving the attention needed to preserve its beauty and vitality. Keep on your toilet-table a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor—the only dressing you require for the hair—and use a little, daily, to preserve the natural color and prevent baldness.

Thomas Munday, Sharon Grove, Ky., writes: "Several months ago my hair commenced falling out, and in a few weeks my head was almost bald. Tried many remedies, but they did no good. I finally bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, after using only a part of the contents, my head was covered with a heavy growth of hair. I recommend your preparation as the best hair-restorer in the world."

"My hair was faded and dry," writes Mabel C. Hardy, of Delavan, Ill.; "but after using a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor it became black and glossy."

The New York Sun's Washington special gives an interview with Secretary Whitney, in which he says the United States could whip England, but he doesn't expect war. Our new swift cruisers, he adds, could accomplish incalculable damage to English shipping, and American engineering science is competent to defend our seaboard cities. The secretary considers Canada's military strength as insignificant, and believes England is incapable of protecting the Dominion. They must sell awful stuff in Washington.

An Adams county (Penn.) farmer was told by one of a band of gypsies that any money he might hide on a certain spot on his farm would double itself in a night. To test the matter he placed $10 in a deposit and the next morning found $20. This so elated him that he went to the Littletown Bank, drew out $800, and deposited it, but next morning, to his dismay, the $800 was gone, and so were the gypsies.

In January, 1886, Robert J. Smith of Jessup, Ga., was murdered by Lewis Edwards, a negro, who was sentenced to life imprisonment. His attorney secured a new trial and the case was to have begun on the 15th. Sunday night, the 14th, the sheriff took Edwards to Jessup, and at two o'clock in the morning on the 15th a party of masked men entered the jail and shot him dead.

A stranger walking in Indianapolis asked a little negro boy which house General Harrison lived in. "The house that hasn't a portrait of General Harrison in the window," was the reply.

Be Sure

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation, curative power superior to any other article. A Boston lady who knew what she wanted, and whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

To Get

"In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me their's would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was. I had taken it, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other.

Hood's

When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable, suffering a great deal with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked, and had for some time, like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it." MRS. ELLA A. GOFF, 61 Terrace Street, Boston.

The Indian's Physical Endurance.

How much bodily pain one of these Crow warriors can undergo I witnessed in 1880, near this post. It was in the fall of that year when the Hon. Carl Schurz (the then secretary of the interior) visited the captured Sioux and Cheyennes near Fort Keogh. The honorable gentleman desired to observe the natives at one of their dances and feasts, and Gen. Miles, our commanding officer, conducted him to the neighboring encampment. The writer accompanied the party, which went on horseback. As we neared the spot we beheld several hundreds of Indians squatted down on the grass, singing, shouting and drumming. They were not dancing just then, but were enjoying a star performance by a solitary warrior—a Crow Indian—something of an excruciatingly humorous character—a highly seasoned and palatable side dish in the feast, so to speak.

The stalwart Crow stood in the center of the circle, entirely naked with the exception of the proverbial breech cloth; the blood was streaming from a hundred gashes which he was self inflicting upon chest, shoulders, abdomen, arms and legs with sharp edged knives, handed to him alternately by some of the Sioux and Cheyenne braves.

The sight was too much for the somewhat sensitive organization of the fastidious secretary, and giving his horse the spurs, he soon escaped from the disgusting spectacle. The attending Indians enjoyed the performance hugely, for they were chatting away and laughing gayly while the horrible and certainly very painful mutilation was going on. The interpreter informed me that it was an atonement ceremony on the part of the Crow, who had in the preceding winter killed a Sioux. From the same source I learned afterward that the very height of the festivity was reached by the audience when the performer finally permitted his body to be washed with vinegar, after which he indulged in fits and convulsions.—Fort Keogh (Mont.), Cor. Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Sound of Thunder.

One of the most terse and succinct descriptions of a natural phenomenon is that recently given by M. Hirn, in which he says that the sound which is known as thunder is due simply to the fact that the air traversed by an electric spark, that is, a flash of lightning, is suddenly raised to a very high temperature, and has its volume, moreover, considerably increased. The column of gas thus suddenly heated and expanded is sometimes several miles long, and as the duration of the flash is not even a millionth of a second, it follows that the noise bursts forth at once from the whole column, though for an observer in any one place it commences where the lightning is at the least distance.

In precise terms, according to M. Hirn, the beginning of the thunder clap gives us the minimum distance of the lightning, and the length of the thunder clap gives us the length of the column. He also remarks that when a flash of lightning strikes the ground, it is not necessarily from the place struck that the first noise is heard. Again, he points out that a bullet whistles in traversing the air, so that we can to a certain extent follow its flight, the same thing also happening with a falling meteorite just before striking the earth. The noise actually heard has been compared to the sound produced when one tears linen. It is due, really, to the fact that the air rapidly pushed on one side in front of the projectile, whether bullet or meteorite, quickly rushes back to fill the gap left in the rear.—Scientific American.

Singular Loss of Memory.

A recent medical journal gives the report of a case of singular loss of memory in a young girl residing in New York. Sitting in her own room one day, she took up a package of letters which she intended to answer, and was amazed to find that she could not remember the names or appearance of any of the writers, all of whom were her own personal friends.

She was calm and sane except upon this point; her memory of persons seemed to be suddenly and wholly obliterated. She hastily descended to the room where the family was gathered for dinner, and found that she could not remember a single name or face, except that of her mother. Her father, sisters and brothers appeared to her as strangers, nor was it possible to recall them to her. The faculty of memory of persons appeared to be paralyzed. It was found by the physicians that this singular effect was produced by the lodgment of a clot of blood upon a certain part of the brain.

Another well known mental disorder, which produces forgetfulness of words, results from abnormal pressure, or softening, in another part of the brain. The patient frequently takes one word, such as "yes" or "water," and repeats it a thousand times, imagining that he is conversing with fluency and ease.—Youth's Companion.

A note made by a minor is void; a contract made with a minor is void; a contract made with a lunatic is void.

LET THE FAITHFUL FACE THE MUSIC.

The democratic state central committee have notified, by a circular, all the federal office-holders of New Hampshire that "voluntary contributions to the amount of five per cent on a year's salary are being forwarded to the committee," etc. Remittances may be made by check or money order, payable to John M. Hill, treasurer. As the carriage of letters by mail of late is somewhat uncertain, it is understood that Hosea Carter will drop around and see the office holders in this city and vicinity at an early date. "Voluntary contributions", is awful good.

SUPREME COURT, OCTOBER TERM.

The petit jurors were on the 17th inst. dismissed until Monday, Nov. 12th, when the trial of Palmer for the murder of Whitehouse will commence.

The grand jury will not probably be ready to report until this afternoon or tomorrow morning.

POLICE COURT---BATCHELDER J.

WEDNESDAY, Oct. 17th.

William Quinn was called up, on a charge of assault upon David Slaney, continued from the previous day. He pleaded guilty to a charge of simple assault, but the court, not fully understanding the circumstances, questioned the complainant, defendant and several witnesses. The trouble it appears arose from some dispute in which Slaney and a younger brother of Quinn became involved on Water street, Sunday afternoon, when Mr. Quinn espoused the cause of his brother, the result being that Mr. Slaney's face was considerably marked up. Fined $5, costs $9.98; appealed, and gave bonds in $100 to appear at the January term of the supreme court.

MATRIMONIAL.

There was a very pleasant wedding in St. John's church on Wednesday, the 17th inst., at noon, when Miss Corinda A. Cunningham, daughter of Mr. Jas. Cunningham of South street, and Andrew B. Bingham, Esq., of Littleton, were united in matrimony, Rev. Henry E. Hovey officiating. The ushers were Joseph T. Cunningham of Boston, George Bingham of Littleton, Frank Ferguson of this city and Joseph Cunningham of New Haven. The bride entered the church leaning on the arm of her father, and preceded by the ushers, passed up the central aisle to the altar, where the groom and his best man, Mr. Thomas Wood of Boston, were awaiting them. At the conclusion of the ceremony Mr. Bingham and wife were driven from the church to the railroad station, and left on a brief wedding tour, at the close of which they will take up their residence in Littleton.

THE DEMOCRATIC RALLY.

The democratic rally on Wednesday evening, the 17th inst, was considerably interfered with by the rain of the day and early evening, which made the streets very muddy and no doubt prevented many from coming out who would otherwise have appeared. Nevertheless there was a large number of people on Daniel street, Market square and Congress street to see two flags hoisted—one at the headquarters on Daniel street and one at Fay's store—and hear the music of the three bands which had "been engaged as a drawing card for the evenings performance;" and Music hall was very nearly as full as it was on the occasion of the republican rally two evening's before, a considerably larger number of those present being ladies. We omit any special account of the meeting, for several reasons, one of which is that we were not there.

"Laws grind the poor, and rich men rule the law." But let us be thankful that any poor sufferer can buy with only 25 cents a bottle of Salvation Oil.

[From the Penny Post.]

SOME PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

We noticed on the stage at Music hall last evening the faces of Nathaniel K. Raynes, Thomas Watkins, George R Raitt, William Watkins and O. H Cook of this city, and Joseph S. Hoyt of Newington, who have professed to be democrats in years gone by. Now we want to ask a few plain questions. Would Nathaniel K. Raynes have been on Music hall stage last evening if he had got a commission as gauger of rum at Ward's distillery? Would Thomas Watkins and Joseph Hoyt have occupied seats on Music hall stage last evening if either one had been successful in being appointed boss moulder on the navy yard? Would William Watkins have been on Music hall stage last evening if brother Tom had received the appointment of boss moulder on the yard? Would George Raitt have shown his portly form off on Music hall stage if he had got an office under the administration? If Oliver H. Cook could have had the running of things in ward four or received the nomination of senator four years ago, would he have occupied a seat on Music hall stage last evening?

The true and loyal democrats understand it all.—[Times.

We presume the gentlemen above mentioned can give good and sufficient reasons why they were on Music Hall stage Monday night, reasons perfectly satisfactory to all "true and loyal democrats," and to the republicans, who, in all the years of their supremacy have never trested them so shabbily as have the Market street junta.

Now we want to ask a few questions The Times may answer if it can Would Charles W. Stimpson, now filling the place of some "true and loyal democrat" as master carpenter at the navy yard, be a mugwumpian democrat had not the republicans removed him from that position? Would Geo D. Shannon, now filling the place rightfully belonging to some "true and loyal democrat" as boss teamster on the navy yard, be a mugwumpian democrat had not the republicans removed him from that position? Would Mr. Stephen T. Raitt, now filling the place rightfully belonging to some "true and loyal democrat," as boss blacksmith on the navy yard, be a mugwumpian democrat had not the republicans removed him from that position? Would Tobias E. Burke, now filling the place rightfully belonging to some "true and loyal democrat" as boss boiler-maker on the navy yard be a mugwumpian democrat had not the republicans removed him from that position? Would Andrew J. Stimpson, now filling the place rightfully belonging to some "true and loyal democrat" as clerk to his brother Charles at the navy yard, be a mugwumpian democrat had not the republicans removed him from a similar position? Would Joseph Harlow, now filling the place rightfully belonging to some "true and loyal democrat" in the naval store at the navy yard, be a mugwumpian democrat had Cleveland been defeated? Would Samuel M Joy, now filling the place of some "true and loyal democrat" as a machinist at the navy yard, be a mugwumpian democrat had Cleveland been defeated? Would William W. Palfrey, now filling the place of some "true and loyal democrat" as writer at the navy yard, have become a mugwumpian democrat had William not been removed from a similar position? Would William Conn, the blatant Know Nothing and chronic office seeker now rattling around as the democratic candidate for Senator in this district, in place of some "true and loyal democrat" have become a mugwump and a democrat had not the republicans removed him from a postal clerkship on the Concord railroad?

We pause for a reply, although "we think the true and loyal democrats understand it all."

Come again!

INDEPENDENTS' MEETING.

The Independent Democrats of this city are requested to meet at their room in the Old Custom House building, corner of Daniel and Penhallow streets, on Friday evening, October 19th, for the purpose of completing the organization of their club. It is requested that no democrat shall present himself, except he will pledge himself to vote for the electoral ticket of Harrison and Morton.

PER ORDER.

MUSIC HALL.

The following appeal was issued in Boston on the 16th inst. by Mr. Alfred T. Turner, treasurer of the relief fund of that city: "The intelligence from Jacksonville, Fernandina and Gainesville is to the effect that there still exists great distress resulting from the yellow fever, which is still raging in those communities, and appeals are made for more aid. Mayor O'Brien urgently calls on those of our citizens who have not already responded to the calls of the sufferers to do so at once by sending contributions to the undersigned."

At Music hall, this evening, the Boston Sympathy Club Orchestra, assisted by Miss Elsa Clark Cushing, soprano soloist, will give a grand concert for the benefit of the yellow fever sufferers. Tickets at Goodrich's; see advertisement.

The entertainment in Grand Army hall on Tuesday evening of this week, given by the ladies of Storer Relief Corps in aid of the relief fund of Storer Post, G. A. R., netted $40 for the fund.

The flagman's lodge at the Creek crossing of the Concord & Portsmouth railroad was broken into recently by some evil-disposed persons, the stove pitched out of doors and broken, and whatever furniture and fixtures were in the building smashed and generally demoralized.

Says the Penny Post: "Why cannot the street commissioner, or some one in authority, stop the slovenliness that now exists in new Vaughan street? It is almost an impossibility for pedestrians to pass through that thoroughfore without taking the middle of the street, owing to the blockading of the sidewalk—what little there is—without running the risk of tumbling over teams, bricks and other rubbish. Even the lamp near the Raynes' shipyard would be consoling to the pedestrians who pass that way, if lighted once in a while."

HUTCHINSON'S.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17th.—Col. Swords, the sergeant-at-arms of the republican national committee, who a few days ago placed a ten thousand dollar bet even in favor of Harrison's election, was anxiously looking last night for democratic parties who had declared their desire to see him for the purpose of making wagers. Col. Swords was willing to put up almost any amount, in sums to suit, in favor of the republican candidates, but although he was at the Hoffman house, the democratic headquarters, during the night, and was known by all the "sporting" democrats to be in earnest in his desire to put his money up, they cautiously kept quiet, and out of his way.

Vassar college has just received a scholarship of $6,000 from Calvin Huntington, of Fort Scott, Kan.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

Sold only in cans, full weight.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

TRUST COMPANY,

Manchester, N. H.

CASH CAPITAL, - - $250,000.

The quarterly statement herewith presented indicates the continued growth and prosperity of the Institution. The confidence reposed in its securities is attested by the fact that they are held by most of the leading banks, and by nearly all the Fire Insurance companies in New Hampshire; by Banks, Insurance companies, Religious, Educational and Charitable institutions, and by a multitude of private investors in this and other states. The business has grown steadily from a small beginning to its present proportions because the public appreciates the conservative policy of the management. The CAPITAL was paid up in CASH, and nothing of a doubtful nature is counted in its assets. The power of the Company TO CREATE LIABILITIES IS LIMITED; its stockholders cannot borrow its funds; it is managed by men of experience and well-known financial standing. It is not only "under supervision of the Bank Commissioners" of New Hampshire, but is ANNUALLY EXAMINED by them in accordance with law, and the findings of the Commissioners published in the Annual Bank Report.

It loans money in the West through salaried employees, and on FIRST MORTGAGES ONLY. It has not impaired its capital by guaranteeing loans at high rates of interest, on inferior security, or to an unsafe amount. The Company offer for investment 6 per cent First Mortgages on Real Estate with its guaranty, covering principal and interest, in amounts from $200 upwards, running from 3 to 5 years. Also, ITS OWN 6 PER CENT BONDS running 10 years, coupons payable semi-annually, amounts from $100 to $1,000 each. These bonds besides being the direct obligation of the Company are further secured by First Mortgages on Real Estate pledged with the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust Company as Trustee for the payment of these bonds and for no other purpose. The bonds are listed at the Boston Stock Exchange; they can be registered in the owner's name if desired; can be held without publicity and transferred without trouble; they are as safe as any security can be and combine a good rate of interest without the risk attending the ordinary Western investments.

Other desirable securities are occasionally offered, of the more conservative class, such as municipal, county, school and other bonds. No security is offered or recommended which has not been carefully investigated and believed to be worthy of confidence. It is the intention to avoid the more hazardous investments and hence no unreasonable rates of interest can be offered.

The Company is also authorized to act as Trustee in the management of trust funds; to serve as Trustee in corporate mortgages; and to assume all similar trust business. Deposits are received on favorable terms.

An Important Announcement

About six weeks ago, while at business, I was suddenly attacked with excruciating pains in my feet, knees and hands. So severe the attack that I took my bed immediately, and in two or three days my joints swell swollen to almost double their natural size, and almost was driven from me. After suffering the most excruciating pain for a week, using liniments and various other remedies, a friend who unfortunately with my helpless condition, said to me:

"Why, don't you get Swift's Specific and use it. I will guarantee a cure, and if it does not the medicine shall cost you nothing.

I at once secured the S. S. S., and after using it the first day, had a quiet night and refreshing sleep. In a week I felt greatly benefitted. In three weeks I could sit up and walk about the room, and after using six bottles I was out and able to go to business. Since then I have been regularly at my post of duty, and stand on my feet from nine to ten hours a day, and am entirely free from pain. These are the plain and simple facts in my case, and I will cheerfully answer all inquiries relative thereto, either in person or by mail.

H. W. 13th street, New York City.

NASHVILLE, TENN.—I have worded off a severe attack of rheumatism by a thorough course to Swift's Specific. In all cases where a permanent relief is sought this medicine commends itself for a constitutional treatment that thoroughly eradicates the seeds of disease from the system.

REV. W. P. HARRISON, D. D.

NEW YORK, 81 7TH AVE.—After spending $200 to be relieved of Blood Poison without any benefit, a few bottles of Swift's Specific worked a perfect cure.

J. FORTUN.

VIENNA, GA.—My little girl, aged six and boy, aged four years, had scrofula in the worst aggravated shape. They were puny and sickly. To-day they are healthy and robust, all the result of taking S. S. S.

JOE T. COLLIER.

LADY LAKE, SUMTER CO., FLA.—Your S. S. S. has proved a wonderful success in my case. The cancer on my face, no doubt, would have soon hurried me to my grave. I do think it is wonderful, and its no equal.

B. H. BYRD, Postmaster.

WACO, TEXAS, May 9, 1888.

S. S. CO., Atlanta, Ga.:

Gentlemen—Knowing that you appreciate voluntary testimonials, we take pleasure in stating that one of our lady customers has regained her health by the use of four large bottles of your great remedy, after having been an invalid for several years. Her trouble was a severe debility, caused by a disease peculiar to her sex. WILLIS & CO., Druggists.

OH, WHAT A COLD!

This is the season for sudden changes in the weather, and a great many "take cold" either in their Head or on their Lungs, causing Coughs, Hoarseness, and Sore Throat. These troubles can be soon relieved and cured by taking Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs, entirely removing these difficulties.

Cured his boy of Croup.

C. M. BROOKS, Lowell, Mass., says: "I take great pleasure in recommending Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific as a cure for Coughs, Colds, and Croup. I used it in my family last winter with the best results. Two or three doses cured my little boy of Croup, for which I am very thankful."

You can cure that Cough in a short time. You can cure your Catarrh if you persist in its use, as it will stop the worst case of Catarrhal matter in the head; it will relieve Croup in from three to five minutes.

The best he ever saw.

"The best medicine for Coughs and Consumptive Complaints that ever I saw is Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific," so says JOHN MCLAUGHLIN, of Boston.

Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific is sold by all Druggists. Price 50 cents and $1. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

OREN BRAGDON & SON,

NO. 24 MARKET STREET.

IN A QUIET NEIGHBORHOOD

Buying a Lot in the City of the Dead. Caste in a Cemetery.

"Your first real estate! Sad, sad! But we've all got to come to it. But isn't it a satisfaction to have a few feet in a well kept place like this? Why, I grow fonder and fonder of it every day. Surveyed and built up most of it myself, you see. There's a monument for you! How is it to your liking? Pretty heavy. Ah, but it's lasting—no stained surfaces, no ginger bread work to crumble off. Take my advice, young man, and when you buy your monument don't invest in marble. 'Taint worth twopence a ton, except to the dealers. Nothing like granite."

The superintendent led the way along the eastern limits of the cemetery and then paused as if to get his bearings. His strange combination of business tact and harmless gossip made the reporter feel little like a grief stricken purchaser of a burial spot.

"Now, let me see about what you'd naturally want," said he, eyeing his companion critically, as if sizing him up so as to save himself needless trouble. "You see everybody has his special likings, and we have to sort of estimate a customer's tastes before showing him a lot. All sorts of people apply to us, and we have to use a good deal of tact and judgment so as not to offend present lot owners or new customers. We have to discriminate even in the grave! If a negro comes to me I've got to sell him a lot, but I've also got to put him in his natural element. If I didn't there would be Ned to pay."

"But that, I should think, is a difficult task. Suppose such a person as you refer to wanted a fine lot in what you call an aristocratic neighborhood, how would you get around the matter?"

"Oh, bless you, that's easy enough. Nobody knows what lots are for sale but myself; and if a man selects a lot where I don't think he belongs, why, the lot's already sold. See? It doesn't look just right, but it's got to be done. What would one of your wealthy aristocrats think if I should sell a little lot next to his big one, and the owner of the little lot should erect a $25 white bronze tombstone right under the nose of his $5,000 granite monument? War in the camp right off! I tell you there isn't a popular cemetery in Chicago that hasn't its South Side and its West Side, its Michigan avenue and its South Clark street. You notice in laying out the cemetery we group a number of big lots in the most conspicuous places. Caste lines are inevitable, even in a graveyard."

"Well, show me a lot where a poor devil of a scribe would naturally belong," said the reporter.

"Yes, in just a minute. Going to bury wife or child? Oh, not married! But I suppose you're going to be. Now, here's some nice sightly lots at $60. But then there's no provision for growth of family or extensive local improvements. Being buried here is a good deal like having standing room in a theatre; you kind of feel as though somebody were going to tramp on your toes all the while. And if you should become as rich as Jay Gould you couldn't put up a monument. The lot's too small; you'd have to be content with a headstone. I want to sell you a lot that you'll be satisfied with hereafter and your children be proud of."

"Let me see something a little better, then," interposed the apparent purchaser.

"I'd advise you to go into a new subdivision, where the improvements that have been made are good, and bide future developments. It is here just as it is down town. New streets and subdivisions outshine the old ones. Now, here's a mound"—by this time they had arrived pretty nearly at the west side of the cemetery—"where the lots are large and open. There's plenty of room here; the grade is high and the drainage good. But I seldom bring the likes of you here, because it's a sort of foreign settlement. You notice how the 'sens' and 'ceklis,' and 'dts' predominate. You'd scarcely feel at home here if I'd sell you a lot. Besides, the locality has one great and permanent drawback. Yonder are the single graves in plain sight. You wouldn't like to live always in sight of the poorhouse, and you'd scarcely want to be buried in view of potter's field. No, I know you wouldn't be satisfied here. You'd better put a little more money in your ground and get something that will rise in value rather than deteriorate. Ah, I have it. Just come over here."

The superintendent led the way to the southeast, near a pretty expanse of water. Consulting his book, he picked out a particular lot and pointed it out with satisfaction.

"Now, here you are," said he. "I couldn't show you anything better in the whole cemetery. Price moderate, neighbors of a high class, near public drive, where you know things will always be kept in order. This lot will be worth twice its present value a year from now. One hundred and twenty-five dollars and room enough for a dozen interments besides a monument. You can't do any better. Just let me put your name down for it now and you can arrange the details at the down town office. Look at the monuments going up all around you here. Can't have better data by which to judge of the locality. Right across the driveway yonder is one of the largest lots in the cemetery. We've put a fancy price on it just so as to induce some capitalist to buy it and put up an expensive monument. That'll lend additional tone to the neighborhood and all the lots around will feel the influence. It would pay to buy this lot purely as a business investment."—Chicago Tribune.

A Trick of the Bakery.

"Do you see that cake?" and the lady brought out a large cake, temptingly iced. "What do you think that icing is made of?

"Usually it is made of sugar and eggs, but this isn't. I took a teaspoonful of gelatine—the stuff they make the coating for quinine pills out of—dissolved it in a half cup of warm water and stirred it hard in a cup and a half of sugar, then I added a little vinegar to whiten it.

"The gelatine does just as well as the white of eggs and is much cheaper and more convenient. It's a chance if half the cakes in the bakeries aren't iced that way. We boarding house keepers have to keep up with the times, don't you know?"—New York Telegram.

BOTANIC

COUGH BALSAM

More than twenty years ago Adamson's Botanic Balsam was introduced generally throughout New England as a remedy for Coughs, Colds and Pulmonary complaints. Since its introduction it has constantly won its way into public favor, until now it is the universal decision that ADAMSON'S BOTANIC BALSAM is the best remedy for curing Coughs, Colds and Asthma.

The prudential election will be fought out on the lines laid down months ago. President Cleveland has been accused of having shrunk from the free trade policy he then advocated. The accusation is unjust. * * * President Cleveland is substantially in favor of a financial policy which will impose duties mainly for revenue purposes, will take duties off raw materials, and so widen the market of the American purchaser. These are the aims and this is the policy of the free traders of all countries.—London Saturday Review, Sept. 15th, 1888.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

A Double Help for the Bilious.

In addition to that chief remedial measure—the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters—persons suffering from an acute bilious attack, will facilitate recovery by the use at first of milk and lime water and thin gruels, and by a very gradual return to the use of solid foods. Fatty substances should be excluded from the diet. Blue pill is a remedy of doubtful safety, particularly if there be nausea and vomiting, frequent concomitants of liver trouble. The bitters, provided its reformatory action be not retarded and marred by gross indiscretions in diet, will soon restore the equilibrium of and action of the liver, stomach and bowels, all these disordered by billiousness. In all forms of malarial disease, which in every one of its phases presents indications of liver trouble, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the foremost of specifics. The light of over thirty years' experience also shows it to be a fine remedy for rheumatism, kidney troubles, dyspepsia, nervousness and debility.

Persons prematurely gray can have their hair restored to its youthful beauty, by using Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer, the best article in the market.

Our manufactures require the systematic and fostering care of the government. * * Equally important it is to provide at home a market for our raw materials.—James Monroe.

Every wife and mother in the country should know the great value of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, as a blood purifier. It gives tone, health, and strength, to the vital organs, corrects all irregularities, and expels impurities from the system. Young and old use it. Price $1.

When our manufactures are grown to a certain proportion, as they will under the fostering care of the government, * * the farmer will find a ready market for his surplus produce, and, what is of almost equal consequence, a certain and cheap supply for all his wants.—John C Calhoun.

Are You Going

To travel? If so you must be very careful of your health, or your doctor's bills will cost you more than your travelling expenses. A bottle of Sulpher Bitters will protect you from all sickness incident to change of climate.

It is to the New World that the Cobden Club is chiefly looking as the most likely sphere for its vigorous foreign policy. It has done what it can in Europe, and is now turning its eye westward and bracing itself for the struggle which is to come. It cannot rest while the United States are unsubdued.—London Times, July 18th, 1880.

An Important Element

Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. The familiar headline "100 Doses One Dollar," stolen by imitators, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This can easily be proven by any one who desires to test the matter. For real economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists.

Jacksonville had twenty-five new cases and three deaths on the 15th.

The president is careful to state that he frankly declares his indifference to the charge of favoring free trade. His policy, he says, may be called by that or another name, but it is the policy he recommends to Congress, and which, he does not affect to deny, must alter the terms on which foreigners have access to the American market.—London Saturday Review.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. mon,wed,fri,eoj1al

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam, for Coughs and Colds, does it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles at 50c and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption.

"RISE WITH THE LARK."

A Society for Keeping Good Hours—Results of High Civilization.

A society for keeping good hours has been formed in Paris and branches of it have been established in other French cities. Its membership is confined to persons of wealth and leisure, for the reason that laboring people are obliged to rise early and become so tired with a long day's work that they are glad to go to bed at dark or shortly after. The members of the "Ligue du Marin" propose to take long social walks through the parks, along the boulevards and into the country, in the morning, starting out before the rising of the sun. They also propose to change the hours for meals, having dinner at about the time they have been in the habit of eating breakfast. Their receptions will be at 7 in the evening instead of 10 or 11. They will exert their influence to have balls, concerts, theatrical performances and other public entertainments commence at the same early hour.

Changing night into day and day into night is one of the results of modern high civilization. No one can give any good reason for the absurd change. The more wealthy and cultivated most people become, the larger is the portion of the night that is devoted to intellectual labor and amusements, and the smaller the part given to sleep. The larger the population of a place, the later is the time for rising and retiring. Farmers rise while it is still dark, have breakfast at day dawn, and are out in the fields at sunrise; village people are an hour or two later in all these things, and those who live in cities are several hours later. The first English parliament, like a country prayer meeting, convened at "early candle lighting." Year by year the time of meeting was postponed till midnight was the hour for assembling. A reform was then thought necessary, and it now meets at a somewhat seasonable hour in the evening.

Men who have accomplished much have almost without exception been early risers. Bishop Ken, author of the familiar hymn commencing "Awake, My Soul, and with the Sun," composed it before the sun was up, and recited it or sung it to wake up the college boys who were late sleepers. By his directions his funeral took place at daybreak, and the hymn he wrote is chanted over his grave every Sunday morning. In the Sixteenth century students in English colleges were obliged to rise at 5 and to be ready for prayers and recitations at 6. They preserved through life the habits they acquired in boyhood.

The men who acquired great distinction in England in a previous age were early risers. Sir Edward Coke rose at 3 every morning in the year, and as no one else about the house was up lighted his own fire. Lord Burghley and John Wesley rose at 4, Sir Ashley Cooper and Lord Chatham at 5. Gibbon, the great historian, was always at work at 6, which was two hours after the time Rubens, the painter, commenced to use his brush.

Daniel Webster "rose with the lark." He acquired the habit on a New Hampshire farm and it clung to him all his life. When he and Lord Ashburton were engaged in settling our northwestern boundary dispute an old farmer friend became impatient at the long delay and accused Webster of forgetting the good ways he had acquired when he was a farm lad and was living at home. "Nothing of the kind," the great statesman said: "I work hard and I presume Lord Ashburton does, but we do not get along as fast as I wish, as we can seldom manage it so as to get together. The fact is I rise at 4 every morning, which is exactly the time my distinguished fellow laborer goes to bed."

The society world is certain to follow the fashions in dress that are set in Paris. It may adopt the fashion of early rising. It is not an expensive one like that of wearing costly garments of peculiar design. It is a fashion that is promotive of economy as well as health. Early rising will be a decided novelty to most persons, and may be found enjoyable on that account.—Chicago Times.

Packing Fish for Market.

Some means of preserving the catch until port is reached must be provided on the smacks, and in the majority of cases large quantities of ice are shipped before leaving the city. As fast as the fish are caught they are eviscerated, cleaned and packed away in ice houses down in the hold. But some varieties must be brought back alive. Smacks engaged in this branch of the business have a contrivance known as "the well," sunk in the hull, through which the sea water constantly circulates. The "well" is simply a deep tank located amidships, reaching from side to side of the smack. Its bottom is water tight, as are the sides which shut it off from the hold. Holes bored in the outer sides, formed by the vessel's hull, admit the sea water, and as the smack moves along the water circulates through the "well." The fish are thrown into this "well" as they are hauled in and remain in their native element until the smack runs into the Fulton Market slip. Then they are lifted out by means of long pole scoop nets and placed in the "cars" surrounding the smacks.—New York Cor. Philadelphia Times.

The Late Professor Proctor.

"The late Professor Proctor was one of the most egotistical men I ever saw," said an acquaintance of his the other day, "and he displayed his egotism both in manner and conversation. He never became in any manner whatever an American. He was an Englishman of the most staid and reserved type. I well remember one display of Proctor's egotism. In the course of a conversation with him on one occasion he told me that the common people of England were given to fawning before people of high renown and the nobility. 'I am much annoyed myself,' said the great astronomer, 'with their toadyism.'

"Mrs. Proctor received callers only during certain portions of the day. Every afternoon Mr. Proctor took an hour's nap. It was one of his whims which kept Mrs. Proctor constantly at his bedside holding his hand during that time. If any one called then she was 'out.'"—New York Graphic.

A Paris firm has produced porous glass for window panes. The pores are too fine to admit a draught, but they assist in ventilation.

THE MODERN STONE AGE.

Many Implements Made of This Material Still Used in Virginia.

All over our country we find many interesting relics of the Indians. Stone spearheads, arrowheads, hammers, chisels, knives, scrapers, etc., together with pottery, some of burned or baked clay, some cut from soft stone, as slate, steatite, etc. Similar remnants of the so-called stone age of mankind are found in nearly every portion of the globe, and, besides their interest as curious survivals of a bygone time, they aid us toward a discovery of the prehistoric man. It is hardly of less interest, or of less historic or scientific value, to note how the stone age still survives among us to no little extent.

Here in Virginia, for instance, many people still scald their slaughtered hogs in hogsheads or barrels, as our barbarian progenitors boiled their meat in skins, by heating stones and putting them into the water until it is hot enough for the purpose. The stones ordinarily used in this way are roundish, hard, and very heavy black or brown modules, sometimes called "negro heads," or iron stones, although they are compressed lava, upheaved in strata through crevices in the rock crust of the earth at remote periods of geological time.

We sometimes encounter stones that are hollowed out in the center, often to a socket, and these not infrequently are treasured by their finders as an ancient Indian stone for mashing or grinding corn, with the aid of a stone pestle; yet they are nothing more nor less, for the most part, than discarded stones once used by our rural brethren for their gates to swing upon—many gates in all parts of the commonwealth being still thus pivoted.

Many a housewife in remote country regions still has her stone weights, more or less rough, but honest; wherever the old Kentucky rifle lingers there is likely to be found still a set of soapstone bullet molds; our log cabins yet have rough stone and clay chimneys, where they are not of mud and sticks; in many a humble household a thin rock, not always smooth, is the utensil for baking corn bread; and the stone "mash trap" is familiar to all our country boys. The stone pipe, believed by many to have gone out with the Indian, is made and used today by many colored folks and by no few white folks. Whenever soapstone, or steatite, is found, not only the stone pipe, but many other articles supposed to be archaic, are still manufactured and put to service by the ingenious and thrifty. In such localities stone pans, stone troughs for children, etc., are still common. Some day they will be dug up and attributed to the Indians, or even to their predecessors. A little inquiry and investigation would show much more of the stone age still here than we have adverted to.

It is not rare to see stone sinkers in use for lines and nets in fishing; the flint is not yet superseded wholly by the match; there are clocks in the land yet run by stone weights; stone hovels, with dirt roofs, are not unknown in our mountains; the colored ruffian, and sometimes the white one, carries a stone in a stocking, along with his razor, when on the warpath; many a cider press and tobacco press are still made effective by stones swung at the end of their lever; and our small boys are all in their stone age whenever they can give their natures full and free play.

We are not so far off from the stone age man as some imagine; many of the implements and relics supposed to be prehistoric, and doubtless so in many cases, have their modern duplicates, and in some instances are all in use among us.—Cor. Petersburg Index-Appeal.

The Multitude of Millionaires.

Since the civil war millionaires (the word means not those having a million, but those reckoning their wealth by millions) have steadily multiplied. Many men who were content to earn a decent livelihood, who had never dreamed of aught beyond a modest competence when Sumter was fired on, now count their income by hundreds of thousands. To be a millionaire is to be conspicuous ordinarily, but in New York there are millionaires wholly obscure. They are not known to be rich outside of their narrow social circle, and will not be until their obituary in the daily newspapers shall have mentioned the fact. There are so many and so excellent opportunities here for making money, to him who has pecuniary perception, that millionaires seem to spring up between showers. You hear of a man grown very wealthy whom you remember a short time before as dependent on a salary. You are not sure that the acquaintance you avoid, because he habitually wishes to borrow, may not soon be one of the monetary magnates of Fifth avenue.—Paul R. Cleveland in The Cosmopolitan.

Mammoth Japanese Crabs.

The greatest marine curiosity of Enoshima waters is the giant crab that trundles along a body as large as a turtle's, and sweeps out claws that measure ten feet from tip to tip. Formerly the fishermen threw these creatures back into the sea when they found their nets tangled up with them, but of recent years they clean the shells and sell them for foreign museums. The giant crabs are said to promenade the beach at night, and one version gives them phosphorescent eyes. If imagination cannot supply a picture of those crabs on the beach, it is all detailed in "Allan Quatermain." Rider Haggard, in his careful owning up to where he found the original of the remarkable things in that book, owns to having read somewhere about these horrible crabs, and so borrowed them to put in the canyon into which his canoe load of heroes emerged after their underground baptism of fire. These crabs and the six foot cucumber are the few things in nature in Japan that are enlarged.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Finding a "Lost Dog."

Every day you see one or more "lost dog" advertisements in the newspapers. If owners didn't love their dogs they wouldn't go to the expense of advertising for them. Most of these lost dogs have been stolen. The thief sells them to somebody else. Then his "pal" goes to the rightful owner and obtains a handsome reward for recovering the animal.—Chicago Times.

Election Frauds in New York.

Assistant District Attorney James Fitzgerald of New York said on the 17th inst. that the district attorney's office was in possession of the knowledge concerning certain specific attempts at colonization of voters for the forthcoming election, and that every effort would be made to prevent such a fraud. He declined to give any further information on the subject, for the reason that the publication of the facts would defeat the plans of the office. He did say that colonization was not to be feared as much as repeating, false registration, false returns, and such other election frauds. Both the democratic and the republican parties needed all the votes they could command in New Jersey and Connecticut. He did not think any great body of voters could be brought from more remote states and colonized in New York without detection. It might be possible to import a colony from Philadelphia, but that would be a risky experiment. Mr. Fitzgerald said that the district attorney's office would certainly prosecute every offence that was detected. There is no point in the conduct of elections that the state law does not cover with an explicit definition of the crime and its punishment. Mr. Fitzgerald is of the opinion that with the vigilance which all parties will exert the undetected election frauds will be few.

The Yellow Fever.

At Decatur, Ala., on the 17th, there were no deaths, and but three new cases, two of which were regarded as serious.

The Builder of the Rebel Ram Merrimac.

The Sun, of Baltimore, Md., states that John L. Porter, who designed and coustructed the iron-clad Merrimac, is now wielding the broadaxe in the navy yard at Norfolk. He is an old man, almost eighty, but he is compelled from poverty to work from early until late. The Sun goes on to say:

When the late war broke out he was made the constructor of the confederate navy, and took charge of the yard at Norfolk. An idea he had conceived nearly twenty years before of an iron-clad was recalled, and he made the attempt to put it into practicable shape. He showed his model to Mr. Marshall Parks, who is now United States supervising steamboat inspector, and who at that time had charge of the navy of North Carolina, which state had not joined the confederacy. He recognized the value of the model. Before he could do anything, however, the state joined the confederacy, and, as instructed, he turned over his models and plans for a navy to the confederate government. Owing to the lack of facilities, six months were required to complete the Merrimac, but that was a great day in Norfolk when she was launched. Old mariners and experienced ship-builders during her whole construction had held stoutly to their opinion that she was top heavy and would sink. Great was their dismay, and equally great was the rejoicing of the confederate government men who witnessed the launch, when she smoothly glided into the Elizabeth river and gracefully floated upon its peaceful bosom. Then was Mr. Porter's fame assured and his success certain. He was the lion of the hour in the south.

Beer In New York Politics.

The democratic state committee of New York requires ten thousand dollars every week for its expenditures. The great bulk of the money comes from the brewers, who want to see Gov. Hill re-elected. It has come out that the first [illegible] upon the liquor men was used to purchase democratic delegates favorable to Hill's nomination. This absorbed all the money, and Col. Lamont was appealed to with the request to consolidate the national and state campaign funds. Every bar-room and house of ill repute in New York has been canvassed for funds, and yet the tidings are that the liquor dealers proper are not "putting up" as it was expected they would. They say they nominated Hill, gave him his chance, and will help elect him, but can subscribe no more money. It is a well known fact that a majority of the liquor dealers are poor, and that among those who are better-to-do there is no real objection to high license. The brewers, on the other hand, are decidedly opposed to high license. Most of the beer shops in the city are only retail distributing departments of the breweries. The brewer supplies the cash for the bar fixtures, takes back a chattel mortgage to cover his advances, and supplies the beer, making his collections at the time he makes his deliveries. Each brewer thus has distributed throughout the city in the form of advances on bar fixtures from $50,000 to $200,000. They have taken warning from the result in Philadelphia, where high license has made these properties and fixtures almost entirely valueless. They, therefore, have all of the interest of the retail dealer on the one hand, and that of the large capitalist with shaky investments on the other. They are firmly banded together to secure the election of a legislature opposed to high license, and of a governor who will veto any high license bill.

The representatives of all the large brewery establishments held a meeting a few days ago to raise campaign funds. After a long discussion they agreed upon the following plan of assessment: One cent per keg on last year's output, or $10 per 1,000 kegs. According to the statistics of production they thus expect to raise from $70,000 to $80,000. They appointed Henry Clackson, Jr., treasurer, and instructed him to the levy and collect the assessments at once. It was agreed that part of the money raised should be used in New Jersey to so change the majority in the legislature as to secure a repeal of the high license bill which was passed over Gov. Green's veto last year, and which was sustained by the supreme court. The rest and the major part of the fund will be dispensed by the representatives of the brewers themselves, to aid in electing satisfactory men in doubtful assembly districts, and as far as possible aiding Gov. Hill's campaign.

Some of the members of the state committee are expressing disgust because of the fact that this fund is not to come into the committee's hands for disbursement. The Hoffman house crowd have repeatedly asserted that Gov. Hill could raise and would need $200,000 for his campaign, but now it begins to appear as if the governor might be compelled to resort to the course pursued by him three years ago of discounting his own paper to help out the fund.

The liquor dealers have been so outspoken in Hill's behalf, and have so far identified his and their interests, that a strong undercurrent of opposition is manifesting itself on all sides among sober and industrious workingmen, who resent the attempt of the gloomill to get possession of the government.

A Civil Service Reform Government.

The Washington correspondent of the Traveller says: Orders have been issued at the pension bureau calling in from the field all special examiners who are republicans, or whose democracy is in the least questioned. Democrats are to be sent out to fill their places. If there are not enough democratic special examiners to occupy the places which are filled by republicans in the field, clerks in the bureau are to be commissioned for the purpose. Commissioner Black does not want to trust anyone in the field now whose democracy is not above suspicious.

There are less than a half dozen prominent officers under the administration in this city. Every man who can wield an influence by work upon the hustings or by secret endeavor is out whooping up the campaign. Among the last to go into the field for Cleveland, leaving their positions in the hands of subordinates, are Robert L. Miller, chief of the division of loans and currency of the treasury department, Chief Clerk Hassler of the interior department, Richard Randolph McMahon, acting second comptroller, Commissioner Stockslager of the general land office. Nearly all of the cabinet officers have been out of the city for weeks, participating in the campaign.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—A very important action on the part of Senator Allison a few days since has entirely escaped public attention until brought conspicuously to notice yesterday by prominent iron workers of Pennsylvania and West Virginia, who have discussed the matter in all its bearings with prominent business men of this city. It is that Senator Allison on Friday last in the United States senate gave notice that he would at an early date offer an amendment to the tariff bill, placing coal slack and culm on the dutiable list, as is now provided by law.

The enormous sale of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup has developed many new remedies; but the people cling to the old reliable, Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

According to the Rhode Island democratic platform, the Cleveland tariff policy gives the manufacturing interests of the country "consideration and protection." According to Senator Vest of Missouri the Cleveland tariff policy has "challenged the protected industries to a fight of extermination." Missouri is in a good deal better position to speak for a democratic president than Rhode Island is.

To any one purchasing a bottle of Constitutional Cough Syrup of me and it does not give satisfaction I will refund the money. David Kimball & Co., No. 36 Market street.

The series of base ball games between the New York club, champions of the National League, and the St. Louis Browns, champions of the American Association, began on Tuesday, the 16th inst., the New York club winning by a score of two to one. On the 17th the tables were turned, the St. Louis club winning, three to nothing.

W. Everett Morton, a commercial traveller, has been missing from North Adams, Mass., since the middle of September, and it is feared is dead.

Miss Linda Gilbert has been nominated for governor by the equal rights party of New York.

There were thirty-six new cases and three deaths at Jacksonville on the 18th. South Jacksonville was reported to be in a bad plight, many new cases being announced.

Wilbur L. Duntley, a student in the Chandler Scientific Department at Dartmouth, has been chosen historian of the class of '92, comprising 100 students.

An unknown man about twenty-eight years old was found on the morning of the 15th inst. lying beside the line of the Lake Shore railroad in Gifford with his neck broken, and a two-horse working team standing near by. It was reported that he belonged in Lake Village, and was employed in the construction of the new railroad; and it was considered likely that he had fallen from his team and been killed.

The civil service reform administration can squeeze the federal office holders for funds, but does not control all the agencies of "voluntary contributions." The friends of Governor Hill of New York are making assessments upon the liquor sellers. They expect to raise an average of $100 from each liquor store in New York city, estimated at 11,000. But if only 10,000 of the owners pay, it will produce the enormous contribution fund of $1,000,000 in New York city alone.

It appears that the democratic managers are considerably agitated over the discovery that our Hebrew fellow citizens quite generally throughout the country will support Harrison and Morton. The Hebrew citizens of the United States are gentlemen of fine discrimination and good business sense, hence their support of the republican nominess.

They have a "reform" letter carrier out in Hoboken, N. Y., who cannot read. He delivers his mail by holding out a handful of letters for house residents to select from. Judging by the way that the mails are bungled in this state of Maine, the intelligent Hoboken carrier has several second-cousins on duty here. Delays and miscarriages of mail matter, scarcely known under the republican regime, have become numerous and aggrevating to an unbearable degree. "What are you going to do about it?" is the stereotyped reply to oft-repeated complaints. Well, we will vote for competent officials high and low, and we'll get them, too.—Biddeford Times.

Samuel Edison of Port Huron, Michigan, the father of the great inventor, has renounced democracy, and comes out for the union labor candidate.

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation, curative power superior to any other article. A Boston lady who knew what she wanted, and whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

To Get

"In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me their's would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was. I had taken it, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other.

Hood's

When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable, suffering a great deal with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked, and had for some time, like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it." MRS. ELLA A. Until your hair becomes dry, thin, and gray before giving the attention needed to preserve its beauty and vitality. Keep on your toilet-table a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor—the only dressing you require for the hair—and use a little, daily, to preserve the natural color and prevent baldness.

Thomas Munday, Sharon Grove, Ky., writes: "Several months ago my hair commenced falling out, and in a few weeks my head was almost bald. Tried many remedies, but they did no good. I finally bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, after using only a part of the contents, my head was covered with a heavy growth of hair. I recommend your preparation as the best hair-restorer in the world."

For New England to-day:—

Fair, colder weather, northwesterly winds.

"HIFALUTIN" REPORTING.

"Grand parade of uniformed torch-bearers." "The entire city a blaze of light." "Six thousand people turn out in the rain." "The building [Music hall] packed from pit to rafters."

Such were some of the sentences in the "Scare head" with which our neighbor the Times preceded its report of the democratic rally on Wednesday evening, the 17th inst.,—in which report it was stated that during the raising of the flags, about eight o'clock, "It is a fair estimate to place the number of people on State, Pleasant and adjacent streets at 6000. In other words, two-thirds of the population of the city turned out in the mud and rain." And that at the meeting in Music hall the building "was literally packed from the footlights to the rafters. Not only was every inch of space in the hall taken, but hundreds of people who desired to get in, found it impossible to push their way through the crowd, which extended from the door way out to the adjacent streets."

For bold exaggeration, we doubt if that report is beaten during the present campaign. The "grand parade of uniformed torch bearers" carried 104 torches, exclusive of those of the three bands; not half the members were in uniform, and much less than half were voters. Still, the show was better than might reasonably have been expected, considering the weather and state of the walking, and the lack of uniforms was due to the fact that many of the members had supposed there would be no parade; it was a very creditable show under the circumstances, but the "grandeur" of a march through muddy streets by perhaps 130 men and boys, is not apparent.

And "the entire city was a blaze of light!" Whew! The Rockingham house was illuminated, of course; a few rockets were sent up and a little red fire burned, at the flag raisings; and that was the sum total of the "blaze of light" which enwrapped "the entire city." Even more absurdly extravagant is the assertion that "six thousand people," "two-thirds of the population of the city, turned out in the mud and rain" to hear the excellent Salem Cadet band, which was the drawing card of the occasion. There were indeed many people on Congress street and Market square, possibly 2500, though our own estimate would not reach that number; 2500 people are a good many, in a narrow space. Neither was Music hall "literally packed from footlights to rafters," for the chandelier was in sight the whole evening. The audience, which included the three bands and the "grand parade of uniformed torch-bearers," was a very large one, and practically filled the hall; but it was not so large, as we are assured by men of both parties who attended both rallies, as that of the republican meeting two evenings before.

Political enthusiasm is all well enough, but it need not extend to Munchausenism. The only way in which we can account for our contemporary's highly-spiced report is by supposing it intended for export only, as it is entirely unfit for the home market.

MUSIC HALL.

This evening, at Music hall, the Gilbert & Sullivan comic opera "Rudigore" will be presented by the Stetson Opera Co. from the Globe theatre, Boston, for the first and probably only time in this city. There are sixty people in the company, including a fine chorus and an orchestra of twelve pieces. The company bring their own special scenery. The number of seats left is not large, but there are some yet to be secured at Goodrich's. See advertisement.

RAILROAD ITEMS.

The Concord railroad has declared a semi-annual dividend of five per cent, payable Nov. 1st.

The Maine Central railroad has run all its regular trains and its thousand and one special trains the past season, accommodating the public through the busy summer, and through an exciting political campaign with its numerous "rallies" and great mass meetings, to say nothing of the numerous fairs, without injuring a single person. It speaks volumes for its efficient management.

All over the country the railroad employees are organizing Harrison and Morton clubs. Railroad men are among the most intelligent class of American people. They are progressive people, and thousands of them know that protected industries directly affect their monthly wages.

The Boston Post of the 18th inst., in its "Straws from State street" says: "A gentleman as likely to know as anybody says there is no truth in the rumor that Eastern will pass its dividend. The road is earning better than at any time in its history, and gross earnings for the whole system this year will show an increase of about $900,000 over last year. Another gentleman, also prominently identified with the Eastern, says he does not see where the money to pay the dividend is to come from. 'But,' he said, 'don't quote me; I never was right in my life.'"

The work of arranging the passenger cars of the Boston & Maine railroad for steam heating, in accordance with the state law forbidding the use of stoves in passenger cars, was commenced this week.

The Maine Central railroad has offered the Canadian Pacific terms for running rights from Portland to Fabyans, which are five per cent on $17,500 per mile, one-half the cost of making the road first class, and the cost of keeping the road in repair to be divided, each company to pay according to the number of cars run. All local business to be done by the Maine Central. The Canadian Pacific management are considering the proposition.

Miss Marion Dwyer Moses, of No. 100 Market street, this city, who had charge of the dining rooms of the Pavilion hotel at Wolfeboro during the late season of summer travel, and has since been in this city awaiting the cessation of the yellow fever epidemic in Florida before assuming a similar position in the Oxford hotel at Jacksonville, filled by her in previous winter seasons, has accepted a position in a hotel at Los Angeles, Cal., at $100 per month, for the coming winter.

The pupils of the Portsmouth high school were on Thursday afternoon presented with complimentary tickets to the concert in aid of the yellow fever sufferers of Florida, given in Music hall on the evening of that day by the Boston Symphony Club Orchestra. The tickets were presented by Mr. Willis Nowell, leader and solo violinist of the orchestra, and a former pupil of the high school.

A course of sixteen lectures on the origin and history of Unitarianism in America is announced to be delivered on Saturday afternoons in Channing hall, Boston. Among the lecturers announced are Rev. A. P. Peabody, D. D., and Rev. James De Normandie. This assures at least two able, interesting and scholarly discourses in the course.

The best Red Fire for illuminations can be purchased at Grace's drug store for fifty cents a pound.

Pears' is the purest and best Soap made.

At the annual session of the New Hampshire Grand Lodge, Knights of Honor, held in Manchester on the 16th inst., George A. Mudge of this city was elected grand assistant dictator, Joseph H. Gardiner grand reporter, and John E. Colcord grand guard.

The doors and windows of the old north mill, which for months have been open for the entrance of hoodlums and tramps, have been boarded up. Time for it to be done.

The damage to Mr. Harrie W. W. Jackson's house on Islington street, Tuesday evening of this week, by fire, smoke and water, and the axes of the firemen in smashing holes in partitions to get at the concealed flames, is estimated at from $2000 to $3000. It was a bad fire, and was well handled by the engineers of the department; but it made a mighty small show for so much expense.

The frame for the big beef refrigerator near the Vaughan street crossing of the railroad was raised on Thursday forenoon last.

Kearsarge Engine Co., No. 3, have engaged Baldwin's Cadet band, of Boston, to furnish the music for their 13th annual ball, which is to be given in Franklin ball on New Year's eve.

Rev. John A. Hainer, Mrs. Charles E. Hatch, Mr. John H. Locke and wife, Mrs Fred B. Coleman, Mrs. B. F. Winn, Miss Florence M. Coleman, Miss Fanny Amazeen, Miss Ada Lear and Miss Mary Locke, are attending the conference of the Christian society at Newton, which commenced on Wednesday of this week and ends next Sunday.

Mr. Dwight Bodwell died at York on Wednesday, the 17th inst., aged about thirty years.

Capt. J. B. Fernald, one of the oldest and most respected citizens of York village, was in this city on Thursday.

The late John Wentworth of Chicago is to have a moument erected to his memory in that city. It is furnished by the Hallowell Granite Co. of Hallowell, Me., and sent to Chicago by rail, with the exception of the base, which is eighteen feet square and two feet thick, and which from its size had to be shipped by vessel to New York, and thence by barge through the canal to Chicago. The shaft is four feet six inches square at the base, fifty-five feet high, tapering in shape, and weighs seventy tons. Two special cars are being constructed at the Portland car works to carry it, it being the largest stone every transported by rail in this country. The whole monument, which will cost about $80,000, is expected to reach Chicago next week.

The schooner Wild Rose, of Cranberry island, Me., was this week loading apples in bulk at Commercial wharf, and the Express, of Boston, and Carrie G. Crosby, of Portland, at Randall & Caswell's wharf. The Wild Rose proposed to take about 1,000 bushels, the Express from 2,500 to 3,000 bushels, and the Carrie G. Crosby about 5,000 bushels; the latter was barrelling a very considerable quantity of hens. The captains were buying the apples at the wharves, at twenty-five to thirty-five cents a bushel; the fruit is the finest shipped from here for many years, being large, round and smooth, and very little of it below a good grade of No. 2. All three of the vessels named are bound for eastern Maine with their cargoes

The present job of dredging on the lower Cocheco river by Captain Symonds is being pushed rapidly along, and when completed will finish the work under the old survey. There has been an appropriation made by Congress for a new survey for the enlargement and deepening of the channel from the wharves to the mouth of the river, so as to provide for the increasing amount of shipping that yearly goes to Dover.

The fishing schooner John M. Plummer of Portland, Me., arrived at that port on the 16th inst. with 300 barrels of mackerel, worth about $6,000. This is the largest fare landed at Portland this season, and this schooner is one of the few of the Portland fleet that have made any money. The season is the worst Portland has ever known, less than 12,000 barrels having been packed.

Ensign Theodore G. Dewey, U. S. N., attached to the revenue cutter Thetis, brought into San Francisco on the 9th inst. the whaling schooner Jane Gray, wrecked in the Arctic off Cape Barrow, Aug. 3d last. The schooner was picked up Aug. 13th, about sixty miles northeast from Cape Barrow, by the Thetis. She was lying on her port side. Slings were put under her, and she was righted. A coffer dam was built about her main hatch and she was freed from water. She was put in seaworthy condition at Port Clarence, and then ordered to San Francisco. Having been picked up derelict by a government vessel the ownership is stated to be vested in the government. The Jane Gray is now at the Mare island navy yard.

The French freight steamer Ville de Calais, at Calais, France, from Philadelphia with petroleum, exploded at the dock on the 16th inst., her decks and sides, forward, being blown to pieces. The loss of life was great, portions of at least a dozen men, heads, arms and legs, having been found on the quay. Other vessels in the vicinity were damaged by the explosion, or by the subsequent burning of the wreck, which did not sink. The Ville de Calais was a steel vessel of 1221 tons net.

Whatever else can justly be charged against President Cleveland in the line of vaccillation and "flopping," he cannot be certainly charged with going back on his record as a vetoes of pension bills passed by the democratic house of representatives. He vetoed nine bills giving pensions to soldiers' widows, and four giving pensions to disabled union soldiers, on the 17th inst. The only break in his bright record as a veto of pension bills is found in the alacrity with which he signed the bill pensioning every survivor of the Mexican war, whether disabled and in need or able-bodied and wealthy, much the larger part of the beneficiaries being southerners, and most of them ex-soldiers of the confederacy.

Mr. Blaie's charge that Secretary Fairchild has deposited $57,000,000 of surplus in the national banks of the country, where the money now rests without drawing interest, only partially tells the truth in regard to the matter. Every dollar of this money has been handled and has passed through that especial pet of the administration, the Western National Bank of New-York city. This bank was organized with Daniel Manning as president, and since his death Ex United States Treasurer C. N. Jordon has occupied his place. The profits out of these transactions can only be conjectured. It would be interesting to know the amount of the contribution of the Western National Bank to the democratic campaign fund.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

Sold only in cans, full weight.

TRADE S.S.S. MARK
An Important Announcement

About six weeks ago, while on business, I was suddenly seized with excruciating pains in my feet, knees and hands. So severe the attack that I took my bed immediately, and in two or three days my joints were swollen to almost double their natural size, and sleep was driven from me. After suffering the most excruciating pain for a week, using liniments and various other remedies, a friend who sympathized with my helpless condition, said to me:

"Why don't you get Swift's Specific and use it. I will guarantee a cure, and it it does not the medicine shall cost you nothing."

I at once secured the S. S. S., and after using it the first day, had a quiet night and refreshing sleep. In a week I felt greatly benefitted. In three weeks I could sit up and walk about the room, and after using six bottles I was out and able to go to business. Since then I have been regaining my usual of duty, and stand on my feet from time to ten hours a day, and am entirely free from pain. Those are the plain and simple facts in my case, and I will cheerfully answer all inquiries relative thereto, either in person or by mail. THOMAS MARKILLIE,
11 W. 13th street, New York City.

NASHVILLE, TENN., Dec. 1, 1886.—I was cured of a severe attack of rheumatism by a timely resort to Swift's Specific. In all cases where a permanent relief is sought this medicine commends itself for a constitutional treatment that thoroughly eradicates the seeds of disease from the system. Rev. W. P. HARRISON, D. D.

NEW YORK, 51 TH AVE.—After spending $200 to be relieved of Blood Poison without any benefit, a few bottles of Swift's Specific worked a perfect cure. C. POWERS.

VIENNA, GA.—My little girl, aged six, and boy, aged four years, had scrofula in the worst aggravated shape. They were puny and sickly. To-day they are healthy and robust, all the result of taking S. S. S. JOE T. COLLIER.

LADY LAKE, SUMTER CO., FLA.—Your S. S. S. has proved a wonderful success in my case. The cancer on my face, no doubt, would have soon hurried me to my grave. I do think it is wonderful, and has no equal. B. H. BYRD, Postmaster.

WACO, TEXAS, May 9, 1888.
S. S. Co., Atlanta, Ga.:
Gentlemen—Knowing that you appreciate voluntary testimonials, we take pleasure in stating that one of our lady customers has regained her health by the use of four large bottles of your great remedy, after having been an invalid for several years. Her trouble was extreme debility, caused by a disease peculiar to her sex. WILLIS & CO., Druggists.

Three books mailed free on application. All druggists sell S. S. S.

OH, WHAT A COLD!
THIS is the season for sudden changes in the weather, and a great many "take cold" either in their Head or on their Lungs, causing Coughs, Hoarseness, and Sore Throat. These troubles can be soon relieved and cured by taking Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs, entirely removing these difficulties.

Cured his boy of Croup.
C. M BROOKS, Lowell, Mass., says: "I take great pleasure in recommending Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific as a cure for Coughs, Colds, and Croup. I used it in my family last winter with the best results. Two or three doses cured my little boy of Croup, for which I am very thankful."

You can cure that Cough in a short time. You can cure your Catarrh if you persist in its use, as it will stop the secretion of Catarrhal matter in the head; it will relieve Croup in from three to five minutes.

The best he ever saw.
"The best medicine for Coughs and Consumptive Complaints that ever I saw is Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific," so says JOHN MCLAUGHLIN, of Boston.

Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific is sold by all Druggists. Price 50 cents and $1. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

Between Aspinwall and Panama.

Aspinwall has risen like a Phœnix from its ashes. The last Colombian revolution, happily curtailed by Uncle Sam, has left the town scathed but still there. Aspinwall, or Colon, with a stress on the "on," is not a healthful place. There is a funeral train to Monkey Hill every day, sometimes twice a day. It is a hospital city, as well as a sea port, and the men who have been inveigled into delving amid the treacherous marshes of the isthmus are filling coffins at the rate of eight or ten per diem, and one coffin does the duty for many. Men are cheap, but the coffins are dear. As to the canal, all I can say is that there is more machinery ignobly rusting between Aspinwall and Panama than would pierce a dozen forty mile canals.

In exact proportion as the Panama train recedes from Aspinwall does the faith of the traveler vanish into airy nothing. For the first ten miles all is well. Then things begin to take on their natural shape. There are Americans, Europeans, Chinese, natives, gazing at the cars as they pass town after town on the line, but the faces of all bear the same impress. "All hope abandon, ye who enter here." Every man who goes to work or starts a store on the isthmian canal route is a silent partner with King Death. It is a lottery out of which the adventurer hopes to emerge a winner. But the winners—they crowded the depot at Panama—and what were they? For the most part hospital patients, or subjects for hospital treatment. Fever! It brooded over every inch of those forty-seven miles between Aspinwall and Panama. You breathed it in the air; you drank it in the water; you beheld it rank, pestiferously potential in the surroundings of every palmleaf roofed hut, every single story tenement, every dwelling on the hills along that fated forty mile stretch.—Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.

The Hohenzollern "White Lady."

During the middle ages, a noble lady, surpassingly beautiful, of the house of Orlamunde, fell madly in love with a prince of the reigning house, and sent him privately word of her love and an offer of marriage. The prince would gladly have married her, but for the fact that his parents would not consent. Social intercourse was somewhat restrained in those days. He was compelled to dispatch a page to the lady with an ambiguous message, declining her offer on the ground that "four eyes" stood in their way. The young widow believed that he referred to her two children, and promptly put them to death, notifying him that the obstacle was removed.

A terrible scene ensued between the prince and his murderess lady love, after which he fled into solitude and she died of remorse. Since then her ghost is said to be condemned to haunt the halls of the Hohenzollerns, and her appearance is a warning of death to some members of the family. About fifteen years ago, the terror of the inhabitants of Berlin, on account of some reported appearances of the White Lady, reached such a height that the kaiser had every one of the 700 rooms in the Schloss thoroughly searched, in the hope of finding some clew to the mystery; but had he succeeded, I doubt whether the people would have given up their pet superstition. Many are ready enough to testify to having seen this pale, white robed apparition before the death of the late emperor, and stories are current of her having shown herself once again since that time.—Lucy C. Lillie in The Cosmopolitan.

Children of Kansas City.

Professor Stanley Hall published recently the result of examinations made of very little folks in Boston schools. Professor Greenwood made similar investigations among the lowest grade of pupils in the Kansas City schools, and a table of comparisons is printed. The per cent. of children ignorant of common things is astonishingly less in Kansas City schools than in the Boston; even the colored children of the western city made a much better showing.

Another subject of investigation is the alleged physical deterioration in this country. Examinations were made of hundreds of school children from the age of 10 to 15, and comparisons taken with the tables in Mulhall's Dictionary of Statistics, London, 1884. It turns out that the Kansas City children are taller, taking sex into account, than the average English child at the age of either 10 or 15, weigh a fraction less at 10, but upward of four pounds more at 15, while the average Belgian boy and girl compare favorably with American children two years younger. The tabulated statistics show two facts, that the average Kansas City child stands fully as tall as the tallest, and that in weight he tips the beam against an older child on the other side of the Atlantic.—Charles Dudley Warner in Harper's Magazine.

Opium for the Yellow Fever.

Our Chinese reporter asked Dr. Yong Tyse Hing, of Pell street, about his experience with yellow fever in China. "In Kwong Tung, Foo Kien, and Kwong Si," he said, "there were a few cases of yellow fever several years ago. The fever was called by the natives 'wun bun.' It never became epidemic, owing to the people's habit of smoking opium."

"Does the smoking of opium prevent or cure yellow fever?"

"Certainly it does. Wherever opium is smoked it destroys yellow fever."

"But is not the opium smoking habit as dangerous as the fever?"

"No; it takes at least a year of constant smoking to acquire the habit, as all old opium smokers will testify. There might be yellow fever all over the United States, but the Chinese opium smokers would not be affected."

Dr. Li Shi Leon, of Mott street, said; "Why, certainly opium smoking cures yellow fever. I had two cousins in Memphis during that terrible yellow fever scourge in 1875, who simply smoked their pipes the moment they had caught the fever, and got well in less than twenty hours. No, there is no danger of getting the opium habit if the patient does not smoke longer than six months; but, then, it is a hard thing to learn how to use the pipe."—Won Chin Foo in New York Sun.

Defenders of American Industry.

We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform, 1888.

Took First Prize.

The State board of pharmacy recently analyzed twelve of the most popular medicines in order to see whether they were what they were recommended to be. After two weeks of careful work work, they arwarded the first prize, a gold medal, to Messrs. A P. Ordway, & Co., proprietors of Sulpher Bitters, it being in their opionion the best and only strictly pure blood purifying medicine in the ket.—Weekly Chemist.

Prepared by a combination, proportion and process peculiar to itself, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown.

Many forget that the hair and scalp need cleansing. Extensive use of Ayer's Hair Vigor has proved that it is the best cleansing agent for the hair—that it prevents dandruff and stimulates the hair to renewed growth.

"For twenty years I have suffered with a severe bronchial cough, never lying down without a severe attack of the same. After much pursuasion, I was induced to try Adamson's Balsam, and its good effects for six months are certainly marvellous. Please use this truthful testimony for the advantage of all sufferers like myself.
Mrs. Wm. Alden, Duxbury, Mass., Feb. 21, 1887.

An extensive domestic market for the surplus produce of the soil is of the first consequence. It is, of all things, that which most effectually conduces to a flourishing state of agriculture.—Alexander Hamilton.

ADAMSON'S
BOTANIC COUGH BALSAM
More than twenty years ago Adamson's Botanic Balsam was introduced generally throughout New England as a remedy for Coughs, Colds and Pulmonary complaints. Since its introduction it has constantly won its way into public favor, until now it is the universal decision that ADAMSON'S BOTANIC BALSAM is the best remedy for curing Coughs, Colds and Asthma.

JOHN P. SWEETSER,

PORTSMOUTH, N. H. oct29

The presidential election will be fought out on the lines laid down months ago. President Cleveland has been accused of having shrunk from the free trade policy he then advocated. The accusation is unjust. * * * President Cleveland is substantially in favor of a financial policy which will impose duties mainly for revenue purposes, will take duties off raw materials, and so widen the market of the American purchaser. These are the aims and this is the policy of the free traders of all countries.—London Saturday Review, Sept. 15th, 1888.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

A Double Help for the Bilious.

In addition to that chief remedial measure—the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters—persons suffering from an acute bilious attack, will facilitate recovery by the use at first of milk and lime water and thin gruels, and by a very gradual return to the use of solid foods. Fatty substances should be excluded from the diet. Blue pill is a remedy of doubtful safety, particularly if there be nausea and vomiting, frequent concomitants of liver trouble. The bitters, provided its reformatory action be not retarded and marred by gross indiscretions in diet, will soon restore the equilibrium of and action of the liver, stomach and bowels, all these disordered by billiousness. In all forms of malarial disease, which in every one of its phases presents indications of liver trouble, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the foremost of specifics. The light of over thirty years' experience also shows it to be a fine remedy for rheumatism, kidney troubles, dyspepsia, nervousness and debility.

Persons prematurely gray can have their hair restored to its youthful beauty, by using Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer, the best article in the market.

Our manufactures require the systematic and fostering care of the government. * * Equally important it is to provide at home a market for our raw materials.—James Monroe.

Every wife and mother in the country should know the great value of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, as a blood purifier. It gives tone, health, and strength, to the vital organs, corrects all irregularities, and expels impurities from the system. Young and old use it. Price $1.

When our manufactures are grown to a certain proportion, as they will under the fostering care of the government, * * the farmer will find a ready market for his surplus produce, and, what is of almost equal consequence, a certain and cheap supply for all his wants.—John C Calhoun.

Are You Going

To travel? If so you must be very careful of your health, or your doctor's bills will cost you more than your travelling expenses. A bottle of Sulpher Bitters will protect you from all sickness incident to change of climate.

It is to the New World that the Cobden Club is chiefly looking as the most likely sphere for its vigorous foreign policy. It has done what it can in Europe, and is now turning its eye westward and bracing itself for the struggle which is to come. It cannot rest while the United States are unsubdued.—London Times, July 18th, 1880.

An Important Element

Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. The familiar headline "100 Doses One Dollar," stolen by imitators, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This can easily be proven by any one who desires to test the matter. For real economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists.

Jacksonville had twenty-five new cases and three deaths on the 15th.

The president is careful to state that he frankly declares his indifference to the charge of favoring free trade. His policy, he says, may be called by that or another name, but it is the policy he recommends to Congress, and which, he does not affect to deny, must alter the terms on which foreigners have access to the American market.—London Saturday Review.

PHILOSOPHY OF MARRIAGE giving a clear synopsis of the impediments to marriage, exhausted vitality, etc., etc., can be had from all news agents or forwarded direct from the author, Dr. F. J. JORDAN, 7 Boylston St., Boston, on receipt of 25 cents. eoz to 8

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper. W. A. NOYES, 149 Power's Block, Rochester. eowtjan89

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. mon.wed.fri.ed1jal

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam, for Coughs and Colds, does it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles at 50c and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption.

SYSTEMS OF "CHECKAGE."

Joe Howard Thinks They Are a Nuisance. Policy of Honesty.

Are we a nation of liars, thieves, cheats? If not, what is the meaning of the universal suspicion which poisons every brother's cup? Why these checks in street cars, these mechanical contrivances in barrooms, these private detective agencies? You remember what a hubbub was created years ago when conductors were compelled to wear massive medallions, with intricate mechanism, supposed to show correctly the number of fares taken. They looked like so many Japanese gods with bungling, onerous, burdensome ornaments about them. The directors suspected that the conductors were stealing, and every time the conductor pulled the spring that rang the bell he challenged public scrutiny, and the suggestion came to every mind, "the company suspects this man to be a thief," and so they did suspect every man to be a thief, and they doubted the accuracy of their mechanism as well, because covertly and secretly they sent spotters, old men, young ladies, tender children, workingmen in every possible disguise, to keep tally of the number of people who rode upon the cars and paid fare for the privilege. As it was in Boston so it was in New York and in all the great centers. The system of checkage in use upon our railways today is not only expensive to the companies and an intolerable nuisance to the traveling public, but a direct impugning of the integrity of every man in the employ.

I buy a ticket from here to Boston, and pay in advance. I pay $5 for my ticket, and $1.50, or whatever, for a seat in a drawing room car. It should be quite sufficient for me to give up my ticket to a gateman as I enter the depot, and my other ticket to the porter in charge of the drawing room car, as I enter the car. Instead of which, I am stopped at the gate as I enter the depot, in order that a gateman may punch the ticket. I take my seat in the car. In comes a train conductor, who takes my ticket and punches it in three or four different places. I settle down to read my paper or my book, and along comes the drawing room conductor, who takes my ticket and gives me another in its place, on which he punches the year, the month, the day of the month, the number of the train, the number of the car, the number of the seat, my destination and the amount paid, all of which takes my time and gives him unnecessary labor. We pass beyond New Haven, and another conductor comes, and he has to punch my ticket, and another conductor comes at Worcester, and he has to punch the ticket. Then they come along again and take up the tickets.

Come with me into any of our barrooms, our restaurants, our cafes. Time was when a man could go with his friend into a cafe, order his lemonade or whatever he wanted, generally the latter, throw his money on the counter and walk out. Now he has to perform the service of a waiter. Having taken his refreshment he waits while the attendant turns to a machine at the back of the inclosure, from which he draws a card, on which is stamped the amount to be paid, which amount is shown in glaring letters upon the machine as the impression is made. This the customer is compelled to carry sometimes a distance of a hundred feet. At all events he must carry it wherever the cashier chances to be seated. He hands the check and the money to the cashier, wipes his mouth and walks away. In other words, the barkeeper is distinctly informed by this procedure that his employer has no faith in him, and both he and the cashier is informed by this mechanism, which registers the amount, that their employer trusts neither of them.

And, after all, do checks check?

Thieving conductors were supplied by ingenious mechanics with little arrangements by which, while pretending to register, they in reality pocketed the fare without registering. Barkeepers, by collusion with cashiers, can, if they wish, defraud their employers. This very week one of our railroad auditors tumbled over a plan by which fares collected on steam railways were retained by conductors, they having duplicate slips furnished them by the accountant in the office. Human ingenuity is certain to be met by human ingenuity. In the long run, taking age after age, accumulated facts have crystallized themselves into a proverb, "Honesty is the best policy," and dishonest men know just as well as the good and true that the path to success lies in that direction, and that leaving all question of morals out of consideration, the best "policy," the truest way in which to serve one's selfish purpose, is to be honest.

There must be responsibility somewhere. Somebody must be trusted, and all this intricate system of checkage doesn't amount to shucks. If a man is dishonest and has not brains enough to know that, in spite of his dishonest tendency, success can be obtained by honest methods alone, no power this side of heaven can keep him from cheating, and cheating for a while without detection.—Joe Howard in Boston Globe.

A Very Curious Case.

A highly intelligent lady known to one doctor related to him that one day she was walking past a public institution and observed a child, in whom she was particularly interested, coming out through an iron gate. She saw that he let go the gate after opening it, and that it seemed likely to close upon him, and concluded that it would do so with such force as to crush his ankle; however, this did not happen. "It was impossible," she said, "by word or act to be quick enough to meet the supposed emergency; and, in fact, I found I could not move, for such intense pain came on in the ankle, corresponding to the one which I thought the boy would have injured, that I could only put my hand on it to lessen its extreme painfulness. I am sure I did not move so as to strain or sprain it. The walk home, a distance of about a quarter of a mile, was very laborious, and on taking off my stocking I found a circle round the ankle, as if it had been painted with red currant juice, with a large spot of the same on the outer part. By morning the whole foot was inflamed, and I was a prisoner to my bed many days."—W. H. Hawley in Boston Globe.

Study well the human body, the mind is not far off.—Carmen Sylva.

An Aquatic Spider's Diving Bell.

While their nearly constant abode is the water, they are, like most other spiders, air breathers; consequently they need some special provision for providing themselves with air while living under the water, and for this purpose they possess the art of constructing a kind of diving bell. It is an interesting sight to witness one of them making his air cell. Clinging to the lower side of a few leaves, and securing them in position by spinning a few threads, the spider rises to the level of the water, with its belly uppermost, and, doubling up its hind legs, retains a stratum of air among the hairs with which its body is covered. Then it plunges into the water and appears as in the first stage of the making of its silvery robe. Going immediately to the spot it had chosen, it brushes its body with its paws, when the air detaches itself and forms a bubble under the leaf. The spider surrounds this bubble with the impermeable silky matter furnished by its spinnaret.

Returning to the surface, it takes in another layer of air, which it carries down and adds to the first one, also extending the envelope over it. The process is kept up till the "diving bell" has reached the proper size and is finished. The ideal form of the construction is that of a thimble, but it often assumes an irregular shape, like an inverted sack. When the spider has taken possession of its redoubt it remains quiet in it, head down, watching for the appearance of an insect. Perceiving one, it seizes it and returns to its lodge, which it has secured against intruders by spinning threads across it, to devour its prey at its leisure.—M. Emile Blanchard in Popular Science Monthly.

It is very strange that so strong and unkind a prejudice against the left hand has lived and increased for centuries when there is no natural or physiological reason for it. I mean to say that if you examine the skeleton of a person who was strong, healthy and well formed in life, you will find that the bones of the left hand and arm are just as many and just as large and perfect as those of the right. The study of physiology will show you too that the muscles and ligaments and cartilages that fastened that person's arms to his body and gave them the power of motion were made to do their work just as well on one side of the body as on the other. If the left side were the weaker of the two, it was because of failure to exercise it as freely as the other. Monkeys and cats and other animals, to whom paws are in a certain sense hands, would smile derisively, I imagine, if you should suggest to them that paws were rights or lefts, or that the paw on the one side could do more than its mate. When, therefore, a boy or girl says that he or she can throw a ball, handle a racket or do anything else, only with the right hand, it is a direct admission that a monkey or cat is physically better equipped than that boy or girl. And yet it is the general belief that human beings are the most perfectly formed of creatures.

First attempts to use the left hand are always awkward and discouraging, but in ordinary cases persistency will gradually strengthen the least used member and teach it to act as ably and sturdily as the right, till finally there will be two perfect hands instead of one to answer promptly the call of the master of all our powers—the will.—J. F. Herrick in Harper's Young People.

A Winter in Iceland.

Although the climate of South Iceland is cold, the winter is scarcely what one would be led to expect from the northern situation. There is not much snow. A few inches usually lay upon the ground, crisp and hard, but not the piled up drifts of a New England winter. Accordingly it was possible to make horseback excursions to the farms round about, and to see the winter life of the people in the country. This season for the Icelander is a time of comparative rest. As nothing can be done abroad he stays of necessity at home, but his life is no mere hibernation. He sleeps a great deal, for his house is insufficiently lighted and the nights are long, but by daylight he has occupations enough. He has boats to build and oars to shape, saddles and harness to make and to mend, or he sorts the wool which the women spin into yarn and then knit into stockings or weave into coarse homespun or flannel, like wadmal. A busy sound of whirring wheels often greets the ear when you enter the farm house, and you find the women all at work at the end of the long room.

Another duty devolves on the heads of the household at isolated farms. There are good elementary schools in many places throughout the island, but in remote districts the children must be taught at home. In summer the time is occupied with out-of-door work, but in the comparatively idle days of winter the father, or not infrequently the mother, teaches the children of either sex the common branches. Iceland is perhaps the best educated community on the face of the earth; throughout the length and breadth of the land there is nobody who cannot read and write, and the general knowledge of some of these obscure fisherman farmers is sometimes well nigh appalling.—William H. Carpenter in The Atlantic.

The Sons of Malta.

These Maltese are a curious mixture of Moor, Italian, Greek and Arab, and I know not what else. They speak a peculiar language, which has no grammar, but since the British occupation every shopkeeper speaks English, and he lies in wait for the innocent tourist as the spider did for the fly. He does not hesitate to implore you "just to enter and look at his goods;" but beware of his allurements if you would escape with a full purse, for he has a truly tempting display.—Malta Cor, San Francisco Chronicle.

The Left Foot Is Larger.

"The left foot, please," said a shoe dealer, about to fit a customer to a pair of shoes. "You see," explained the dealer, "the left foot is larger than the right. Everybody to whom I make that statement is surprised. Observation has convinced me, however, that while the right hand is larger than the left, the left foot is larger than the right."—Home Journal.

For Solicitor.—Fred R. Felch, of Derry.

"A Modern Instance."

It is frequently asked why does the democratic party become the party of free trade, and permit its opponents to have the advantage of the theory of protection? The reason for this is found in that the controlling element of the democratic party is selfishness. The managers wish the offices, and to find some set of men who have something to gain by legislation, to furnish the campaign funds. Thus we see in the state of New York the funds for Gov. Hill's campaign come from frequent and heavy assessments upon the liquor saloons, while Mr. Cleveland's friends are promised (but if all accounts are true, as yet have failed to realize) munificent contributions from English exporters to this country. These men run the party for the time being, just as the slave power, the whiskey ring, or whatever interest for the time being has occasion for its votes.

A case in point is that of a large manufacturer in a neighboring state. He was a protectionist in the concrete, and had thrived by it for many years. In the abstract he wanted what is sometimes termed raw material to come into the country without duty. He thought he could make more money in his mills by free wool. Just how to bring this change about he was not quite certain, but the opportunity soon occurred. He became a mugwump. He cared not a fig about Mr. Blaine. Indeed, he admired the man, but the occasion was one which a shrewd capitalist could not suffer to pass except he improved it. He thought Cleveland "would make a good, clean president." He was inclined to believe that there was something in civil service reform as promised by the democratic candidate. He voted for Cleveland. He paid assessments to the party funds, and at once was admitted to the full communion of the democracy. Now was his opportunity. He went to Washington. He entertained certain leading democrats. He learned their favorite brand, and always had it on hand. His opinions as a manufacturer who rose above his party were sought. He was cautiously and in a tentative manner asked for his views upon the question of free wool. To make a long story short, the wily manufacturer, who had donned the livery of the democracy to serve a purpose, simply corralled the democratic leaders and achieved his object. Mr. Mills was charmed at so important an addition to his theories. The president was now sure of a re-election, if such men came voluntarily to the support of his measures. The state committee sent for their assessments with feelings of pride and satisfaction at this unwonted source of supply. The democratic papers heralded the change of sentiments, and pointed to this instance as evidence of the popularity of the free wool clause in their bill, among manufacturers.

Of course the "raw recruit" laughed in his sleeve to find himself in such a commanding position. But such men were scarce in the party, and he was made the most of. This shows the readiness of the democracy to be seduced into the support of every measure which promises for the time being to bring grist to their mill, and how completely the party is in the power of its few leaders, whose study is immediate success, instead of the observance of any sound principle or the advocacy of measures of either a reformatory or progressive nature.

The Democratic Muddle in New York.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19th.—Gov. David B. Hill's visit to the city at this juncture, while under the cover of a public review of state militia, is nevertheless for the purpose of strengthening his political position, and completing, as far as lies in his power, the bargains which were inaugurated some time ago looking to his re-election. No one knows better than the governor himself the many and formidable influences which threaten his defeat, and the necessity of fortifying himself by any and every possible means is thoroughly appreciated. As soon as he arrived here Gov. Hill at once placed himself in communication with his henchmen, and held long and confidential conferences during the day. No matter how thoroughly he may canvass the situation, or how many promises he may make among his political friends in New York, the case of Governor Flower is opposed if in advance, and Mr. Hill is disposed to succeed himself, he cannot hope made by independents. The latest canvass states that the vote of Gov. Hill will fall at least 50,000 below that of Cleveland, which will of course snow them both under so far from sight that they will not thaw out for four years to come. The cut in Hill's vote is going to materially injure Cleveland's vote as well, and this will insure a sufficently large majority for the republican national and state tickets to make New York one of the certain states. Gov. Hill's conferences were long and earnest, and his aqueduct irregularities and other improper acts were fully and freely discussed. It was the concensus of opinion about the hotels last night that Gov. Hill could not in any possible manner explain or justify them in the slightest degree. He has been extremely anxious to adjust the situation in New York city, and has had his emissaries at work here for the past two weeks endeavoring to patch up a truce, but without result. The state ticket as well as the national democratic is doomed in this state, and Hill as well as Cleveland will be compelled to bow to the logic of events and the statistics of elections.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18th.—Strange rumors have been floating around in political circles for several days, to the effect that President Cleveland contemplated a grand political coup d'etat. It has been impossible to run these rumors down to any definite point, and it was not until to-day that they materialized into form. It is now said by those who pretend to know the inner workings, that Mr. Cleveland contemplates a new retaliatory message. From what can be learned of the matter and the motives which inspired it, it appears that the White House is greatly alarmed over the political situation. Daily reports have been forwarded from here to Washington regarding the situation in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut. The canvass which has been made in these three states is far from reassuring, and it shows that the democrats are in a much worse situation now than they were at the same time in 1884. This is saying a great deal. These reports, from all accounts, also state that the further the question of free trade vs. the protection of American industries is discussed, the worse the democrats seem to be off. After a discussion here among leading politicians, Mr. Cleveland was advised to take some steps to change the issue, or at least to cloud it. As a result, a new retaliatory message is contemplated, and is stated to be now all ready to be sprung on the people at a moment's notice. How far this retaliatory message will go, no one knows. Mr. Cleveland's friends state if it comes, it will be very strong in terms, and they even intimate that it may be equivalent to a declaration of war. To-night the matter was discussed in the up-town hotels, and the opinion was expressed in some quarters that perhaps now the matter had leaked out, that the message might not come at all.

Senator Blackburn's Bourbon.

Senator Blackburn, of Kentucky, invited a number of friends to his room a few days ago to participate in a bottle of Bourbon that was distilled the day he was born, and which he had kept specially to tap on his fiftieth birthday anniversary. The senator helped his guests, and forgot to drink his own allowance as he preceived expressions of anything but the satisfaction he had looked for creeping over their faces. Somebody had previously celebrated the senator's birthday for him with the precious fifty-year-old, and refilled the bottle with water.

One of the democratic state committees, through its chairman, makes an appeal to the clerks in the departments at Washington for funds to carry on the election in the Solid South, where many officers and small manufacturers may produce be in opposition to the views are found to be in favor of the re-election of a free trade president. The plus on hand appears that if there is any surplus it will be returned pro rata after the campaign is over, if there is any surplus it will be returned. Now compare this with anything which the democratic party committeemen have worked for it is to prevent a surplus. The surplus is the bete noir of the democracy. We fear this promise is not made in good faith, or with any expectation of the suggested rebate. When anything is sent to this absorbent it never comes back. Fancy Mr. James R. Jackson returning to Frank Jones a portion of an unexpended subscription! Why, the project is absurd.

Congress adjourns to-day.

One of the notable features of the campaign is the great number of Hebrew recruits to the republican party. In New York city alone nearly all the Hebrew business men are going to vote for Harrison. They say they can't stand the democratic free trade policy.

When the country touched free trade bottom in 1861 under a democratic administration, United States five and six per cent bonds were worth seventy-five and eighty-five cents on the dollar. This year of our Lord, under republican protection methods, which the democracy have not been able to upset, four per cents are worth 130 cents on the dollar. The difference between free trade and rebellion, and protection and a solid Union, is quite marked, don't you see?

It is put down to the credit of the Jacksonville landlords, that they have refused to collect rents since the outbreak of yellow fever. No man with a soul larger than a microbe could do it under the circumstances. But there are people in the world whose souls are not half so big as a microbe.

It is wrong to experiment with uncertain remedies. Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup at once cures the troublesome colic of diarrhœa afflicting the baby.

The wonderful sale and popularity of Luxador is not so surprising, when the very wide range of its adaptation to disease is considered.

A Detroit evangelist went out to Brighton, Mich., lately to pursue his labors. He stayed four days, and on leaving the management handed him $4.70. "But my expenses have only been $4," said the evangelist. "Oh, never mind that," was the reply, "just keep the change."

To any one purchasing a bottle of Constitutional Cough Syrup of me and it does not give satisfaction I will refund the money. David Kimball & Co., No 36 Market street.

The man found dead beside his team at West Alton, on the line of the Lake Shore railroad, on the morning of the 18th inst., has been recognized as Wm. J. Gillick of Hoosac Tunnel, Mass., aged twenty years. He is believed to have been murdered and robbed by Italian laborers on the railroad.

Jonathan Roble, a native of Cnadia, this state, who died on Monday, Oct. 15th, at Cornish, Vermont, was a pensioner of the war of 1812, having been stationed for several months at Fort Constitution, Newcastle, during the war.

WHAT IS

SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" which fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, sores breaking out on them in various places. My little boy, three years old, has been a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. I was advised to use Hood's Sarsaparilla, and we have all taken it. The result is that all have been cured of the scrofula, my little boy being entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy." W. B. ATHERTON, Passaic City, N. J.

"Did n't know 't was Loaded"

May do for a stupid boy's excuse; but what can be said for the parent who sees his child languishing daily and fails to recognize the want of a tonic and blood-purifier? Formerly, a course of bitters, or sulphur and molasses, was the rule in well-regulated families; but now all intelligent households keep Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which is at once pleasant to the taste, and the most searching and effective blood medicine ever discovered.

Nathan S. Cleveland, 27 E. Canton st., Boston, writes: "My daughter, now 21 years old, was in perfect health until a year ago when she began to complain of fatigue, headache, debility, dizziness, indigestion, and loss of appetite. I concluded that all her complaints originated in impure blood, and induced her to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine soon restored her blood-making organs to healthy action, and in due time reestablished her former health. I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla a most valuable remedy for the lassitude and debility incident to spring time."

J. Castright, Brooklyn Power Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "As a spring Medicine, I find a splendid substitute for the old-time compounds in Ayer's Sarsaparilla, with a few doses of Ayer's Pills. After their use, I feel freshen and stronger to go through the summer."

SUPREME COURT, OCTOBER TERM.

The grand jury, having been together since Tuesday, the 16th inst., on Friday at noon reported twenty-four indictments, including one for horse stealing, one for keeping disorderly house, one for an assault with intent to kill, one for embezzlement, six for keeping liquor for sale, and one for aggregavated assault.

Some of these cases were disposed of. Frederick and John Clough, two indictments for breaking and entering and larceny at Derry, pleaded guilty, and the judge sentenced Fred to three years confinement in state prison, John receiving three years at the State Industrial school.

Charles Whiting, for forging an order for clothing, pleaded not guilty. Nicholas Wright, for assault with to intent to abuse Annie Wright of Hampton Falls, pleaded not guilty. John F. Fowler of Seabrook, two indictments, for breaking and entering, pleaded not guilty. Frank Blake, stealing an overcoat at Exeter, pleaded guilty to larceny amounting to less than ten dollars. John McArthur, stealing a watch at Newcastle, pleaded nolo contendere, and was sentenced to six months in jail. Thomas R. Cannon, breaking and entering and larceny, pleaded not guilty. John Jones, attempt at larceny from the person of Luther J. Holt at Portsmouth, pleaded not guilty. Henry A. Hearn, for assault on an officer, pleaded not guilty. Charles McLaughlin, for assault on an officer, pleaded nolo contendere; sentenced to three months in jail. James Palmer was indicted for the murder of Henry T. Whitehouse at Portsmouth on the 27th of May last.

The court adjourned to October 31st, when naturalization cases are to be heard and the new docket called. The court will then adjourn to November 12th, when it will re-assemble and the Palmer murder case will be began.

WARD ONE COMMITTEE.

The members of the republican committee of ward one are requested to meet at the headquarters on Congress street this (Saturday) evening at 7:30 o'clock. Business of importance, and a full attendance requested. PER ORDER.

WARD ONE CADETS.

The democrats of ward one have organized a marching campaign company, with the following officers:

Captain, John S. Treat;
1st lieutenant, Melvin Kenney;
2d lieutenant, Ambrose Connors;
3d lieutenant, Geo. H. Sanderson;
4th lieutenant, Samuel Hutchins;
1st sergeant, Albert King;
2d sergeant, Frank P. Banks.

The officers of the club are authorized to select a uniform, and drill has already commenced.

INDEPENDENT DEMOCRATS.

The Independent Democratic club was organized at the old custom house on Daniel street, Friday evening, by the choice of the following officers:

President, Oliver H. Cook;
Treasurer, Thomas Watkins;
Secretary, Nathaniel K. Raynes.

The next regular meeting will be announced at an early date, and the room will be open, with reading matter for the use to the members.

Y. M. C. A.

A meeting of persons actively interested in the formation in this city of a branch of the Young Men's Christian Association was held in the Congregational chapel on Middle street on Thursday evening of this week. The gathering was a large one, and much interest was manifested. The finance committee reported the contribution of $2000 to further the objects of the association. The following were appointed as the permanent executive committee:

E. P. Kimball, L. E. Staples, D. McIntire, F. W. Danielson, C. E. Hatch, W. P. Israel, John Pickard, C. H. Clough, A. M. Gardner, J. S. Rand, L. E. Smith, A. E. Rand, W. G. Myers, H. S. Paul, E. Scott Owen, J. R. Connell, H. A. Yeaton, J. H. Hutchin-on.

The meeting adjourned to the call of the chairman.

NEW LIFE SAVING STATION.

Congress having appropriated money for a new life-saving station to be located between the station at Rye beach and Odiorne's point, Supt. S. I. Kimball, chief of the life-saving service, and Supt. Richardson of the eastern division, on Thursday located the new station on the Parsons farm, near the land of Colonel Jerome C. Butler at Wallis' sands. This location we think is a good one.

TWENTY-FIVE DOLLARS IN GOLD.

A novel advertisement of the Globe Grocery Co. of this city has appeared, in which they offer as a prize twenty-five dollars for the nearest guess on the plurality of the successful candidate at the coming presidential election, in New York. Twenty-five dollars on the same in New Hampshire, and the same amount in Maine The parties guessing must be residents of Rockingham county, N. H., or York county, Me., and the estimated plurality must be written on a postal card and sent to them with the address of the guesser, prior to the 1888 election. In case two or more guess alike to the nearest plurality, then the amount will be awarded by lot, or divided, as parties agree. The decision and award to be made by the editors of the Penny Post, and to be final. Here is a chance for every man, woman and child to try for twenty-five dollars in gold.

PERSONAL.

Mr. John Laighton, wife and oldest child, of Richards avenue, started on Friday morning for a trip to New York.

Mr. Charles F. Larrabee, the mail carrier on route No. 1 of this city, went to the Massachusetts general hospital at Boston on Wednesday of this week, to have an operation performed upon his eyes.

MUSIC HALL.

There was a large and highly refined audience at Music hall on Thursday evening, when the Boston Symphony Club Orchestra gave their concert in aid of the yellow fever sufferers of Florida. The concert was all it had been announced as sure to be, with the exception that Herr Roth, the great 'celloist, was unable to give his solos, his splendid instrument, valued at $3000, having had its neck broken short off on the trip from Boston, probably by some baggage-smasher throwing a trunk on it. The net proceeds were about $100.

Music hall was packed with a refined and critical audience on Friday evening, when "Ruddigore" was sung by the Stetson Opera Co. The company is a strong one, there being some very fine and well trained voices in it, and the acting was all that was demanded. The opera itself we do not consider equal to some of Gilbert & Sullivan's other productions.

RAILROAD ITEMS.

The Baltimore & Ohio railroad has passed a third dividend.

The Atchison railroad is said to be sadly in want of money, and the stock seems at the mercy of speculators.

A rumor that the net receipts of the Boston & Maine system, resulting from an enormous loss in the operation of the Massachusetts Central road, would deprive Eastern stockholders of a dividend in December, carried the price of shares down fifteen dollars. Letters have been sent to stockholders stating that the Boston & Maine managers, or some of the officials, were intending to squeeze the Eastern, carry down the prices, and then buy it and make a good operation. Eastern has been denominated the residuary legatee of the Boston & Maine, which means that after liberal payments for contingencies the Eastern shareholders may or may not receive a dividend. In the meantime railroad stocks which commonly advance in the fall are sharky in the market. The prospects for dividends on many roads in the west is not favorable.

Capt. James M. Hill, a well-known retired shipmaster, died in Malden, Mass., on the 18th inst., aged seventy-eight years. He was a native of this city. A wife and two children survive him, a third child, a daughter, having been among the passengers of the ship Farragut, that sailed from Calcutta on January 20th, and has never since been heard from.

"Mother Hubbard" campaign clubs are being organized by both republicans and democrats. The "uniforms" don't cost much.

The crosswalk on Middle street from the residence of Dr. Clark to the Congregational chapel was relaid on Thursday last, and not a day before the relaying was needed.

The republican campaign company of Kittery Foreside has taken the name of Wentworth Guards, in honor of Gen. M. F. Wentworth.

The first assembly of the course of twelve to be given in Odd Fellows hall by Canton Senter, Patrjarchs Militant, of this city, takes place on Tuesday evening, October 23d. Grand march at eight o'clock. A very enjoyable time will be had all through the course, as the arrangements are in the hands of an able committee of chevaliers, namely: C. A. Neal, Daniel D. Waldron, Willis F. Pinder, Charles E. Boynton, H. F. Freeman and W. S. Fernald, of whom tickets can be procured.

The drum corps of the Winchester Cadets makes excellent marching music.

Capt I. H. Washburne shot a partridge in the yard of his residence on Vaughan street last Thursday.

There are 481 names on Seabrook's check list. There are seventy-five Eatons, thirty-seven Dows, and thirty-two Fowlers.

The daily call at Staples' Dry Goods store: "Got any more of those remnants of drilling at 6 1-2 cents?"

We have.

The best Red Fire for illuminations can be purchased at Grace's drug store for fifty cents a pound.

Pears' is the purest and best Soap made.

From now until the polls close every republican should see that he makes every day count. It is not necessary to go out electioneering in order to help our splendid ticket. Try to think of someone whom you can perhaps influence in the right direction and make it your duty to see him.

Rev. Isaac W. Grimes of Springfield, Mass., with preach in the Middle street Baptist church

It is a business matter whether voters elect Harrison or Cleveland. The success of one means a feast of plenty, the other a feast of cheapness and povety.

Henry G. Raworth of Augusta, Ga., said to be the oldest living railroad engineer, was the engineer of the Best Friend, the first locomotive built in America, and has followed his business for fifty-one years.

R. Kondo of the Mining university of Japan, said to be the wealthiest Japanese outside of the royal family, and the operator of sixteen gold, silver and copper mines, is about to visit the Lake Superior mineral region to obtain a knowledge of the mining machinery used in this country.

Maine's oldest inhabitants are dropping off fast this year. The other day Mrs. Azubah Ryder died in Orrington when nearly 105 years old, and now the death is announced of Chesley Heal of Searsmont, at the age of 109.

Forepaugh is for Cleveland and Barnum for Harrison. That was a stand off, until the other day when Lewis Sells, of Sells Brothers' circus, said to a San Jose, Cal., Mercury reporter: "I am not a politician, but my business brings me in contact with all classes of people of the globe, and I have seen enough to convince me that free trade is the very thing we don't want and should not have in America. It is now two one on Harrison—a good majority."

A Spanish magistrate, shocked and exasperated by repeated food adulterations, has issued a proclamation aflame with righteous wrath that "all wines, groceries and provisions which, upon analysis, are proved to be injurious to health, will be confiscated forthwith and distributed to the different charitable institutions."

He talked as if he had a "frog in his throat," but he was only hoarse; a single bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup relieved the trouble at once. 25 cents.

ROYAL

BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in cans. ROYAL BAKING POWDER Co., 106 Wall Street, New York.

HUNT'S REMEDY

BELIEVES the Kidneys;
REVIVES the Liver;

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

Sold only in cans, full weight.

FOR THE BLOOD
An Important Announcement
About six weeks ago, while at church, I was suddenly attacked with excruciating pains in my feet, knees and hands. So severe the attack that I took my bed immediately, and in two or three days my joints were swollen to almost double their natural size, and sleep was driven from me. After suffering the most excruciating pain for a week, using liniments and various other remedies, a friend was sympathized with my helpless condition, and said to me:
"Why don't you get Swift's Specific and use it. I will guarantee a cure, and if it does not the medicine shall cost you nothing."
I at once secured the S. S. S., and after using it the first day, had a quiet night and refreshing sleep. In a week I felt greatly benefited. In three weeks I could sit up and walk about the room, and after using six bottles I was out and able to go to business. Since then I have been regularly at my post of duty, and stand on my feet from nine to ten hours a day, and am entirely free from pain. These are the plain and simple facts in my case, and I will cheerfully answer all inquiries relative thereto, either in person or by mail. THOMAS MARKILLIE,
11 W. 18th Street, New York City.
NASHVILLE, TENN.—I have warded off a severe attack of rheumatism by a timely resort to Swift's Specific. I feel that it was to me a permanent relief in sought this medicine commend it as a constitutional treatment that thoroughly eradicates the seeds of disease from the system.
REV. W. P. HARRISON, D. D.
NEW YORK, 51 7TH AVE.—After spending $200 to be relieved of blood Poison without any benefit, a few Bottles of Swift's Specific worked a perfect cure. C. FORTES.
VIENNA, GA.—My little girl, aged six, and boy, aged four years, had eczema in the worst aggravated shape. They were puny and sickly. Today they are healthy and robust, all the result of taking S. S. S.
JOE T. COLLINS.
LADY LAKE, SUMTER CO., FLA.—YOUR S. S. S. has proved a wonderful success in my case. I believe on my face, no doubt would have soon buried me in my grave. I do think it is wonderful, and has no equal.
B. H. BLAND, Druggist.
WACO, TEXAS, May 9, 1883.
S. S. S., Atlanta, Ga.:
Gentlemen—Knowing that you appreciate voluntary testimonials, we take pleasure in stating that one of our laborers here has regained her health by the use of four large bottles of your great remedy, after having been an invalid for several years. Her trouble was extreme debility, caused by a disease peculiar to her sex. WILKS & CO., Druggists.

OH, WHAT A COLD!
This is the season for sudden changes in the weather, and a great many "take cold" either in their Head or on their Lungs, causing Coughs, Hoarseness, and Sore Throat. These troubles can be soon relieved and cured by taking Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs, entirely removing these difficulties.

Cured his boy of Croup.
C. M. BROOKS, Lowell, Mass., says: "I take great pleasure in recommending Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific as a cure for Coughs, Colds, and Croup. I used it in my family last winter with the best results. Two or three doses cured my little boy of Croup, for which I am very thankful."

You can cure that Cough in a short time. You can cure your Catarrh if you persist in its use, as it will stop the secretion of Catarrhal matter in the head; it will relieve Croup in from three to five minutes.

The best he ever saw.
"The best medicine for Coughs and Consumptive Complaints that ever I saw is Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific," so says JOHN MCLAUGHLIN, of Boston.

Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific is sold by all Druggists. Price 50 cents and $1. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

Novels of the Hebrides.
The hovels were as cheerless within as without. I do not know why it is one takes liberties with the poor one would not dare take with the rich. It is no small evil of poverty that it is everybody's privilege to stare at it. The people of Harris are hospitable, and receive the stranger with courtesy, but you can see that they resent the intrusion. It is not, I fear, to our credit that curiosity got the better of our scruples. We knocked at a cottage door one Sunday afternoon, J——, as excuse, asking for a light. As we drew near we heard the voice of some one reading aloud. Now it was silenced, and a tall old man in his shirt sleeves came to the door with an open Bible in his hands. Within, on the left, was the dwelling room of the household; on the right, the stable. Cattle and family share the only entrance. Into the room, through a single pane of glass, one ray of daylight fell across the Rembrandt like shadows.

On the mud floor, at the far end, a fire of peat burned with dull red glow, and its thick, choking smoke curled in clouds about the rafts and softened the shadows. We could just make out the figures of two women crouching by the fire, the curtained bed in the corner, the spinning wheel opposite. All other details were lost in gloom and smoke. Until you see it for yourself, you could not believe that in our Nineteenth century men still live like this. Miss Gordon Cumming says that to the spinning and weaving of the women "is due much of such comfort, as we may see by a peep into some of their little homes." But our peep showed us only that women weave and men work in vain, and that to speak of comfort is mockery in a cottage of Harris, or, indeed, in any cottage we saw in any part of the islands. For all those we went into were alike in their poverty and their darkness. As a rule the fire burned in the center on a circle of stones, and over it, from the roof, hung chain and hook for the kettle. They have not changed one jot or title since, a century ago, they moved Pennant to pity.—Elizabeth Robbins Pennell in Harper's Magazine.

The Origin of a Poem.
Longfellow's poem of this title tells how the Moravian nuns "consecrated the banner in a chapel or church and presented it to the hero with injunctions that he should bear himself with bravery and magnanimity under its folds and that if he fell in battle the banner should be used as his martial cloak and shroud." The concluding lines are:

And the warrior took that banner proud,
And it was his martial cloak and shroud.

It is a fact that Count Casimir Pulaski, visiting Lafayette when he lay sick at Bethlehem, Pa., in 1779, procured a banner from the Moravian Sisters in that place. But all the pretty garniture woven by the poet around this simple circumstance has been brushed away by historical research. The sisters did not live a cloistered life, and Pulaski bought the banner from them in the prosaic order of trade, for by selling this kind of work they supported their house. On the death of Pulaski the banner passed into the hands of Capt. Bentalou, of Baltimore, and is now in the possession of the Maryland Historical society in that city. In a newspaper interview Mr. Longfellow told the origin of the poem in these words: "It was one of my early works. I wrote it while at college. I read in a newspaper that the Moravian women at Bethlehem had embroidered a banner and presented it to Pulaski. The story made an impression on my mind, and one idle day I wrote the poem. I called them Moravian Nuns because I had gathered from something I had read that they were called nuns. I suppose I should have said Moravian Sisters, but but the change doesn't spoil the romance."

New York's Chinese Residents.
We have a Chinese population of nearly 10,000 in this city, but it is a rare sight to see any Chinaman applying for help at any of the public charitable institutions of the city. Our Chinese residents are always ready to assist each other in all the emergencies of life. Most of them belong to societies of mutual assistance on the Chinese plan. When one of them is penniless he can borrow money. When one is out of work he finds others ready to aid him in procuring it. When one is ill, nurses furnish the needed service, and if he dies the expenses of his burial are always easily obtained. Several hundreds of them have become well off through the business of their wash houses. There are no loafers among them, and all of them are noted for their industrious lives. There are few of them addicted to the opium habit, though many of them occasionally indulge in the fumes of the drug. It is mainly the wealthy men among them who enjoy the luxury of Chinese wives, but others who desire to form white matches find no difficulty in doing so, so far as the procuring of mates is concerned. As a rule, the children born of these unions adopt the American style of life. The Chinese of New York boast that they produce proportionately fewer criminals than any other element of our population.—New York Sun.

The Prince's Hungarian Coachman.
During the recent visit of the Prince of Wales to Hungary he was much struck with the magnificent mustaches worn by the coachmen of that country. One man in particular roused the admiration of his royal highness by the fierceness and grace of his hirsute adornments. The prince engaged him. On reaching Marlborough house the jehu saw that the coachmen, footmen and, in fact, all the servants wore faces devoid of hair. He at once sought a barber and had his face shaved clean. When the prince saw him again he was horrified. "I engaged you for your mustache and for nothing else," said his royal highness. That evening the Hungarian set out for his native land.—New York World.

Another Civilized Ailment.
A curious affection is paradoxical deafness. Dr. Boucheron, in a note to the Paris Academy of Sciences, lately stated that the patient is deaf for speech in the silence of a retired room, yet hears the same in the midst of noise, as in a moving carriage or railway train, or in the street. The disorder, which is grave, progressive and sometimes hereditary, is caused by compression of the labyrinth of the ear.—Arkansaw Traveler.

Defenders of American Industry.
We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform, 1888.

JOHN P. SWEETSER,

PORTSMOUTH, N. H. oct29

The presidential election will be fought out on the lines laid down months ago. President Cleveland has been accused of having shrunk from the free trade policy he then advocated. The accusation is unjust. * * * President Cleveland is substantially in favor of a financial policy which will impose duties mainly for revenue purposes, will take duties off raw materials, and so widen the market of the American purchaser. These are the aims and this is the policy of the free traders of all countries.—London Saturday Review, Sept. 15th, 1888.

Annihilating a Multiform Disease.

Miasmatic, or malarial, disease has many forms. Physicians have for the sake of convenience and for the purpose of indicating its most strongly marked forms, subdivided it into intermittent and biliousness remittent fever, dumb ague and ague cake. But it presents an infinite variety of symptoms in different individuals. Be these symptoms what they will, always remember that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will annihilate them at the outset, and prevent their recurrence. A review of the proofs would convince any one of the fact. This, however, is impossible because they are too numerous, and unnecessary because the effects of this grand anti-malaria specific are a matter of common knowledge. No less familiar to the public are its remedial and preventive effects in bilious attacks, constipation, dyspepsia, incipient rheumatism, debility and kidney troubles. It is moreover, an excellent appetizer and tonic nervine.

Mr. Cleveland has taken his stand on free trade, * * and on that broad question Mr. Cleveland's candidature naturally and necessarily carries English sympathy.—London Globe.

Be Your Own Doctor.

It won't cost you half as much. Do not delay. Send three 2-cent stamps for postage, and we will send you Dr. Kaufmann's great work, fine colored plates from life, on disease, its causes, and home cure. Address A. P. Ordway, & Co., Boston, Mass.

We must now place our manufactures by the side of the agriculturist. * * Experience has taught me that manufactures are now as necessary to our independence as to our comfort.—Thomas Jefferson.

Prepared by a combination, proportion and process peculiar to itself, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

It is useless to attempt the cure of any disorder, if the blood is allowed to remain impure. Neuralgia and rheumatism are traceable to a disordered condition of the blood, and in numberless cases have been cured by taking a few bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

It is to the New World that the Cobden Club is chiefly looking as the most likely sphere for its vigorous foreign policy. It has done what it can in Europe, and is now turning its eye westward and bracing itself for the struggle which is to come. It cannot rest while the United States are unsubdued.—London Times, July 18th, 1880.

An Important Element

Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. The familiar headline "100 Doses One Dollar," stolen by imitators, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This can easily be proven by any one who desires to test the matter. For real economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla, Sold by all druggists.

The president is careful to state that he frankly declares his indifference to the charge of favoring free trade. His policy, he says, may be called by that or another name, but it is the policy he recommends to Congress, and which, he does not affect to deny, must alter the terms on which foreigners have access to the American market.—London Saturday Review.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper. W. A. NOYES, 149 Power's Block, Rochester. eow1jan89

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam, for Coughs and Colds, does it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles at 50c and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption.

SHE HATH GROWN COLD.

She hath grown cold whose kindness won me to her.

Wherefore is this?
Wishing them more, I find her favors fewer.
What is amiss?
If, when we liked, to love my friendship flowered
With too fond haste,
Oh, say, should hers by cruel Fate o'erpowered,
As sudden waste?
"Shall I complain?" "Oh, not true love complains not,
Being denied."
"Shall I disdain?" "Oh, no! true love disdains not,
Only false pride."
"Shall I less love her for her long denial?"
"Nay; year by year,
Since she is worthy, thou shalt find thy trial
Ever more dear;
Till, it may be, the master spirit in thee,
Fresh from Love's fast,
Out of her eyes his look of looks shall win thee,
Win thee at last."

—The Spectator.

In an Old English Churchyard.

Not far from the inn, down a wall bordered lane and then through a paved passage where not more than three persons can walk abreast, we came to the grounds enclosing the old church built in sixteen hundred and something. (Only places of worship here in which is conducted the service of the Church of England are called churches; all others are "dissenters' chapels.") It is a handsome edifice exteriorly, built of stone, with a steeple whose fine proportions have been much admired by students of architecture. All around, in the great churchyard, lie the dead of past generations—a few of the inscriptions dating back nearly three hundred years. Some of the graves, I was told, contain the remains of a dozen persons—one coffin being placed upon the top of another, room being made for the new comers as the earlier tenants of the graves moulder into dust. Here, after patient search, I found the graves of ancestors long since passed away.—William T. Tinsley in Lyons Republican.

One's Own Life Experiences.

What would be the effect upon literature if every person of spirit and the ability to write fairly well were to embody in a single romance the most vivid and commanding experiences of his own life, from the time when he began to think to his maturity, and tell faithfully the most sacred emotions of his own heart, while faithfully photographing the people and the life around him? We should have a flood of intimate autobiographies, but slightly guarded by the veil of fiction; heart breaking confessions, interspersed with broad views of the beauty that there is in life, and dashed with humor; and whose reality would command our attention and our sympathies in spite of ourselves.—Boston Transcript.

A Watch's Gain or Loss.

A ship's chronometer is so adjusted as to remain always in one position, no matter what the motion of the ship may be, and on that account it keeps better time than a watch that is placed in the pocket during the day, on a table at night, and is more or less irregularly jarred from day to day by the motion of the body. A pocket watch that gains or loses only a second a day is considered an excellent timepiece, but in order to be so considered it must make the gain steadily one day after the other, or lose in the same way—it must not be a second fast one day and a second slow the next.—"B. B." in The Epoch.

Snake Bite and Yellow Fever.

Dr. Urias da Silveira has sent to the Medico-Chirurgical society of Rio de Janeiro a quantity of a vegetable substance which is very common in the provinces—Minas geraes and Barra mansa—and which, he says, he has used with great advantage in the bites of cobras, especially during the period in which the most serious symptoms—hemorrhages and ataxo-adynamic phenomena—appeared. He points out analogies between the effects of snake bite and of yellow fever, both of a symptomatic and pathological nature, and suggests that the drug he sent should be tried in cases of yellow fever.—Scientific American.

Rather Than Go Back.

"Yes," said she, "I will accept your proposal this time, and we will be married before winter."

"O, delight!" exclaimed he. "Your sudden change bewilders me."

"I know it must," continued the sweet thing, "but the fact is I have just learned that I didn't pass in my examination last spring, and rather than go back to the seminary and stand the disgrace of being put down I'll—I'll even marry you."

No cards.—Chicago Tribune.

A Truth Well Expressed.

"Many persons criticise in order not to seem ignorant; they do not know that indulgence is a mark of the highest culture," says Carmen Sylva in the current number of The Woman's World, and it is a truth well expressed. It is the little learning, the narrow culture, that is carping and censorious, and mistakes fault finding for criticism. The highest and most liberal culture is generous and believing.—Boston Traveller.

Electric Light in War.

The German military authorities have experimented successfully with night attacks by the aid of electric light. The beam of light is reflected from a mirror 200 yards distant from the lamp, so that the enemy cannot tell where the battery is.—New York Sun.

Wanted to Know.

He—My darling, you must be mine. I yearn for you every day.

She—That's all right; but what I want to know is, will you earn for me every day after we are married?—New York Tribune.

If a note is lost or stolen it does not release the maker; he must pay it, if the consideration for which it was given and the account can be proven.

STRANGE SCENES IN JAPAN.

First Impressions—The Common People. A Strange Festival—Japanese Women.

In Yokohama is a long boulevard called the "Bund," bounded at each end by a jetty or pier called the "Hatoba," with a pleasant wooded hill to the left known as the "Bluff," dotted with white houses. The harbor or bay itself is a circle of water perhaps three miles wide—big enough at any rate to be so rough in windy weather that the ships have to get up steam and go to sea for safety.

To come now to "first impressions;" there are, of course, two kinds of these. There are the mere sense impressions, the things which strike the eye and ear as strange, and there are the "first impressions," which mean the conclusions springing to the mind when the externals are first understood. The former class of these "first impressions" generally attach themselves to very trivial matters, but they are often not the less entertaining for all this. The first thing, for instance, that I noticed in Japan was the enormous hats of the coolies, and next the ludicrous combinations of European and foreign dress worn by many young members of the middle class. A pot hat, a cotton wrapper or bath gown—the yukata—a pair of long stockings and boots—that was a common mixture, the wearer evidently and rightly thinking that he had adopted the best points of both systems. An hour after landing, too, a remark made to me by an educated Japanese gentleman on the Belgic recurred to me. I had asked him if the coming constitution for Japan was likely to include trial by jury. "After you have seen Japan," he replied, with a smile, "you won't ask that question." I mean by this that I was struck with the fact that the common people of Japan, courteous and clever and civilized as they are in many ways—the hewers of wood and drawers of water and pullers of jerinkishas—are upon a different plane from the common people at home. One might say that they live in two dimensions, whereas trial by jury, not in its origin, but in its significance today, is a three dimension idea. Moreover, the rulers of Japan see that trial by jury is often a failure or a farce with us, and they have no wish to educate the people up to it.

In Japan there are almost as many religious festivals as in Spain, and one of these—matsuri is their generic name—was being celebrated the other day in the Japanese town. I went to look for it with my detective camera, and when I met it I could hardly believe my eyes—it corresponded more to one's idea of New Guinea than of Japan. Upon an ordinary bullock cart a raised platform and scaffolding twenty feet high had been constructed, and bullock and all covered with paper decorations and green boughs and artificial flowers. In front a girl with a grotesque mask danced and postured, while half a dozen musicians twanged impossible instruments and kept up an incessant tattoo on drums. Children wild with delight crowded up among the performers and clung like flies all over the cart, and only that Providence which takes care of them, together with drunkards and the United States of America, preserved them from making a Juggernaut of it. On foot around the bashi, as the whole structure is called, were twenty or thirty men, naked as to their legs, their faces chalked, with straw hats a yard wide, many colored tunics, in which scarlet predominated, decked out with paper streamers and flowers enough to make a Sioux chief despair of himself, dancing along to a very rude chant and at every step banging upon the ground a long iron bar fitted with loose rings.

The colors, the song, the dance, the music and the clanging iron formed together a spectacle as barbarous in taste as possible, something wholly different from what one had supposed the gentle culture of the Japanese to be. At the time I was greatly puzzled, but subsequently I learned that this matsuri is not so barbarous as it looks. I took it to be a serious religious ceremony. I found that it had just as much to do with religion as an Italian carnival has—that is, it was born of religious feeling and has entirely forgotten its ancestry. Buddhism, which is the religion of the common people, has always played to the gallery, so to speak, and the priests of today make money out of the matsuri, partly in the shape of the coins which are thrown into the temple ponds and partly from their share of the subscriptions of the well to do people of the neighborhood, by whom the festival is supported. The affair is thus a Japanese carnival, where people drink sake and play the fool themselves or watch others doing so, exactly as at Nice or Venice.

No account of "first impressions," too, would be complete without an illusion to the grace and charm of the Japanese women. The first time one sees a couple of pretty and prettily dressed Japanese girls walking abroad under their huge variegated paper umbrella, with their elaborately dressed black hair, their perfect tiny hands and feet, their large brown eyes—set obliquely if they are "beauties;" with their delicate, soft toned crape garments, and the heavy flat silk obi twisted round and round their waist and ending in a colossal bow behind; with their funny motion on their clip-clapping pattens, half undulating run and half waddle, and their merry laughter and chatter—when one sees them for the first time, I say, one is usually delighted enough to follow them up and down for half an hour under a fine pretense of losing one's way or looking into the shops. At least I did, till I succeeded in getting a snap photograph of them.—Yokohama Cor. New York World.

An Exercise for Health.

If you are troubled with too much blood in the head, the best thing you can do for a simple remedy is to take the twisting movements of the trunk at the waist. Keep the feet firm, turn the trunk as far as possible to the right—till you face right—four times; the same to the left; then alternate the movements. Next, bend the body strongly and slowly to the right, from the waist, then to the left. Again bend forward as strongly as possible, from the waist, then slightly back, at first, increasing on the back movement later, as you are able.—Mary E. Allen in Youth's Companion.

My Poor Back!

That "poor back" is held responsible for more than its share of the sufferings of mankind. If your dog bites a man who kicks it, do you blame the dog? On the same principle the kidneys utter their protest against nervousness, impure blood, and resulting constipation. These force them to do extraordinary work in ridding the system of the poisons which are the result of effete matter retained in the blood. Then the sufferer says the back aches; the kidneys are diseased. "Not yet;" but they will be unless the nerves are strengthened, the blood purified, and the constipation removed. These are the causes of kidney troubles, and Paine's Celery Compound removes them quickly. With its tonic, purifying, and laxative effect, it also strengthens the weak kidneys, making it almost infallible in curing all diseases of the nerves and kidneys. If your hopes of cure have not been realized, try Paine's Celery Compound; it gives perfect health to all who complain of "their poor backs." Price $1.00.

Protection From Pauper and Convict Labor.

Senator Teller, of Colorado, introduced in the senate last week a resolution ordering an enquiry into the purchase of convict-made goods by the United States government; also of British-made goods. This stirred up the democratic senators, Bate of Tennessee and Cockrell of Missouri, who were virtuously indignant that the administration's purchases of goods made by convicts in competition with free labor should be questioned.

Senator Teller ventilated the fact that Secretary of War Endicott has right along been buying English blankets for the use of the American army, they being a trifle cheaper than American blankets of equal or superior quality,—by reason of being made by cheaply-paid labor, and the government not having to pay any duty on them! He also drew attention to the fact that President Cleveland quietly disposed of a bill passed by Congress in 1887, prohibiting the purchase by the government of any goods made by convict labor, by a "pocket veto;" and that in July, 1887, as soon as Congress had adjourned, the democratic commissioner of Indian affairs, acting under the approval of Secretary Vilas, ordered 400 wagons made by the lessees of the Tennessee penitentiary, following it with two other contracts, for 272 and 200 wagons, respectively. These bids were awarded in competition with bids of many other large manufacturers of wagons, who employ free labor and pay good wages to honest mechanics.

The republican committee of the town of Rochester, in Strafford county, a few weeks ago issued a circular urging the protection of the manufacturers and mechanics of the town from the labor of convicts and paupers. The democratic managers and fuglers, (including our neighbor the Times and its Rochester correspondent,) have ever since been trying hard to fire the mechanics' hearts with hatred to the republican party, on the ground that American mechanics had been stigmatized as "convicts and paupers" by the Rochester town committee. That the wording of the circular could not honestly be so construed, did not matter; the democratic outcry was not intended to influence men who can read, and think. Perhaps the information that President Cleveland vetoed, by the "pocket" plan, a law to protect the honest mechanics of the country from the competition of convict labor in government business; that this same convict labor has furnished within a year nearly 900 wagons for the government; and that the American soldier as he lies down to rest under the stars and stripes is wrapped in a blanket made by the pauper labor of Europe, may show to some who have not previously known it, the need of the protection of honest and well paid American mechanics and laborers "from the labor of paupers and convicts:"

The Yellow Fever.

The executive committee of the Mississippi state board of health on the 19th withdrew all its quarantine officers, and travel to and from the state will not any longer be interfered with, unless by local quarantines, which are now very few.

In Jacksonville, 19th, twenty-seven new cases and four deaths, three of the latter white, and one colored.

James O. Eddy of Franklin Falls left his home Oct. 10th, and has not been heard from since.

Harris T. Bell, furniture and clothing dealer at Derry Depot, N. H., started for Boston on the 15th inst. He was recognized in Lawrence, Mass., at the railroad ticket window, but had not been seen in Boston or at his home up to the 19th. His business matters are all right, and his friends fear foul play.

By unanimous vote the Swedish-American Political club of Worcester, Mass., has decided to support the republican party and its candidates.

In Rensselaer county, N. Y., the republicans have already found 1550 bogus names on the registration lists, and, affidavits having been secured, will call upon the supreme court to strike the names from the lists.

The revenue cutter Levi Woodbury arrived at Bucksport, Me., Tuesday night, the 16th inst., from Bath. She is in fine shape, and made the trip in one hour less time and used 800 pounds less coal than on her trip from Bucksport to Bath before her machinery was repaired. She was to remain at Bucksport for several days taking in her sails, and then sail for Eastport. Capt. Fengar says the steamer is now in finer condition than ever before since she was new, and he is well satisfied with her.

Morris Hennessey, sixty years old, was killed by the fall of a campaign flag-pole in Providence, R. I., Oct. 19th.

By a collison on a railroad near Freeport, Ill., Oct. 18th, three men were killed and seven others injured.

Four men were killed and fifteen others injured by an accident on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad near Washington, Pa., Oct. 19th.

Henry Holcomb, it is alleged, has stolen and disposed of wheat valued at $50,000 at Minneapolis, Minn., and fled to Canada. He tapped an elevator bin.

Ex-President Saloman of Hayti died in Paris, France, Oct. 19th.

Preparing a Nerve Skeleton.

One of the most interesting features of the convention of state homeopathic physicians is the completion by Dr. R. B. Weaver, demonstrator of anatomy at the Homeopathic college, of a piece of work which has occupied his close attention for six months. It is a complete expose of all the nerves of the human body, exactly in the position they occupy during life. Some idea can be formed of the labor involved when it is remembered that the human body contains upward of a million nerves of various sorts.

Dr. Weaver, who lately traveled in Europe, was struck with the want of some specimen of anatomy showing the nerves only. Procuring the body of a colored woman, who had died in a very emaciated condition, Dr. Weaver, working ten hours a day for upward of six months, and chiseling the bones away piece by piece, managed to get what he wanted. As seen the other day, the figure, pinned to a blackboard in a polished frame, looked at a distance like a very delicate drawing in white of the nerves of the human figure. A close inspection, however, revealed the fact that the delicate lines were really nerves, some as delicate and fine as silk. The dura mater of the skull and backbone are retained and also the eyes. The nerves of the spinal cord are so fine and so close together that a very fine needle had to be used to separate them. Portions of the skin are also preserved, but every particle of bone and tissue has been removed.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Danger in Water Filters.

A most astounding revelation has come to those who have been confidently trusting to appliances for purifying their drinking water. It seems that the ordinary filter, instead of rendering the water pure and safe, is actually the means of producing just the opposite result. The Rhode Island Medical society, through Dr. Swarts, shows that some filters when first used do remove a proportion of disease germs. But after being in use only a few days there is a marked increase in the number of colonies of germs in the filtered as compared with the unfiltered water. In one instance the unfiltered water showed the presence of thirty-six colonies, while the filtered contained the enormous number of 2,000, 3,000, 9,000, and even more. That is, the poison caught up by the filter the first few days becomes the source of a vast multiplication of the dangerous element. So look to your precautions, and then be on your guard. If you cannot constantly cleanse your filters you had better destroy them.—Globe-Democrat.

Putting Out Fires.

An English fireman writes to The London Fireman his belief that fires may be put out by a mixture of plaster of paris and alum. His plan is to throw the mixture confined in a combustible bag upon the fire. An incombustible pulley block, to haul up the bag, must necessarily be affixed to every building to render his plan practicable.—Frank Leslie's.

It is Absurd

For people to expect a cure for Indigestion, unless they refrain from eating what is unwholesome, but if anything will sharpen the appetite and give tone to the digestive organs, it is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Thousands all over the land testify to the merits of this medicine.

Mrs. Sarah Burroughs, of 248 Eighth street, South Boston, writes: "My husband has taken Ayer's Sarsaparilla, for Dyspepsia and torpid liver, and has been greatly benefited."

A Confirmed Dyspeptic.

C. Canterbury, of 141 Franklin st., Boston, Mass., writes, that, suffering for years from Indigestion, he was at last induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla and, by its use, was entirely cured.

Mrs. Joseph Aubin, of High street, Holyoke, Mass., suffered for over a year from Dyspepsia, so that she could not eat substantial food, became very weak, and was unable to care for her family. Neither the medicines prescribed by physicians, nor any of the remedies advertised for the cure of Dyspepsia, helped her, until she commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. "Three bottles of this medicine," she writes, "cured me."

Four Books Learned in One Bending.—A Year's Work Done in Ten Days.

From the chaplain of Exeter college, and Houghton Syriac Prizeman, Oxford:

Dear Sir: In April, 1885, while thinking of taking orders in September, I suddenly received notice that my ordination examination would be held in a fortnight. I had to break up my home, and, as a consequence I had only ten (10) days in which to prepare for the exam. I should recommend a year's preparation in the case of any one so utterly unprepared as I was; but your system had so strengthened my natural memory, that I was able to remember and give the gist of any book after reading it once. I therefore read Lightfoot, Proctor, Harold Browne, Mosheim, etc., etc., once, and was successful in every one of the nine papers. The present bishop of Edinburg knows the facts, for he lent me the books.

Faithfully yours,

[Rev.] JAMES MIDDLETON MACDONALD.

Coll. Exon. Oxon. Sept. 1888. [A.M.]

To Prof. A. Loisette.

A paymaster for Contractor McFadden, who is building a branch of the Lehigh Valley railroad near Willkesbarre, Pa., started out with a body guard on the 19th inst., with $20,000 to pay the laborers. The entire party were shot by three masked men, and the money stolen. Three Italians are accused of the crime.

For colic, dysentery, teething and other diseases of babyhood, always use Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup. A perfectly safe and reliable remedy.

W. F. Fritz, treasurer of Hermantown school district, near Duluth, Minn., was waylaid Wednesday night of last week by four highwaymen, who pulled him from his buggy, beat him, and robbed him of a money belt containing over $2000 in school funds. The previous treasurer was robbed in the same manner six years ago in the same spot.

Many women find
Pyle's Pearline

Indispensable for washing dishes, windows, carpets, cleaning house, etc., etc., but because of its wonderful cleansing properties are afraid to have their clothes washed with it. Well, in the past ten years the consumption of Pearline has exceeded 150,000,000 packages, and no complaints, but numerous letters praising it. Why, because PEARLINE is absolutely harmless in its place, and one of the best places to put it is in the wash tub. You can soak your finest linens and laces in Pearline and water for a month with perfect safety. That's as much Pearline as they would get if they were washed in it once a week for twenty years. We could not afford to spend our time and money in telling the public, through the newspapers, a single thing about Pearline that would not stand the test; and the sooner you test it, the sooner you'll know that PEARLINE will do more than we claim for it. It is as pure and harmless as the finest imported castile soap. It's success has brought out many dangerous imitations. Beware of them. JAMES PYLE, New York.

SULPHUR BITTERS

The Best and Purest Medicine EVER MADE.

It will drive the Humor from your system, and make your skin clean and smooth. Those Pimples and Blotches which mar your beauty are caused by impure blood, and can be removed in a short time, if you are wise and use the great blood-purifier, SULPHUR BITTERS. Why suffer with Boils? Why lay and toss on that bed of pain, with rheumatism? What makes you feel so? Your nerves are all unstrung, and need a gentle stimulant to assist nature to repair the damage which your excesses have caused. Sulphur Bitters is not a cheap Rum or poor Whiskey drink to be taken by the glass, the other proportion which stimulates only TO DESTROY. If you have failed to receive any benefit from other medicines or doctors, do not despair. Use SULPHUR BITTERS. They will cure you where all others fail. No person can remain long sick who uses SULPHUR BITTERS.

The Dose is small—only a teaspoonful. It is the best and cheapest medicine. Try it, and you will be satisfied. Get it of your Druggist.

DON'T WAIT. GET IT AT ONCE

If you are suffering from Kidney Disease, and wish to live to old age, use SULPHUR BITTERS. They never fail to cure.

ORDERED TO THE KEARSARGE.

Passed Asst. Paymaster E. B. Rogers is ordered from the Boston navy yard to the Kearsarge, Nov. 1st. Surgeon A. M. Moore is detached from duty at New London, Conn.; Passed Asst. Engr. James H. Chasmar from the New York navy yard; Asst. Engr. William W. White from duty at Pittsburg, Pa.; First Lieut. L. D. J. Waller, U. S. M. C., from the Norfolk navy yard,—and all ordered to the Kearsarge. These are the first announcements of orders to that vessel.

The Kearsarge is about ready for the official trial of her boilers and engines, and will probably get to sea some time next month.

WINTER ARRANGEMENT.

The winter arrangement on the Boston & Maine railroad went into effect on Sunday, the 21st. The changes on the line between this city and Boston are the taking off of the trains leaving this city at 1:05 and 6:40 P. M., and leaving Boston at 9:30 A. M. and 1:30 and 3:15 P. M. The train which during the summer has left this city for Boston at 7:30 A. M., now leaves at 7:25—and intending passengers for Boston will do well to look out for that five minutes difference.

On the York Harbor & Beach railroad the 3:25 and 6:50 P. M. trains from this city are discontinued, and also the 4:10 and 5:50 P. M. trains from York. There are some slight changes in the starting time of the other trains, which are noted in the advertisement in another column.

The 11:12 A. M. train from this city over the Northern division is discontinued.

A GOOD PLATFORM.

The following is the declaration of intentions and principles subscribed to by the members of the Independent Democratic club at their organization last week:

The undersigned, Independent Democrats, or whose inclinations have heretofore led them more or less to the support of the democratic party as it has been, do pledge ourselves as follows:

That we will vote, and use our influence to induce others to vote, for the electoral ticket in support of Harrison and Morton as president and vice president of the United States.

We will support and maintain the candidates of this club, so far as we can do the same according to our individual consciences.

We are in favor of protection to American laborers.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Annie E. Waldron, formerly of this city, is visiting Mrs. A. P. Kent of Islington street.

Mr. Everett L. Marston of this city passed Sunday at Newton, this state.

Mrs. Annie Wyatt of Manchester is visiting Mr. A. N. Wells and wife of Hanover street.

Mrs. Fred F. Randall and children returned home last Friday, after a visit of several weeks to Mrs. Randall's parents down east.

Rev. Wm. A. McGinley, pastor of the Congregational church, is passing a vacation of two weeks in Pennsylvania and Maryland.

Mr. Lewis E. Staples of this city was elected president of the New Hampshire Baptist Sunday School convention at Claremont last week.

Mrs. Reding, wife of Hon. John R. Reding of State street, is on a visit of six weeks to Omaha, Neb.

Mrs. Irving Perkins and child, of Somerville, Mass., are passing a few days with Mr. Theodore Perkins and wife of Deer street.

Capt. Winn of York, Me., started for New York on Saturday to take command of the ship Grandee, of this port, Capt. B. F. Jacobs of this city being compelled to resign the command on account of impaired health.

Cards are issued for the marriage of Miss Maud Blanche Mendum, daughter of Charles H. Mendum, Esq., of this city, and Dr. William Ker Shea of Philadelphia; the ceremony is to take place on Wednesday evening, Oct. 31st, at six o'clock, in the Unitarian church.

The approaching marriage of Miss Sadie Littlefield, daughter of Mr. Cyrus Littlefield of Dover, to Mr. Thomas E. Call of this city, is announced.

Mrs. Yates, wife of Capt. A. R. Yates, U. S. N., two children and nurse, leave this city on Tuesday for Norfolk, Va., to pass several months.

Hon. M. Parry Kennard sailed from Liverpool for Boston on the steamer Pavonia last Thursday.

Governor Hamilton of Maryland, who has been ill for some time, is now suffering from a sudden attack of pneumonia, which, in his present enfeebled condition, it is feared he may not be able to resist.

Intelligence was received in this city on Saturday from the west of the death of Mrs. Freeman, formerly Miss Susie Penhallow of this city, daughter of Andrew J. Penhallow, Esq.

The store on Market street formerly occupied by Mr. M. C. Foye, is to be opened shortly by a firm from Boston, as a shoe store.

Gorman & Harrington's company will appear at Music hall next Saturday evening in "Muldoon's Picnic." Mr. M. J. Mahoney, who was so popular last summer as an umpire in the Interstate baseball league, is one of the company.

Prof. A. N. LaBrie is arranging for the production of the Gilbert & Sullivan comic opera "The Pirates of Penzance," at Music hall by local talent, for the benefit of the Children's Home. Many of those who took part in the successful presentation of "The Mikado" under his management will be in the cast. The first rehearsal was held in Rechabite hall on Saturday evening, and the prospect is that the chorus will be larger and stronger than that of the Mikado, especially in male voices.

The true cause of the increasing sale of Preston's Jamaica Ginger, is a natural one. It is pure and strong, and a most grateful cup of ginger can be made from it.

Sixteen young gentlemen who were natives of Ireland, and one who was born in Norway, declared their intentions to become citizens of the United States before the clerk of the United States Circuit court in this city on Friday last.

"Well, what do you think of that?" enquired a man from the brewery region as the Eldredge "Volunteers" passed up Middle street on Saturday evening with a march lacking military precision. "I think," returned the other, "that the boys are more familiar with hops than with steps."

The 3500-pound bell in the tower of the new Jones brewery was rung for the first time on Saturday at five o'clock. It is reported that the bell is to be connected with the electric fire alarm; it would be a great addition to the efficiency of the alarm.

A republican campaign flag twenty-four feet long and fifteen feet wide has been raised at Newmarket Junction, and is the first republican presidential flag ever raised there.

On Thursday evening, Oct. 25th, the republicans of Newmarket will have a rally in the town hall of that place, with music by the Newmarket fife and drum corps, and the Tippecanoe glee club. Mr. P X Angers of Lewiston, Me., will deliver an address in the French language, but the principal speech of the evening will be by Mr. Silas Hussey of Rochester, a prominent member of the Knights of Labor.

One of the brightest and best exchanges reaching our table is the Portland Express; and the following, which we clip from one of its last week's issues, shows it to be bold yet withal judicious, as well: "Comparisons are often odious, but the Express is not afraid to record its belief that the handsomest, and in every respect the nicest, political club in this state is to be found in the town of Kittery. It is republican of course, and the members are all ladies."

A LEGEND OF RAYNES' NECK.

YORK, ME., Sept. 28th.

Mr. Editor: I write you this time from another quarter, known as Raynes' Neck, so called from the fact that in the year 1650 a Puritanic Englishmen of ancient and respected family settled here, and gave this name to the region hereabouts. So says mine host, a rubicuned farmer who keeps the wayside inn, and is not less the "medicine man" of this quaint little neighborhood. The weather being a cold drizzle without, I am glad to seek the geniality of his blazing hearth-fire. But a handful of guests are here, evidently the descendants of the earlier generations, who keenly relish the gossip about the present state of society. In better taste, however, are the tales of former days, and for my benefit my interesting host unearthed a legend that I will relate as follows:

About the year 1790 there appeared in our midst a man of mystery, a former sea captain who gave his name as Trickey. He was a very quiet man, and seemed always brooding of the past, about which he was strangely reticent. Wife, children, or his life on the seas, he never mentioned, and never sat down by a neighbor's fireside. He was past sixty, and attracted little attention till a strange disease broke out among the cattle—something hitherto unknown to this region. The following year the flax, of which they raised large crops, moulded on the stalks. The blame, with one consent, was laid on Trickey. The family where he lived were interviewed, but no information could they give, save that he went daily to the woods and there sat on a little knoll for several hours, as every boy in the place could testify. It was not unlikely he was conjuring mischief there. Mishaps continually befell the people; corn mildewed, and the sheep died in their pens. Our good forefathers decided to hold a council on the subject. On the afternoon of the day appointed, a bitter cold northeaster, with clouds of snow, came on, and at night the body of the belated Capt. Trickey was found on his favorite knoll, stiff and dead.

They buried him where he lay, hoping to find there the treasure he was supposed to possess; but a fruitless toil it was, and so it has been ever since, to the many in each generation who have tried to unearth it. The spot is marked by many ledges and hollows,—for every delving party has found it best to leave in sudden haste, owing to unexplainable phenomena. Peace and plenty have reigned on Raynes' Neck ever since.

I felt a little uncanny as I looked across the pasture through my chamber window that night, towards the much disturbed grave of the Sorcerer of Raynes' Neck, but resolved that on the moorrow I would explore some of the picturesque nooks and corners of this interesting neighborhood. TOURIST.

During the past year there were 248 accidents to mail trains on which postal clerks were employed. In these wrecks four clerks were killed, sixty-three wounded more or less severely, and forty-five slightly injured. There are no statistics given by the general superintendent of the railway mail service, of the number of postal clerks whose heads were taken off; the postmaster general keeps that tally.

Commander Edwin White has been ordered as equipment officer at the Portsmouth navy yard, November 1st.

Paymaster George A. Lyon, pay and purchasing officer at this navy yard, was last week confirmed by the senate as pay inspector; and Passed Asst. Paymaster John W. Jordan, formerly for some time stationed here, to be paymaster.

The senate last week confirmed Lieutenants Clifford H. West, John P. Merrill and Joseph G. Eaton to be lieutenant-commanders. This leaves Lieut. William I. Moore, who at one time served a three years term at this navy yard and resided in this city, at the head of the list of lieutenants, and next in order for promotion to the grade of lieutenant-commander.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

Sold only in cans, full weight.

SSS
SWIFT SPECIFIC CO. ATLANTA, GA. TRADE MARK

PEED'S MILL, TEXAS, June 20, 1888—The Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: One of my children was troubled with rheumatism and boils for about two years. We gave her various kinds of medicine, but without profit, and began to despair of curing her at all. I was persuaded to try your Swift's Specific. After she had used several bottles the diseases all disappeared, and she is now a hale, hearty and healthy girl twelve years old. Another child has just become afflicted in the same way, and I am using S. S. S. and anticipate a prompt and permanent cure. N. C. WAGGONER.

RICH HILL, MO., July 7, 1888—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: Our little girl when but three weeks old broke out with eczema. We tried the prescriptions from several good doctors, but without any special benefit. We tried S. S. S., and by the time one bottle was gone her head began to heal, and by the time she had taken six bottles she was completely cured. Now she has a full and heavy head of hair—a robust, hearty child. I feel it but my duty to make this statement. Respectfully, T. E. SMITH.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., June 27, 1888—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: In 1866 I contracted a malignant poison, and at once sought a physician, who treated me for several months, by his advice I went to Crab Orchard Springs, Ky., where his course of treatment was carefully observed. I recovered, as I thought, but the old spring pimples began to appear on my face and body. They gradually increased in size and running freely. I was advised to try S. S. S., and immediately after taking it I commenced to improve, slowly at first, but more rapidly afterwards, and soon nothing remained to tell of my trouble. My blood is now thoroughly cleansed, and my system free from taint, and I owe my present condition—a perfect cure—to your medicine. I cheerfully give this statement that others who have suffered as I have may reap the same benefit. HARDY M. BURT, 24 West Ninth St.

HOMER, LA., May 25, 1888—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: About two years ago my general health gave way entirely. I was so debilitated that I almost despaired of ever feeling well again. All that the physicians done for me brought no permanent relief. Friends insisted that I should give S. S. S. a fair trial, although I thought it would be throwing away money. After taking a thorough course, my health and strength returned, and I must say that S. S. S. alone cured me, as I discussed all others while using it. As a tonic I can most heartily recommend it; for general debility, it certainly is a specific. W. F. BRIDGES, J. P.

HOMER, LA.—I know Mr. W. F. Bridges, and will say that his statement is correct.

A DISTRESSING COUGH.
How many, especially during the Fall and Winter months, are troubled with a Cough, sometimes dry and hacking, sometimes loose causing the sufferer to raise a large amount of offensive matter; this can soon be cured by using Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs.

Cured her Cough.
MRS. JEREMIAH CLARK, Lowell, Mass., says: "Twelve years ago I first took a bottle of your Throat and Lung Specific. I had been troubled with a very bad Cough for months. A 50-cent bottle cured my Cough. Since then I have not been without it. I can heartily recommend it to any one who has a bad cough."

Saved his Life.
CHAS. A. WAITT, says: "No language can express the value I attach to your Specific. I believe it saved my life."

We would cite other testimonials did we think it necessary, but a trial bottle will convince you that it is all we represent. Give it a trial.

Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific is sold by all Druggists. Price 50 cents and $1. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

The Phonograph in the Army.
A distinguished officer said to me, after we had inspected Edison's phonograph at the Press club by favor of Col. Gouraud, "I wonder can that be adapted to naval and military use?" Subsequent conversation with him developed these ideas. There is hardly a campaign of which we have a complete record; there is hardly an accident at sea of which we have ever heard, or that did not give rise to the question of the exact wording and precise emphasis on the wording of an order. The most conspicuous instance in modern times of a misunderstanding was perhaps the case of the charge at Balaklava, but the ceaseless flow of battle papers in the American magazines goes to show that what happened in the case of our Light brigade happened in substance pretty often in your great war. Now, if there were a portable form of the phonograph there could be a record of the orders given, whether in case of an action ashore or an accident afloat. Perhaps Mr. Edison will condescend to give the subject his attention.

But meanwhile I have "spotted" a use for the phonograph that probably has occurred to no one else. It has been my lot in days gone by to attend perhaps a greater number of artillery experiments than any one else not an artillery officer, and I can see how if a number of phonographs, synchronized, were placed along a range there would be a better and clearer record of the path of a shot or shell than there is at present where the use of screens inevitably causes some deflection and some loss of energy, however light. But in applying the phonograph to military and naval purposes it does seem to be necessary that there should be found some more durable, even if less sensitive, material than the wax cylinder as the receiver of the vibrations. That such a material exists can hardly be doubted; but it may interest Mr. Edison to know that already some of the smartest military minds in England are considering his invention with a view to its adoption for, or adaptation to, military purposes. I do not feel at liberty to say more on the matter at present.—London Cor. New York Times.

Swimming Examinations for Schoolboys.
One of the most sensible of school regulations is that at Eton which specifies that only those boys who know how to swim shall engage in boating. At one time the school authorities did not interfere at all in overseeing the oarsmen, and accidents on the water were not at all unusual.

In 1840, however, when a boy was drowned, the law was made that no boy should be allowed to enter a boat who had not passed an examination in swimming. One or two teachers were appointed river masters, bathing places were specified, and watermen were engaged, both to teach swimming, and to be at hand with punts, in order to prevent accident.

Bathing is permitted as soon after the Easter holidays as the weather will allow, and twice a week the river masters are present at Cuckoo weir to conduct the swimming examination. "Boating," of the Badminton library, describes the ceremony:

"A number of the boys thought by the watermen to be sufficiently proficient, appear, undressed, in a punt. About thirty yards off a pole is stuck up in the water. The master stands on a high place called the acropolis, and as he calls one name after another each pupil takes a header and swims once or twice round the pole. It is not sufficient merely to take the header and accomplish the specified distance; he must swim in approved form, so as to be capable of swimming in his clothes."

Since these formalities have been established only one boy has been drowned at Eton, though many boats are swamped under all sorts of circumstances. Those who have not passed belong to the class called "non nant."—Youth's Companion.

A Good Kind of Face.
Memory of Events.—This is shown by a wide, full forehead in the center.
Reasoning Power.—A high, long and well defined nose and a broad face exhibits this great faculty.
Moral Courage.—This faculty manifests itself by wide nostrils, short neck and eyes set directly in front.
Language.—This faculty is exhibited in many parts of the face, particularly by a large mouth and large, full eyes, opened wide.
Self Esteem.—This faculty shows itself in a long or deep upper lip. Large self esteem gives one dignity, self control and perfect independence.
Firmness.—The presence of this faculty, when very large is indicated by a long, broad chin. Firmness is synonymous with willfulness, perseverance and stability.
Perception of Character.—This is indicated by a long, high nose at the lower end or tip. This faculty is very useful, if not indispensable, to a judge in the exercise of the functions of his office.
Power of Observation.—The situation of this faculty is in the face just above the top of the nose, filling out the forehead to a level with the parts on each side of the nose. It is a faculty which enables one to concentrate the mind upon the subject being discussed.
Conscientiousness—This is shown in the face by a square jaw, a bony chin, prominent cheek bones and a general squareness of the features of the entire face. To be conscientious means that one has a sense of justice, honesty of purpose, rectitude of character and moral courage.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

True to Her Promise.
As illustrative of the average negro character a gentleman said that an old negro woman made application for the loan of $5. He lent her the money and, true to her promise, she returned it. That was several years since, and nearly every time she has seen him since she would accost him with the salutation: "Mr. Blank, you loaned me $5, didn't you?" "Yes." "Well, I paid it back, didn't I?" "That you did." "Well, don't you think you oughter give me a quarter?" The gentleman said he generally thought so, and that he had responded to her calls cheerfully.—Albany (Ga.) News.

The ordinary is the necessary; the extraordinary we can do without. Yet, by a strange paradox, men value most what they least need.

Defenders of American Industry.
We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We meet it the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform, 1888.

Duty.
It is a duty we owe to ourselves, as well as to those who are dependent upon us, to preserve our health and strength. The presidential election will be fought out on the lines laid down months ago. President Cleveland has been accused of having shrunk from the free trade policy he then advocated. The accusation is unjust. * * * President Cleveland is substantially in favor of a financial policy which will impose duties mainly for revenue purposes, will take duties off raw materials, and so widen the market of the American purchaser. These are the aims and this is the policy of the free traders of all countries.—London Saturday Review, Sept. 15th, 1888.

Annihilating a Multiform Disease.

Miasmatic, or malarial, disease has many forms. Physicians have for the sake of convenience and for the purpose of indicating its most strongly marked forms, subdivided it into intermittent and billiousness remittent fever, dumb ague and ague cake. But it presents an infinite variety of symptoms in different individuals. Be these symptoms what they will, always remember that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will annihilate them at the outset, and prevent their recurrence. A review of the proofs would convince any one of the fact. This, however, is impossible because they are too numerous, and unnecessary because the effects of this grand anti-malaria specific are a matter of common knowledge. No less familiar to the public are its remedial and preventive effects in billious attacks, constipation, dyspepsia, incipient rheumatism, debility and kidney troubles. It is moreover, an excellent appetizer and tonic nervine.

Mr. Cleveland has taken his stand on free trade. * * and on that broad question Mr. Cleveland's candidature naturally and necessarily carries English sympathy.—London Globe.

Prepared by a combination, proportion and process peculiar to itself, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

It is useless to attempt the cure of any disorder, if the blood is allowed to remain impure. Neuralgia and rheumatism are traceable to a disordered condition of the blood, and in numberless cases have been cured by taking a few bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

It is to the New World that the Cobden Club is chiefly looking as the most likely sphere for its vigorous foreign policy. It has done what it can in Europe, and is now turning its eye westward and bracing itself for the struggle which is to come. It cannot rest while the United States are unsubdued.—London Times, July 16th, 1880.

An Important Element

Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. The familiar headline "100 Doses One Dollar," stolen by imitators, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This can easily be proven by any one who desires to test the matter. For real economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla, Sold by all druggists.

The president is careful to state that he frankly declares his indifference to the charge of favoring free trade. His policy, he says, may be called by that or another name, but it is the policy he recommends to Congress, and which, he does not affect to deny, must alter the terms on which foreigners have access to the American market.—London Saturday Review.

It may save you from consumption.

THE CAUSE OF LANGUOR.

Not to Be Confounded with True Fatigue. Cure and Prevention.

In ordinary states of health the strongest persons are apt to feel sensations or fits of languor which they call fatigue, and for which they can give no reasonable explanation either to themselves or to others. The weather largely influences this condition. A moist and warm atmosphere always increases the disposition to languor; a moderately cold and dry atmosphere always prevents it. The sense of relaxation and disposition to sleep must not be confounded with true fatigue, arising from hard or prolonged physical or mental work, but must be taken as simply due to a condition in which there is weariness without a sufficent reason for it.

When this condition is strongly present, it is marked by one particular sign, which is of itself characteristic: it comes on after repose. The affected person experiences it most on rising in the morning, and even after a good night's sleep is still oppressed by a sense of weariness, a feeling as if the day, with all its cares and anxieties, could not be passed through. The desire, almost irresistible, is to go to sleep again, a desire which, if gratified, increases the evil and makes the day heavier than it otherwise would be. That it is not real fatigue or exhaustion which causes the sense of languor now being described is clearly shown, not only by the fact that the feeling comes on after long repose, but that it is dispersed in the day, after it has been present in the morning, by the exercise and duties of the day. I have no doubt that it is caused by the accumulation in the body of some diffusible and light chemical substance, which acts after the manner of an intoxicant and is a true intoxicant to the nervous system. The probable physiology of the condition is plain, but what is to be the cure, and, above all, what is to be the prevention?

The cure is exercise and the wearing of clothing which will give free liberation to the exhalations of the skin. Every one who is affected with the sense of languor is soon conversant with the knowledge that if he resolves to throw off the load which oppresses him and takes a short, sharp walk or other good and wholesome exercise, he is always relieved, and many find this mode of cure so certain that they invariably follow it. Others, and I fear the majority, are so oppressed that they feel as if they could not bring themselves to the effort of throwing off the sense of weariness by resorting to anything like active motion. When the oppression is the strongest and exertion is most demanded, they try to balance betwixt the two modes of treatment, the sharp exertion and the seductive sleep. They give way to the sleep; the giving way becomes a habit; in a very short time the habit lapses into a confirmed method, and with the habit structural changes in vital organs of the body are soon set up, and add rapidly to the evil. The body becomes obese, the liver becomes inactive, the mind becomes dull, and a short life is, of necessity, determined.

The treatment of languor in the healthy consists, then, in taking exercise in due, but in moderate amount. To go in for desperate exercise, as some do, is to frustrate, not to assist, cure; for desperate exercise produces actual fatigue, which nothing except rest will cure, and then the weariness from actual work and the weariness from underwork get confused the one with the other, and all goes wrong. Rightly conducted, the cure is exercise, and the prevention is continued exercise carried out daily and regularly, whatever the temptation may be to give it up. Second to this is light and porous clothing, as I have many years taught. Whatever holds or takes up the fluid exhalations from the skin is not clothing fit to wear. Whatever cannot be easily breathed through is not clothing that is fit to wear.

No kind of clothing for the human body is so good as that which admits freely into and through its meshes the most perfect purifier and the most perfect non-conductor and healthy equalizer of temperature known — atmospheric air. Patients sometimes come to me literally borne down with the weight of their own clothing. They are coated with three or four layers of heavy and close materials. These materials are saturated with the moisture from the skin, are unduly heavy, are always damp, if taken off for a short time leave excessive cold, and if kept on too long induce oppressive heat; all round mischiefs of sure and certain development. A fairly healthy person who takes reasonable out door exercise daily, and who clothes himself lightly in porous material, will feel no weariness except that which comes naturally from healthy fatigue.—Dr. Richardson in The Asclepiad.

The Making of Cheap Books.

The cheap libraries have given amusement and instruction to thousands, but it is the opinion of the shrewdest men in the trade that they have injured book publishing. After all we are creatures of habit, and we have become accustomed to buying a novel for 20 or 25 cents. People are unwilling to pay 75 cents or a dollar now. At 20 or 25 cents, unless an enormous number of copies are sold, there is not much money for the author, nor, in fact, for any one. Out of the cheap reprint has grown the summer novel, cheaply but tastefully got up, and intended to pass away an idle hour. Some of the hundreds which are published are good, but the majority are beneath contempt. They make one simply weary while reading them, and yet the publication goes on. "Of the making of books there is no end."—Current Literature.

Waterproofing Process for Leather.

It will not be long before the shoemaker can add to his stock of raw materials a waterproof leather. The process, which has been recently perfected, is not only of service on the uncut leather, but can be used in rendering worthless leather valuable by plumping, stiffening and waterproofing it for insoles, counters, box toes, etc. Every part of a boot or shoe can be "waterproofed" either before or after it is finished.—Chicago News.

SOME HOTEL HAWKSHAWS.

The Men Who Have Become Indispensable to Our Bonifaces.

"Oh, he's a hotel detective, is he? Well, what on earth good is a hotel detective? What do hotels want with detectives, anyhow?"

This remark, made in a petulant tone, was uttered in the corridor of the Hoffman house the other afternoon by a western man who was on a visit to the metropolis and had been looking at the art treasures of the cafe. He eyed in a contemptuous way the well dressed little man, with a slouch hat, who was leaning against a pile of trunks near the elevator. A friend showing the western man the city sights had happened incidentally to point out Detective Jacobs as one of the features of a big metropolitan hotel.

Ten minutes later the westerner saw the little detective step up to a well dressed man in a group of three who had just sauntered into the art gallery.

"I'll have to ask you to move on, sir," the detective said.

"Who are you?" growled the man, angrily, "what do you mean by talking to me that way?"

"Just what I say, and I mean it," the little man replied, undaunted, "and here's who I am, and I know you perfectly well."

The little detective threw open his coat and showed his glistening detective shield. The well dressed man cut short his bluster instantly, and walked quickly out into the street.

He was a local bunko man, who had casually dropped into the hotel cafe with two out of town crooks. The conversation with the little detective was animated, but not so loud that anybody in the art gallery could understand it. The Gothamite who was showing the westerner around knew what was up, though, and turning to his friend said playfully:

"That's some good a hotel detective is. That was a confidence man that he talked to. Maybe he'd have caught on to you if it hadn't been for the detective."

It was an apt illustration of one of the duties of the hotel detective. In the marvelous perfection of the equipment of a metropolitan hotel in the last few years the private detective has come to be an indispensable detail, and today there is not a hotel in town that enjoys any select patronage at all that does not employ a guardian, who is empowered to make arrests if necessity arises. Some of the detectives are men specially assigned from the police force, and whose salary is guaranteed by the hotel in consideration of the policeman's exclusive service. Often, however, the special guardians are regular private detectives. They are men well trained in detective methods, and enjoy the advantage of a wide and varied acquaintance with the faces of metropolitan rascals and the confidence operators of the country.

Keeping the hotel clear of this class of crooks, however, is only a small part of the hotel detective's work. Upon them devolves in most cases the supervision of the porters and hall boys, and all the army of help that a big Gotham inn has to employ. If a guest loses anything in the hotel, or outside of it either, he is sent at once to the hotel detective to consult about its recovery; and if chambermaids or porters find articles that have been mislaid or lost, they are expected to bring them direct to the hotel detective, and he, in turn, hands them over to the hotel proprietor, or his representative, to be delivered to the owner.

It is also the detective's duty to protect his employers from the numerous and persistent army of pests known as the hotel beat, and it is due to the presence of detectives, in every well regulated city hotel, that New York has ceased to be a spot where this peculiar gentry can thrive. The petty thievery of guests' valuables has also come to be a rarity, and nowadays the man of means, stopping at any well regulated New York hotel, can feel as secure as if he were traveling with a private station house of his own in tow. More than all, however, the old time harvest of victims that Hungry Joe and his pals used to gather from hotel corridors is all cut off.

All this the detective has to do for the regular salary, but he has legitimate perquisites. These are the more or less liberal fees that good natured out-of-towners, who want to see what the life of a big city really is after dark, pay for straight tips on the places where the elephant "cuts up his most flamboyant and startling shindigs." It is worth a handsome sum to the hotel detective who pilots a party of strangers through the multitudinous and more or less picturesque maze of after dark spectacles known to the experienced man about town as "the sights." And there are few more experienced men about town than your quick witted hotel detective.—New York Sun.

The Wondrous Weather Plant.

That remarkable specimen of the vegetable world, the "weather plant," continues to excite considerable interest. Men of science, who on its first discovery were unwilling to express an opinion on its prognosticating virtues, now agree, after extensive experiments, that the shrub is in truth prophetic. Thirty-two thousand trials made during the last three years tend to prove its infallibility. The plant itself is a legume, commonly called the "Paternoster pea," but known in botany as the Abrus Pereginus. It is a native of Corsica and Tunis. Its leaf and twig strongly resemble those of the acacia. The more delicate leaves of its upper branches foretell the state of the weather forty-eight hours in advance, while its lower and hardier leaves indicate all atmospheric changes three days beforehand. The indications consist in a change in the position of the leaves and in the rise and fall of the twigs and branchlets.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Language of the World.

An English correspondent gives as a reason for possibility that the English language will become the "world speech" the mental slowness of the Anglo-Saxon race in learning two languages. They traverse the globe unaffected or undismayed by its eccentricities of speech. The English speaking countries have an area of more than one-fifth of the whole habitable globe. English is the language of the high seas, and is spoken in every maritime port. What demand can there be for Volapuk?—Boston Budget.

My Poor Back!

That "poor back" is held responsible for more than its share of the sufferings of mankind. If your dog bites a man who kicks it, do you blame the dog? On the same principle the kidneys utter their protest against nervousness, impure blood, and resulting constipation. These force them to do extra drudgery work in ridding the system of the poisons which are the result of effete matter retained in the blood. Then the sufferer says the back aches; the kidneys are diseased. "Not yet;" but they will be unless the nerves are strengthened, the blood purified, and the constipation removed. These are the causes of kidney troubles, and Paine's Celery Compound removes them quickly. With its tonic, purifying, and laxative effect, it also strengthens the weak kidneys, making it almost infallible in curing all diseases of the nerves and kidneys. If your hopes of cure have not been realised, try Paine's Celery Compound; it gives perfect health to all who complain of "their poor backs." Price $1.00.

Evidently Afraid of Admiral Whitney.

The proclamation of that dashing naval leader, Wm. C. Whitney, to the effect that we can lick the British navy easy enough with what war ships we now have, promises to send the Canadians down in their boots so far that they will not be able to see out over the tops. A despatch of last week from Toronto, Ont., says "it is thought that the Dominion government intends to back down on the fishery question. The Free Press of London, which voices the views of the minister of agriculture, takes the ground that Canada had better yield the point and permit American fishermen the privilege of making use of Canadian railway lines to forward their legitimate catch to the general markets. The article is clearly inspired from Ottawa."

He Merely Lied.

Armstrong Assembly, K. of L., of Indianapolis, Ind., has issued a circular letter bearing the seal of the assembly and headed "A Liar and His Falsehood," denouncing E. F. Gould, who started the silly dollar-a-day lie about Gen. Harrison, as a reckless liar, "an unscrupulous political worker," and a paid employe of the democratic party, who seeks to use the order for political ends. Nobody of common sense, in any party, ever believed his story, although he did swear to it.

The Blunder of a Manager.

Mr. Henry E. Abbey, a New York theatrical manager, has been induced by a narrow view of the relations of the press to the drama to retaliate against the Tribune because of his disapproval of a criticism upon Mr. Coquelin's acting, by withdrawing his advertisements from that paper. The criticisms of the Tribune have been noted for superior excellence and judicious discrimination. They have possessed such a charming literary merit that persons at a distance, who seldom enter a New York theatre, could be properly informed of the merits and defects of every important dramatic representation in the Empire city. To suppose that a journal of the character of the Tribune can suffer by the ill-considered act of Mr. Abbey is of course preposterous. The duty of a widely-read journal is to give the public facts and fair criticisms. The minor benefits of advertising or complimentary bits of pasteboard never should influence a newspaper in its comments on dramatic affairs, and every manager with broad views is sure to know this if he is qualified for his position.

Democratic Encouragement for Democrats.

The Boston Herald, Cleveland mugwump, cheers the New England democracy as follows:

It is practically conceded that New York is going to elect Harrison electors. The New York Herald, which is fiercely for Cleveland, acknowledges it; and now the New York Times, which is entirely given up to Cleveland, says that Illinois is more likely to go for Cleveland than New York. These are interesting suggestions.

While the two most earnest, influential, thick-and-thin Cleveland free-trade newspapers in New York city are giving up in advance the presidential contest in that state, the democratic papers of New Hampshire are carrying New York for Cleveland without any special effort. They carry New Hampshire the same way, too, and will continue to, up to the time the votes are counted.

The Yellow Fever.

The churches in Jacksonville were generally open for services on Sunday, the 21st, for the first time in many weeks, and the attendance was good. The weather was much cooler. The new cases on the 21st numbered twenty-seven, and the deaths four. Total cases to date, 3796; deaths 331.

Decatur, Ala., reported one new case and one death on the 21st; one other dying, and one dangerously ill. The state health officer on that date reported: "We had a good frost last night, enough, I think, to put an end to the epidemic. We will still have a few additional cases and deaths. I do not advise our refugees to return yet to old Decatur. I think it is safe for them to return to new Decatur. There is no longer any excuse for quarantine against us."

Naval Intelligence.

Lieutenant Kossuth Niles has been detached from duty as inspector of ordnance at the Midvale steel works, Penn., and ordered as inspector of ordnance at the Bethlehem iron works, Penn.

Passed Asst. Surgeon A. A. Austin is ordered to duty at the naval station, New London.

Passed Asst. Engr. George Cowie, Jr., is ordered to the new York navy yard.

Asst. Engr. A. S. Halstead is ordered to the League island navy yard.

Carpenter W. W. Richardson is ordered to duty in the coast survey.

Chaplain S. D. Beerum is detached from the Constellation, and placed on waiting orders.

Passed Asst. Engr. A. C. Engard is detached from the League island navy yard, and ordered to special duty in connection with the Newark, relieving Assistant Engineer Robert I. Reed, ordered to special duty in connection with the Philadelphia, relieving Assistant Engineer Joseph L. Good, ordered to duty at the New York navy yard.

Medical Inspectors Michael Bradley, Adrian Hudson and Newton L. Bates, have been confirmed by the senate as medical directors; Surgeons Theoron Wolverton, Charles H. White, George W. Woods, Frank L. Dubois and George H. Cooke, to be medical inspectors; Passed Asst. Surgeons James H. Gaines, Daniel L. Bartelotte, Ezra Z. Dorr and Frank B. Stephenson, to be surgeons; Lieut. Comdr. John K. Winn, to be commander; Passed Asst. Engrs. George E. Tower and Hugh H. Cline, to be chief engineers; Asst. Engrs. Theodore F. Bergdorff, William R. King, Frank H. Eldredge, Charles C. Kleckner, Edgar T. Warburton, William R. Dunning and Robert I. Reid, to be passed assistant engineers.

The U. S. S. Vandalia is in the dry dock at the Mare island navy yard, for repairs. She injured her keel some months ago by running on the rocks in the straits of Magellan, and it is estimated that it will take $7000 to get her ready for sea service again.

The Working Woman, of Washington, D. C., says that Commissioner Norman J. Colman, of the department of agriculture, uses paper bags made by convict labor for the purposes of his department, instead of the cotton bags made by reputable working women, as was the case under former administrations. This has thrown 300 decent women out of work; but the Working Woman should consider that convict-made goods are cheaper than those made by free labor, and that this is a reform administration.

The assessment of office-holders in Washington for election purposes was never so heavy, so persistent, so far-reaching, so openly practiced or so many times repeated as within three months under the Cleveland civil service reform administration. Even the army and navy officers in the departments at Washington have been called upon for a percentage of their salaries to help the star-eyed goddess of reform over the hard place—something never heard of before at all.

Four reputable negroes have been murdered in Tuscaloosa, Ala., within a week, by some unknown assassin who seems to be emulous of the fame of the Whitechapel butcher of London. All the victims were men, and all had their throats cut.

It is now considered certain that Paymaster McClure and his assistant, who were murdered at White Haven, Pa., and robbed, on the 19th inst., were the victims of two skilled riflemen, lurking in ambush, and that neither Italians nor Hungarian laborers had anything to do with the crime. A reward of $7000 is offered for the conviction of the assassins.

A train of ten cars containing excursionists returning from the fetes in Naples, Italy, was crushed by a landslide near Patenza last week. Ninety corpses and seventy badly injured persons were taken from the wreck, and at the time the report was sent two cars were still buried under a vast mass of shattered rock.

Charles F. Ebann, a clerk in the Boston post-office, was arrested Oct. 22d for robbing the mails, and was found to have in his pocket twelve letters, stolen before ten o'clock in the forenoon. He has supported a wife and two children, and put $3000 in the bank, within five years, on a salary of $900.

OLD LOVE SONGS.

Ah, love! dear love! what tender songs they sang—
Those poets to the women of their choice;
Yet none more tenderly than I to you
Had it pleased heaven to give me but the voice.

My heart stirs, but my lips are ever mute,
For all my common words have common ways;
And none are high enough that I should dare
Essay with them my lady's perfect praise.

Yet, when I hear these others sing I feel
Such passion as the poor gray weed well knows,
Condemned to grow in flowerless nullity
In gardens where there blooms full many a rose.

—C. A. Pratt.

The Worst of All Eyes.

Somebody ought to write a novel about people with these black or dark blue eyes which are transparent as so many Swiss pebbles. They are eyes of intensely passionate natures, strong for good or evil, but with tendencies the wrong way, the eyes of born devils in human shape. When such dull dark eyes show the red light that comes of caution insanity in its first stages is at work on the brain, and such a man or woman needs care life long, or some crisis of trouble may lead to an outbreak of madness. It is the eye of one likely in frenzy to commit manslaughter.

The most beautiful eyes in the world are the clear gray, with large pupils, and iris which changes and darkens with feeling as from the shadow of a cloud. The steadiness, brilliance and susceptibility of such eyes are index to the rarest intelligence, quick and accurate, and the high romantic sentiments which in such characters become passions. Truth, liberality, loyalty, are the vital breath of such spirits, but alas! those eyes are not of the long lived. Dust is over them almost before we can say we have known them for our own. The bluish white of the eye betokens consumption before its hectic brightness alarms with unearthly beauty, and the loss of color in the pupil, turning brown instead of black, is caused by heart disease.—Shirley Dare's Letter.

If you want to feel well and vigorous and able to put vim into every action, take an occasional dose of Laxador. Price only 25 cents a package.

For colic, dysentery, teething and other diseases of babyhood, always use Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup. A perfectly safe and reliable remedy.

Many women find
Pyle's
Pearline

Indispensable for washing dishes, windows, carpets, cleaning house, etc., etc., but because of its wonderful cleansing properties are afraid to have their clothes washed with it. Well, in the past ten years the consumption of Pearline has exceeded 150,000,000 packages, and no complaints, but numerous letters praising it. Why, because PEARLINE is absolutely harmless in its place, and one of the best places to put it is in the wash tub. You can soak your finest linens and laces in Pearline and water for a month with perfect safety. That's as much Pearline as they would get if they were washed in it once a week for twenty years. We could not afford to spend our time and money in telling the public, through the newspapers, a single thing about Pearline that would not stand the test; and the sooner you test it, the sooner you'll know that PEARLINE will do more than we claim for it. It is as pure and harmless as the finest imported castile soap. It's success has brought out many dangerous imitations. Beware of them. JAMES PYLE, New York.

It is Absurd

For people to expect a cure for Indigestion, unless they refrain from eating what is unwholesome; but if anything will sharpen the appetite and give tone to the digestive organs, it is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Thousands all over the land testify to the merits of this medicine.

Mrs. Sarah Burroughs, of 248 Eighth street, South Boston, writes: "My husband has taken Ayer's Sarsaparilla, for Dyspepsia and torpid liver, and has been greatly benefited."

A Confirmed Dyspeptic.

C. Canterbury, of 141 Franklin st., Boston, Mass., writes, that, suffering for years from Indigestion, he was at last induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla and, by its use, was entirely cured.

Mrs. Joseph Aubin, of High street, Holyoke, Mass., suffered for over a year from Dyspepsia, so that she could not eat substantial food, became very weak, and was unable to care for her family. Neither the medicines prescribed by physicians, nor any of the remedies advertised for the cure of Dyspepsia, helped her, until she commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. "Three bottles of this medicine," she writes, "cured me."

The importance of purifying the blood cannot be overestimated, for without pure blood you cannot enjoy good health.

At this season nearly every one needs a good medicine to purify, vitalize, and enrich the blood, and we ask you to try Hood's Peculiar Sarsaparilla. It strengthens and builds up the system, creates an appetite, and tones the digestion, while it eradicates disease. The peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation of the vegetable remedies used give to Hood's Sarsaparilla peculiar curative powers. No To Itself other medicine has such a record of wonderful cures. If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other instead. It is a Peculiar Medicine, and is worthy your confidence.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold by all druggists. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

SULPHUR BITTERS

The Best and Purest Medicine EVER MADE.

It will drive the Humor from your system, and make your skin clean and smooth. Those Pimples and Blotches which mar your beauty are caused by impure blood, and can be removed in a short time, if you are wise and use the great blood purifier, SULPHUR BITTERS. Why suffer with Boils? Why have Salt Rheum? Why have Fever Sores? What makes you tremble so?—Your nerves are all unstrung, and need a tonic to assist nature to repair the damage which your excesses have caused. Sulphur Bitters is not a cheap Rum or poor Whiskey drink, to be taken by the glass, like other preparations which stimulate only TO DESTROY. If you have failed to receive any benefit from other medicines or doctors, do not despair. Use SULPHUR BITTERS. They will cure you where all others fail. No person can remain long sick who uses SULPHUR Bitters. The Dose is small—only a teaspoonful. It is the best and cheapest medicine. Try it, and you will be satisfied. Get it of your Druggist. DON'T WAIT. GET IT AT ONCE. If you are suffering from Kidney Disease, and wish to live to old age, use SULPHUR BITTERS. They never fail to cure.

Thoroughly cleanse the blood, which is the fountain of health, by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and good digestion, a fair skin, buoyant spirits, vital strength, and soundness of constitution will be established.

Golden Medical Discovery cures all humors, from the common pimple, blotch, or eruption, to the worst Scrofula, or blood-poison. Especially has it proven its efficacy in curing Salt-rheum or Tetter, Fever-sores, Hip-joint Disease, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, Enlarged Glands, and Eating Ulcers.

Golden Medical Discovery cures Consumption (which is Scrofula of the Lungs), by its wonderful blood-purifying, invigorating, and nutritive properties. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, Asthma, and kindred affections, it is a sovereign remedy. It promptly cures the severest Coughs.

For Torpid Liver, Biliousness, or "Liver Complaint," Dyspepsia, and Indigestion, it is an unequalled remedy. Sold by druggists.

INDEPENDENT DEMOCRATIC CLUB.

A meeting of the members of the Independent Democratic club is called at their room in the old custom house building on Wednesday evening, the 24th inst., strictly on private business.

N. K. RAYNES, Secretary.

NO DEMOCRATIC DISSENSION.

We clipped the following from the Times of Saturday evening:

All the vim and dash and muscle, all the sentiment and courage and honesty are on the side of the democrats this year. All the trickery, dissension and bluster are on the republican side.

We were not sure at the first reading of the above, whether it is in New York city or Portsmouth that there is no dissension among the democrats; but the following, which we found in another article in the same issue of the Times, convinced us that it is in this city that the democracy are so courageous, honest and united:

There are not a dozen men in this city who voted for Cleveland four years ago who will not vote for him this year, and of this dozen at least ten will be hovering around the polls election morning with their votes for sale to the highest bidder. The republican who looks to Portsmouth for encouragement this year will look in vain. The democracy of the city was never more united, never more in earnest, never in better condition than it is to-day.

That settles the matter, definitely. We had heard rumors of democratic disaffection in this city; that quite a number of men who cast their ballots for Cleveland four years ago had openly declared that they would not vote for him this year, not a few of them going so far as to proclaim their intention of supporting the republican electoral ticket; and that others just as openly said that after being three years and a half out of a job, while republicans were all the time employed on the navy yard, they did not intend to be bought with a few days' work just before election. We have no doubt that it will be not only pleasing but surprising to the local democracy to learn that there is no disaffection here, outside of less than a dozen former democrats who will mostly be found putting their votes up at auction on election day! But really, so far as we ever heard, none of the announced anti-Cleveland democrats ever offered to sell their votes, or had to be bought to vote the democratic ticket; and we hardly think the assertion that that is the kind of men they are will tend to draw them back to the democratic fold, or make them any the less earnest for Harrison and protection to American industries.

ELIOT ITEMS.

ELIOT, ME., Oct. 22d.

A very interesting entertainment, in aid of the parsonage, was given at the Congregational church on Friday evening, Oct. 19th, by the Ladies' Clifford Quartette of Whitman, Mass., composed of Miss Anna W. Ellis, 1st soprano, Mrs. Lena M. Stanley, 2d soprano, Miss Jennie E. Weston, 1st alto, and Miss M. Agnes Conroy, 2d alto.

The music was especially good, and was enjoyed by all who were fortunate enough to be present; owing to the inclement weather many were unable to get out, but those who did were fully repaid for the effort. The ladies were in fine voice, and presented a pleasing programme of both vocal and instrumental music. In addition, one of their number, Miss Conroy, afforded much pleasure by her admirable recitations of Desprez' "Lasca" and other selections. Her solo, "Madeline," by White, was given with great feeling and expression, and won her a richly deserved encore.

Miss Ellis, who is an old favorite and whose beautiful voice we are always pleased to hear, also received an encore for her fine rendering of the Flower Song, and in response sang very sweetly "The Maid of Dundee."

Glover's duet, "Come with me," by Mrs. Stanley and Miss Weston, was also well received.

Dr. Guptill presided during the evening; and at the close Rev. Mr. Lade, in a few well-chosen words, expressed the pleasure which all had received through the kindness of these ladies, and proposed a rising vote of thanks, which was unanimously and heartily given.

The audience then adjourned to the vestry below, where an informal reception was held to give the friends an opportunity of meeting the young ladies, through the reception committee, Mrs. Lade, Mrs. Plaisted and Miss Colvin. Ice cream and cake were served, and a very pleasant hour was spent in social intercourse, enlivened with college songs, after which the quartette was taken to the residence of Capt. and Mrs. Jenks, whose guests they are.

We hope it will not be long before we shall again have the pleasure of meeting these young ladies, and, added to this, let us hope that the weather may be more propitious, thereby enabling many to participate in the pleasures enjoyed on Friday evening by the few. "OURS."

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY POINT, ME., Oct. 22d.

Mr. Jesse E. Frisbee has had his house repainted, yellow with white trimmings, and red blinds; his fence repaired and painted, and other improvements made around his house and store.

Miss Haley, the evangelist, came here last Saturday to hold meetings at the Christian church. She delivered an excellent sermon Sunday afternoon from Proverbs 23-23, "Buy the truth and sell it not." The services of the evening were very interesting, and though the house was nearly full the best of order prevailed. Meetings at the chapel every evening this week at seven o'clock, to which all are invited.

The schooner Mary Willey, Capt. Williams, arrived in the harbor Saturday night, and went up to Broughton's wharf Sunday morning.

Mrs. Cora Duncan, of Kennebunkport, Me., is visiting Miss Sarah Phillips.

The post-office is being repainted by Mr. John Lawrence.

Mr. Joseph Keen of Kittery is putting up a building for S. Frisbee & Co., on their wharf, for the use of the Kittery Fish Co. UNCLE MOSES.

MARITIME NOTES.

Baltimore advices of Oct. 20th reported coal freights higher than for a long while past, owing to the withdrawal from the coal trade of a large number of large schooners to take lumber at good rates to gulf and South American ports. Rates were quoted to Portland or Boston at $1 50 per ton; to this port, $1.55 and $1.60.

There was published last week in many papers, accounts of serious accidents to the United States ships Boston and Pensacola. These accounts are not credited at the navy department, as the latest advices received at the department from the Boston merely announced her arrival at Kingston, Jamacia, all right; and the department officials think they would be likely to get important news from her as early as any paper. And as the Pensacola, which is commanded by Capt. A. B. Yates of this city, has been on the dry dock at Norfolk, Va., for the past three months receiving extensive repairs to fit her out as flagship of the North Atlantic squadron, it is hardly probable that she is in a disabled condition in the river Plate, South America, with boilers blown out." When we saw Capt. Yates last Sunday he certainly appeared more unconcerned than so careful and experienced a naval officer would be likely to seem, with his ship thousand of miles away and hopelessly disabled. Mistake somewhere, probably, or big lie.

The Gloucester schooner Puritan arrived at Canso, N. S., on the night of Oct. 20th, in charge of Mate McDonald, with the body of Capt. Lawrence O'Brien on board, he having died on the 14th instant under peculiar circumstances. On Sept. 20th James Linahan, a native Newfoundlander and a countryman of Captain O'Brien's, was drowned by the capsizing of his dory. After the excitement occasioned by that fatality, Captain O'Brien had been depressed. On the 14th inst. he was for a long time alone in charge of the schooner. When the first dories returned to the vessel he was found in great agony; while on the lookout for their return he had lost sight of two dories, and concluded that their occupants had been drowned or gone astray. One hour later he died.

Lobsters are reported to be more plentiful along the Maine coast than they have been for twenty years. The Vinalhaven Echo says that Johnson & Young, of Boston, who have the big lobster pound there, have closed buying lobsters this fall. One hundred and fifty thousand, which were purchased at 3 1-2 cents apiece, had been put into the pound in twenty-two days. The Echo also says that there seems to be a slow sale at extraordinary low figures, and that unless some change takes place soon, lobster fishermen will be obliged to take up their traps and give up the business.

The ward one republican committee are requested to meet at the headquarters on Congress street this evening at 7:30 o'clock. Business of importance,

Young republicans who will be legally entitled to vote on November 6th for the first time, are requested to hand their names to the ward committees of the wards in which they live, in order that their names may be presented to the inspectors of election to be added to the checklists. Prompt action is requested, that no votes may be lost through the omission from the list of names legally entitled to be there.

The pulpit of the Court street Christian church was supplied last Sunday morning by the pastor of the Pearl street society, in the absence of Rev. J. A. Hainer. The altar was very tastefully and prettily decorated with autum foliage and leaves, the work of Misses Boynton and Fletcher, young ladies of the society. A former pastor of the church, Rev. C. P. Smith of Providence, R. I., and his wife, were among the worshippers. L.

The remains of the late Capt. James M. Hill of Malden, Mass., were brought to this city on Monday, and interred in the family lot at Harmony Grove cemetery. Capt. Hill leaves a wife, son and daughter, the latter being the wife of Prof. Wm. G. Nowell of New York. A second daughter was lost with the ship Farragut on the voyage from Calcutta to New York early this year, with her husband, Capt. Hardwick, who commanded the vessel. Capt. Hill formerly commanded some of the finest ships that hailed from this port, but had been many years retired from the sea.

The daily call at Staples' Dry Goods store: "Got any more of those remnants of drilling at 6 1-2 cents?"

We have.

Pears' is the purest and best Soap made.

The gross receipts from the Boston Symphony Club Orchesta concert, in aid of the yellow fever sufferers, in Music hall last week, were $206.60. Total expenses, $125,80, leaving a balance of $80.80, which was sent to Florida on the 22d inst.

The Winchester Cadets have secured Franklin hall for their headquarters until after Harrison and Morton are elected.

There is to be a republican rally in Newington town hall on Thursday evening, Oct. 25th. Address by Herman W. Greene of Hopkinton. The republicans of this city are invited to attend.

The Rochester correspondent of the Portsmouth Times asks: "Will some one throw a brick at the Portsmouth correspondent of Foster's." He evidently thinks Portsmouth is south of Mason & Dixon's line.

Ye Sing, the Market street laundryman who wears store clothes and goes 'round with the boys, started for San Francisco on Monday forenoon, intending to pass the winter in California for his health. His cousin, Ching Yung, will conduct the laundry during his absence.

John Morgan, a workman at the Concord railroad wharf, fell from a staging to the wharf on Monday, and broke his left arm.

We judge from the following, which we take from the Democrat of the 20th inst, that the Dover letter carriers are engaged in a little missionary work in aid of Cleveland and reform: "The letter carriers are a pretty good lot of fellows, and are not to blame in many cases where blame attaches to them But they have manifested no such excess of goodness as will warrant their using time in helping make a political canvass There is no reservoir of unused faithfulness, boys, so let the Washington printer do his own work."

Charles C. Haines, formerly of Newmarket, has resigned the principalship of the Adams school at Quincy, Mass., to accept a position as sub-master in Boston at a salary of $1500, with a yearly increase to the maximum of $2250

The large new shoe manufactory near the Boston & Maine railroad northern division station in South Berwick has commenced the manufacture of shoes. It is a large addition to the business of that thriving and enerprising village.

Rev. W. E. Morse, pastor of the 2d Congregational church at Wells, left last week for a long tour through Palestine, Egypt, Turkey, Greece, and the European countries west and south of Germany, the entire expenses of his trip being bore by personal friends and admirers. The week before he started a reception was tendered him, and he was presented by his parishioners with $75 for pocket money on his tour. From this it would appear that Mr. Morse is a popular man in Wells.

The Eastern Star of Kennebunk is "reliably informed that the Davis slipper works will be opened in that town in about a month, and that the company desires to secure as much of the help as possible in town. It is now said about 150 hands will be employed."

A request from 238 petitioners of Buxton and vicinity, asking for the appointment of a special constable to enforce the provisions of the liquor law in that locality, was presented to the governor and council of Maine last week, and granted. On the petitioners presenting the name of a suitable person for the position, he will be appointed.

A correspondent of the Lynn (Mass.) Luster, writing from Kennebunk, Me., says: "Mr. Joseph Davis is reported as stating the relative cost of labor per pair of shoes as follows: At Richmond, Va., (penitentiary,) eight cents; at Kennebunk, Me., sixteen cents; at Lynn, twenty four cents." As Mr. Davis has run large factories at all the places named, and is now using the convict labor at Richmond, he no doubt knows what he is talking about.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

EPPS'S COCOA.

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in half-pound tins, by Grocers, labelled thus: JAMES EPPS & CO., Homœopathic Chemists, London, England.

TRADE S.S.S. FOR THE BLOOD MARK

PEEN'S MILL, TEXAS, June 20, 1888.—The Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: One of my children was troubled with rheumatism and boils for about two years. We gave her various kinds of medicine, but without any result, and began to despair of curing her at all. I was persuaded to try your Swift's Specific. After she had used several bottles the diseases all disappeared, and she is now a hale, hearty and healthy girl twelve years old. Another child has just become afflicted in the same way, and I am using the S. S. S. and anticipate a speedy and permanent cure. N. C. WADDOWE.

RICH HILL, MO., July 7, 1888.—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: Our little girl when but three weeks old broke out with eczema. We tried the prescription from several good doctors, but without any special benefit. We tried S. S. S. and by the time one bottle was gone her head began to heal, and by the time she had taken six bottles she was completely cured. Now she has a full and heavy head of hair—a robust, hearty child. I feel it but my duty to make this statement. Respectfully, H. T. BURTON.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., June 27, 1888.—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: In last January I became very much reduced, once sought a physician, who treated me for several months, by advice I went to Crab Orchard Springs, Ky., where my course of treatment was carefully observed. I recovered, as I thought, but the next spring pimples began to appear on my face and body. These gradually increased in sores and running ulcers. I was advised to try S. S. S., and immediately after taking it I commenced to improve slowly at first, but more rapidly afterwards, and soon nothing remained to tell of my trouble. My blood is now thoroughly cleansed, and my system free from taint, and I owe my present condition—a perfect cure—to your medicine. I cheerfully give this statement that others who have suffered as I have may have the same benefit. HARDY M. BURT, 24 West Ninth St.

HOMER, LA., May 25, 1888.—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: About two years ago my general health gave way entirely. I was so debilitated that I almost despaired of ever feeling well again. All that the physicians done for me brought no permanent relief. Friends insisted that I should give S. S. S. a fair trial, although I thought it would be throwing money away. After taking a thorough course, my health and strength returned, and I feel sure that S. S. S. alone cured me, as I discarded all others while using it. As a tonic I can most heartily recommend it for general debility, it certainly is a specific. W. E. BARNES, J. P.

HOUSTON, LA.—I know Mr. W. E. Bridges, and will endorse the above statement as correct. JOSEPH BURLTON, Druggist.

A DISTRESSING COUGH.

How many, especially during the Fall and Winter months, are troubled with a Cough, sometimes dry and hacking, sometimes loose causing the sufferer to raise a large amount of offensive matter; this can soon be cured by using Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs.

Cured her Cough.

MRS. JEREMIAH CLARK, Lowell, Mass., says: "Twelve years ago I first took a bottle of your Throat and Lung Specific. I had been troubled with a very bad Cough for months. A 50-cent bottle cured my Cough. Since then I have not been without it. I can heartily recommend it to any one who has a bad cough."

Saved his Life.

CHAS. A. WAITT, says: "No language can express the value I attach to your Specific. I believe it saved my life."

We would cite other testimonials did we think it necessary, but a trial bottle will convince you that it is all we represent. Give it a trial.

THE NAMES OF JEWS.

Why Some Have Chosen Gentile Surnames. English Forms—Changes.

Lord Coleridge touched upon an interesting theme the other day when he inquired of certain Jewish witnesses how it was that they had adopted the names of Mordaunt and Saville in lieu of their native patronymics of Moses and Samuel. It is not quite correct to say that Jews ever change their given name. In the synagogues they bear throughout their lives the Hebrew names—in the traditional Oriental form of So-and-so, son of So-and-so—given to them shortly after their birth. The instability of the names by which they are known to the world is due to the fact that originally, like all Oriental peoples, they had no family names, and that wherever they have congregated very closely together the secular use of the traditional genealogical names has been tenaciously preserved. In some countries, such as Germany and Austria, special legislation has been found necessary to compel them to adopt fixed surnames. As, at different times, they have come into closer contact with the Gentile world, they have themselves seen the necessity of surnames, and it is not surprising if, under these circumstances, some of them should have chosen the most sonorous and distinguished they could find.

An examination of the lists of seat holders in the twelve principal synagogues of London shows that less than 5 per cent. of the names—such as Beddington, Clifford, Coburn, Curtis, Graham, Halford, Hamilton, Hardinge, Hardy, Herbert, Howard, Lumley, Manville, Marsden, Merton, Montagu, Morley, Morton, Neville, Norman, Russell, Sydney, Walford, etc.—are accounted for on the hypothesis.

The foreign surnames and place names prevalent by the Jews of England form a small epitome of the history of the Israelitish dispersion. Side by side with the Hebrew Abrahams, the Egyptian Moses, and the English Mordaunt, we have the Greek Alexander and Margolies, the Latin Marcus, and the Arabic Mocatta. Those derived from mediæval house signs are Rothschild, Adler, Ganz, Schiff, Strauss, Silberkron, etc. Some of the occupation names are interesting. Rophe is Hebrew for physician, and Rappoport is a corruption of Rophe d'Oporto; Jalfon is Hebrew for money changer, and Mocatta is Arabic for mason.

More strictly Anglo-Jewish are the natural assimilations of Hebrew and Jewish names to English forms. Thus, Coleman is a corruption of Kalman, which is an abbreviation of Kalonymos, the Greek translation of the Hebrew Shem Tob (Good Name). Bonny is derived, through Bondi, from a Latin translation of Yom Tob (Good Day). Phillips comes from the Hebrew Uri or Meier, both meaning "light," through the Greek equivalent Phœbos and its German-Polish diminutive Pheibul. Saville is a more natural corruption of Samuel than is generally imagined, seeing that in Germany the Scriptural name has been shortened into Sanvel, and in England we have the authority of Mr. Weller, senior, to spell it with a "we." Freeman is from the German Friedmann, a translation and apocopation of Shalom ben Menachem. Haymen is derived through Hyman and Hyan from the Hebrew Haim (life). Jessel is from Echeskel, the Hebrew pronunciation of Ezekiel. Yates is from Goetz, an abbreviation of Gottschalk, which in Low German means "God's servant," and is a literal translation of Elijakim. Among simpler changes are Cowan—Cohen, Lewin—Levi, Victor—Avigdor, Archer—Asher, Jessop—Joseph, and Soman and Slowman—Solomon. Curious instances of misdirected translations are afforded by the names Barchant and Chappman, both of which are Anglicizations of the German Kaufmann or Handelsmann. Originally, however, neither of these names meant "merchant" among the Teutonic Jews. Kaufmann is a corruption of Koppelman, of which the first two syllables are a German diminutive of Jacob and the third an abbreviation of Menachem, the whole being a contraction of Jacob ben Menachem. Handelsmann has a similar history, being derived from Elchanon ben Menachem, through Handl, a recognized German diminutive of Elchanon. In the same way Seligman is a contraction of Selig ben Menachem, and Felberman a corrupted contraction of Phœbus (Uri) ben Menachem.

One of the most curious instances of an erroneous etymology is the name Jaffe, which figures among the landed gentry of county Down. It is the Hebrew word for "beautiful," and is a direct translation of the German "Schon." As a Jewish surname, however, Schon or Schen has no meaning. It is simply an acrostic of the Hebrew Schliach Neemon (faithful messenger). These acrostic names are peculiarly Jewish, and many of them are found among English Jews. For example, Katz, which one of these days will perhaps be Anglicized into Cat, is derived from the initials of Kohen Tzedek (priest of righteousness); Schatz, which in Hungary has actually been translated into Kincz, the Magyar for "treasure," is from Schliach Tzibur (messenger of the congregation); Babad is from Ben Ab Beth Din (Son of the President of the House of Judgment); Sack is from Sera Kadosh (holy posterity), and when the name of a town beginning with s is added—as, for example, Sera Kadosh Speyer (holy posterity of Speyer)—it becomes Saks or Sachs, which has been frequently mistaken for an abbreviation of Sachsen (Saxony); Bram is from Ben Rabbi Moses; Bran (corrupted into Braun, and translated into Brown) from Ben Rabbi Nachman; Bard, from Ben Rabbi David; Bersal, from Ben Rabbi Solomon the Levite, and Bril from Ben Rabbi Judah the Levite.

The exegetical names are also peculiarly Jewish. They consist of equivalents for Hebrew names, derived from collocations in biblical tests. Thus the comparisons in Jacob's blessing furnish equivalents for Benjamin in Wolf, for Judah in Lion and for Naphtali in Hart. Fisher is an equivalent for Ephraim, because it was foretold (Gen. xlviii, 19) that he should multiply exceedingly, and the fish is a symbol of fruitfulness. It is also sometimes a substitute for Moses, because Pharaoh's daughter, in giving him his name, said (Exodus ii, 10): "For I drew him out of the water."—St. James' Gazette.

Defenders of American Industry.

We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the test and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform, 1888.

"American wages for American workmen." Republican motto.

It is too bad to spend half of a short life distressed with neuralgia, when 25 cents spent for one bottle of Salvation Oil will cure it quickly.

He talked as if he had a "frog in his throat," but he was only hoarse; a single bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup relieved the trouble at once. 25 cents.

An extensive domestic market for the surplus produce of the soil is of the first consequence. It is, of all things, that which most effectually conduces to a flourishing state of agriculture.—Alexander Hamilton.

Duty.

It is a duty we owe to ourselves, as well as to those who are dependent upon us, to preserve our health and strength. Aunt Rachael's Bitters are found to be an unfailing and valuable assistant in maintaining the vigor of the system, and in keeping it in tone. Excellent for those subject to malarial fevers. For sale by druggists and the Aunt Rachael Pad Co., Passaic, N. J.

Upon the success of our manufactures, as the handmaid of agriculture and commerce, depends in a great measure the independence of our country, and none can feel more sensibly than I do the necessity of encouraging them.—Andrew Jackson.

The experience of years furnishes the most convincing evidence that thousands of lives are annually saved by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It speedily cures all affections of the throat, bronchial tubes, and lungs.

When our manufactures are grown to a certain proportion, as they will under the fostering care of the government, * * the farmer will find a ready market for his surplus produce, and, what is of almost equal consequence, a certain and cheap supply for all his wants.—John C. Calhoun.

Took First Prize.

The State board of pharmacy recently analyzed twelve of the most popular medicines in order to see whether they were what they were recommended to be. After two weeks of careful work work, they awarded the first prize, a gold medal, to Messrs A. P. Ordway, & Co., proprietors of Sulpher Bitters, it being in their opinion the best and only strictly pure blood purifying medicine in the ket.—Weekly Chemist.

The issue of Protection is incalculably stronger and greater than any man, as it concerns the prosperity of the present and of the generations yet to come.—James G. Blaine.

"For twenty years I have suffered with a severe bronchial cough, never lying down without a severe attack of the same. After much pursuasion, I was induced to try Adamson's Balsam, and its good effects for six months are certainly marvellous. Please use this truthful testimony for the advantage of all sufferers like myself.
Mrs. Wm. Alden, Duxbury, Mass., Feb. 21, 1887.

President Cleveland declines cautiously to dub himself a free trader, but he enters up a free trade position without disguise.—London Saturday Review.

The use of a single bottle of Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer will show its efficacy in restoring the natural color of the hair and cleansing the scalp.

Our manufactures require the systematic and fostering care of the government. * * Equally important it is to provide at home a market for our raw materials.—James Monroe.

Don't Give Up!

Because you feel blue and are troubled with that tired and all-gone feeling. Do as I did, use a bottle of Sulpher bitters, it will make you feel like a new person; it did me. Jennie Holmes, 354 Tremont street, Boston.

The presidential election will be fought out on the lines laid down months ago. President Cleveland has been accused of having shrunk from the free trade policy he then advocated. The accusation is unjust. * * * President Cleveland is substantially in favor of a financial policy which will impose duties mainly for revenue purposes, will take duties off raw materials, and so widen the market of the American purchaser. These are the aims and this is the policy of the free traders of all countries.—London Saturday Review, Sept. 15th, 1888.

Annihilating a Multiform Disease.

Miasmatic, or malarial, disease has many forms. Physicians have for the sake of convenience and for the purpose of indicating its most strongly marked forms, subdivided it into intermittent and biliousness remittent fever, dumb ague and ague cake. But it presents an infinite variety of symptoms in different individuals. Be these symptoms what they will, always remember that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will annihilate them at the outset, and prevent their recurrence. A review of the proofs would convince any one of the fact. This, however, is impossible because they are too numerous, and unnecessary because the effects of this grand anti-malaria specific are a matter of common knowledge. No less familiar to the public are its remedial and preventive effects in billious attacks, constipation, dyspepsia, incipient rheumatism, debility and kidney troubles. It is moreover, an excellent appetizer and tonic nervine.

Mr. Cleveland has taken his stand on free trade, * * and on that broad question Mr. Cleveland's candidature naturally and necessarily carries English sympathy.—London Globe.

Be Your Own Doctor.

It won't cost you half as much. Do not delay. Send three 2-cent stamps for postage, and we will send you Dr. Kaufmann's great work, fine colored plates from life, on disease, its causes, and home cure. Address. A. P. Ordway, & Co., Boston, Mass.

We must now place our manufactures by the side of the agriculturist. * * Experience has taught me that manufactures are now as necessary to our independence as to our comfort.—Thomas Jefferson.

Prepared by a combination, proportion and process peculiar to itself, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

It is useless to attempt the cure of any disorder, if the blood is allowed to remain impure. Neuralgia and rheumatism are tracable to a disordered condition of the blood, and in numberless cases have been cured by taking a few bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

It is to the New World that the Cobden Club is chiefly looking as the most likely sphere for its vigorous foreign policy. It has done what it can in Europe, and is now turning its eye westward and bracing itself for the struggle which is to come. It cannot rest while the United States are unsubdued.—London Times, July 18th, 1880.

An Important Element

Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. The familiar headline "100 Doses One Dollar," stolen by imitators, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This can easily be proven by any one who desires to test the matter. For real economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla, Sold by all druggists.

The president is careful to state that he frankly declares his indifference to the charge of favoring free trade. His policy, he says, may be called by that or another name, but it is the policy he recommends to Congress, and which, he does not affect to deny, must alter the terms on which foreigners have access to the American market.—London Saturday Review.

How Two Men of Gilliam, Mo., Drew $5,000.

Two gentlemen living in Gilliam, Marshall Co., Mo., have reaped the reward of investments in The Louisiana State Lottery. The prize drawn here in The Louisiana State Lottery was $5,000, and was drawn by a ticket held jointly between E. J. Dunlap, the druggist, and Mr. James Wooldridge, who is in the store of W. H. Land & Son. They received the cash through the Citizens' Stock Bank last Saturday.—Marshall (Mo.) Progress, Sept. 1st.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. oon,wed,fri,o9ad

To-Night and To-Morrow Night,

And each day and night during this week you can get at all druggists Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs, acknowledged to be the most successful remedy ever sold for the cure of Coughs, Croup, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Asthma and Consumption. Get a bottle to-day and keep it always in the house, so you can check your cold at once. Price 50c and $1.00. Sample bottles free.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam, for Coughs and Colds, does it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles at 50c and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption.

LES MISERABLES.

For what are we thankful? O sages, declare,
From your high, carven pulpits, to suffering man;
We list to your sermon, your anthem, your prayer,
Your soft benediction. No answer is there
To the question we ask you: the chill autumn air
Blows the words to our faces again.

You've talked of the merchant ships sailing the seas,
And told of the treasures the harvest would yield;
Of the fruit hanging low on the o'erburdened trees:
Of the odorous breath of the vine on the breeze;
But whence comes the mandate, the law that decrees
That we starve in the brown stubblefield?

We battled at noonday with dust and with heat;
We sang and we jested to lighten our toil;
We hoped the drear winter with plenty to greet—
Ah, the mirage to near fainting hearts was so sweet—
But empty our hands, bare and bleeding our feet;
The labor was ours, not the spoil.

The harvests are garnered, the myriad sheaves
That piled the wide fields like gold from the mine
Fill up the great barns from the floor to the eaves;
The grapes that grew ripe amidst whispering leaves
Stain red, laughing lips while a starving one grieves
Outside for the dregs of the wine.

For what are we thankful? For prisons and pain;
For our babes murd'ring sleep with their famishing cries;
For the snow and the sleet, the wind and the rain
Seating out the dull life from the heart and the brain:
For the grave we at last in potter's field gain;
For the stone with its deeply cut lies.

—Margaret Holmes in New York World.

The Face of a Scoundrel.

Undoubtedly Cagliostro was the most able and successful scoundrel who ever lived. Thomas Carlyle, after carefully inspecting his portrait, describes his face as follows: "Fittest of visages were they to be worn by the quack of quacks! A most portentous face of scoundrelism; a flat, snub, abominable face; flat nosed, greasy, full of greediness, sensuality, ax like obstinacy; a forehead impudent, refusing to be ashamed; and then two eyes turned up seraphically languishing, as if in divine contemplation and adoration; a touch of quiz, too; on the whole, perhaps the most perfect quack face produced in the eighteenth century."—Detroit Free Press.

Both Sides of the Question.

Ethel (entering suddenly)—Jack, dear, I wish you to lend me your baseball mask for—well, for six months at least.

Brother Jack—Gracious! sister mine, what on earth are you going to do?

Ethel—Well—if I must tell—it is this way: You know Harry and I are engaged now. He comes every evening and stays—quite a while. He is so extremely demonstrative, and he has such an—aggressive mustache. I believe in free trade up to a certain point, then I am for protection.—Pittsburg Bulletin.

His Place in Society.

According to a New York correspondent, the western man is looming up on the horizon of the New York woman in a most astonishing way. "He is just beginning," he writes, "to take his place here in social life, and he takes an awfully big place. He takes away the breath of the eastern girl by his self confident methods, and by the time she recovers it she very often finds that it is in reality her heart that is gone."—Chicago Herald.

Bremen's Statue of Liberty.

The quaintest thing in Bremen is its statue of liberty, the "Boland" as it is called. It is a colossal figure, eighteen feet high, and was erected in the center of the town in 1412. In one huge hand the giant holds a shield marked with an eagle (that symbol of liberty in all ages), in the other a naked sword. It was the gauntlet thrown down to all the world that Bremen would be free.—Chicago Herald.

Silk from Wild Worms.

A curious method of silk manufacture is said to exist in the Chinese province of Kwangtung, where are found wild silk worms feeding on the camphor tree. The full grown caterpillar is cut open and the silk is taken out in a form resembling catgut, subjected to a hardening process, and made into fish lines.—Arkansaw Traveler.

Sharks and Convicts.

There (at Cayenne) when a convict dies the body is borne to the sea and a great bell is tolled. And then is the viscous, glaucous sea surface furrowed suddenly by fins innumerable, swart, sharp, triangular—the legions of the sharks rushing to the hideous funeral. They know the bell!—Harper's.

Knowledge of Human Nature.

"And so your nice clergyman is going to be married, Mrs. Marigold! I hope you'll like his wife as well as you like him."

"Well, ma'am, I'm sure I hope so—but we generally find that when the gentleman is haffable, the lady's 'aughty!"—London Punch.

Chiefs as Top Spinners.

An independent state in the Malay Peninsula is Pahang. It has just been examined from the outskirts by some Englishmen, who report it capable of supporting a large poulation if the rulers would cease from spending their time chiefly in top spinning.—New York Sun.

The Ideal Battle Ship.

The ideal battle ship, according to Admiral Sir George Elliott, possesses qualifications ranking in this order; 1. Sea worthiness; 2. Guns and armor; 3. Handiness; 4. Coal endurance; 5. Speed; 6. Light draught of water.—New York Sun.

On a Peace Footing.

At 260 yards the Lepel rifle would go through two men. The French arsenals have enough ammunition to supply each soldier with 6,500 cartridges.—New York Sun.

Better Than Soap.

It is asserted that, under certain conditions, the bark of the quilla tree of Chili possesses cleansing properties superior to those of the best soap.—Arkansaw Traveler.

It is generally understood that Lord Tennyson composes much of his poetry during his rural rambles.

To do so no more is the truest repentance.—Luther.

THE NATION'S WORKING POWER.

Energy of Various Countries Estimated in Foot Tons—An Englishman's Tribute.

Among the many scientific papers read at the recent meeting of the British association in Bath, none possesses a higher degree of interest than the brief monograph of Mr. Michael G. Mulhall on the "Growth of American Industries and Wealth." It is all the more interesting because it is the work of a distinguished English statistician, and so must be regarded as free from any blemish of patriotic exaggeration.

To look upon the picture which Mr. Mulhall gives of the astonishing life, wealth and energy of the United States stirs the blood. In every one of the three principal sources of power—man, horse and steam—we greatly exceed the leading nations of Europe, as will be seen from this table of Mr. Mulhall's, showing the aggregate energy of the principal nations in millions of foot tons daily:

Countries.	Hand.	Horse.	Steam.	Total.
United States	8,454	33,000	48,000	89,454
United Kingdom	5,220	8,700	38,060	52,050
France	5,030	8,500	16,150	30,340
Germany	6,030	10,500	19,800	37,230

An inspection of this table shows that in round numbers the working power of the United States is three times as great as that of France, two and one-half times as great as that of Germany, and one and two-thirds times as great as that of the united kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland. It is equal to that of the two greatest of the older nations combined.

If there were any danger of the republic's putting forth its gigantic strength in aggressive warfare, there would be a panic terror among the powers across the ocean, that a hundred years ago beheld its birth with indifference or contempt. Moreover, as Mr. Mulhall shows, the unparalleled growth of this country has only begun:

"At present the increase of industry, energy and wealth goes on unabated. The next census in 1890 will probably show a population of 66,000,000, with an aggregate energy of almost 100,000,000,000 of foot tons daily, and an accumulated wealth of 14,000,000,000 sterling, figures never before applicable to any nation in the world."

Uncle Sam's boys are not given to vainglorious boasting as much as they used to be, and perhaps one reason is that there is no need for them to boast. A power like that which this republic now possesses speaks for itself, and all the world heeds it. The moral force emanating from such an enormous aggregate of physical energy is unmeasurable. There is not a movement for political enfranchisement on the face of the globe that does not feel itself strengthened by the influence of the United States. It is glorious to be a citizen of such a country, infinitely more glorious than to have been a Roman citizen at the height of the Roman renown!

Well, all this splendor of national development, which the British men of science have just had displayed for their admiration and wonder, the people of the United States have created for themselves, and they have created it by extending the same lines of progress which their forefathers struck out a century ago.—New York Sun.

Life of German Peasants.

Let us suppose now, for a moment, we are living in a German village. At 6 o'clock you will see the farmer take his first meal, consisting of a weak coffee, which is very often composed of coffee and roasted wheat, and in which milk is largely used. He will take to this coffee some slices of brown bread (corn bread with jam, or with butter, lard, etc.) At 9 o'clock another meal will be served, for as people had already done some hard work by that time they want another meal. This second breakfast may consist of slices of brown (rye) bread with butter and ham, or butter and cheese, or butter with eggs, or bread with bacon or sausage only, to which as a rule by the male members of the family—very seldom by females—either a small glass of "schnaps" (corn brandy) or some very weak beer is partaken of.

An average peasant family, numbering five heads, would about consume per year, two fat pigs, four or five geese, perhaps a few ducks, about half a dozen old hens and a dozen young ones, two dozen young pigeons. Pork is in stock all the year round, as well in form of the well known "sausage" as in the shape of bacon, ham, etc. It will be smoked in order to keep. As to the vegetables used, I must say people know better to appreciate their value than in England or America. It is really astonishing to observe the ignorance which prevails here, especially among the poorer classes in England, upon such matters. There are thousands of people in England, who never saw in their lives a Haricot bean, pea or turtle—living on nothing but mutton chops, beefsteak, pie and cheese. This is entirely different in Germany. Cereals and pulses are largely used, and there is a healthy variety in the bill of fare. It will not happen very often that the same dish is served for dinner twice a week. I remember having read once in a medical book—I forget whether it was by Professor Gork or Redam—that the rural people in Thuvringia and Saxonia had the best natural instinct for the choice of their foods, and that the mixture observed by this people could be put down as a standard for any other people by any physician.—Pupke in Herald of Health.

Goethe's Digestive Capacity.

According to the bills of fare preserved in the city archives at Jena, Goethe was in the habit of dining exceedingly well. He also liked company at dinner, for, during the period covered by the bills when he had not one guest with him, he had three. He always had four courses, and sometimes more, the dishes of his choice being such as roast beef and roast pork on the same day; soups with dumpling, and a sirloin with anchovy sauce, with roasted pigeons and roast mutton to follow, the dinner rather of a glutton than of a poet. For a week and more he dined in this fashion, the bill only coming to a little more than £3. It is satisfactory to know that this really great man could dine well, and was not a querulous and dyspeptic wreck, though it is not so pleasant to know that the poet squabbled with the landlord over the items, and even went to law with him on the subject.—London Life.

My Poor Back!

That "poor back" is held responsible for more than its share of the sufferings of mankind. If your dog bites a man who kicks it, do you blame the dog? On the same principle the kidneys utter their protest against nervousness, impure blood, and resulting constipation. These force them to do extraordinary work in ridding the system of the poisons which are the result of effete matter retained in the blood. Then the sufferer says the back aches; the kidneys are diseased. "Not yet;" but they will be unless the nerves are strengthened, the blood purified, and the constipation removed. These are the causes of kidney troubles, and Paine's Celery Compound removes them quickly. With its tonic, purifying, and laxative effect, it also strengthens the weak kidneys, making it almost infallible in curing all diseases of the nerves and kidneys. If your hopes of cure have not been realized, try Paine's Celery Compound; it gives perfect health to all who complain of "their poor backs." Price $1.00.

Stand and Deliver!

"There is rothing ambiguous," says the Tribune, "about the demand of James B. Townsend of Ohio for campaign contributions. His frantic appeals indicate that the democratic party in Ohio, at any rate, is in a decidedly bad way. His circular letter addressed to postmasters and other federal office holders in that state is emphatically of the stand-and-deliver-order. 'I am directed to look to you,' he says, 'for five per cent of the annual pay roll of your office. Should I not hear from you by the 20th of this month, I shall draw on you for a portion of the amount yet unremitted.' We doubt if this has ever been surpassed. The civil service reformers deplored at their meeting last May that the 'nefarious practice' of political assessments had been 'revived to some certain extent.' In the next annual outgiving, if they tell the truth, they will have to say that the 'nefarious practice' has been carried on this year to an extent never known before." But not this, nor a hundred times this, would drive from the support of Cleveland the New York Post, or Harper's Weekly, or the other formerly republican or independent papers which went over to his support four years ago because they could no longer stand the corrupt practices of the wicked republicans, who assessed the federal office-holders to get funds for campaign purposes, and were not aware that "a public office is a public trust," as Mr. Cleveland was. They will stick. The free trade mantle will cover all other sins from their eyes.

New Hampshire Items.

The steamer Lady of the Lake on lake Winnipesaukee discontinued the regular trips of the season on Monday, and arrangements are being made to place her in winter quarters at the Weirs.

Col. John C. Linnehan of Penacook says that when he first came to that town in 1852, fresh from Ireland, only four men of that nationality owned their houses. Now there are forty Irishmen in Penacook who own their houses, and not one is a hovel. Protection to American industries does not seem to have ruined those Irishmen much, notwithstanding all the talk of the British manufacturers and their American followers.

ELIOT ITEMS.

ELIOT, ME., Oct. 23d.

A very elegant wedding took place in this town on the afternoon of the 16th inst., when Mr. John H. Griffin of Dover and Miss Abbie G. Bartlett of this town were united in marriage at the home of the bride's father, Mr. James W. Bartlett. The ceremony took place at four o'clock, and was performed by a clergyman from Biddeford, the same who united the bride's parents in marriage. There were present guests from Biddeford, Dover and Sawyer's Mills, N. H., Boston and Newburyport, Mass., Lockport, Ill., and other places, among them being Miss Octavia Goodwin of Biddeford, first bridesmaid, Miss Myra Hammond of Eliot, second bridesmaid, Mr. Robert Pike and Mr. Johnson of Dover, groomsmen. The house was handsomely decorated with autumn leaves and bright flowers. Mrs. Griffin will be much missed in social circles here, where as a bright and vivacious young lady she has been a general favorite. The couple took the 6:15 P. M. train from Eliot for a wedding tour, leaving the house amid showers of peas and expressed wishes for their happiness. They will take up their residence in Dover, where Mr. Griffin is engaged in the grocery business.

A baked-bean supper was given in Brooks hall, South Eliot, on the evening of Oct. 18th, by Piscataqua Commandery, No. 189, U. O. G. C. There was a large attendance, and a nice supper, which was followed by music by Mrs. W. H. Staples and Miss Abbie C. Remick. A very handsome guess-cake made by Mrs. Oliver Athorne brought in about $4.

John E. Fernald lost a nice cow on the 17th; she was hitched in a field, and by some means broke her neck. She was brought only a few weeks ago by Mr. Fernald, for $52, and is a big loss to him.

The concert by the Clifford Ladies Quartette of Whitman, Mass., in the Congregational church Friday evening, was one of the most pleasing musical entertainments ever given here. There were but about 175 persons present, but the wonder was that there should be so many on such a night; had the weather been fair the church would not have accommodated the audience.

Mr. Harry L. Staples on Friday last returned from Boston and Chelsea, Mass., where he had passed a short time with friends.

Samuel Dixon loaded a vessel at the wharf last week with apples, paying for No. 1's one dollar per barrel, and for No. 2's sixty cents, without barrel.

Mrs. Wm. A. Lydston and son left town on Saturday last, for East Somerville, Mass., to pass the winter with Mrs. Lydston's daughter, Mrs. L. S. Remick.

School in district No. 8 commenced on Monday, the 15th inst.; Mr. James K. Rogers is teacher.

Charles W. Foster and Lloyd S. Remick got badly poisoned last week while at work moving a stone wall on the road leading from the Eliot line to Kittery, by the residence of True Canney; poison ivy, or "mercury" as it is often called, probably caused the trouble.

Sylvester A. Staples is quite ill with lumbago, so much so that he has been obliged to leave work.

Mr. Gilpatrick and wife of Biddeford are the guests of Rev. W. F. Marshall and wife; Mrs. Marshall is their daughter.

Charles B. Remick, brakeman on the Boston & Maine railroad, will continue to run on Conductor Garland's train, on which he has been during the summer. Mr. Remick is much liked by every one.

Mrs. Wesley Cole of Hampton is the guest of Miss Mabel Brooks and J. B. Remick.

The story published in some of the papers about a prominent citizen of this town aiming at a rat in his pig-pen, and through the snapping of the cap shooting his pig instead of the rat, was correct in all points except that the rat was shot, and the pig was not. HARRY.

HAMPTON JOTTINGS.

HAMPTON, Oct. 22d.

The check lists are up, and it is surprising to see the large number of young democrats just old enough to vote; the supervisors refer to the records for authority in regard to this. Joe Holmes lacks one day of being old enough to vote; we are sorry for it, as the little girl said; he wants to be on the right side, and belongs to the republican club.

The rally at North Hampton was largely attended last Friday evening. Mr. Gallinger commenced speaking at half-past nine, and finished at half-past twelve; in spite of the rain many ladies were out, from this and other towns.

Many from this town will attend the lecture of Mrs. Livermore at Hampton Falls next Thursday evening; subject, "What shall we do with our daughters?"

Dr. Smith's practice increases fast,—far beyond his expectations; he is liked very much; unlike some, he makes the patient well instead of worse.

Mr. Horace Hobbs was recently injured badly, having a pitch-fork run into his hand; he is one of the supervisors, as is also Mr. Jacob T. Brown, who was injured just one week previous. The work now falls largely on Mr. Walter Drake.

Mr. Stackpole loaded apples at this depot last week, paying $1.25 per barrel.

As Mr. Curtis DeLancey was loading a barrel of molasses last week, the front wheels tipped up and it bounced off, the head breaking and contents running away; loss about thirty dollars. Hands were in pockets quickly, and in a short time the money was raised for Mr. DeLancey; he is one of the largest-hearted men in town, and all gave with pleasure.

Many preparations professedly harmless, prove exceedingly dangerous, but Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup is perfectly safe at all times. Price 25 cents.

A yellowish complexion is not at all desirable; to banish it, use Laxador, the golden remedy for all liver diseases. It only costs 25 cents.

A strange horse disease is prevailing in New Bedford, Mass.

To any one purchasing a bottle of Constitutional Cough Syrup of me and it does not give satisfaction I will refund the money. David Kimball & Co., No. 36 Market street.

Prosperity of the Maoris.

"New Zealand has more debt in proportion to its size and wealth than any other country in the world," said Father Wissel. "There was a great deal of faith in gold mining for a time, but the yellow ore failed to materialize in sufficient quantities to put the miners' business on a paying basis, and the mines were temporarily abandoned. The English have not given up hopes yet, and companies are beginning to take hold of the enterprise of hunting gold again. The Maoris, or natives, call their houses waoris. They raise potatoes and corn, dig gum or do anything for a living, and they are very intelligent people. The Maori people are better off almost than the whites, because they possess a lot of land that the whites do not. They have the king country, and their gardens, fruit farms and horse pastures are well taken care of. They are very fond of horses and keep lots of them. They buy vegetables, guns, coffee, tea and groceries in the towns. Their war dances are interesting, and at them they have all sorts of games. Sometimes they become warlike toward the whites and refuse to let them pass through the exclusive Maori country."—Globe-Democrat.

HOT BREAD MADE WHOLESOME.

The Royal Baking Powder possesses a peculiar merit that is not possessed by any other leavening agent. Bread, biscuit, cake, muffins, or rolls, made with it may be eaten when hot without inconvenience by persons of the most delicate digestive organs. With most persons it is necessary that bread raised with yeast should lose its freshness or become stale before it can be eaten with safety. Distressing results also follow from eating biscuit, cake, pastry, etc., raised by the cheap, inferior baking powders that contain lime, alum, phosphates, or other adulterants. The hot roll and muffin, and the delicious hot griddle cakes, raised by Royal Baking Powder, are as wholesome and digestible as warm soup, meat or any other food.

Another greatly superior quality possessed by the Royal Baking Powder is that by which the preservation of important elements of the flour is effected in raising the bread by the mechanical operation of the gas, without fermentation. Yeast, and all baking powders that produce the leavening gas by fermentation destroy a portion of those nutritive elements of the flour which are the most healthful and the greatest aids to a perfect assimilation of the food. The Royal Baking Powder, while perfectly leavening, retains without change or impairment all those elements which were intended by nature, when combined in our bread, to make it literally the staff of life.

No leavening agent or baking powder, except the Royal Baking Powder, possesses these great qualifications.

It is Absurd

For people to expect a cure for Indigestion, unless they refrain from eating what is unwholesome; but if anything will sharpen the appetite and give tone to the digestive organs, it is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Thousands all over the land testify to the merits of this medicine.

Mrs. Sarah Burroughs, of 248 Eighth street, South Boston, writes: "My husband has taken Ayer's Sarsaparilla, for Dyspepsia and torpid liver, and has been greatly benefited."

A Confirmed Dyspeptic.

C. Canterbury, of 141 Franklin st., Boston, Mass., writes, that, suffering for years from Indigestion, he was at last induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla and, by its use, was entirely cured.

Mrs. Joseph Aubin, of High street, Holyoke, Mass., suffered for over a year from Dyspepsia, so that she could not eat substantial food, became very weak, and was unable to care for her family. Neither the medicines prescribed by physicians, nor any of the remedies advertised for the cure of Dyspepsia, helped her, until she commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. "Three bottles of this medicine," she writes, "cured me."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

PREPARED BY
Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Capt. H. W. Trefethen, of the steamer Mystic, has presented the Wentworth Guards of Kittery Foreside with a handsome flagstaff.

Peculiar

Many peculiar points make Hood's Sarsaparilla superior to all other medicines. Peculiar in combination, proportion, and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the full curative value of the best known remedies of the vegetable kingdom. Peculiar in its strength and economy—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "One Hundred Doses One Dollar." Medicines in larger and smaller bottles require larger doses, and do not produce as good results as Hood's. Peculiar in its medicinal merits, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown, and has won for itself the title of "The greatest blood purifier ever discovered." Peculiar in its "good name at home,"—there is now more sold in Lowell, where it is made, than of all other blood purifiers. Peculiar in its phenomenal record of sales abroad, no other preparation has ever attained such popularity in so short a time, and retained its popularity and confidence among all classes of people so steadfastly. Do not be induced to buy other preparations, but be sure to get the Peculiar Medicine,

THE WEATHER.

For New England to-day:—

Warmer, easterly winds, with rain.

INDEPENDENT DEMOCRATIC CLUB.

A meeting of the members of the Independent Democratic club is called at their room in the old custom house building on Wednesday evening, the 24th inst., strictly on private business.

N. K. RAYNES, Secretary.

A CONUNDRUM.

Workingmen, just a word. You owe your comparatively high wages not to protection, but to superior skill and trade organizations. Organization has done far more to keep up wages than protection, and the bitterest opponents of organization, here in New Hampshire and elsewhere, are the men who are now stumping the country and howling for protection for the sake of workmen whom they pretend to love so much. Isn't this true?—Times.

Perhaps the members of the Coopers' union who formerly worked in the coopers' shop at the Jones brewery, or the Caisters' union men who once worked in the Portsmouth shoe factory, may be able to answer this question.

DEMOCRATIC BATTALION.

The officers of the different Cleveland Thurman campaign companies met at the city rooms on Saturday evening last. The meeting was called to order by Capt. J. Albert Sanborn of the Marcy Guards, who briefly stated the object of the meeting. It was voted to form a battalion, and the following officers chosen: Colonel, David Urch; lieutenant-colonel, Charles A. Sinclair; major, Edward D. Coffin. A committee of three, consisting of Captains Varrell, Ryan and Treat, were appointed to notify the officers of their election.

N. H. S. P. C. A.

At a special meeting, on the 22d inst., of the directors of the New Hampshire Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, we have been parted by death from our fellow director, Mrs. Sarah Jenness Pickering, the Founder of this society,

Resolved, that we deeply mourn the grievous loss that has thus fallen upon us.

Resolved, that we hold in faithful remembrance her enthusiasm, her energy and her devotion.

Resolved, that her example must ever be an encouragement and an inspiration to all who seek to lessen suffering.

Resolved, that we will not cease to emulate her zeal in the cause for which we labor.

WANTS MORE DEMOCRATIC STEAM.

"Let's hustle a little," says our neighbor the Times, in an urgent appeal to the administration democracy of New Hampshire to wake up; "But two weeks remain for work. Let every democrat take off his coat now and go at 'em. * * The old Granite State should this year be found where it belongs. Right in the democratic column. Work will do it. But only the hardest kind of work. * * Let's do a little hustling. Let's shake ourselves together. Let's put on a little more steam. A little more snap, and vim. We can win right here in New Hampshire. Let's go to work and do it."

That is an earnest and spirit-stirring appeal, but it will not suffice to turn the tide which has been setting strongly against the Cleveland party in New Hampshire, as elsewhere all over the country, ever since the St. Louis convention. New Hampshire is going to elect a republican governor, by the people; two republican congressmen, by good majorities; and a legislature strongly republican in both branches. Rockingham county will do its share, and will elect republican officials for the next two years; and the vote of Portsmouth is not going to be the wholly one-sided affair it has been at some recent elections. We have never been given to making extravagant ante-election claims, and are not doing so now, as the 6th of November will show.

ACCIDENTAL.

As Mrs. Albert Chick, who lives near Butler's crossing in Kittery, was driving into this city with her sister on the forenoon of the 23d inst., the horse took fright at a shifting engine on Noble's island, and ran away. The gates at the Noble's island bridge were closed for the highway, and the horse cleared the first one, taking the carriage over with him, and throwing out one of the ladies. Mr. Benjamin D. Miller, the gate tender, attempted to catch the horse, but was knocked down, badly bruised, and his face and one leg cut by the horse's hoofs and the wagon wheels; he was taken to his home senseless, but in the evening was reported as being doing well. After knocking Mr. Miller over, the horse turned to the right to avoid the other gate, taking the railroad track; the other lady jumped or was thrown from the wagon, and the team went overboard before reaching the draw, and was towed ashore by some of the Concord wharf workmen, not much harmed. The ladies were severely shaken up, but no serious results are apprehended.

MATRIMONIAL.

Miss Etta B. Jenness of Rye, a granddaughter of the late Job Jenness, was married at her home last Sunday evening to Mr. Clarence T. Rickford of this city, Rev. Mr. Holmes of the Congregational church performing the ceremony. The couple have gone on a trip to New York and Washington, and on their return will reside in Portsmouth.

OBITUARY.

Mr. George Rice, formerly for many years in business as a baker in this city, but for some time retired, died at his home on Pleasant street, Oct. 22d, aged seventy-six years.

The remains of the late Mrs. Mary A. S. Goodwin were brought to this city on Tuesday from Allston, Mass., and interred in the south cemetery. Rev. Alfred Gooding officiated at the commitment.

We were informed on Tuesday that Capt. N. Parker Simes had that day died at his home on Union street of pneumonia, after a brief illness. Capt. Simes was on the street last Friday, we think.

Mrs. Eliza Moody of York, Me., died on the 14th inst. at Lisbon in that state, whither she had gone for the benefit of her health, having long been an invalid. She was much beloved by her neighbors and friends for her many Christian virtues, being always kind and attentive to the poor, sick and distressed. She was the daughter of the late Capt. Charles Moody, a once noted citizen of York. Her obsequies were attended by a large number of sympathizing friends. Her age was about sixty years.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Thomas Ward, with his party of tourists, arrived back at Portsmouth on Wednesday of last week. Some of the ladies say that "Tom" became bewildered in the labyrinths of the Washington monument at the city of Washington, and was only rescued by their efforts.

Mr. E. T. Smith of Topeka, Kansas, is in this city as the guest of Mr. William Ward.

Mr. William T. Rand and wife of Allston, Mass., who have been on a visit to Mr. Rand's father for several days, returned home on Tuesday evening.

Mr. Joseph H. Jamieson, of Commercial wharf, has of late been much absent selling herring in the Massachusetts seaboard towns.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner Arthur A. Hall, loaded at Eliot by Samuel Dixon with 700 barrels of apples for an eastern port, sailed on Monday.

The four-masted schooner Viking, Church master, from Newport News with 1622 tons coal to J. Albert Walker, arrived at this port on the 20th inst.

Some two weeks ago herring struck in on this coast in vast numbers, driven this way, the fishermen think, by their disgust at the Canadian treatment of the fishery question. Twelve hundred barrels of this fish were received by Elvin Newton on Commercial wharf during last week, and one hundred barrels arrived on Sunday last. Seven hundred barrels of them were sent to Manchester for the consumption of that market, and five hundred barrels were forwarded to D. Weir at Portland, who has long been engaged in the smoking business.

It is charged by the herring netters that the shore boats have recently been plying a thriving industry in the line of robbing the nets of fish at night, in the vicinity of this harbor.

Among the bills passed by both houses of Congress at the late session, but which failed to become laws because of the president's failure to sign them, were acts to establish a lighthouse near Nantucket, Mass., and providing for a lightship at Sandy Hook, N. Y. The president's time was so much taken up with vetoing bills granting pensions to the widows of Union soldiers, that he couldn't be bothered with matters relating to the safety of seamen.

RYE REPUBLICANS.

The republicans of Rye held a large and decidedly cheerful meeting on Monday night of this week, and organized a republican club, with Freeman J. Locke as president and Blake H. Rand as secretary. Adjournment was taken to Tuesday evening, the 23d, when it was intended to form a marching campaign company.

About forty republicans went from Rye to North Hampton on Friday evening, to attend a flag raising there, followed by a speech in the town hall by Congressman Gallinger. Had the weather been halfway decent, the delegation would have been much more numerous.

There are about 290 names on the Rye checklist—a considerable reduction from the number of recent years. There were 264 votes cast in the town in 1840, of which Van Buren had 173 and Harrison 91. The democratic majority in Rye has been about the same ever since, varied occasionally by local causes, or general dissatisfaction of one party or the other.

Preston's Jamaica Ginger is increasing in popularity.

A fine assortment of pocket and corn knives, button-hole and pocket scissors; also razers in great variety, at Grace's drug store.

The daily call at Staples' Dry Goods store: "Got any more of those remnants of drilling at 6 1-2 cents?"

We have.

Pears' is the purest and best Soap made.

The Winchester Cadets received their uniforms and torches Tuesday evening. They go to Dover next Friday evening, and to Concord on Tuesday evening of next week.

The check lists of all the wards are posted in the city building, and those of wards one, three and four, at places in those wards also. See advertisement. Every republican who has a right to vote, no matter what his length of residence has been in this city, should examine his ward list to see that his name has not been left off the list.

Young republicans who will be legally entitled to vote on November 6th for the first time, are requested to hand their names to the ward committees of the wards in which they live, in order that their names may be presented to the inspectors of election to be added to the checklists. Prompt action is requested, that no votes may be lost through the omission from the list of names legally entitled to be there.

Card's coach between this city and Newcastle now leaves this city for the island town at four o'clock each afternoon, instead of at 4:30 as during the summer, excepting on Saturdays, when it will start at 4:30 as heretofore.

The democratic Mother Hubbard campaign company on Monday evening chose Elbridge G. Morrison captain, Daniel J. Ayers 1st lieutenant, and Isaac Furber 2d lieutenant; and empowered them to appoint all other officers.

The republicans of Greenland will have a rally in the town hall on Friday evening, Oct. 26th; speaking by Hon. John G. Crawford of Clinton, Mass., and Mr. Silas Hussey of Rochester.

A canvass of the members of the Portsmouth Athletic club for their political preferences shows that of the ninety-seven active members, forty four are republicans, forty are democrats, eleven decline to give their political preferences, and two are not voters.

A new fashion, or a revival of an old one, is announced for the masculine half of society. It is to wear a clean-shaved face. We would remind the young men who adopt this fashion after wearing full beards for half a century or more, that they can get all kinds of medicines for coughs, colds and consumption at Prestons's or Grace's drug stores.

Mr. William Watkins, for the past thirty years a staunch democrat of the Andrew Jackson school, last week run out a Harrison and Morton flag from his residence on Water street, and will work unceasingly from now to Nov. 6th to defeat the election of the present accidental occupant of the presidential chair.

DARTMOUTH COLLEGE ITEMS.

HANOVER, Oct. 22d.

Minot H. Beasiam, '90, has been elected manager of the foot-ball team for next year.

The Dartmouth Glee Club has had several engagements to sing at political rallies.

The Alpha Delta Phi society held their annual initiation and banquet on the evening of the 17th, and the Phi Zeta Mu on the 19th inst.

The annual catalogue of the college will be out Thanksgiving. It is understood that it will show some slight changes in the curriculum.

Prof. Hardy has signed the contract with his publishers for his Analytical Geometry; it is expected in a month. B.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as a demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of Europe, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues $22 TO $900.

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the important improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which they secure the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune and other important advantages.

TRADE MARK

PEER'S MILL, TEXAS, June 20, 1888.—The Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: One of my children was troubled with rheumatism and boils for about two years. We gave her various kinds of medicine, but without profit, and began to despair of curing her at all. I was persuaded to try your Swift's Specific. After she had used several bottles the diseases all disappeared, and she is now a hale, hearty and healthy girl twelve years old. Another child has lost become affected in the same way, and I am using the S. S. S. and anticipate a prompt and permanent cure. M. C. WOODCRAFT.

RICH HILL, MO., July 7, 1888.—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: Our little girl when but three weeks old broke out with eczema. We tried the prescriptions from several good doctors, but without any special benefit. We tried S. S. S. and by the time one bottle was gone her head began to heal, and by the time she had taken six bottles she was completely cured. Now she has a full and heavy head of hair—no other, hearty child. I feel it but my duty to make this statement. Respectfully, H. T. SHORT.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., June 27, 1888.—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: In 1866 I contracted blood poison, and at once sought a physician, who treated me for several months. By his advice I went to Crab Orchard Springs, Ky., where his course of treatment was carefully observed. I recovered, as I thought, but the next spring pimples began to appear on my face and body. These gradually increased to sores and running ulcers. I was advised to try S. S. S., and immediately after taking it I commenced to improve, slowly at first, but more rapidly afterwards, and soon nothing remained to tell of my trouble. My blood is now thoroughly cleansed, and my system free from taint, and I owe my present condition—a perfect cure—to your medicine. I cheerfully give this statement that others who have suffered as I have may reap the same benefit. HARRY M. BURT, 24 West Ninth St.

HOMER, LA., May 25, 1888.—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: About two years ago my general health gave way entirely. I was so debilitated that I almost despaired of ever feeling well again. All that the physicians done for me brought no permanent relief. Friends insisted that I should give S. S. S. a fair trial, although I thought it would be throwing away money. After taking a thorough course, my health and strength returned, and I must say that S. S. S. saved my life, as I discarded all others while using it. As a tonic I can most heartily recommend it; for general debility, it certainly is a specific. W. F. BRIDGES, J. P.

HOMER, LA.—I know Mr. W. F. Bridges, and will say that his statement is correct.

A DISTRESSING COUGH.

How many, especially during the Fall and Winter months, are troubled with a Cough, sometimes dry and hacking, sometimes loose causing the sufferer to raise a large amount of offensive matter; this can soon be cured by using Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs.

Cured her Cough.

MRS. JEREMIAH CLARK, Lowell, Mass., says: "Twelve years ago I first took a bottle of your Throat and Lung Specific. I had been troubled with a very bad Cough for months. A 50-cent bottle cured my Cough. Since then I have not been without it. I can heartily recommend it to any one who has a bad cough."

Saved his Life.

CHAS. A. WAITT, says: "No language can express the value I attach to your Specific. I believe it saved my life."

We would cite other testimonials did we think it necessary, but a trial bottle will convince you that it is all we represent. Give it a trial.

Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific is sold by all Druggists. Price 50 cents and $1. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

TYPES OF BEAUTY.

No Possibility of Arriving at Any Standard—Some Odd Ideas.

Various, indeed, are the opinions held by a wide diversity of races regarding their beauties, though it is often difficult for people bred under another sky to share their enthusiasm. The Circassian women, who have a sort of conventional reputation for loveliness, are affirmed by those who know them best to be far from worthy of their celebrity. Short legs, glaring red hair, faces so long and narrow that their heads seem to have been squeezed between two boards and flattened, noses out of proportion to the rest of the features and complexions of a dull, lead like hue, scarcely constitute beauty according to our standard. The Moors and the Tunisian Jews regard corpulence as absolutely essential to beauty, and the inmates of rich men's harems are stuffed with nutritious food, like Strasbourg geese for the market. The Chinese poets sing of the deformed feet as "golden lilies," and the rocking of their women in attempting to walk as the "waving of a willow."

Other races have equally odd ideas of what constitutes loveliness, for they "improve" their persons by flattening their foreheads, tattooing their skins, cutting off their fingers, filing their teeth or dyeing them black, blue or tartan, painting their bodies, slitting their ears, compressing their waists, putting stones, bone or metal through their lips, cheeks, or ears, and in a dozen other ways trying to enhance the poor 'prentice work of nature. A Felatah lady dyes her hands and feet with hennah, stains her teeth alternately blue, yellow and purple, one here and there being left of its natural color, pencils her eyelids with sulphuret of antimony, and dyes her locks with indigo. The Hydah woman inserts a plug of wood or ivory through her lower lip until it represents the hideous appearance of a fleshy shelf over her chin. A Chinese or a Siamese lady cultivates long nails. A Hottentot belle cannot get her nose flat enough, or a Parsian beauty hers high enough.

On the northwest coast of America no reproach is more bitter than for one Indian girl to tell another that "your mother was too lazy to flatten your head." Tattooing is almost universal among half civilized or savage races; in New Zealand the Maori women, before they began to imbibe European prejudices, even tattooed their lips, lest they should have the reproach of being red. Some races slit their ears until they hang in loops on their shoulders. Others insert huge rings and other ornaments through the cartilage of their noses. The Louisiade Islanders regard the lid of a sardine box as a particularly neat piece of jewelry, and even European women have not yet ceased to suspend bits of stone and metal through the lobes of their ears.

There is, in truth, no possibility of arriving at any standard of beauty, the "points" of which would not do injustice to some of the competitors. Even among the whites there are various ideas of what constitutes good looks. Like manners and morals, beauty is very much a matter of sky. Just as an Indian told a traveler what a comfort his son was to him, because "he could steal more horses than any boy of his age," so a western frontiersman assured a visitor that his daughter was the "finest girl" in the settlement, for she could "heft a barrel of pork and lick her weight in wild cats."—London Standard.

The Highest Inhabited Valley.

Presently, directly in out front, stood a great high hill, and it seemed at first glance as though further progress was impossible. But man's ingenuity overcomes mighty obstacles, and as this one could not be turned the road had been made to ascend its steep side by a series of zigzags or swing this way and that way and that no fewer than nineteen times ere the top is reached. From where we left the torrent bed to its summit this barrier is at least 1,200 feet high, and when we had reached the top I found myself at the western end of the upper Engadine.

This is the loftiest, most extensive high valley in Europe, and perhaps the highest inhabited valley in the world. Its average height is 5,400 feet above the level of the sea, and that is higher than the top of famous Rigi, near Lucerne, which everybody thinks a wonderful altitude. It is a plain forty or fifty miles long and a mile or so in width, which has many large towns, luxurious meadow lands, and several Alpine lakes that finally flow off into the Inn river, and the whole inclosed in majestic mountains so awfully high that they are forever covered with snow and colossal glaciers, all so fantastically shaped and glittering that the spot has quite a polar aspect. In other parts of Switzerland eternal snow is never found below an altitude of about 8,000 feet, but this limit is not reached on the borders of the Engadine until we ascend as high as 9,900. —Henry Haynie in New Orleans Picayune.

Roofs of English Houses.

Shingled roofs are unknown in England and on the continent. I talked with two men, intelligent English working men, about the construction of buildings in their country, and they both asked me (when I told them how they made roofs in America) what shingles were; they had never seen or heard of them, and laughed, when I described them, at the Yankee notion of making "wooden roof slate." They thought their thatched roofs must be much better, every way, than our shingled ones. In Whittlesea I saw square topped garden walls surmounted by caps of thatch, to shed the rain. In all this town I did not see a veranda, a piazza or a porch—no place where one could sit out of doors and be protected from the rays of the sun—not even an awning.—William T. Tidsley in Lyons Republican.

The Croaker and the Kicker.

The kicker is a developer; the croaker is an incubus. The kicker incites to improvement; the croaker to indignation and resentment. The kicker only is heard when he is given one dollar accommodations at three dollar rates; the croaker would be just as noisy if he was getting three dollar accommodations and paying nothing. The kicker is a lively, jovial, progressive fellow; the croaker is a dismal nuisance, who lags superfluous on the stage.—Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle.

"American wages for American workmen."—Republican motto.

It is too bad to spend half of a short life distressed with neuralgia, when 25 cents spent for one bottle of Salvation Oil will cure it quickly.

He talked as if he had a "frog in his throat," but he was only hoarse; a single bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup relieved the trouble at once. 25 cents.

An extensive domestic market for the surplus produce of the soil is of the first consequence. It is, of all things, that which most effectually conduces to a flourishing state of agriculture.—Alexander Hamilton.

Dye

It is a duty we owe to ourselves, as well as to those who are dependent upon us, to preserve our health and strength. Aunt Rachael's Bitters are found to be an unfailing and valuable assistant in maintaining the vigor of the system, and in keeping it in tone. Excellent for those subject to malarial fevers. For sale by druggists and the Aunt Rachael Pad Co., Passaic, N. J.

Upon the success of our manufactures, as the handmaid of agriculture and commerce, depends in a great measure the independence of our country, and none can feel more sensibly than I do the necessity of encouraging them.—Andrew Jackson.

The experience of years furnishes the most convincing evidence that thousands of lives are annually saved by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It speedily cures all affections of the throat, bronchial tubes, and lungs.

When our manufactures are grown to a certain proportion, as they will under the fostering care of the government, * * the farmer will find a ready market for his surplus produce, and, what is of almost equal consequence, a certain and cheap supply for all his wants.—John C. Calhoun.

Took First Prize.

The State board of pharmacy recently analyzed twelve of the most popular medicines in order to see whether they were what they were recommended to be. After two weeks of careful work work, they awarded the first prize, a gold medal, to Messrs A P. Ordway, & Co., proprietors of Sulpher Bitters, it being in their opinion the best and only strictly pure blood purifying medicine in the market.—Weekly Chemist.

The issue of Protection is incalculably stronger and greater than any man, as it concerns the prosperity of the present and of the generations yet to come.—James G. Blaine.

"For twenty years I have suffered with a severe bronchial cough, never lying down without a severe attack of the same. After much persuasion, I was induced to try Adamson's Balsam, and its good effects for six months are certainly marvellous. Please use this truthful testimony for the advantage of all sufferers like myself.

Mrs. Wm. Alden, Duxbury, Mass., Feb. 21, 1887.

President Cleveland declines cautiously to dub himself a free trader, but he caters up a free trade position without disguise —London Saturday Review.

The use of a single bottle of Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer will show its efficacy in restoring the natural color of the hair and cleansing the scalp.

Our manufactures require the systematic and fostering care of the government. * * Equally important it is to provide at home a market for our raw materials.—James Monroe.

Don't Give Up!

Because you feel blue and are troubled with that tired and all-gone feeling. Do as I did, use a bottle of Sulpher bitters, it will make you feel like a new person; it did me. Jennie Holmes, 354 Tremont street, Boston.

Annihilating a Multiform Disease.

Miasmatic, or malarial, disease has many forms. Physicians have for the sake of convenience and for the purpose of indicating its most strongly marked forms, subdivided it into intermittent and biliousness remittent fever, dumb ague and ague cake. But it presents an infinite variety of symptoms in different individuals. Be these symptoms what they will, always remember that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will annihilate them at the outset, and prevent their recurrence. A review of the proofs would convince any one of the fact. This, however, is impossible because they are too numerous, and unnecessary because the effects of this grand anti-malaria specific are a matter of common knowledge. No less familiar to the public are its remedial and preventive effects in billious attacks, constipation, dyspepsia, incipient rheumatism, debility and kidney troubles. It is moreover, an excellent appetizer and tonic nervine.

Mr. Cleveland has taken his stand on free trade, * * and on that broad question Mr. Cleveland's candidature naturally and necessarily carries English sympathy.—London Globe.

Be Your Own Doctor.

It won't cost you half as much. Do not delay. Send three 2-cent stamps for postage, and we will send you Dr. Kaufmann's great work, fine colored plates from life, on disease, its causes, and home cure. Address P. F. Ordway, & Co., Boston, Mass.

The presidential election will be fought out on the lines laid down months ago. President Cleveland has been accused of having shrunk from the free trade policy he then advocated. The accusation is unjust. * * * President Cleveland is substantially in favor of a financial policy which will impose duties mainly for revenue purposes, will take duties off raw materials, and so widen the market of the American purchaser. These are the aims and this is the policy of the free traders of all countries.—London Saturday Review, Sept. 15th, 1888.

An Important Element

Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. The familiar headline "100 Doses One Dollar," stolen by imitators, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This can easily be proven by any one who desires to test the matter. For real economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists.

We must now place our manufactures by the side of the agriculturist. * * * Experience has taught me that manufactures are now as necessary to our independence as to our comfort.—Thomas Jefferson.

Prepared by a combination, proportion and process peculiar to itself, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

It is useless to attempt the cure of any disorder, if the blood is allowed to remain impure. Neuralgia and rheumatism are traceable to a disordered condition of the blood, and in numberless cases have been cured by taking a few bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

It is to the New World that the Cobden Club is chiefly looking as the most likely sphere for its vigorous foreign policy. ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. mon.wed.fri.eod1yr

To-Night and To-Morrow Night,

And each day and night during this week you can get at all druggists Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs, acknowledged to be the most successful remedy ever sold for the cure of Coughs, Croup, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Asthma and Consumption. Get a bottle to-day and keep it always in the house, so you can check your cold at once. Price 50c and $1.00. Sample bottles free.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam, for Coughs and Colds, does it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles at 50c and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption.

THE ETHICS OF SUICIDE.

A Mysterious Inconsistency—The Animal Kingdom—Moral Cowardice.

A very mysterious inconsistency in human nature lies in the contrast between life which makes self preservation its first love, and that utter contempt and intolerance of it which induces self destruction. By all human laws, the man who takes another's life in defending his own is held guiltless of murder; his deed is accounted justifiable in recognition of the self saving instinct with which the creator has accompanied the gift of life to all his creatures. With the earliest consciousness of young animals this instinct appears in timidity and shrinking from danger, real or imaginary; and down to the lowest order of beings, a wounded thing will exert its last strength to escape having its existence blotted out. As for the human species, we have it on Scripture authority that "all that a man hath will he give for his life."

In view of this, who that is unaware of the facts would expect to so constantly hear of men and women, and even children, finding life unbearable and ending all? What a surprising violation of this innate principle it seems, when for this or that cause, and often for no cause that is evident, some choose death rather than life!

Suicide is not entirely confined to the human species. There are numerous well authenticated instances of different animals deliberately killing themselves when circumstances rendered life no longer desirable. A recent traveler in the tropics tells of coming at various times upon the skeleton of a species of poisonous serpent within a circle of leaves of the prickly cactus, and later the riddle was solved by his seeing some monkeys engaged in surrounding a sleeping reptile with the spinous vegetation. Upon awaking and finding itself imprisoned and all its attempts to escape futile, the serpent presently took refuge in stinging its own body and dying at once. It is commonly reported that the same thing happens when a poisonous snake is hemmed in by fire, in a spasm of desperation at finding no chance of escape, it turns its means of self defense into means of self destruction.

The animal kingdom is a law unto itself. Not so with man. He is subject to the higher law of duty and accountability; and no environment can be called hopeless to one who believes in a gracious overruling power and the better life to come. A portion of the alarming number of current suicides, it must be confessed, awaken only the sincerest pity in every susceptible and benevolent heart, and probably there are very many more cases of this kind, were the secret causes that have actuated the victims brought to light. Yet wherever human law is founded on the divine law, self destruction must necessarily be regarded as a crime. A man's buildings are not his own in the sense that he can set them on fire and burn them down with impunity; much less is his life—a possession which cannot be restored—so exclusively personal that he has the right to end it by violence in an hour of discouragement or disgust.

The yearly list of suicides in some of the countries of Europe is appalling to contemplate. The waters of the Seine give up their dead daily, and drowning is but one among the common methods for shuffling off this mortal coil. Passion, impetuosity and, above all, infidelity, are prominent factors in recruiting the army of suicides. Statistics of all nations show that occasionally there occurs what has been called an epidemic of suicide; though whether this is an illustration of the force of example, or the result of some general impelling force, such as temperature during the exhausting heat of summer, remains an unsettled question. That the month of July has long been noted for the large number of its suicides favors the latter conclusion. Of direct causes among young people, affairs of the heart, love matters that have taken an unfortunate turn, must be reckoned the leading one. Very often, too, the circumstances attending these cases are unspeakably pathetic. Next come losses of money and business, friends and health. Of criminals who have recourse to dagger, bullet or rope to evade just penalty, it is unnecessary to speak.

There is a moral cowardice in fleeing from the battle of life, which strikingly contrasts with the patient, heroic endurance of multitudes of men and women in every land and in all sorts of hard conditions. To the tempted it might serve as a tonic to read history on this point, or better, to recall events. Think, for example, of the crew of the Jeannette in their frozen fastnesses, and of Capt. DeLong and his men in the Lena Delta, dying of slow starvation, yet brave to the last. But what need to go beyond the streets of a city, with its views of pinched and haggard faces and toiling decrepitude, for heroes and heroines that shall be forever nameless?—Lavinia S. Goodwin in Boston Globe.

As Old as the Exodus.

A most interesting experiment culminated the other day in the raising of some wheat grown from seeds as old as the Exodus. The experimenter is David Drew, who last year received from a friend in Alexandria, Egypt, some grains of wheat taken from a mummy exhumed near the ruins of Memphis, and belonging, it is believed, to the period of the Ninth Dynasty, which would make it grown about 3,000 B. C., or be nearly 5,000 years old. He planted the seed early in the spring, and carefully nursed it. It grew rapidly, and at the time of cutting measured from six and a half to seven feet high. The leaves alternate on the stalk like common wheat, but the product of the plant is the most singular part of it, for, instead of growing in the ear like modern corn, there is a heavy cluster of small twigs in place of the spindle which hangs downward from its weight, and each twig is thickly studded with kernels, each of which is in a separate husk. From what is threshed a larger crop will be grown next year, as the result proves this ground to exceed in quality anything that the modern grain can grow.—Plymouth (Mass.) Cor. Cincinnati Enquirer.

Bird fanciers say that the voices of American bred canaries become harsher in each generation. German birds must be constantly imported to preserve a mellow note.

Physiological Bearing of Corsets.

In the biological section the vexed question of stays and tight lacing was discussed in a separate department. The attendance of the fair sex was especially large. The general expectation which they apparently entertained that the paper would condemn the wearing of stays was, however, agreeably disappointed, Mr. C. S. Roy, professor of pathology at Cambridge, and Mr. J. G. Adams, university administrator of pathology, who had announced a joint paper "On the Physiological Bearing of Waist Belts and Stays," blessed instead of banning these articles.

They have lately been making some pathological experiments, and had found that a good deal of the blood stored uselessly in the abdominal veins is, by slight pressure, placed advantageously at the disposal of the muscles, brain, and skin. This explains how men, as well as women, instinctively employ some method of abdominal compression, wearing waistbands or belts, or the more elaborate corsets, at periods of increased activity. No doubt fashion has sometimes led to the distortion of the female figure by means of stays, but if not laced too tight the modern corset, by clasping the waist and supporting the bosom and back, constitutes a convenient combination of the different forms of girdle which have been found useful by the women of all civilized nations from the remotest times. Of course, during sleep they are put off, but during hours of exertion, social or otherwise, reasonable tight lacing is fitted to increase mental and physical activity. They, however, cautioned young ladies against carrying this to an injudicious extreme.

By the way, it was suggested to trainers of horses that if they girthed on the racing saddle behind the ribs instead of over them they would thereby gain for the horse the same advantage as was experienced by the long distance runner from his broad tight leather belt.

Several physicians immediately attacked the paper. Dr. Wilberforce Smith considered it a most dangerous one to be read to an assembly like that. He declared the evils of tight lacing to be manifold and terrible, and that it is perfectly refreshing to find a girl the muscles of whose back have not been withered by wearing stays. Miss Becker took the other side, and advocated rigid and not elastic stays, at the same time giving her approval of modern fashions as better than some dress reforms.—London Telegraph.

How to Finish a Book.

So I hold a book is only just half written when the author and the printer and binder are through with it. It is hardly that. It is only when the readers have annotated it that it is done. The last edition should include the marks and remarks of reputable readers, and then the book would be finished. This is the way it would read: "This passage is more eloquent than true—the facts in the case are these;" and "this point the author should rewrite in the light of modern psychology," and "here we have a noble illustration of how a great mind grapples with delicate questions often in vain," or "this passage is written under the influence of the bigotry that the author supposes he has escaped."

So a running commentary is made, and the reader gets the advantage of both what he reads and what he writes. How is that? you say. I will tell you. You will never think a matter through and through until you write it down, and as you write you are compelled to sift your general notions and make them particular and accurate. So that when you are well through a volume you have written a book if you are a good annotator. Really, there are many of our best authors who never wrote any other sort of book.—"E. P. P." in Globe-Democrat.

Superstitious Concerning Her Jewels.

Jewels have at all periods of history formed the most common and diverse foundations for peculiar superstitions. There is a lady of wealth and position in New York who is the happy possessor of an exquisite pair of diamond earrings. They were given to her by her father on the occasion of her marriage. In any general sense of the word nobody would ever think of declaring this woman to be superstitious. She would probably indignantly deny such an imputation. Yet, since those solitaires were presented to her, more than twenty years ago, they have never been removed from her ears, not because of their great value, but owing to the fact that she is confident some horrible disaster will overtake her should she take them out. Night and day, therefore, with an utter disregard for the fitness of things, whether she be clad in calico or arrayed like Solomon in purple and fine linen and glorious apparel, these immense white stones, brilliant as miniature suns, gleam in her ears. At the mere mention of their possible removal she turns pale and immediately changes the subject. I verily believe she would die of fright if by any chance some one should surreptitiously take them out.—Clara Lanza.

The Books That Circulate.

The books that are most widely read are novels; and after them come works of travel and adventure, histories, biographies and autobiographies, and pictures of current manners and customs. Popular poetry treats of love, effort and disappointment; while moral and philosophical essays and religious treatises—unless concerning some new sensational religion—are found, if anywhere, on the shelves of the bookseller. In short, the books that circulate are books that treat of human relations and activities; they keep us in mind thereof, and therefore they serve to augment and forward them. They maintain the heat of discussions, the sharpness of rivalries, the rumor of success; they spur us on when we flag, invite us when we linger, and assure us when we doubt; we return from realities to them, and they drive us back with fresh impulse to realities. For the books that would keep us at home we have no taste nor leisure.—Arkansaw Traveler.

Just Before Retiring.

If people only knew how much better they would sleep by going out of doors, just before retiring, and taking five or six or a dozen deep, strong breaths, they would no more omit it than they would their supper.—Youth's Companion.

My Poor Back!

That "poor back" is held responsible for more than its share of the sufferings of mankind. If your dog bites a man who kicks it, do you blame the dog? On the same principle the kidneys utter their protest against nervousness, impure blood, and resulting constipation. These force them to do extraordinary work in ridding the system of the poisons which are the result of effete matter retained in the blood. Then the sufferer says the back aches; the kidneys are diseased. "Not yet;" but they will be unless the nerves are strengthened, the blood purified, and the constipation removed. These are the causes of kidney troubles, and Paine's Celery Compound removes them quickly. With its tonic, purifying, and laxative effect, it also strengthens the weak kidneys, making it almost infallible in curing all diseases of the nerves and kidneys. If your hopes of cure have not been realized, try Paine's Celery Compound; it gives perfect health to all who complain of "their poor backs." Price $1.00.

Hill vs. Cleveland.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24th.—The declination of Gov. Hill to review the democratic business men's procession in this city next Saturday, in company with President Cleveland, has naturally created a great deal of talk in political circles, and much scandal in the democratic ranks. The fight between the two factions wages more bitterly than ever, and the democratic national committee, which has been assiduously promoting President Cleveland's canvass, and at the same time engaged in belittling that of Gov. Hill, is still pursuing its tactics of bulldozing the governor. Those who have been endeavoring to harmonize the difference between the two leaders of the democratic party, from the White House and Albany, respectively, have utterly failed. It was planned that Cleveland's attitude toward Hill should be changed; the president should write Hill a friendly letter,—which of course was to be made public with commendable promptness. It was to express the great interest Cleveland takes in the campaign, particularly in New York state, and in the success of Gov. Hill. It was not to be a letter of "Endorsement;" oh! no; but just a little letter to notify the democracy of the "Friendly relations" existing between the democratic president and the democratic governor, who are both candidates for re-election. But Cleveland declined; and to this is probably due the governor's refusal to appear with the president in public on the occasion in question.

Chairman Murtha endeavors to explain the story away by concocting a very "thin" excuse for the governor's refusal, and that is, that he has a speaking engagement in Herkimer on Saturday, and cannot break it even to appear with the president on a reviewing stand! This explanation does not explain, and there has been a good deal of merriment over it to-night. Meanwhile Gov. Hill is keeping as far away from New York as possible, and the warfare between the democratic national and state committees is kept up with vigor. Cleveland's managers recognize the desperate character of the situation, and will stop at nothing, no matter how politically disreputable it may be, to gain their point.

Meantime, between the supporters of the president and those of the governor, it is war to the knife, and the knife to the hilt.

The republicans of this city and state, and the republican national and state committees, regard the bitter democratic contest not exactly as did the woman the fight between her husband and the bear, when she "didn't care a cent which licked," but with just as much satisfaction, as it now seems absolutely certain that each faction will "lick" the other, and give the state and national tickets of New York to the republicans by overwhelming majorities.

[Special to the Chronicle.]

The Democratic "Plan of Campaign."

NEW YORK, Oct. 24th.—The managers of the democratic national committee hardly know which way to turn, so desperate is the condition in which they find themselves placed by the logic of events. They feel that the drift of sentiment is against them, and that their case is hopelessly lost unless they can save themselves by some new and sensational trick. This unpromising outlook was discussed with a great deal of seriousness by Messrs. Barnum, Gorman and Brice at the democratic headquarters yesterday, and they fairly found themselves at their wits' end for some new device with which to deceive the public regarding the republican campaign. It was the unanimous opinion of the managers that something must be done, and done at once, and it was finally agreed that the most feasible thing would be for them to utter a fraudulent or forged letter in which Gen. Harrison should be made to express unfriendly or hostile feelings toward the workingmen.

Another new device of the democratic committee cropped out to-day, and that was, an order which has just been sent out to the democratic committees in all of the large cities of the country to get up parades a few nights before election, composed entirely of Chinamen, who are to be supplied with banners and transparencies bearing republican inscriptions, and injunctions to vote for "Harrison, the Chinamen's Friend." The democratic committees are urged in the letter of instructions to spare no pains to secure a Chinese parade, "as the election may hinge on this move." The democratic national committee of course pays all the expenses of these parades, and is foolish enough to believe that the public can be deceived by them.

The democratic national committee is turning its attention particularly, at present, to the state of New Jersey, and flooding it anew with fresh versions of the "Dollar a day" lie about Gen. Harrison, notwithstanding the fact that it has been denied in an official way by the Knights of Labor of Indianapolis, and by such reputable democrats as Ex-Senators Joe McDonald and English of Indiana.

George W. Bancroft of Peabody, Mass., had a hole as big as a silver dollar made through his right foot at West Alton, Oct. 23d, by the accidental discharge of his gun.

The largest political demonstration made in this state was made by the republicans in Manchester on the evening of Oct. 23d. There were nearly 4000 torches in the procession.

Timothy Daley of Portland, a workman on the Lake Shore railroad, was jammed by a gravel train Oct. 20th, and died on the 22d. An Italian laborer was killed by a rock falling on him on the 22d.

The examination of Hilton E. Wells and Fred K. Towle on a charge of murdering Charles H. Eastman of Berwick, Me., whose body was found in the river at Great Falls on Sept. 18th, was commenced in the municipal court at Great Falls on Wednesday, Oct. 24th. Evidence that Wells assaulted Eastman in the barroom of the Great Falls hotel shortly before the murder, was introduced.

Arthur A. Emerson of Enfield, a farmer thirty-six years old, blew his head to pieces with a shotgun Oct. 24th. He had been despondent on account of losses of crops and stock.

It Would Be "Unbecoming."

The democrats of New Jersey, on the anxious—very anxious—seat in regard to the prospects in their state, desired the president to stop at Newark on his way from Washington to New York to review (not in company with Gov. Hill) the democratic business men's parade in New York on Oct. 27th, to review in Newark a procession of democrats, and make a brief speech. But on Wednesday, the 24th, Senator McPherson, whose seat will be tripped from under him unless the democrats carry New Jersey on Nov. 6th, received word from the president that he declined the invitation, as he considered that it would be "unbecoming to him, as president and as a candidate for re-election," to appear anywhere outside of his New York engagement. Mr. Cleveland saw nothing "unbecoming" in interfering in such a bare-faced manner as no other president of the United States ever interfered in a local political contest before, to aid the election of Fellows, the "boodle" candidate for district attorney in New York in opposition to Martine, a democrat who had faithfully done the duty he was sworn to perform, and by so doing had sent a number of eminent democratic "reformers" to the penitentiary.

The fact is, the democratic managers do not dare to trust Cleveland to make a speech.

The opinion of the people is that Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is the best and cheapest remedy for coughs, colds, sore throat, asthma, etc.

The healing and purifying qualities of Salvation Oil render it the best article for speedy and safe cure of ulcerated sores. Price only 25 cents.

Two passenger trains on the Old Colony railroad came together on a siding at a station twelve miles from New Bedford on Oct. 24th, owing to a misplaced switch; both engines were smashed, but no lives were lost.

To any one purchasing a bottle of Constitutional Cough Syrup of me and it does not give satisfaction I will refund the money. David Kimball & Co., No. 36 Market street.

John Weisman, aged twenty-eight years, shot himself dead in his house at Greenfield, Mass., Oct. 24th. The only other occupant of the house was his wife, a Philadelphia girl whom he married six months ago through an advertisement.

The First Symptoms

Of all Lung diseases are much the same: feverishness, loss of appetite, sore throat, pains in the chest and back, headache, etc. In a few days you may be well, or, on the other hand, you may be down with Pneumonia or "galloping Consumption." Run no risks, but begin immediately to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Several years ago, James Birchard, of Darien, Conn., was severely ill. The doctors said he was in Consumption, and that they could do nothing for him, but advised him, as a last resort, to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. After taking this medicine, two or three months, he was pronounced a well man. His health remains good to the present day.

J. S. Bradley, Malden, Mass., writes: "Three winters ago I took a severe cold, which rapidly developed into Bronchitis and Consumption. I was so weak that I could not sit up, was much emaciated, and coughed incessantly. I consulted several doctors, but they were powerless, and all agreed that I was in Consumption. At last, a friend brought me a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. From the first dose, I found relief. Two bottles cured me, and my health has since been perfect."

For Men Chiefly.

When your collars and cuffs are rough and irritate your flesh, when you find the fine linen eaten away in spots, displaying the coarse filling, this is the cause:—They have been washed with ordinary soap, whose cleansing properties are due to caustic soda and elbow grease; either of these will produce the above, and the starch makes them feel as if you had a saw around your neck. Pyle's Pearline does away with the rubbing, hence it saves all wear and tear in the wash. It is as harmless as the finest imported castile soap. Linens washed with it are perfectly white and last many times as long as if washed in the old rubbing, twisting, wrecking way.

Beware

Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers are offering imitations which they claim to be Pearline, or "the same as Pearline." It's false—they are not, and besides are dangerous. PEARLINE is never peddled but sold by all good grocers.

Peculiar

Many peculiar points make Hood's Sarsaparilla superior to all other medicines. Peculiar in combination, proportion, and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the full curative value of the best known remedies of the vegetable kingdom. Peculiar in its strength and economy—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "One Hundred Doses One Dollar." Medicines in larger and smaller bottles require larger doses, and do not produce as good results as Hood's. Peculiar in its medicinal merits, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown, and has won for itself the title of "The greatest blood purifier ever discovered." Peculiar in its "good name at home,"—there is now more of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold in Lowell, where it is made, than of all other blood purifiers. Peculiar in its phenomenal record of sales abroad, no other preparation has ever attained such popularity in so short a time, and retained its popularity and confidence among all classes of people so steadfastly.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Is Peculiar to Itself

THE MAIL SERVICE.

Since the economy-and-reform administration came into power there has been introduced into the mail service of the United States a charming element of uncertainty, previously long unknown, which though undoubtedly of great value in preventing stagnation of mind on the part of persons who with fear and trembling entrust letters to the mails, or hope against hope that they may get letters from somebody else, can hardly be regarded as of special benefit to the business interests of the country, or as conducive to general growth in grace.

But letters do occasionally reach their destination, after a while. A gentleman living in Rye, on Tuesday afternoon of this week received two. The fact that he received two would not call for any especial notice, for even under the present regime it is not very rare for a person to receive two letters in the same mail, particularly if the letters were posted at dates several weeks apart, at offices close together. But there seemed to be something especially eccentric about these two. From the post-marks it appeared that one of them was posted in Andover, Mass., forty miles away, on Saturday, Oct. 20th, and the other at Parkersburg, West Virginia, a thousand miles away, on Sunday, the 21st. Had not the Andover letter taken passage on the way freight, or possibly come by way of Montreal, the Rye gentleman would have sooner learned that his wife intended to arrive in this city from Andover on Tuesday morning by the first train from Boston; as it was, although she left Andover forty-eight hours after posting her letter, she arrived here before it, and of course did not find her spouse awaiting her, as expected. What excuses he made for his remissness, when the meeting did take place, we of course cannot say; but as he is an experienced newspaper writer he was undoubtedly able to smooth things over all right. He came into our sanctum about five o'clock in the afternoon of that day, explained that he had lost his wife but had found her trunk at the railroad station all right, and enquired if we had any knowledge of the whereabouts of the missing lady—most embarrassing interrogatory, our own matrimonial partner being present at the time.

We presume our Rye friend and his wife have found each other ere this, and we profoundly hope that after President Cleveland is defeated for re-election on the 6th of next month he will order his postmaster-general to use the time remaining to him in an endeavor to improve the mail service, so that it may be handed over to the control of President Harrison's administration in something near the state of efficiency and reliability in which it was received by the "reformers" after quarter of a century of republican management

TORCHLIGHT PARADE.

The democratic campaign companies will have a torchlight parade this evening, weather permitting. Line will be formed at 7:30 on Congress street, right resting on Market square, and the procession will move through Pleasant, Water, State, Middle, Cass, Islington, Bridge, Deer and Vaughan streets, Maplewood avenue, Vaughan, Deer, Market and Congress streets to Middle street, countermarch to the Parade, and dismiss. The Portsmouth band, Spear's brass band of Rye, and the Portsmouth flute and drum band, will furnish the music. There will be a display of fireworks on the Parade at the end of the march.

POLICE COURT—BATCHELDER J.

WEDNESDAY, Oct. 24th.

Michael E. Commeaux, complained of for an alleged aggravated assault on David Barry, was held in $200 for the April term of the supreme court. It is said that Mr. Commeaux is one of the former den-keepers of Gloucester, Mass., who, being driven from that city by the election of a city government which endeavored to enforce the law, came to this city and started here "cribs" such as they had previously managed in Gloucester. He keeps a so-called saloon on Water street, and the evidence offered in court was to the effect that on Tuesday evening, the 23d, while an old man named David Barry, a coal-heaver, nearly seventy years old, was splitting wood in his yard at No. 22 Jefferson street, in the rear of Commeaux's dive, he was attacked by Commeaux with a heavy bottle, beaten to insensibility, and much cut and bruised. Commeaux it is alleged was rather roughly handled later at night by some of Barry's friends. The injured man was attended by Dr. Whittier.

THE ROCKINGHAM CHRISTIAN CONFERENCE.

The annual session of the Rockingham Christian Conference, which was held in the First Christian church at Newton, commencing Wednesday evening, Oct. 17th, and ending Sunday evening, Oct. 21st, was the most successful that has been held for years. The delegation from this city was the largest that attended from any one place, among them being the following: Rev. John A. Hainer, Mr. John H. Locke and wife, Mrs. Fred B. Coleman, Mrs. Charles E. Hatch, Mrs. B. F. Winn, Miss Florence M. Coleman, Miss Fanny Amazeen, Miss Ada Lear and Miss Mary Locke.

The people of Newton were untiring in their efforts to make the delegates feel just as though they were at home, and did everything they could to give them an enjoyable time, for which those who attended from this city have special need to return thanks, and will try and repay them when they visit this city to attend the next conference, which will be held here if suitable arrangements can be made to accommodate them.

The meetings during the week were largely attended, everyone taking an active part in the social and prayer meetings, which made them very interesting and of much profit and good. The singing by the choir and congregation was very fine, their being a large number of singers present from the different churches. On Sunday the choir, in addition to the organ, were assisted by a cornet.

This is a most beautiful season of the year to visit Newton, as the foliage and scenery in and around this village are unsurpassed, and were highly enjoyed by our Portsmouth people. It seemed as though this conference was being held in Portsmouth instead of in Newton, as the attendance from this city and surrounding towns was so large that everybody seemed to be acquainted and sociable, in marked contrast to former occasions of this kind.

The following was the executive board of the conference: L. W. Phillips, of Rye, president; E. E. Colburn of Kittery, secretary; H. J. Rhodes of Manchester; D. L. Bartlett, Amesbury, Mass.; J. E. Everingham, Newton. The following was the programme of the four days of the conference:

WEDNESDAY, Oct. 17th.

7 P. M. Praise service led by Rev. J. A. Hainer, Portsmouth.
7:30 P. M. Sermon. Rev. E. E. Colburn, Kittery.

SUNDAY, Oct. 21st.

9:30 A. M. Social meeting led by Rev. Joel A. Wilson, Kittery, Me.
10:30 A. M. Sermon. Rev. E. K. Amazeen, North Hampton.
1:30 P. M. Sermon. Rev. J. A. Hainer, Portsmouth.
3 P. M. Communion. Rev. J. A. Goss, Haverhill, Mass.
6:30 P. M. Praise service. H. N. Gould, Newton.
7 P. M. Closing sermon. L. W. Phillips, Rye.

The delegates arrived home on Monday, well pleased with their trip, and hoping that the conference to be held in this city next year, will be as interesting and profitable as this was. E. L. M.

NEW TAILOR SHOP.

The Winchester Cadets are to appear in sailor suits. We understand that the suits were made on the Brooklyn yard.—Times.

The above is the most painful item we have experienced for a long while. Had it appeared in a wicked republican paper we should have at once laid it aside as a campaign what-do-you call-it, but coming from such a source it commands attention. Can it be possible that the Brooklyn navy yard, which is under the management of democratic officers and bosses, and especially watched over by Hon. Wm. C. Whitney of New York, who represents the Standard Oil trust in the reform cabinet, has been transformed into a tailor's shop for republican campaign companies? The subject is too depressing for us to pursue further.

Young republicans who will be legally entitled to vote on November 6th for the first time, are requested to hand their names to the ward committees of the wards in which they live, in order that their names may be presented to the inspectors of election to be added to the checklists. Prompt action is requested, that no votes may be lost through the omission from the list of names legally entitled to be there.

Republicans (democrats, too,) can find posted in the Boston & Maine railroad station the checklist of ward one; at John Mitchell's store on Islington street, the checklist of ward three; and at John J. Lask y's store on Pleasant street, the checklist of ward four—these places having been officially designated for the display of the lists for the inspection of legal voters. Every republican should make it his business to look over the list of his ward, and see that his name is thereon, no matter if he has been a voter in the ward ever since the city charter was adopted. It is also advisable to examine the lists for the names of persons who have no right to vote, that the same may be stricken off. No ward committee can know of all who have a right to vote, nor of all who have not that right, in the ward.

The republicans of Newington have a rally in the town hall this evening. Barges will leave the republican headquarters in this city for Newington at 7:30 o'clock; fare for the round trip, twenty-five cents.

The republicans of Greenland will have a rally in the town hall to-morrow evening.

The Ladies' Republican Club of Kittery will give a grand entertainment and supper in Trefethen hall at the Foreside this evening. The Orpheus Club of this city, Miss Flora Hayes and Miss Florence E. Sanderson of Kittery, with other good local talent, will carry out a pleasing programme of exercises.

At the meeting of the "Rivermouth Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle," held at the Methodist vestry on the evening of the 22d inst, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Rev. O. S. Baketel; vice president, Rev. Lee H Fisher; secretary and treasurer, Chas. H. Clough. The meeting will continue to be held at the above named place, the second and fourth Mondays of each month.

Calvin L. Hayes, Esq., of Kittery, for the past summer in the employ of the Boston & Hingham Steamboat Co., arrived home on Tuesday evening of this week.

Mr. William E. Noyes arrived back on the 24th inst. from a week's business trip to the northerly part of York county, Me., in the interests of a New York publishing house.

The ship Grandee, of this port, Winn master, has loaded at New York with a general cargo for Callao, Chili, and will sail early next week.

The schooner F. Merwin, with 507 tons of coal, the Nat Meader, with 443 tons, from Hoboken, the James Flanders, with 468 tons, and the Gracie D. Buchanan, with 1748 tons, from Baltimore, arrived at this port on the 23d inst. and came up on the 24th, all to J. Albert Walker. Also to the same, the schooner Lizzie Guptill, from Rockland with 800 barrels of lime.

Mr. George E. Pierce, grocer and baker at Union Bluff, York, has failed, with liabilities of $2000. The creditors have agreed to accept his offer of twenty-five cents on the dollar.

Mayor Hewitt of New York is a more nominated man than any of the other candidates, whether he gets elected or not. He was first nominated by the Citizens, then by the County democracy, and on the 23d inst. was nominated by the American party. We think he also has two or three other party nominations.

Wholesale stealing by conductors and brakemen on freight trains of the Mexican Central railway has been unearthed; several have already been jailed, and some seventy more will be. The amount stolen is estimated at $50,000.

ROYAL

BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in cans. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO. 106 Wall Street, New York.

Check-List Notice.

THE Board of Inspectors of Check-Lists of the City of Portsmouth give notice that they have posted lists of the voters in the several wards of the city, in the corridor of the City Building; also, of Ward One in the Railroad Station, of Ward Three in the store of John Mitchell on Islington street, of Ward Four in the store of John J. Laskey on Pleasant street, for the inspection of the voters of the city.

They also give notice that they will be in session in the City Building on Friday, October 26th; on Wednesday, October 31st; and on Friday, November 2d, 1888, from 9 o'clock A. M. to 12 M., and from 2 to 5 o'clock P. M., on each of said days, for the purpose of revising and correcting the list of voters.

They will also be in session at the same place from 8 to 10 A. M. and from 1 to 2 o'clock P. M., on the day of election, for the purpose of furnishing certificates to any persons whose names may have been omitted, and who the board are satisfied have resided in the ward one year next preceding said election.

PORTSMOUTH, Oct. 20th, 1888.

IF YOU WANT
To Save Two Dollars
ON EVERY BARREL OF FLOUR, USE
Horsford's Bread Preparation.
It costs less than one cent to raise a pound of flour with Horsford's, while with common baking powders the cost is two cents.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER
THE PUREST AND BEST
Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.
It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.
Sold only in cans, full weight.

EPPS'S COCOA.

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame.—Civil Service Gazette." Made simply by boiling water or milk. Sold only in half-pound tins, by Grocers, labelled thus:

MASON & HAMLIN

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstrating of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with the best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues $22 TO $900, free.

ORGANS

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos that they are superior to all others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "Mason & Hamlin System," by the use of which greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with unequalled durability in tune and other important advantages.

PIANOS

A circular, containing testimony from three hundred purchasers, musicians, and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

Pianos and Organs sold for cash or easy payments; also rented.

SSS

(TRADE MARK)

PEER'S MILL, TEXAS, June 20, 1888.—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: One of my children was troubled with a running sore on its leg for about two years. We gave her various kinds of medicine, but without profit, and began to despair of curing her at all. I was persuaded to try your S.S.S.'s Specific. After she had used several bottles the sore came all disappeared, and she is now a hale, hearty and healthy girl twelve years old. Another child has just become afflicted in the same way, and I am using the S. S. S. and anticipate a prompt and permanent cure. Yours, R. W. WARDLAW.

BEN HILL, MO., July 7, 1888.—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: Our little girl when but three weeks old broke out with eczema. We tried the prescriptions from several good doctors, but without any special benefit. We tried S. S. S., and by the time one bottle was gone her head began to heal, and by the time she had taken six bottles she was completely cured. Now she has a full and heavy head of hair, robust, hearty child. I feel it but my duty to make this statement. Respectfully, H. T. SHOM.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., June 27, 1888.—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: In 1866 I contracted blood poison, and at once sought a physician, who treated me for several months. By his advice I went to Crab Orchard Springs, Ky., where the course of treatment was carefully observed. I recovered, as I thought, but the next spring pimples began to appear on my face and body. These gradually increased to sores and running ulcers. I was advised to try S. S. S., and immediately after taking it I commenced to improve, slowly at first, but more rapidly afterwards, and soon nothing remained to tell of my trouble. My blood is now thoroughly cleansed, and my system free from taint, and I owe my present condition—a perfect one—to your medicine. I cheerfully give this statement that others who have suffered as I have may reap the same benefit. HARDY M. BOYD, 24 West Ninth St.

HOMER, LA., May 25, 1888.—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: About two years ago my good health gave way entirely. I was so debilitated that I almost despaired of ever feeling well again. All that the physicians done for me brought no permanent relief. Friends insisted that I should give S. S. S. a fair trial, although I thought it would be throwing away money. After taking a through course, my health and strength returned, and I must say that S. S. S. alone cured me, as I discarded all others while using it. As a tonic I can most heartily recommend it; for general debility, it certainly is a specific. W. E. BARNES, J. P.

HOMER, LA.—I know Mr. W. F. Bridges, and will say that his statement is correct. JOSIAH SIMPSON, Druggist.

A DISTRESSING COUGH.

How many, especially during the Fall and Winter months, are troubled with a Cough, sometimes dry and hacking, sometimes loose causing the sufferer to raise a large amount of offensive matter; this can soon be cured by using Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs.

Cured her Cough.

Mrs. JEREMIAH CLARK, Lowell, Mass., says: "Twelve years ago I first took a bottle of your Throat and Lung Specific. I had been troubled with a very bad Cough for months. A 50-cent bottle cured my Cough. Since then I have not been without it. I can heartily recommend it to any one who has a bad cough."

Saved his Life.

CHAS. A. WAITT, says: "No language can express the value I attach to your Specific. I believe it saved my life."

We would cite other testimonials did we think it necessary, but a trial bottle will convince you that it is all we represent. Give it a trial.

Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific is sold by all Druggists. Price 50 cents and $1. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

A Cargo of Russian Criminals.

I was enabled to inspect the internal arrangements of the Russian convict transport. Nizhni-Novgorod, which sails hence with 460 criminal deportes for the Russian penal island of Saghalien. The Nizhni-Novgorod is an iron steamer of about 3,800 tons burden and is specially fitted as a convict transport. With a full complement of convicts the vessel carries 652. The more desperate characters are manacled and chained to iron staples in their berths, from which they are released when necessary. Among the 460 convicts carried by the Nizhni-Novgorod about 160 are murderers. Upon the greater number of these murderers, in addition to their various terms of hard labor in the mines and quarries, will be inflicted upon their arrival a number of blows from the knout, varying from fifty to 125, according to their crimes. Manacled and crouching at the end of one of the cages was a convict about 35 years of age. There was nothing particularly villainous in the man's face, though it was by no means well favored by nature. What struck me especially was his pallid look and apparently general bodily languor. Seven years ago this man had committed murder and was sent to Siberia for life, the first five years' hard labor to be worked in the mines. After the expiration of his mine labor he managed to escape, and was only rearrested after committing a second murder.

He is now sentenced to mine labor in Saghalien for life, to receive 125 blows of the knout on arrival on the island, and thereafter to be chained to his barrow or hand wagon for the first twelve months of his sentence. In these cases there is no unchaining; the chains are welded on the convict's limbs. "How long do you imagine this poor wretch will exist under the conditions of his first year's punishment?" I asked my guide, who has spent some years of official service in Saghalien. "Possibly a month—or two. The shorter the better for the poor devil." It is this question which does not appear to occur to the "humanitarian" defenders of the Russian bad code—whether capital punishment were not an unqualified mercy to such criminals, and their number is terribly large in Russia. The convict's horror and dread of having to live out these sentences is shown by the desperate attempts at self destruction he is ever ready to make. The scene on board these departing ships is altogether saddening and depressing, perhaps the more so that one does not hear a murmur or lament from the stolid looking and broken spirited wretches crowded behind the bars of these cages, which remind the spectator only too forcibly of the wild beast dens we are accustomed to see in a traveling menagerie.—Odessa Cor. London News.

How to Prolong Life.

I have been much interested in recent articles on "The Christian Science," "No More Sickness and Death," and "The Prolongation of Life." I like those articles amazingly well, as for years I have had a hobby like them and am still astride of it, only mine is a muscular one, and it doesn't matter whether your thinker is wound up and going or not. If I tell you of it, in an old fashioned way, so you may keep your spine crooked in the right direction and make yourself feel ten or more years younger, it may do some good.

Please call to mind how listlessly old people crawl out of bed in the morning, also if there are any young people in the room getting up, notice how the urchins stretch themselves. Also call to mind how a person just recovering from a sick bed is inclined to do the same. Call to mind how seldom middle aged and old folks are inclined to stretch unless expecting something of importance.

I have found that a good, long stretch in the morning, as soon as on my feet, has turned the bend of my back to the front, has taken the stoop out of my shoulders, and my wife says my hair is becoming dark again. I have sons past 30 years of age who step no lighter than I; and as for my eating qualifications, I defy any man to get away with me.

Of course I take a stretch several times a day, with great benefit. I don't know why it does me good, only to force the blood and other juices of the body where they belong. Anyhow, I know it makes me feel young, and others I have told about it say it does them great good.—James Laurie in New York Sun.

Superstitions of the Highlands.

The belief in fairies and brownies, or the more playful and fanciful kind of fairy, seems to belong more to the Lowlands of Scotland than the Highlands. The character of the people was softer, and the lighter forms of superstitious belief found a more fitting home there than in the Highlands, where the gloomy and austere character of the people led them to invest the supernatural inhabitants of their glens and mountains with something more akin to their own darker and sterner natures.

Thus the fairies and brownies of the Lowlands take in the north the form of warnings, that come in gruesome guise to foretell misfortune and calamity to the family to whom they belong, and to whom they appear when danger or misfortune threatens their patrons. Every great and powerful family in the north was believed to have a supernatural warning or omen which appeared before the death of any prominent member. It varied in most cases, but each family of a clan generally received the same warning before death as the chief. Very striking coincidences no doubt have occurred, quite important enough to convince a highly superstitious people of their infallibility.—Murray's Magazine.

"Swing Bridges" of the East.

At this stage of the proceedings we fall in for the first time during the present expedition with one or two of those famous "swing bridges," which are such a characteristic feature both of India and of Ceylon. Their construction is very simple. Two ropes are stretched from bank to bank about four feet apart, and a number of thin planks fastened across them so as to make a kind of rude footway; but the addition of a handrail on either side is absolutely necessary to make this primitive bridge passable at all, for by the time you get near the middle of it the whole construction is rocking to and fro like a swing, making you feel very much as if you were an acrobat dancing upon a slack rope.—David Ker in New York Times.

Defenders of American Industry.

We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform, 1888.

Annihilating a Multiform Disease.

Miasmatic, or malarial, disease has many forms. Physicians have for the sake of convenience and for the purpose of indicating its most strongly marked forms, subdivided it into intermittent and biliousness remittent fever, dumb ague and ague cake. But it presents an infinite variety of symptoms in different individuals. Be these symptoms what they will, always remember that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will annihilate them at the outset, and prevent their recurrence. A review of the proofs would convince any one of the fact. This, however, is impossible because they are too numerous, and unnecessary because the effects of this grand anti-malaria specific are a matter of common knowledge. No less familiar to the public are its remedial and preventive effects in billious attacks, constipation, dyspepsia, incipient rheumatism, debility and kidney troubles. It is moreover, an excellent appetizer and tonic nervine.

The preidential election will be fought out on the lines laid down months ago. President Cleveland has been accused of having shrunk from the free trade policy he then advocated. The accusation is unjust. * * * President Cleveland is substantially in favor of a financial policy which will impose duties mainly for revenue purposes, will take duties off raw materials, and so widen the market of the American purchaser. These are the aims and this is the policy of the free traders of all countries.—London Saturday Review, Sept. 15th, 1888.

An Important Element

Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. The familiar headline "100 Doses One Dollar," stolen by imitators, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This can easily be proven by any one who desires to test the matter. For real economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists.

We must now place our manufacures by the side of the agriculturist. * * Experience has taught me that manufactures are now as necessary to our independence as to our comfort.—Thomas Jefferson.

Prepared by a combination, proportion and process peculiar to itself, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

It is useless to attempt the cure of any disorder, if the blood is allowed to remain impure. Neuralgia and rheumatism are traceable to a disordered condition of the blood, and in numberless cases have been cured by taking a few bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

It is to the New World that the Cobden Club is chiefly looking as the most likely sphere for its vigorous foreign policy. It has done what it can in Europe, and is now turning its eye westward and bracing itself for the struggle which is to come. It cannot rest while the United States are unsubdued.—London Times, July 18th, 1880.

To-Night and To-Morrow Night,

And each day and night during this week you can get at all druggists Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs, acknowledged to be the most successful remedy ever sold for the cure of Coughs, Croup, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Asthma and Consumption. Get a bottle to-day and keep it always in the house, so you can check your cold at once. Price 50c and $1.00. Sample bottles free.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam, for Coughs and Colds, does, it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles at 50c and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption.

Health Hints for Women.

As nights grow cooler all women who are in the least rheumatic or chilly should sleep in blanket wraps over the nightgown, preventing aches and colds caught by tossing the arms over the head, as well as the loss of sleep that often comes of disturbed circulation. People who use their brains habitually, teachers, writers, artists, must keep warm as the saving of their abilities. They must have fires early, and use footwarmers by day and night, and dress like Esquimaux if necessary, or congestion of the brain or lungs is the penalty. The inflammation of the lungs which carried off George Eliot and Mrs. Browning was descended from the chilliness and poor circulation which these brain workers had borne for years.

Care must be taken, with all this heating, to have a current of warm, fresh air circulating in the rooms and to have it healthily moist. Such precautions give a soft and lovely complexion, equal to the famous Newport bloom. The best way to secure this constant ventilation without draft is by having the top of the window fitted with a perforated board, pierced by many conical borings, only a quarter as wide at the center as at each surface of the hole. This gives a fine, forcible play of minute currents through the room instead of a dangerous large draught. It is a woman's invention, and a very clever one for keeping rooms perfectly healthy and fresh. It is a little remarkable that a plain American woman should have worked out a plan of cheap, efficient ventilation on the same principles as the French invention which drew the applause of scientific men years later.

To keep the air moist the simplest way is to keep a pan of water in the heat register, with a large sponge in it, or a wet towel hung with ends in the water, giving off moisture to the air which floats over it. Pans of water alone do very little good, though better than nothing. The moisture must be directly in the path of the air to be absorbed by it. The water cans for stoves should be large enough to cover the whole top and be kept clean and full of fresh water. Such water pans purify the air as well as keep it moist, as they absorb impurity. A little niter, iodine and salt in the water is very strengthening to breathe, having a mild effect of sea air.—Shirley Dare's Letter.

Horace Greeley and the Colic.

In the spring of 1861 I called, at his request, at his house. The servant told me he was sick in bed. I went to his room. A bureau, with a looking glass, stood in the middle. Two or three chairs, a table and a bed furnished the apartment. Greeley, the very picture of despair, groaned with the colic. I had recently returned from Washington, and it was on the subject of my trip he desired to talk. He suffered intensely, and two or three times he jumped from the bed, and in a kind of dog trot moved about the room, stamping and groaning, but never forgetting the point of his talk.—Joe Howard in Once a Week.

Early Settlers' Curious Tales.

Some of the early settlers of New England sent home curious accounts of the strange land to their friends, whom they evidently enjoyed hoaxing. "Hereabouts," says one of them, "if you sow barley it comes up oats." Another tells of the "lions that prowl about Cape Ann." A third, in 1663, says that the frogs of Massachusetts "sit up on their breeches a foot high, and some are as big as a child that is a year old." The present frogs of that state are degenerate, but the babies of Massachusetts are now certainly bigger than frogs.—Globe-Democrat.

He Quickly Comforted Her.

"It is with unfeigned sorrow and a bleeding heart, Mr. Sampson," said the girl gently, "that I am compelled to say thee nay; but I love another," and tears of sympathy welled into her eyes.

"Now don't be so overcome, Miss Clara," he said earnestly. "It is really of no great consequence; I'll be as chipper as a bird in a day or two, and it pains me to see you thus distressed."

Then she dried her eyes and became quite herself again.—The Epoch.

Secret of Conversation.

The secret of good talking is to have something to say, say it well, cut it short, and be ready to listen. The best talker who will not listen is a bore and a nuisance, and so the verdict is given against him every time. To know how to be silent in many languages is a great accomplishment possessed by few.—Wheeling Intelligencer.

A Professional's Advice.

Whatever you do don't try to be an elocutionist, for if you do you can never act. Elocution and acting are two entirely distinct and separate branches and have nothing to do with each other. This reciting business is the death of acting.—New York World.

The Panama canal, according to the best and most impartial authority in France, The Economiste Francais, has not gained enough from its last loan, after paying usury and expenses, to enable it to continue work six months longer.—Frank Leslie's.

It is often more necessary to conceal contempt than resentment, the former being never forgiven, but the latter sometimes forgot.—Lord Chesterfield.

A Hindostanee merchant has come to New York with five clerks to open a shop for the sale of Hindostanee goods.

It is said that a person who is in the habit of carrying a cane never loses an umbrella.

A Pioneer's Family Basket.

It was early in March, long years ago, when one of the pioneer settlers of Oxford county made up his mind to move his family from Massachusetts to that favorite region. He had seven little ones and feared they could not endure so long a journey and the piercing cold. How do you think he took care of them? The father obtained from a neighbor a great basket, twelve feet by six, and four feet high. It was fitted on an ox sled and was made for the purpose of transporting grass seed. The seven little ones were packed in straw in this basket, like so many kittens or pigs, and made the journey safe and warm. The basket is yet preserved by the pioneer's descendants.—Lewiston Journal.

The Making of Fancy Candies.

In the big factories lozenges and mottoes are stamped in the sheet and then cut out separately with patent cutters. Wafer lozenges are more carefully prepared than the thick, round kind. The latter are fed into a machine like a job printing press, by the sheet, and come out round, hard confections. Wafers are cut by hand. Fruits are now crystallized to some extent by wholesalers in this country, but not as successfully as in France. Opinions differ on this matter. Some dealers declare that here the fault alone is in the quality of the fruit. Others assert that we have not acquired the French secret of preparing the syrups and getting them to penetrate to the heart of the fruit. The finish of fine candies is put on by wholesalers in the same way as in retail houses, where all work is performed by hand. The syrup used in the process of crystallization is used in the making of clear candies and stick goods.—Chicago Herald.

Mistletoe on Telegraph Wires.

A traveler in Brazil writes to a horticultural paper telling of the crop of mistletoe that he found growing on telegraph wires near Rio Janeiro. When he first saw it he thought that floods had left weeds hanging to the wires, but a nearer inspection and the height of the wires convinced him that the apparent weeds were thousands of little mistletoes firmly fixed to the wires. Many species of this plant grow in Brazil, and some, called "bird weeds," bear berries which are eaten by birds. The seeds are deposited on the telegraph wires and take root. They are short lived, of course, but the constant deposits of seed clothe the wires with this curious fringe.—New York Sun.

A Cure for Sleeplessness.

The terrible evil of insomnia has so many different sources that the utmost we can hope from any single artifice is to afford relief from it under one special form. I venture to think I have hit upon a plan which thus remedies a very common (not aggravated) kind of sleeplessness, and, with your permission, will endeavor to make your readers who may be fellow sufferers, sharers in my little discovery. It is now, I believe, generally accepted that our conscious, daylight thinking processes are carried on in the sinister half of our brains—i. e., in the lobe which controls the action of the right arm and leg. Pondering on the use of the dexter half of the brain—possible in all unconscious cerebration, and in whatsoever may be genuine of the mysteries of planchette and spirit rapping—I came to the conclusion (shared, no doubt, by many other better qualified inquirers) that we dream with this lobe, and that the fantastic, immoral, sprite like character of dreams is, in some way, traceable to that fact.

The practical inference then struck me; to bring back sleep when lost, we must quiet the conscious, thinking, sinister side of our brains, and bring into activity only the dream side, the dexterlope. To do this, the only plan I could devise was to compel myself to put aside every waking thought, even soothing and pleasant ones, and every effort of daylight memory, such as counting numbers or the repetition of easy flowing verses, the latter having been my not wholly unsuccessful practice for many years. Instead of all this, I saw I must think of a dream, the more recent the better, and go over and over the scene it presented. Armed with this idea, the next time I found myself awakening at 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning, instead of merely trying to banish painful thoughts, and repeating, as was my habit, that recommendable soporific, "Paradise and the Peri," I reverted at once to the dream from which I had awakened, and tried to go on with it. In a moment I was asleep! And from that time the experiment, often repeated, has scarcely ever failed. Not seldom the result is sudden as the fall of a curtain, and seems like a charm. A friend to whom I have confided my little discovery tells me that, without any preliminary theorizing about the lobes of the brain, she had hit upon the same plan to produce sleep, and had found it wonderfully efficacious.—Cor. London Spectator.

Anchovies and Porpoises.

Anchovies are so plenty at Trebizond that they are sold for 27 cents a hundred weight for food for paupers and for fertilizing purposes, and during the first part of the season each year so many are thrown away that the whole city is pervaded with the smell of their rottenness. Porpoises are also very plentiful, about 40,000 hundred weight a year being caught, according to the British consul, which yield about half that weight of oil.—New York Sun.

Georgian and Circassian.

The Georgian has a beauty quite different from that of the Circassian. The Circassian is dazzling, queen like and stately. She has a fair skin. She is elegant in form. She is kindly and gentle in voice, but lazy in movement and without spirit. One of her own sex has said: "There is no soul in a Circassian beauty; and as she pillows her pure, pale cheek upon her small dimpled hand, you feel no inclination to arouse her into exertion; you are contented to look upon her and to contemplate her loveliness." The Georgian is a creature with eyes like meteors and teeth almost as dazzling as her eyes. Her mouth does not wear the sweet and unceasing smile of her less vivacious rival. But the proud expression that sits upon finely arched lips accords so well with her stately form and lofty brow that you do not seek to change its character.—Home Journal.

Origin of Color Blindness.

That the origin of color blindness lies in the brain, and not in the eye, has been suggested by Professor Ramsay. While engaged in teaching in Brooklyn some years ago, the principal of a school insisted in treating every case of the sort as dependent on the will of the pupil. His remedy was the rod. This certainly seemed a tyrannical and unwarranted treatment, but the result was favorable to his theory. Is it possible that a thorough examination will ultimately demonstrate that the fault lies very largely in the shiftless methods of observation which have grown up under the old classical system of education, and which have to a large extent become hereditary?—Science.

My Poor Back!

That "poor back" is held responsible for more than its share of the sufferings of mankind. If your dog bites a man who kicks it, do you blame the dog? On the same principle the kidneys utter their protest against nervousness, impure blood, and resulting constipation. These force them to do extraordinary work in ridding the system of the poisons which are the result of effete matter retained in the blood. Then the sufferer says the back aches; the kidneys are diseased. "Not yet;" but they will be unless the nerves are strengthened, the blood purified, and the constipation removed. These are the causes of kidney troubles, and Paine's Celery Compound removes them quickly. With its tonic, purifying, and laxative effect, it also strengthens the weak kidneys, making it almost infallible in curing all diseases of the nerves and kidneys. If your hopes of cure have not been realized, try Paine's Celery Compound; it gives perfect health to all who complain of "their poor backs." Price $1.00.

NEW YORK FASHION LETTER.

COMBINATIONS—WAYS OF MAKING—COLORS—OUT DOOR GARMENTS.

Economical wives and mothers, to say nothing of grown-up daughters, can find in the combinations of combination costumes, a powerful weapon wherewith to fight off evidences of poverty, often more grating to the sensibilities than its actual evils. Two, three, and even four materials are constantly put together, the same being frequently of most diverse pattern and color. Marked contrast in the latter is indeed very fashionable, but different shades of the same hue give the toned effects now so popular, while if the strange unitings of color be also considered, thrifty possibilities grow up to extremes hitherto thought impossible. Black, moreover, is a potent factor and often a needful basis, without regard to the utilizing of some stray bit of goods. In

WAYS OF MAKING

The fall brings notable modifications; chiefly in favor of thin figures as to corsages, and plump ones as to skirts. Sleeves, for example, are no longer the straight, severe and trying things they were, mercilessly bringing out the pipe-stem outlines of a stick-like arm. In the heaviest goods, some friendly gathers appear at the top, and the entire cut past the elbow is much less vigorous, while for lighter weight material, full sleeves are much in vogue. The corsage may be so baggy that a broom-stick might seem of proper dimensions, as witness in particular, the Zouave jacket fronts over a blouse underfront, with a broad sash shirred and sewn in the side seams and tied in a large bow in front at the waist line, or sometimes a little below. From this extreme example, there are gradual modifications until the close-fitting corsage may be reached, but even here various adjuncts such as vests, revers, chemisettes or fancifully placed trimmings, give opportunity for seasonable additions. In skirts, however, plain falling draperies are almost the rule. Panels and panel effects are well nigh supreme, but even in skirts, intelligent deficiency can avail itself of the exceptional, and seem where it is impossible to be. New departures in dress necks, are a benefit to everybody, since the casing-in of a long, thin neck by an extremely high, stiff collar, gives a ramrod look, to say nothing of thinness imparted to the thin face above; while the contemplation of a thick-necked woman wearing a mucilitoo-high and unyielding band about the throat, is not only ridiculous, but gives uncomfortable forebodings of apoplexy. In dressy costumes at least, there is relaxation, the collar being turned over in front; and innovation thus made, progress becomes probable. In

COLORS,

Green in yellow or grayish shades remains prominent. Mahogany has changed in tints, and comes in new names, such as etusque, vernis, etc.; browns show yellowish lights that lead up to tan, which is largely used for giving relief; gray with brown and blue tinges, graduates from dark to light; blue is liked in porcelain colors, and serpent and lava tints show gray and green together. Blendings are in order, and to find positive colors one must go to seal brown, navy blue and dark green. These latter are likewise much more economical than peculiar shades that have their day and then vanish. A hint may be given, too, that ladies who regard expense use Clark's Mile End cotton in place of silk, because of its strength, smoothness and elasticity; the more so because it is dyed in all new colors. In passing, it can be noted also, that the same brand of crochet cotton leads for the now fashionable crochet work. In

OUT DOOR GARMENTS,

Plush has given way to velvet, armure, repped faille, satin, Aricobin, peau de Swede, a heavy lusteless silk brought out especially for cloaking, and Sicilienne in new qualities. The favorite trimmings are fur; chiefly lynx, black bear, Alaska or Hudson bay sable. Quilted satine linings are warm and bring relief from the heaviness of plush, which however will be worn by those who have garments of it. Many stylish Newmarkets and some Raglans are made of smooth-faced beaver cloth in black, gray, fawn, blue or red, trimmed usually with Persian lambskin, a curly black fur the order of astrakhan, but more silky. Jackets are made of similar material. Plush in light or black colors is still used for opera cloaks; the rich materials first mentioned are also employed in pale or bright shades, and trimmed with yellow tinged lynx fur or heavy llama fringe. Distinguished cloaks are made of very fine cloth heavily inwrought with tinsel. The new shapes have been mentioned previously.

LUCY CARTER.

[Special to the Chronicle.]

NEW YORK, Oct, 25th. — The latest trick to which the democratic national committee has had to resort materialized yesterday. It is the result of long study on the part of the political stock jobbing of Chairman Brice, and of careful coaching and suggestions from the White House through the ever fertile private secretary, Dan Lamont. It has been in rehearsal the past two weeks, and the principals are so well versed in their parts that the performance, it is said, will go off with the precision of clock work and the appearance of spontaneity. Chairman Brice lies awake nights, not only concocting schemes for squeezing the poor office holders and enthusiastic and wealthy democratic partisans, but in formulating tricks to play upon his wide-awake and vigilant adversaries, who are kept constantly posted as to his innermost thoughts almost, and are therefore ever ready to demonstrate the dishonesty at the democratic maneuvers. It has been so throughout this campaign, and every disreputable scheme of Brice, Barnum, Gorman, et als., has been promptly and effectually exposed.

In this latest attempt to turn voters to the democratic party, Chairman Brice's nickle-plated methods have been re-enforced by White House resources, and the combination thus effected hope to score a point which they could not reach by any other means. It is stated from the very best and most unimpeachable authority that the president has lent himself to this little trick, and consented to become chief actor therein. He is to reach New York on Friday, ostensibly for the purpose of reviewing the democratic business men's parade of Saturday. On arriving here the president is to be tendered a formal reception, at which there is to be speech making, and on this occasion there will be enacted the new comedy of "'Burchard' reversed; or, Cleveland's defence of the foreign voting element." It will be in one act, and will be performed at once, by special request.

It appears (says my informant, and he is of such high standing that his statement cannot be gainsaid) that President Cleveland is to be addressed by a well known gentleman, who in the course of his remarks will extol the free trade policy in flattering language, and who will then suddenly begin a fierce attack upon the foreign voters. He will have uttered but a few choice sentences on this subject when Mr. Cleveland, well rehearsed in his part, will take his cue, and turning upon the speaker and striking the most dramatic attitude of which he is capable, will in sharp tone and with peremptory manner simulated for the occasion, command the distinguished "Burchard" to desist, saying "Stop right there. I will not allow you to proceed in this strain," etc. Then the president, taking up the theme, will proceed to make the most of his situation, and will continue in laudatory terms of the foreign element.

The president's hope is to turn to his personal advantage an episode of the previous campaign, and to appear to show that he will not permit any attack made upon that large portion of the body politic without administering a rebuke. But the whole thing has been arranged for its theatrical effect upon the public, under the care of Chairman Brice, who believes that this visit of the president can be advantageously used to play upon Irish and weak protection voters. Presi- party to such a proceeding is in direct line with his course throughout this campaign. Voters of foreign birth will not be taken in by any clap-trap of this description.

The Yellow Fever.

Jacksonville had thirty-one new cases and four deaths on the 24th; total cases to date, 3093, deaths, 337.

It was announced on the 24th, and the truth of the report acknowledged by the state health officers, that yellow fever has existed in Enterprise, Volusia county, Fla., since last June. There have been about twenty cases in all, and two or three deaths, in a population of 700; the last death was that of a clergyman, who died Oct. 20th; there are now six cases in the town, the two local doctors having been taken down. The action of the authorities in concealing the state of affairs is severely censured. Orange county, Fla., has quarantined against Enterprise.

Another "Mysterious" Mail Robbery.

A despatch of Oct. 25th from Chicago, Ill., says: "The mail pouch which left Boston on Tuesday and arrived in Chicago last evening over the Michigan Southern railroad was robbed of all the first class mail matter it contained. The stolen package consisted of registered letters, and the supposition is that a large amount of money was secured by the thief. The rifled pouch came to this city in charge of railroad mail clerk Stevenson, to whom it had been turned over at Cleveland. On reaching the Chicago post-office he immediately reported the robbery to Inspector Ridder. The bag had been cut open, the thief taking the package containing the first class matter only. This leads to the belief that the perpetrator of the robbery was some one connected with the postal service. The robbery is supposed to have been committed some time after leaving The bag was transferred but once after leaving Boston, at Albany. Mail Clerk Stevenson is confident that the job cannot have been done on his run, as none but the regular men were in the car and none of these approached the bag." There has been altogether too much of this kind of business carried on during the past three years; it should be stopped until after election day, at least.

A "Protection" Englishman Talks.

The republicans of Cambridgeport, Mass., had a rally in Union hall on the evening of Oct. 24th, and one of the speakers was Mr. Pettifer, the English high tariff advocate, who said the Irish were considered by the people of England to be one of the most restless classes of people on the earth; "and why shouldn't they be?" he asked. "Without employment and without money, what else can we expect of them? They have been brought to their present condition as a direct result of the free trade system. With business prosperity they would be one of the most peaceful of people. Home Rule would be a good thing for Ireland, but if a protective tariff was not immediately applied throughout their manufacturing and commercial interests, dire misfortune rather than good would result." He drew parallels between the conditions of the wage-workers in this country, under protection, and in England under free trade, and showed the hopeless condition of the latter.

John H. Wilkins, a railway postal clerk between New York and Pittsburg, Pa., was arrested in the act of rifling a letter he had stolen Oct. 23d.

"Spike" Murphy was on the 23d inst. found guilty of the murder of Waterman Irons in his store at Providence, R. I., several months ago.

Montreal has an epidemic of typhoid fever.

Nathan Corwith & Co. of Chicago, the largest lead merchants in the world, not half that amount.

Three inches of snow fell in Farmington, Me., Oct. 24th.

All the horse railroads in Brooklyn operated by the Cross Town railroad company were "tied up" on Oct. 25th, over 400 conductors and drivers leaving their work, The president of the company, Gen. Slocum, is a prominent democrat.

J. A. Swan, treasurer of Knoxville county, Tenn., has emigrated; shortage $25,000.

Workingmen are studying the tariff question. This is quite enough. If workingmen will simply look into the matter, not follow blind prejudice, they will soon be convinced that protection is the right policy. This isn't theory. It is experience. Free traders say that one American can do as much work in a day as two Europeans. Well, if he can, he ought to have twice as much for doing it.

Prominent Clerygymen, Physicians, and all classes of citizens are unanimous in the endorsement of Salvation Oil, the greatest curse for rheumatism.

No greater guarantee of the excellence of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup could be furnished than that it is recommended by all leading druggists.

The head of the Servian church has granted King Milan a divorce from Queen Natalie.

To any one purchasing a bottle of Constitutional Cough Syrup of me and it does not give satisfaction I will refund the money. David Kimball & Co., No. 36 Market street.

The democratic leaders in New York concede the return to the republican party of 76,000 mugwumps in the Empire state who voted for Cleveland in 1884.

"Florence Home Needle Work" 1888

is now ready. Contains 96 pages with nearly 250 illustrations. The subjects are Dannsic Stitches—Tapestry and Italian Embroidery—Drawn Work, Darning—Crochet &c. It teaches ladies how to make for trimming their garments in latest fashion. Book mailed to any address on receipt of six cents.

NONOTUCK SILK CO., Florence, Mass.

Goes right to the heart of Dirt and Filth

Pearline makes everything as clean as possible, in less time, with less labor, with less wear and tear on yourself or the objects cleaned, and at less expense than anything else known. And this accounts for its wonderful growth and popularity. Used all over the United States. Every woman who does her own work will appreciate its wonderful aid by giving it one fair trial. Every woman who keeps a servant should supply that servant with PEARLINE—the result will be a better servant, better work and more of it, and a mistress better satisfied.

Beware

Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers are offering imitations which they claim to be Pearline, or "the same as Pearline." It's false—they are not, and besides are dangerous. PEARLINE is never peddled, but sold by all good grocers.
Manufactured only by JAMES PYLE, New York.

The First Symptoms

Of all Lung diseases are much the same: feverishness, loss of appetite, sore throat, pains in the chest and back, headache, etc. In a few days you may be well, or, on the other hand, you may be down with Pneumonia or "galloping Consumption." Run no risks, but begin immediately to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Several years ago, James Birchard, of Darien, Conn., was severely ill. The doctors said he was in Consumption, and that they could do nothing for him, but advised him, as a last resort, to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. After taking this medicine, two or three months, he was pronounced a well man. His health remains good to the present day.

J. S. Bradley, Malden, Mass., writes: "Three winters ago I took a severe cold, which rapidly developed into Bronchitis and Consumption. I was so weak that I could not sit up, was much emaciated, and coughed incessantly. I consulted several doctors, but they were powerless, and all agreed that I was in Consumption. At last, a friend brought me a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. From the first dose, I found relief. Two bottles cured me, and my health has since been perfect."

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

PREPARED BY
Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by all Druggists. Price $1; six bottles, $5.

RAILROAD TROUBLES.

There is considerable talk in financial circles relative to the future posture of the Eastern railroad, or at least a very considerable body of its stockholders, toward the Boston & Maine railroad. It is suggested that if the B. & M. had been contented with the Eastern road and its leased lines and Maine Central ownership, the dividends of both roads would have been assured; that the Lowell lease and consequent big loss in operating the Massachusetts Central road, which is expected to reach far west by-and-bye but which now is not remunerative, and other undertakings of the B. & M., have postponed the dividends of the Eastern, which if now free from its entangling alliance with the B. & M., would be on a dividend paying basis; or even if the B. & M. had not diminished the chances of the Eastern dividend by enlarging the liabilities of the lessor, there might not be cause of complaint. As it is, the rumors are that a syndicate of stockholders will ask to have the lease set aside. Many of the Boston & Maine shareholders say they would prefer to return to five per cent dividends earned on the main line, to the possible advantages (?) of operating all kinds of railroads with no possibility that dividends can exceed, either lawfully or by any process of arithmetic, those of former days when the managers contended themselves with doing the business which naturally belonged to their line.

MEANS IT, EVIDENTLY.

Capt. J. Gilman Moses, of Maplewood avenue, well know as a veteran democrat, on Thursday morning, Oct. 25th, hoisted at his residence a flag twenty-eight feet long, bearing in two-foot letters the advice to "☞ VOTE FOR PROTECTION."

Wonder if Capt. Moses is classed by our State street contemporary among the anti-Cleveland democrats who "will be found at the polls on the morning of election day seeking to sell their vote to the highest bidder!"

MUSIC HALL.

Do not forget Muldoon's picnic at Music hall, Saturday night. All lovers of base ball should be on hand and give Mahoney, the favorite base ball umpire of last season, now playing with this company, a grand reception. Tickets at Goodrich's.

PERSONAL.

Hon. John Laighton and wife returned on Thursday from a week's visit in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Rev. J. H. Robbins of Claremont, formerly of this city, has been chosen president of the Sullivan County Bible society.

Lafayette S. Butler, Esq., cashier of the New Hampshire National bank, left this city last Thursday morning on a trip to New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, to occupy about ten days. This is the first vacation taken by Mr. Butler for a number of years.

Elder Arthur A. Waite, who established a record in this city several years ago as a revivalist, has been again heard from. He is now in Kansas City, Mo., under the name of Daring Donald McKay, and is a great medicine man.

The democratic torchlight parade on Thursday evening, by the local companies and a company from Rye, was a big one, and drew many spectators to the streets, most of whom however went home before the jolly display of Roman candles and rockets on the Parade at ten o'clock. The three bands and the company drum corps made plenty of noise, and the Sinclair Cadets exhibited much the best drill.

The Winchester Cadets of this city and the Wentworth Guards of Kittery go to Dover this evening by special train, to take part in the grand republican demonstration in that city.

The republicans of Greenland have a rally in the town hall this evening.

Congressman McKinney and Hon. P. Doherty of Boston will speak in Music hall this evening, in favor of Cleveland and Thurman.

Young republicans who will be legally entitled to vote on November 6th for the first time, are requested to hand their names to the ward committees of the wards in which they live, in order that their names may be presented to the inspectors of election to be added to the checklists. Prompt action is requested, that no votes may be lost through the omission from the list of names legally entitled to be there.

The checklist inspectors will be in session to-day at the city rooms. Every republican voter whose name is left off the list, or who knows of a democratic non-voter whose name is on the list, should make it his business to be present and have the error rectified.

Mr. Chas. B. Rand, the gentlemanly and energetic clerk at Benj. Green's pharmacy, went to Concord this week to be examined for registered druggist.

Francis Partridge fell from a car at the Dover Point bridge, Thursday forenoon, and had one shoulder broken and his head badly bruised. He was taken to his daughter's residence on Noble's island.

Mr. Jos. G. Knight of Lynn, Mass., formerly of this city, and who was active in the establishing here of the enterprise which has since expanded into the Portsmouth Shoe Co.'s business, has leased the Bartlett shoe factory at Epping, and will immediately fit it for the manufacture of boots and shoes. This probably puts an end to the prospect of the immediate establishment of the recently talked of shoe factory in Kittery.

Preston's Jamaica Ginger is increasing in popularity.

A fine assortment of pocket and corn knives, button-hole and pocket scissors; also razers in great variety, at Grace's drug store.

The daily call at Staples' Dry Goods store: "Got any more of those remnants of drilling at 6 1-2 cents?"

We have.

Pears' is the purest and best Soap made.

A meeting of citizens was held in Bangor, Me., on the evening of Oct. 23d, under a call to hear and consider propositions for the sale of the Bangor & Piscataquis railroad, made by the Castine & Bangor railroad company and by Frank Jones. There was considerable discussion, and the whole matter was finally laid on the table.

The schooner Henry Sutton, from Baltimore with 1003 tons of coal to J. Albert Walker, arrived Oct. 25th.

Randall's Book Bindery is in the full tide of business success. The superior quality of the work turned out has already won for the establishment an enviable reputation. Book lovers will consult their interest as well as pleasure by giving a little time to examination of the bindery and its products. To those who have not done so we promise a genuine surprise.

The Globe Grocery Co. of this city will shortly open a branch in Saco, Me., where a large store has been leased and is now being fitted for the business. The entire stock of groceries in the store of the late Mr. Carpenter of Saco, who was prostrated in the cars some weeks ago while on his way to Kittery to attend a military reunion, and a few hours later died at the Cottage Hospital in this city, has been purchased by the company, and will be transferred to the new store, which will be conducted by Mr. Ralph Merrow of Cape Neddick, who was in charge of the Globe Grocery Co.'s branch store at York beach during the past summer.

The same old verdict of the frontier jury: "Not guilty, but he'd better not do it again." A man was killed by a railroad train on a grade crossing in Augusta, Me., recently. The coroner's jury declared that there was no one to blame, and then recommended a gate or an electric light at that point! The victim's widow proposes to sue the road, claiming criminal negligence in not having the crossing lighted and guarded.

A lady living in Saco was some time ago knocked down and severly injured while walking on the sidewalk, by a young man from Ohio who was visiting in Saco, and was riding a bicycle on the the sidewalk. The lady has has taken legal steps against the city for $5000.

The most charming and artistic calendar for 1889 that has reached our desk comes from the Chicago & North Western railway company. The scene upon it is in itself a fine work of art, being the reproduction in a fine engraving of a wonderfully realistic photograph. A celebrated photographer was engaged in taking views along the Maine coast and has just fixed his camera opposite a double line of rocks at York beach over which the sea was dashing at the time, when a group of merry, unconscious children in bathing costume dashed down to the water's edge. Just as they were about to take the plunge a warning voice bade them be careful, and they turned to ask in chorus "Who's afraid?" It was here that the artist caught them, and the resulting picture was a most lifelike one. The railway company obtained permission of the parents of these children, who are well known in New England social circles, to have this photograph engraved this calendar have been distributed free, but so great is the desire to possess one of these beautiful works of art that even the generous North Western calls a halt. Copies of this picture, which is spoken of in art circles as a "modern classic," in connection with a chaste and ornate calendar for 1889, will be sent, postage paid, to any address, in return for twenty-five cents in stamps or postal note; or for two dollars nine copies will be sent, express free, to any point in the United States, by E. P. Wilson, general passenger Agent, Chicago & Northwestern Railway, Chicago, Ill.

The Seaboard (formerly the Nautical Gazette) and the Maritime Reporter, of New York, have been consolidated under one management and name, and the first number of "The Maritime Reporter and Seaboard" was issued Oct. 25th. The papers have each been widely known in nautical circles as able and staunch advocates of whatever would tend to advance our maritime interests, and the consolidation will enable them to exert a far greater influence than either alone could do.

Newell Locke, a farmer of Seabrook, died Oct. 24th from a shock of paralysis. He was found insensible in his barn, where he had been at work sorting apples.

TWENTY-FIVE DOLLARS IN GOLD.

A novel advertisement of the Globe Grocery Co. of this city has appeared, in which they offer as a prize twenty-five dollars for the nearest guess on the plurality of the successful candidate at the coming presidential election, in New York. Twenty-five dollars on the same in New Hampshire, and the same amount in Maine. The parties guessing must be residents of Rockingham county, N. H., or York county, Me., and the estimated plurality must be written on a postal card and sent to them with the address of the guesser, prior to the 1888 election. In case two or more guess alike to the nearest plurality, then the amount will be awarded by lot, or divided, as parties agree. The decision and award to be made by the editors of the Penny Post, and to be final. Here is a chance for every man, woman and child to try for twenty-five dollars in gold.

THE WEATHER.

We hear people say "Oh, never mind the weather;" the sailor says "We're under the weather," etc.; but who ever saw the like of the weather this fall? Truly this presidential campaign will never be forgotten; many good times planned for these usually lovely two months, September and October, have been postponed or abandoned; all classes are affected by it. We knew a woman who honestly did not know that the sun rose on a cloudy day; what would she have thought had she lived in these days? We had hoped that this moon would have favored us better, but it is rain and clouds all the time. We hope the Indian summer has not forgotten us, but will appear in November if not before. The farmer complains that nothing dries; the stable keeper, that there is no call for teams; the hotels are silent, the tourists are scarce, and seemingly there never was known such weather." H.

There is a conflict of opinion as to how Virginia will go on Nov. 6th. Cleveland had 6000 majority, round numbers, in 1884; in 1886 the republicans had nearly 21,000 majority in the congressional elections, and secured seven of the ten congressmen. The democratic managers now claim the state for Cleveland by "not much under 10,000 majority," while the republican managers say Harrison will have a majority not less than 14,000. As Gen Mahone is working with the republicans this year, the democratic outlook is decidedly blue.

Nothing like taking a man for president who, with no thought of reward, Most men who are faithful over a few things may safely be made rulers over many things. General Harrison became the leading citizen of his state, a man who won the respect of everybody when there was no political preference at stake; and Mr. Morton, by his ability and generosity, came to be a representative citizen of the highest type, before either of them was nominated for public office.

Mrs. Roscoe Conkling has given fifty dollars to the Conkling Unconditionals, a Harrison & Morton club of Utica, N. Y. Fifty dollars will not go very far, but the significance of the gift will.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

Check-List Notice.

THE Board of Inspectors of Check-Lists of the City of Portsmouth give notice that they have posted lists of the voters in the several wards of the city, in the corridor of the City Building, also, of Ward One in the Railroad Station, of Ward Three in the store of John Mitchell on Islington street, of Ward Four in the store of John J. Laskey on Pleasant street, for the inspection of the voters of the city.

They also give notice that they will be in session in the City Building on Friday, October 26th; on Wednesday, October 31st; and on Friday, November 2d, 1888, from 9 o'clock A. M. to 12 M., and from 2 to 5 o'clock P. M., on each of said days, for the purpose of revising and correcting the list of voters.

They will also be in session at the same place from 8 to 10 A. M. and from 1 to 3 o'clock P. M., on the day of election, for the purpose of furnishing certificates to any persons whose names may have been omitted, and who the board are satisfied have resided in the ward one year next preceding said election.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of cabinet organs, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as evidence of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues $22 TO $900. Free.

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim, for their pianos, that they are superior to all others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, and shall claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGS," by which greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune and other important advantages.

PIANOS

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians, and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

TRADE MARK

Pert's Mill, Texas, June 20, 1888—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: One of my children was troubled with rheumatism and boils for about two years. We spent a fortune for various kinds of medicine, but without profit, and began to despair of ever finding her at all. I was persuaded to try your Swift's Specific. After she had used several bottles the diseases all disappeared, and she is now in perfect health and healthy girl twelve years old. Another child has just been cured of a disease of the scalp, and I am using the S. S. S. and anticipate a prompt and complete cure. R. C. WADDOUP.

Rich Hill, Mo., July 7, 1888—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: Our little girl when but three weeks old broke out with eczema. We tried the prescriptions from several good doctors, but without any special benefit. We tried S. S. S., and by the time one bottle was gone her head began to heal, and by the time she had taken six bottles she was completely cured. Now she has a full and heavy head of hair—a robust, hearty child. I feel it but my duty to make this statement. Respectfully, H. T. SHOOK.

Centralia, Texas, June 27, 1888—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: In 1884 I contracted blood poison, and at once sought a physician, who treated me for several months. By his advice I went to Crab Orchard Springs, Ky., where his course of treatment was carefully observed. I recovered, as I thought, but the next spring pimples began to appear on my face and body. These gradually increased to sores and running ulcers. I was advised to try S. S. S., and immediately after taking it I commenced to improve, slowly at first, but more rapidly afterwards, and soon nothing remained to tell of my trouble. My blood is now thoroughly cleansed, and my system free from taint, and I owe my present condition—a perfect cure—to your medicine. I cheerfully give this statement that others who have suffered as I have may reap the same benefit. HARDY M. BURT, 24 West Ninth St.

Hooper, La., May 25, 1888—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: About two years ago my general health gave way entirely. I was so debilitated that I almost despaired of ever feeling well again. All that the physicians done for me brought no permanent relief. Friends insisted that I should give S. S. S. a fair trial, although I thought it would be throwing away money. After taking a thorough course, my health and strength returned, and I must say that S. S. S. alone cured me, as I discarded all others while using it. As a tonic I can most heartily recommend it; for general debility, it certainly is a specific. W. F. BIDDER.

Hooper, La.—I know Mr. W. F. Bridges, and will say that his statement is correct.

A DISTRESSING COUGH.

How many, especially during the Fall and Winter months, are troubled with a Cough, sometimes dry and hacking, sometimes loose causing the sufferer to raise a large amount of offensive matter; this can soon be cured by using Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs.

Cured her Cough.

Mrs. Jeremiah Clark, Lowell, Mass., says: "Twelve years ago I first took a bottle of your Throat and Lung Specific. I had been troubled with a very bad Cough for months. A 50-cent bottle cured my Cough. Since then I have not been without it. I can heartily recommend it to any one who has a bad cough."

Saved his Life.

Chas. A. Waitt, says: "No language can express the value I attach to your Specific. I believe it saved my life."

We would cite other testimonials did we think it necessary, but a trial bottle will convince you that it is all we represent. Give it a trial.

Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific is sold by all Druggists. Price 50 cents and $1. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

Death by the Guillotine.

The Progres Medical publishes a paper by Drs. Regnard and Loye on the examination of the head and body of a convict immediately after his decapitation by the guillotine.

The prisoner was calm to the last and not pale, even when his neck was fixed ready to receive the fatal knife. Two seconds after the decapitation the cheeks were still rosy, the eyes wide open, with moderately dilated pupils, the mouth firmly closed. When a finger was placed close to one eye no change of expression took place, but on touching an eye or the tips of the lashes during the first five seconds, the lids closed just as in life. This reflex could not be excited from the sixth second after decapitation. The jaws were tightly closed and could not be opened by manual force. No similar muscular contraction could be detected in the trunk or extremities. One minute after death the face began to turn pale, the trunk remained flaccid, the carotids continuing to throw out blood remaining in the circulatory area. At the end of four minutes the face was quite pale, the upper lids were half closed, the jaws less firmly clenched than before. The knife passed through the lower part of the fourth cervical vertebra.

These researches show that not a trace of consciousness remains two seconds after beheading; that reflex movement of the cornea can be excited for two seconds; that the heart may beat for an hour, the auricles continuing to pulsate alone for half that period, and that, putting aside the reflex movements of the eyelid, the contraction of the jaws and the jets of blood from the carotids, it seemed in this case as though a corpse had been decapitated, so inert were the remains of the convict. Drs. Regnard and Loye note how calm and free even from physiological death struggle symptoms is death by the guillotine. There is not even asphyxia.—British Medical Journal.

The Baby Beaver's Dam.

"I know of a naturalist down in eastern Maine," said a well known Maine college professor, "who wouldn't be convinced that beavers could build dams till he saw it done with his own eyes. He is an awful incredulous fellow, any way. I bought a baby beaver of a hunter who traps them, one day, and sent him to my skeptical friend. He grew greatly attached to the little fellow and kept him in the house, but he often wrote me that his beaver didn't show any propensity at all for dam building. One Monday, washing day, his wife sat a leaky pail full of water on the kitchen floor. The beaver was in the kitchen, he was only a baby then, too, and he saw the water oozing out of a crack in the pail. He scampered out into the yard, brought in a chip and began building his dam. The naturalist was summoned. He watched the little fellow, thunderstruck. Said he, 'Leave that pail there, wife, till doomsday, if need be, and let's see what the little fellow will do.' The beaver kept at it four weeks, until he had built a solid dam clean around the pail. My naturalist friend is quite a beaver man today. They say, you know, that way down east there is a beaver dam that $200,000 couldn't build the like of. Oh! men don't know everything. The wasp knew how to make paper before we did."—Lewiston Journal.

Bogus Epileptic Fits.

Epileptic fits are often stimulated by beggars to excite sympathy, and by prisoners to avoid work. A few years ago a combination of a peculiar kind was discovered. This consisted of one man who imitated an epileptic attack while his confederates picked the pockets of the spectators, whose attention was directed toward the man in apparent convulsions. Some of these imitations are artistically done; the cry at the outset of the fit, the fall and violent convulsions, together with frothing at the mouth and the unconsciousness which should follow a real attack are well simulated. The absolute insensibility to pain can hardly be imitated. The French police generally detect the simulators by forcing the point of the thumb nail under that of the suspected dissimulator. This is actually painful to one who has his senses, while it can do no harm if the case is one of genuine epilepsy. In the real disease, the pupils of the eyes become widely dilated when the attack begins; the upper half of the face is very pale; and there is a short period (a few seconds) when all the muscles of the body are rigid before they are alternately contracted and relaxed in the fully developed fit. These symptoms cannot be feigned, no matter how well the simulator has studied the disease.—Globe-Democrat.

The First Lightning Rod.

If we are to believe an Austrian paper the first lightning rod was not constructed by Franklin, but by a monk of Seuftenberg, in Bohemia, named Prohob Diwisch, who installed an apparatus June 15, 1754, in the garden of the curate of Prenditz (Moravia). The apparatus was composed of a pole surmounted by an iron rod supporting twelve curved up branches, and terminating in as many metallic boxes, filled with iron ore and closed by a boxwood cover, traversed by twenty-seven sharp iron points, which plunged at their base in the ore. All the system was united to the earth by a large chain. The enemies of Diwisch, jealous of his success at the court of Vienna, excited the peasants of the locality against him, and under the pretext that his lightning rod was the cause of the great drought, they made him take down the lightning rod which he had utilized for six years. What is most curious is the form of this first lightning rod, which was of multiple points like the one which M. Melsu afterward invented.—La Lumiere Electrique.

A Mantle for the Pope.

Princess Clotilde has just finished a mantle she has embroidered for the pope as her seat at Moncalleri. Upon the success of our manufactures, as the handmaid of agriculture and commerce, depends in a great measure the independence of our country, and none can feel more sensibly than I do the necessity of encouraging them.—Andrew Jackson.

The experience of years furnishes the most convincing evidence that thousands of lives are annually saved by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It speedily cures all affections of the throat, bronchial tubes, and lungs.

When our manufactures are grown to a certain proportion, as they will under the fostering care of the government, the farmer will find a ready market for its surplus produce, and, what is of almost equal consequence, a certain and cheap supply for all his wants.—John C. Calhoun.

Took First Prize.

The State board of pharmacy recently analyzed twelve of the most popular medicines in order to see whether they were what they were recommended to be. After two weeks of careful work work, they arwarded the first prize, a gold medal, to Messrs. A P. Ordway, & Co., proprietors of Sulpher Bitters, it being in their opinion the best and only strictly pure blood purifying medicine in the ket.—Weekly Chemist.

The issue of Protection is incalculably stronger and greater than any man, as it concerns the prosperity of the present and of the generations yet to come.—James G. Blaine.

"For twenty years I have suffered with a severe bronchial cough, never lying down without a severe attack of the same. After much pursuasion, I was induced to try Adamson's Balsam, and its good effects for six months are certainly marvellous. Please use this truthful testimony for the advantage of all sufferers like myself.

Mrs. Wm. Alden, Duxbury, Mass., Feb. 21, 1887.

The president is careful to state that he frankly declares his indifference to the charge of favoring free trade. His policy, he says, may be called by that or another name, but it is the policy he recommends to Congress, and which, he does not affect to deny, must alter the terms on which foreigners have access to the American market.—London Saturday Review.

Free trade is no experiment in America. We've tried it and it didn't work. Germany tried it, and it didn't work. Why not be guided by experience? Business men are so guided; and isn't public business to be conducted on business principles?

The way to break up the Solid South is to elect Harrison and Morton. If Cleveland gets another term, Bourbon democracy will maintain its sway. If Harrison be chosen, the young, the enterprising, the well reconstructed, the protection, the American voters of the new and progressive south will be encouraged to assert themselves.

A Lynn, Mass., shoemaker and a representative and thoughtful workingman, who has just returned from a brief summer trip to Europe—who ever heard of a European workingman taking a summer trip to America?—puts the situation bluntly thus: "It is a question of simple business. Do we want to risk fifty cents a day? That's all there is to it. Low wages, besides, means low living. It means poverty and it means ignorance; and these two things put a man at the foot of the ladder, and there he will stay. No European workingman, with his free trade and his low wages, thinks of getting up in the world. Who ever saw workingmen in Europe filling offices, or their wives and daughters in society, or themselves respected and honored? Nobody."

Annihilating a Multiform Disease.

Miasmatic, or malarial, disease has many forms. Physicians have for the sake of convenience and for the purpose of indicating its most strongly marked forms, subdivided it into intermittent and biliousness remittent fever, dumb ague and ague cake. But it presents an infinite variety of symptoms in different individuals. Be these symptoms what they will, always remember that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will annihilate them at the outset, and prevent their recurrence. A review of the proofs would convince any one of the fact. This, however, is impossible because they are too numerous, and unnecessary because the effects of this grand anti-malaria specific are a matter of common knowledge. No less familiar to the public are its remedial and preventive effects in billious attacks, constipation, dyspepsia, incipient rheumatism, debility and kidney troubles. It is moreover, an excellent appetizer and tonic nervine.

Mr. Cleveland has taken his stand on free trade, * * and on that broad question Mr. Cleveland's candidature naturally and necessarily carries English sympathy.—London Globe.

The presidential election will be fought out on the lines laid down months ago. President Cleveland has been accused of having shrunk from the free trade policy he then advocated. The accusation is unjust. * * * President Cleveland is substantially in favor of a financial policy which will impose duties mainly for revenue purposes, will take duties off raw materials, and so widen the market of the American purchaser. These are the aims and this is the policy of the free traders of all countries.—London Saturday Review, Sept. 15th, 1888.

An Important Element

Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. The familiar headline "100 Doses One Dollar," stolen by imitators, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This can easily be proven by any one who desires to test the matter. For real economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla, Sold by all druggists.

We must now place our manufactures by the side of the agriculturist. * * Experience has taught me that manufactures are now as necessary to our independence as to our comfort.—Thomas Jefferson.

Prepared by a combination, proportion and process peculiar to itself, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

It is useless to attempt the cure of any disorder, if the blood is allowed to remain impure. Neuralgia and rheumatism are tracable to a disordered condition of the blood, and in numberless cases have been cured by taking a few bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

It is to the New World that the Cobden Club is chiefly looking as the most likely sphere for its vigorous foreign policy. It has done what it can in Europe, and is now turning its eye westward and bracing itself for the struggle which is to come. It cannot rest while the United States are unsubdued.—London Times, July 18th, 1880.

To-Night and To-Morrow Night,

And each day and night during this week you can get at all druggists Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs, acknowledged to be the most successful remedy ever sold for the cure of Coughs, Croup, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Asthma and Consumption. Get a bottle to-day and keep it always in the house, so you can check your cold at once. Price 50c and $1.00. Sample bottles free.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam, for Coughs and Colds, does it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles at 50c and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption.

IN A HAMMOCK.

Most sweet it is within this circle made
Of deeper green than the outlying grass,
Whereon the sun strikes straight this ring of shade
With test of freighted apple boughs, where pass
A thousand lances through of light.

A mass
Of satin leaves lean back and bear some fruit
To the sun's favor. Down from bough to root
The apples drop too heavy for the stem
With ripeness. One knows not if scent of them
Is better, or their golden dashed with red
Unto the eye, or when they're cloven through
The flavor of them, after that they drew
Into their veins what honey was not shed
Within their blossoms when the bees had fed.

The sound of rustling husks on idle airs
Comes softly. How the regal dahlia shares
Great splendor with the marigolds. The quaint
Petunia gives us breath as soft and faint
As film of its one petal. Salvias flame
And coleus burn upon the lawn, the same
As in all olden autumns. Trellised vine
Shows dusky purple of some unmade wine.
The fragrant, very air about us is
As nectar drawn through scented chalices
Of flower and fruit, for mind and body's good.
And so one feeds upon the sounds, scents, lights,
So eating the soul's hunger with soul's food,
And cannot drink enough of these delights.
One turns the leaves of nature to forget
The leaves uncut of latest novelette.

RATIONS AT FORT RENO.

Arapahoes and Cheyennes at the Government Commissary Building.

Ration day at Fort Reno presents an exciting scene. There are 378 families of Arapahoes, containing 560 men, 563 women and 1,179 children, or a total of 2,400 persons. Of Cheyennes there are 738 families, containing 918 men, 1,061 women and 2,313 children—a total of 4,287 Cheyenne men, women and children. These 6,687 Cheyenne and Arapahoe Indians are all fed and clothed by the government, each family of six receiving per week six and a half pounds of coffee, two and a quarter pounds of sugar and eight pounds of flour, in addition to beef. The government commissary building is within a stone's throw of the Canadian river. Thither every Monday morning the hungry Indians crowd for their weekly supply of food. Each band of forty-five elects a representative, who is given a ticket numbered from one to fourteen. This representative presents his ticket every Monday morning, the supply agent punches one of the numbers and gives the bearer his coffee, sugar and flour, and an order for one beef. At the end of the quarter, when the fourteen numbers are all punched, another ticket is issued.

Let us follow the chief after he has had his ticket punched and received an order for a beef. His eyes glitter, his nostrils expand, his painted face looks more horrible than ever. The other men of the band leap on their horses. They ride to the stock pen; the agent takes the order and turns over to the chief a bullor an ox. The poor brute leaves the pen dazed—confused; in a moment confusion gives way to wild terror. The Indian bucks, horrible in their brilliant paints, give vent to a series of unearthly yells, and begin a chase that often lasts for hours. They goad the bull with spears, run it hither and thither, shouting and yelling the meanwhile as though they were mad.

At length, tired of this savage sport, one of the band fires his rifle and puts an end to the poor beast's misery. The bull no sooner falls than the braves surround him, whip out their knives, cut his throat and drink the warm blood and eat the warm, raw flesh. They like the hot blood and flesh, and it is to secure this, as much as for the excitement, that they indulge in this wild chase every ration day at the Reno agency. When their gluttonous appetite is satisfied, the squaws take the remains of the carcass and busy themselves picking clean the bones, while the bucks sleep off the effect of their orgy. For two or three days they gormandize; the rest of the week, until ration day comes again, they half starve. Such is the result of the government's method of caring for its wards.—Lee Meriwether in The Cosmopolitan.

Journalism in New York.

In fact, journalism in New York is not much in the hands of the elders. There are comparatively few men engaged in the profession who have passed the fiftieth mile post. From 35 to 45 are the usual ages, and go through any of the shabby, dingy little barns and rat holes that serve as offices for the newspapers and you will rarely see a gray head in them. What becomes of the old journalists is almost as much of a problem as what becomes of the old moons or the lost pins. It is the necessity of the profession that makes it so. The first need is to keep in warm and intimate touch with the times, and most men harden into set opinions and their impressions crystallize after 50; they get out of sympathy with the new and rising generation and make way for younger men who understand the situation better. That part of the proposition is simple enough, but what becomes of these older men when pushed out of the way I can't answer, for I don't know and never have found any one who can tell me.—New York Cor. Brooklyn Eagle.

Irritability of Sensitive Plants.

Plants afford examples of excessive irritability, arising from imperfect nutrition. Some sensitive plants were sowed in clear sand, and others in vegetable mold mixed with sand in different proportions. The first, which had nothing but air to feed upon, languished and died; they were extremely sensitive to the slightest touch; a breath or slight motion of the pot made them droop. Those plants which had a third or two-thirds of vegetable mold were still irritable, but in a less degree, and would not bloom. Those which had pure vegetable earth became robust and nearly insensitive; striking their leaves with a stick would make them double up, but they would unfold again almost in an instant.—Popular Science Monthly.

Paying the Pastor.

"You complain of having to pay your pastor's salary," said an old miller. "I will pay it for you, and you shall not feel it." At the end of the year he brought in a receipt in full for the salary from the pastor, and then he exclaimed: "I did it by taking a little toll when you sent your grain to my mill, and I took so little that none of you felt it. You see how easily the pastor can be paid."—Religious Herald.

THE PANAMA CANAL.

Will It Ever Be Finished?—The Outlook Very Discouraging.

Will it ever be finished? This is the one single, absorbing question now being asked in the financial circles of Paris, and no satisfactory answer is being made to it, not even by De Lesseps himself. The failure of the last loan was a much more serious affair than was at first reported. De Lesseps called for $45,000,000, but the amount realized was only $28,000,000, although he had promised to repay $50,000,000 and allow 10 per cent. interest on what already had been advanced. The amount actually realized, however, was just sufficient to pay the interest and other debt services on previous loans, leaving nothing whatever for work on the canal itself. When, therefore, it is just barely possible to raise money enough to pay interest on what has already been borrowed, the outlook is black for any further advance, and the fate of the whole canal business is as good as settled.

But this is not all. So many reports have been circulated one way and another in regard to the enterprise—so many that were false, misleading or impossible—that the French government itself sent an eminent financier, Leroy Beaulieu, to examine into everything connected with the work and report accordingly. This report, just made public, has startled De Lesseps' stockholders almost beyond the power of speech, and made not a few of them wrathful and accusing.

"If the work goes on no faster," says Beaulieu, "than it has in 1887, it will take twenty years to remove La Culebra, a hill that is almost a mountain. If it goes on three times as fast it will take six and a half years to finish the canal under the best possible circumstances."

Upon the subject of finances, upon which he is better able to speak than upon that of engineering, his figures have amazed every one. The total obligations of the company on Aug. 18, 1887, were $334,000,000, for which $209,500,000 of actual money had been obtained, the difference of $184,500,000 representing the amount lost by discount, brokers' commissions and other such like expenses. The annual expense of administration and debt service—that is, the expenses outside of any work done on the canal—were $20,000,000. Therefore, should the work last six or eight years, and M. Beaulieu is unable to see how it can be done in any shorter time, it will pile the debt up to the enormous figure of $600,000,000 or more, the average interest on which would be $54,000,000, all of which the canal would have to earn before the stockholders could handle a single dollar in the way of dividends, to say nothing of the outlay that might have to be made annually to keep the canal in good navigable order.

When De Lesseps undertook this gigantic work, he estimated its entire cost at $120,000,000. Its obligations today are $334,000,000, and it is yet from some six to eight years of completion. There seems to have been no head to the whole business from beginning to end. Waste, ignorance and extravagance have been frightful. The route of the canal itself appears never to have been properly gone over in an engineering sense or scientifically surveyed. Topographical skill appears never to have been evoked in a single instance to take advantage of the natural configurations of the ground. It has been like a great hole into which money has been collected and dumped by the millions. There is no more money and not likely to be any more. If the French government does not take hold of the enterprise and finish it, then most surely will it never be finished.—Kansas City Times.

Building an Indian Tepee.

An Indian tepee, or wigwam, is made by bunching a dozen or so long poles together at one end, and spreading out the other ends and sticking them in the ground. Canvas or skins are stretched over this frame work; that is the red man's home, with one merit, if no other—portability. The Arapahoe or Comanche has only to shut his house together like an umbrella, tie one end of the bunch of poles to his pony's neck, and he is ready to travel. A whole village may sometimes be seen in course of locomotion, one hundred horses dragging as many tepees. When a suitable location is found, the rapidity with which the Indian village springs up would put to blush even the mushroom towns of real estate speculators. In a couple of hours the tepees are erected, the fires built, and the business of life begun as if the town were as old as Rome.—Lee Meriwether in The Cosmopolitan.

Conveyance of Disease.

It is well to know that contagion is not infrequently carried by the common return postage stamp inclosed in letters. No one is able to know the condition of the mouth of the person who has wet one corner of the stamp in order to attach it to the inside of the letter; no one knows under what conditions it may have been while in the pocketbook or diary of a person exposed to various fevers or germ diseases, or whether it may not have lain on some desk in a house where such sickness prevails. Equal danger lies also in a great deal of the money in circulation, if applied to the mouth, as we often use a piece of money in the street cars or otherwise. This is fortunately such a violation of good breeding that it is fast ceasing to be a custom. Safetly lies in applying neither postage stamp nor money to the mouth.—Harper's Bazar.

Origin of the Dahlia.

No flower of the garden has bloomed more profusely and beautiful this fall than the dahlia. The plant was found originally in Mexico, and was similar to the single petaled specimens now popular. A plant was sent to Madrid in 1788, where it was seen in blossom by the Abbe Cavanilles, who named it after his friend, Professor Dahl, of Stockholm. In 1804 Humboldt went to Mexico and sent to Europe seeds of the wild dahlia, and from his seeds the plants now grown universally descended. By degrees it doubled and sported till it became the perfect flower we now enjoy.—Springfield Union.

A Texas newspaper claims to have received in payment of a subscription "the oldest hen on record." The editor says she was imported from Mexico by the local physician eight or nine years ago.—Chicago Herald.

That "poor back" is held responsible for more than its share of the sufferings of mankind. If your dog bites a man who kicks it, do you blame the dog? On the same principle the kidneys utter their protest against nervousness, impure blood, and resulting constipation. These force them to do extraordinary work in ridding the system of the poisons which are the result of effete matter retained in the blood. Then the sufferer says the back aches; the kidneys are diseased. "Not yet;" be unless the nerves are strengthened, the blood purified, and the constipation removed. These are the causes of kidney troubles, and Paine's Celery Compound removes them quickly. With its tonic, purifying, and laxative effect, it also strengthens the weak kidneys, making it almost infallible in curing all diseases of the nerves and kidneys. If your hopes of cure have not been realized, try Paine's Celery Compound; it gives perfect health to all who complain of "their poor backs." Price $1.00.

Minister West is for Cleveland.

On the 4th of September Hon. Lionel Sackville-West, British minister at Washington, received what purported to be a letter from a naturalized Englishman residing at Pomona, Cal., asking his advice as to how he should vote in the near presidential election. Minister West replied in a letter marked "private," notwithstanding which it was a few days ago published in the Los Angeles Times, as follows.

BEVERLY, MASS., Sept. 13, 1888.

Sir: I am in receipt of your letter of the 4th inst., and beg to say that I fully appreciate the difficulty in which you find yourself in casting your vote. You are probably aware that any political party which openly favored the mother country at the present moment would lose popularity, and that the party in power is fully aware of this fact. That party, however, is, I believe, still desirous of maintaining friendly relation with Great Britain, and is still as desirous of settling all questions with Canada, which have been unfortunately reopened since the retraction of the treaty by the republican majority in the senate, and by the president's message, to which you allude. All allowances must, therefore, be made for the political situation, as regards the presidential election, thus created. It is, however, impossible to predict the course which President Cleveland may pursue in the matter of retaliation, should he be elected; but there is every reason to believe that, while upholding the position he has taken, he will manifest a spirit of conciliation in dealing with the question involved in his message. I enclose an article from "The New York Times" of August 22, and remain, Yours faithfully, L. S. SACKVILLE-WEST.

The following is the extract from the New York Times referred to in the above letter:

There is this further consideration in favor of supporting the administration on this issue. It will leave the question still open for friendly means of settlement of some kind, while support of the senate's position would close all avenues of future negotiations, and bring upon the country the disastrous consequences of retaliation, hostility and possible war. It would put and end to all prospects of reciprocity between the United States and Canada. This is one of the questions which the people should keep in mind in casting their votes next November.

The letter sent to Minister West may have been a trick, intended only to draw from him an expression of favor toward the democratic candidates, which might be supposed to have a telling effect on the Irish-American voters; but so skilled a diplomat as West should not have fallen into such a trap, and be led to interfere in even the smallest degree in the political affairs of a nation to which he is another country's accredited representative. The New York Sun says if West really wrote that letter, Mr. Bayard should at once send him his passports. Mr. West in an interview with a Tribune reporter acknowledges its genuineness, but treats the affair lightly. He well may. The political effect of the letter is all the effect it is likely to have.

The Yellow Fever.

A despatch of the 25th from Jacksonville said: "The fever has made a decided advance to-day. The bulletin is: New cases, seventy-one; deaths, two; total cases to date, 3974; total deaths, 339. Nine people are sick at Enterprise, six critically. McClenny to-day reports seven new cases."

Chairman Quay, of the national republican committee, is making a thorough campaign against democratic frauds in New York, and the large fund he has in hand will be largely devoted to this worthy object. Although a heavy increase of the republican plurality above Harlem river is universally expected, the principal work to be done for the next ten days will be put into New York city, where the saloons and rings flourish, and where liquor and boodle have heretofore minimum.

The political correspondent of the democratic Boston Herald, telegraphing from New York, is candid enough to say that "Cleveland will get a very small share of the republican vote he received four years ago."

The Boston Post of Friday last had the following: "It is said that a large block of Eastern railroad stock, purchased some time ago at $110, has recently come upon the market. Messrs. Lee, Higginson & Co., were large buyers yesterday. They were sellers at $110."

Miss Cora Holden has purchased the Buffalo County, (Neb.) Courier.

In the Vermont W. C. T. U. convention a resolution in favor of working for municipal suffrage passed, 100 to nineteen.

At the annual school meeting recently held in Fairport, N. Y., forty women voted.

The examination of Wells and Towle on a charge of murdering Charles H. Eastman, at Great Falls, was concluded on Oct. 25th. Towle was discharged, and Wells was held for the supreme court.

An attempt was made—the second one recently—on the night of Oct. 25th to blow open the safe of the Eastern railroad station at Saco, Me. The window was pried open, several holes bored in the safe and a fuse attached, but the burglars' work was cut short by the appearance of Constable Small, who was searching for liquor. The constable saw two men in the station, and spoke to them. They made no reply, but escaped through a rear window. Nothing is missing from the ticket office. There was but a small amount of money in the safe.

Nathan S. Fickett, aged seventy-three years and quite deaf, was killed by a train at Portland on Oct. 26th, while walking on the track.

Hotel in Vitegra, Russia.

This was the most extraordinary hotel that has ever come under my notice; night and day it seemed to be under the control of a howling mob. It consisted of two divisions—one for the ragged, barefooted mujik, and another for the elite (?). Each division had its bar and lunch counter. An old piano stood in the barroom of the "upper house" for the use of those musically inspired by vodka. It had a morgue—the same that was considerately proffered to me on my arrival—and, for all I know, a receiving vault in the basement—wise and convenient auxiliaries of a barroom. And, withal, a waiter whose clever aptitude in pantomime was of great service to me.

Wishing to know at what time I would retire, he touched my watch, inclined his head on his hand and closed his eyes; then to ask at what hour I wished to arise in the morning, he feigned sleep and suddenly opened his eyes, at the same time pointing inquiringly to the hands of my watch, which I held in my hand; next he munched as though eating, and again referred to the watch to ask when I would have breakfast. His questions were unmistakable and his quick conceptions of my replies were astonishing. When a boat would leave for St. Petersburg was now the information I most desired; repeating to him the words lodka and St. Petersburg, at the same time holding up my watch, instantly he replied by closing his eyes to counterfeit sleep, and then pointing to the hour of 11 and iterating a succession of ch-ch-ch's, told as plainly as the best English could have done, that after one sleep the boat would sail at 11 o'clock; this was cheering news, as I had been apprehensive of a detention of several days.—James Ricalton in Outing.

Alaska's Fruits and Vegetables.

A man in Alaska writes: "Cranberries, whortleberries and salmonberries grow here in abundance. Strawberries were sold on the street by natives today, but they were not ripe. Peas, lettuce, radishes and cauliflower are raised here."

It is Absurd

For people to expect a cure for Indigestion, unless they refrain from eating what is unwholesome; but if anything will sharpen the appetite and give tone to the digestive organs, it is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Thousands all over the land testify to the merits of this medicine.

Mrs. Sarah Burroughs, of 248 Eighth street, South Boston, writes: "My husband has taken Ayer's Sarsaparilla, for Dyspepsia and torpid liver, and has been greatly benefited."

A Confirmed Dyspeptic.

C. Canterbury, of 141 Franklin st., Boston, Mass., writes, that, suffering for years from Indigestion, he was at last induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla and, by its use, was entirely cured.

Mrs. Joseph Aubin, of High street, Holyoke, Mass., suffered for over a year from Dyspepsia, so that she could not eat substantial food, became very weak, and was unable to care for her family. Neither the medicines prescribed by physicians, nor any of the remedies advertised for the cure of Dyspepsia, helped her, until she commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. "Three bottles of this medicine," she writes, "cured me."

The brick makers of Saco and Biddeford have about closed operations for this year. There are five yards in the two cities, and together they have made about 6,000,000 bricks, consuming about 6,000 cords of wood that cost about $3.50 a cord, and giving employment to 125 men who averaged $40 a month each. Nathaniel Kimball & Son of Biddeford made about 1,200,000, the greater part of which have been sold to the Laconia company. Ward & Kimball of Biddeford made about 700,000, all of which have been used in the construction of the new high school building on Alfred street and by the Laconia company. In Saco, Marston & Durgin turned out about 1,500,000, most of which have been sold to the York company and Thornton academy. James A. Gray of Saco made in the neighborhood of 2,000,000, the greatest number of any of the manufacturers, and has shipped them all to Boston. The other manufacturer, Bishop, whose yard is situated on the Boom road, Saco, made about 500,000, and his sales have principally been in the two cities.

Many women find
Pyle's Pearline

Indispensable for washing dishes, windows, carpets, cleaning house, etc., etc., but because of its wonderful cleansing properties are afraid to have their clothes washed with it. Well, in the past ten years the consumption of Pearline has exceeded 150,000,000 packages, and no complaints, but numerous letters praising it. Why, because PEARLINE is absolutely harmless in its place, and one of the best places to put it is in the wash tub. You can soak your finest linens and laces in Pearline and water for a month with perfect safety. That's as much Pearline as they would get if they were washed in it once a week for twenty years. We could not afford to spend our time and money in telling the public, through the newspapers, a single thing about Pearline that would not stand the test; and the sooner you test it, the sooner you'll know that PEARLINE will do more than we claim for it. It is as pure and harmless as the finest imported castile soap. It's success has brought out many dangerous imitations. Beware of them. JAMES PYLE, New York.

THE MANDARIN.

While seated in his palanquin,
Rode Ling Gum Foo, a mandarin;
Some laundry people working nigh,
Were hanging garments out to dry,
He beckoned with his golden fan,
And thus addressed the nearest man:
"Why do the robes upon your line
Like glaciers of Alaska shine?
Since we set out from Ning Po Keen,
A finer sight I have not seen!"
"We washed those garments," answered he,
"With soap that's made beyond the sea,
The IVORY SOAP they call it there,
We find it good beyond compare."
Then said the mandarin profound:
"Go, order me a thousand pound,
And they who use another kind,
Shall prison cell and scaffold find!"

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

Distress After Eating

Sick Headache

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." RYE REPUBLICANS.

The republicans of Rye on Tuesday evening of this week organized a marching campaign company, and elected officers as follows:

Captain, Charles Whidden;
First lieutenant, Frank Rand;
Second lieutenant, Augustus W. Caswell;
First sergeant, Gilman Varrell;
Second sergeant, George B. Caswell;
Third sergeant, Harry Brown.

The company took the name of Harrison Guards, and adopted a uniform consisting of white coats, trowsers and helmets, and blue sashes. They werefout on Thursday evening in uniform for the first time, for drill, and made a very fine appearance; there are about fifty in the company.

It was voted to attend a Harrison & Morton flag raising by Mr. Lougee at the Sea View house on Saturday evening, and to go to Exeter on Tuesday evening, Oct. 30th, to take part in the great republican demonstration there that evening.

Mr. John E. Roberts left this city Friday on a vacation trip to Lynn and Boston, and probably to some places in Maine; he will be back in time for the election.

Col. Alex. H. Rowe of Lawrence, Mass., who has just returned from a three months' sojourn in California, is visiting Samuel Dodge and wife of State street.

Mr. Oliver Dixon of Eliot started for Vermont on Friday, to buy sheep and lambs.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner Agnes E. Downs, Capt. Levi Downs, arrived at this port on Friday from the mackerel fishery—last from Gloucester. She made a fair catch, during the mackerel season now practically ended; better than the average. She brought from Gloucester 100 hogsheads of salt for J. O. Downs & Co., which Hett Bros. at once commenced discharging at Long wharf.

The schooner Venus, of Eastport, Me., arrived at this port on Oct. 26th from Eastport with sixty quintals of dry pollock, which she sold to Mr. Samuel Cole. She comes here to load apples for an eastern Maine port.

The schooner Duroc, of Portland, a vessel of about eighty tons register, bound from Boston for Portland with a load of porcelain clay, sprung a leak about nine oclock at night on Thursday, Oct. 25th, when between Boon island and Cape Porpoise, and bore up for this port. She was boarded early Friday morning by Mr. James Baker, a lobster fisherman, who piloted her inside of she kept flying, by Capt. Harding and crew of the Jerry's point life saving station, and taken to an anchorage. Her crew had been at the pumps all the time from nine o'clock the prevous night, but she had 3 1-2 feet of water in her hold on arrival. She was towed up to Commercial wharf on Friday afternoon by the steamer Undine.

ANOTHER ONE.

Mr. Joseph D. Roberts, chairman of the Strafford County Democratic Committee, on Thursday, Oct. 25th, received from Mr. Charles A. Richmond of Dover, a member of the committee, a letter reading as follows:

Sir: Not believing in free trade as advocated by Grover Cleveland and his followers of the democratic party, which really means free ports and freedom from taxes of British imported goods in competition with our home manufactures, I desire to be relieved from duty on the Strafford county democratic committee, which is in sympathy with the principles referred to, and I hereby resign. When it has come to pass that the official representative of the English government to this country is out in a published letter advising the re-election of Mr. Cleveland, it is time for all trde Americans to take the other side.

Mr Richmond on the same day also resigned the position of secretary of the Cleveland democracy of Dover.

UNITED STATES COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

THURSDAY, Oct. 25th.

Thomas McRea of Barrington was brought before United States Commissioner Hackett, charged with violating the internal revenue law by selling liquor without payment of the required tax. McRea shew that he sent through a friend to this city, by Jackson's Express, for a license. Indeed, he produced a license from March 1st to June. It appeared that he was not a regular dealer, but only got in a supply for town meeting, when the intelligent voter of Barrington is attracted to the polls by the aroma of Bourbon, and McRea, who keeps no "place" for selling, dispenses for one day only the fluid which cheers and at times inebriates the intelligent voter of the town which furnished to New Hampshire her wealthiest native citizen.

The district attorney was satisfied that McRea intended no fraud, and endeavored to comply with the law with no purpose of its violation, and consequently the respondent was discharged.

Ebenezer Capen was then introduced by Marshal Barker. The complaint was made by Collector Page that Capen was a liquor seller without having paid the tax. To this Mr. Capen pleaded gullty. He recognized for the May court in this city.

MATRIMONIAL.

The Boston Globe of Oct. 26th says: "At the residence of the bride's parents, 819 East Fourth street, South Boston, last evening, Rev. C. H. Spalding united in marriage Minnie M. Rolfe, daughter of Charles Rolfe, night foreman of the Globe, to Herbert L. Grogan. The wedding was a very quiet one, the guests being limited to the immediate friends and relatives of the bride and groom.

Much to the disappointment of the numerous friends of the young couple in Portsmouth, N. H., the arrangements for a rather romantic ceremony were completely upset by the bad weather of the past two weeks. A steamer had been chartered and clergyman engaged in Portsmouth to make the trip from that city to White Island lighthouse, Isles of Shoals, at which station the father of the groom, Captain 'Dave' Grogan, so well known to the summer visitors of the Shoals, had planned to have the ceremony take place in the lighthouse on the rocks, but it being impossible to connect fine weather and smooth water with the day fixed upon, the idea was abandoned and the marriage took place in South Boston last evening.

The bridesmaids were Miss Ella Grogan, sister of the groom, and Miss Clara Byford, cousin of the bride, the best men being Masters Percy T. Rolfe and William Byford. The bride was attired in a rich costume of corded silk, with corsage bouquet of white roses, her ornaments consisting of pearls and diamonds.

The presents were numerous, useful and valuable, among them being a silver tea service and pickle jar from Mr. and Mrs. James Edmonds, Louis Edmonds and William Townsend; silver butter dish and cake basket from the parents of the groom, jewel casket, dressing case, and set of jewelry ornamented with rubies from the groom, handsome bric a-brac from the Peak sisters of Friendship Lodge of Knights and Ladies, a massive marble clock from Messrs. Chamberlain and Bickford, lumber merchants, with whom Mr. Grogan is associated in business, gold watch, with chain and charm from the parents of the bride, besides other valuable and useful articles from the bridesmaids, Mrs. Daniel Bickford and Miss Bickford, and from friends in Portsmouth, N. H., and Haverhill.

An enjoyable evening was spent, showers of rice being rained upon the young couple as they left in a carriage for their future home. They will spend a few days at South Manchester, Conn., and return to their residence on Chandler street in this city."

Young republicans who will be legally entitled to vote on November 6th for the first time, are requested to hand their names to the ward committees of the wards in which they live, in order

Rev. W. J. Vance Hainer, of Weymouth, N. S., brother of Rev. John A. Hainer, pastor of the Court street Christian church of this city, will preach both at the morning and evening services in that church on Sunday. Mr. Hainer is publisher of the Lubec (Me.) Herald and Weymouth (N. S.) Times. We received a pleasant call from him on Friday. He is a young and energetic minister of the gospel, being the youngest of six brothers, all of whom are ministers. He is also the youngest publisher of a newspaper we have ever had the pleasure of knowing. We wish him the best of success in this line of business, as well as in his ministerial profession. He was on his way to his home, having been absent on business, and intended to proceed on his way to-day, but he accepted the invitation to officiate in his brother's pulpit on Sunday, which he will ably fill without a doubt.

Rev. M. F. Johnson of Foxboro, Mass., will preach in the Middle street Baptist church on Sunday.

Rev. J. W. Towle of Massachuettss, a returned missionary, will preach in the Congregational church Sunday.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity trength and wholesomeness. More economical han the ordinary kinds, and cannot be sold in tompetition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in cans. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO. 106 Wall Street, New York.

Check-List Notice.

THE Board of Inspectors of Check-Lists of the City of Portsmouth give notice that they have posted lists of the voters in the several wards of the city, in the corridor of the City Building; also, of Ward One in the Railroad Station, of Ward Three in the store of John Mitchell on Islington street, of Ward Four in the store of John J. Laskey on Pleasant street, for the inspection of the voters of the city.

They also give notice that they will be in session in city Building on Friday, October 26th; on Wednesday, October 31st; and on Friday, November 2d, 1888, from 9 o'clock A. M. to 12 M., and from 2 to 5 o'clock P. M., on each of said days, for the purpose of revising and correcting the list of voters.

They will also be in session at the same place from 8 to 10 A. M. and from 1 to 3 o'clock P. M., on the day of election, for the purpose of furnishing certificates to any persons whose names may have been omitted, and who the board are satisfied have resided in the ward one year next preceding said election.

PORTSMOUTH, Oct. 20th, 1888.
BENJ. M. PARKER, Clerk.

funds in several of the departments of the yard.

The Wentworth Guards of Kittery, and the Winchester Cadets and Independent Democratic club of this city, went to Dover on Friday evening to take part in the republican parade there; the special train conveying the party had nine passenger cars, packed full out to the platforms. The Independent Democratic club carried a large transparency bearing inscriptions "Protection to American industries," "No one-man power for us," etc.

The democratic rally at Music hall on Friday evening was well attended, the hall being filled; the speeches we presume were satisfactory to the democrats. The democratic campaign companies paraded to escort the speakers to the hall, and marched infinitely better than they did the evening before.

Mr. Isaac Pray of Kittery has been discharged from the pattern shop in the department of steam engineering at the navy yard. No better workman can take his place.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with boiling water or milk. MASON & HAMLIN

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best. The Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues $22 TO $900. free.

ORGANS

Mason & Hamlin do not claim to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGS," by the use of which is secured the possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity. GRAND & UPRIGHT. For standing in tune and other important advantages.

TRADE MARK

PEEN'S MILL, TEXAS, June 20, 1888—The Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: One of my children was troubled with eczema on the leg for about two years. We gave her various kinds of medicine, but without profit, and began to despair of curing her at all. I was persuaded to try your Swift's Specific. After she had used several bottles the disease all disappeared, and she is now a hale, hearty and healthy girl twelve years old. Another child was troubled in the same way, and I am using the S. S. S. and anticipate a prompt and permanent cure. R. C. WASHBURN.

RICH HILL, MO., July 7, 1888—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: Our little girl when two years old became poisoned from several good doctors, but without any special benefit. We tried S. S. S. and by the time one bottle was gone her head began to heal, and by the time she had taken six bottles she was completely cured. Now she has a full head of hair and is a robust, hearty child. I feel it but my duty to make this statement. Respectfully, H. T. SHONE.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., June 27, 1888—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: In 1884 I contracted blood poison, and at once sought a physician, who treated me for several months, by his advice I went to Crab Orchard Springs, Ky., where his course of treatment was carefully observed. I recovered, as I thought, but the next spring pimples began to appear on my face and body. These gradually increased in sores and running ulcers. I was advised to try S. S. S., and immediately after taking it I commenced to improve, slowly at first, but more rapidly afterwards, and soon nothing remained to tell of my trouble. My blood is now thoroughly cleansed, and my system free from taint, and I owe my present condition—a perfect one—to your medicine. I cheerfully give this statement that others who have suffered as I have may reap the same benefit. HANDY M. RUST, 24 West Ninth St.

HOMER, LA., May 25, 1888—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: About two years ago my general health gave way entirely. I was so debilitated that I almost despaired of ever feeling well again. All that the physicians done for me brought no permanent relief. Friends insisted that I should give S. S. S. a fair trial, although I thought it would be throwing away money. After taking a thorough course, my health and strength returned, and I must say that S. S. S. alone cured me, as I discarded all others while using it. As a tonic I can most heartily recommend it; for general debility, it certainly is a specific. W. F. BRIDGES, J. P.

HOMER, LA.—I know Mr. W. F. Bridges, and will say that his statement is correct.

A DISTRESSING COUGH.

How many, especially during the Fall and Winter months, are troubled with a Cough, sometimes dry and hacking, sometimes loose causing the sufferer to raise a large amount of offensive matter; this can soon be cured by using Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs.

Cured her Cough.

MRS. JEREMIAH CLARK, Lowell, Mass., says: "Twelve years ago I first took a bottle of your Throat and Lung Specific. I had been troubled with a very bad Cough for months. A 50-cent bottle cured my Cough. Since then I have not been without it. I can heartily recommend it to any one who has a bad cough."

Saved his Life.

CHAS. A. WAITT, says: "No language can express the value I attach to your Specific. I believe it saved my life."

We would cite other testimonials did we think it necessary, but a trial bottle will convince you that it is all we represent. Give it a trial.

OREN BRAGDON & SON,
NO. 24 MARKET STREET.

With strict impartiality it speeds alike down the hutter's chimney, formed of old kerosene tins, and the Elizabethan stacks of fashionable suburban mansions; charges up the busy streets, flashes through the omnibuses, in at one window and out of the other, like the clown in the pantomime. But not all of it! not the six bushels! Shake yourself and see. Then it spins along the suburban highways, pounces down on the scavengers' heaps of dead leaves and other odds and ends of unconsidered trifles, and they are gone, and their place knows them no more. Poets seeking new tropes and figures of speech should try what can be made of an Australian dust storm. Every window in the cities is closed, and the heated blast chafes and howls about the casements in a frenzy of impotent rage. Should any one incautiously turn a street corner particularly sprucely dressed, straightway it makes for him.

The air soon becomes a combination of atoms as lively as aerated waters. The whole surrounding country seems shrouded by an atmosphere which has been whipped into the consistency of pea soup. One side of the street is sometimes as completely hidden from the other side as by a November fog in London. Woe to the unlucky housemaid who has inadvertently left open a single window! Repentance in sackcloth and dust is her condign punishment. And thus the enemy speeds up and down the day through. The heat is stilling, but people all seek to close every avenue of approach. Batten down and stew is the order of the day. Of two evils it is by far the least; indeed, the only defense, and every port is closed as on board ship in bad weather. Should the demon succeed in effecting an entrance he sweeps through the hall, rushes up stairs, and bangs every door like a maniac. The hotel kitchen is a subject of special anxiety to the functionaries concerned, and certain venders of perishable commodities close their shops altogether.—Murray's Magazine.

The Northern "Uncle Tom."

Uncle Tom, in the Shelby household, had nothing to fear but that sudden loss of wealth might work for him a change of masters; but Uncle Tom of the tenement has to fear his master's growing rich; has to fear that the tinkle of increasing ducats in his pocket will make him rejoice in and to increase the extortion that thrives so well on tenants who have forgotten to expect rights. The southern Uncle Tom had his ways of earning; of laying aside, if only penny by penny, something. The northern Uncle Tom never can save; there is not enough from day to day to live even decently; and one break in a day's work, one hour of sickness in father, mother or child leaves a gap that it seems as if never again they could bridge over. They never can "catch up."

The southern Tom had his family perhaps torn from his arms, never again to lay eyes on daughter or son. Think you that the northern Tom can keep his family about him? As the slave Eliza clasped her babe to her breast and ran away that she might not have to give him up, so slips from the tenement house every day some Eliza with a child in her arms, not to keep him, but to give him up, to lay him in the crib at the foundling hospital, whence he will be taken by others, to be known hereafter not as "Johnny," but as "No. 22,716," or to give him to benevolent agents who will find him a home in the west. Saddest reflection of all is to think of the callousness that misery produces. Of all the pathetic stories you can tell of Little Nell or Oliver Twist, none so impresses me with the horrors of abject poverty as I am impressed on hearing a mother, when I tell her I am glad her sick baby is better, say calmly: "Lor', yes! Warn't it a mercy it didn't die! It's just orful to have children dyin' now, when it costs so high to bury 'em."—Alice Wellington Rollins in The Forum.

Sudden Change in Silesia.

Winter has set in with unusual severity all along the northern slopes of the Riesengebirge. The transition from summer weather to harsh winter was most sudden. Within twenty-four hours the thermometer fell to some degrees below zero centigrade. According to usual arrangements the telegraph service would be closed on Sept. 30 in the higher parts of the range; but the elements anticipated by several days the official period. In a single night the snowfall put an end to telegraphic communication. Ice wreaths some inches deep hung from the poles and even the wires. Great destruction of apparatus was the result; wires were broken down, isolators broken, and even poles injured. A fierce northwest wind also blew for some hours, assisting the work of destruction by overturning telegraph poles. At one end of the mountain telegraph huts the operator and his family were snowed up for several hours and had to be dug out. It is many years since there has been such a severe and early beginning of winter in the district.—Breslauer Zeitung.

Prehistoric Mines in France.

An account of some interesting ancient flint mines discovered near Mur-de-Barrez, France, has been given by M. Marcelin Boule. The flints formed a bed underlying some twenty feet of chalk, in which narrow shafts and galleries, still bearing the marks of the rude deer horn picks, were excavated. The roofs of the galleries were supported by pillars and props, as in modern mining, but the results of cave ins are still to be seen in tools crushed between fallen rocks. Near the shafts are the remains of ancient workshops, where the flint was worked into various articles used in the age of polished stone.—Arkansaw Traveler.

Defenders of American Industry.

We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform, 1888.

Annihilating a Multiform Disease.

Miasmatic, or malarial, disease has many forms. Physicians have for the sake of convenience and for the purpose of indicating its most strongly marked forms, subdivided it into intermittent and biliousness remittent fever, dumb ague and ague cake. But it presents an infinite variety of symptoms in different individuals. Be these symptoms what they will, always remember that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will annihilate them at the outset, and prevent their recurrence. A review of the proofs would convince any one of the fact. This, however, is impossible because they are too numerous, and unnecessary because the effects of this grand anti-malaria specific are a matter of common knowledge. No less familiar to the public are its remedial and preventive effects in billious attacks, constipation, dyspepsia, incipient rheumatism, debility and kidney troubles. It is moreover, an excellent appetizer and tonic nervine.

Mr. Cleveland has taken his stand on free trade, * * and on that broad question Mr. Cleveland's candidature naturally and necessarily carries English sympathy.—London Globe.

An Important Element

Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. The familiar headline "100 Doses One Dollar," stolen by imitators, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This can easily be proven by any one who desires to test the matter. For real economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists.

When our manfactures are grown to a certain proportion, as they will under the fostering care of the government, * * the farmer will find a ready market for his surplus produce, and, what is of almost equal consequence, a certain and cheap supply for all his wants.—John C. Calhoun.

Be Your Own Doctor.

It won't cost you half as much. Do not delay. Send three 2-cent stamps for postage, and we will send you Dr. Kaufmann's great work, fine colored plates from life, on disease, its causes, and home cure. Address P. Ordway, & Co., Boston, Mass.

Upon the success of our manufactures, as the handmaid of agriculture and commerce, depends in a great measure the independence of our country, and none can feel more sensibly than I do the necessity of encouraging them.—Andrew Jackson.

Prepared by a combination, proportion and process peculiar to itself, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

It is useless to attempt the cure of any disorder, if the blood is allowed to remain impure. Neuralgia and rheumatism are tracable to a disordered condition of the blood, and in numberless cases have been cured by taking a few bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

It is to the New World that the Cobden Club is chiefly looking as the most likely sphere for its vigorous foreign policy. It has done what it can in Europe, and is now turning its eye westward and bracing itself for the struggle which is to come. It cannot rest while the United States are unsubdued.—London Times, July 18th, 1880.

A NEW PHOTOGRAPHIC LIGHT.

Fine Pictures Taken by a Flash of Gun Cotton.

At the last meeting of the Society of Amateur Photographers Dr. H.G. Piffard, of this city, exhibited a new method of taking photographs by artificial light, to take the place of the unsatisfactory method of burning a ribbon of magnesium tape that has been used for a long time. Before the meeting the young gentlemen who don't know much about the business and the gray beards who know it all stood about in little groups excitedly discussing the new invention.

The routine business was disposed of in a hurry, and then Dr. Piffard was introduced. He is a tall, well built gentleman, with a head of thick, wavy brown hair, a heavy mustache and strongly marked features. Liberal applause greeted him. He read a short address on the difficulties experienced in producing successfully an artificial light that would do for taking pictures. He illustrated several of the unsuccessful attempts that had been made, and dwelt particularly upon the failure of the magnesium light. He lit a ribbon of magnesium tape, and showed how apt it was to flare up and then subside and suddenly to go out before the picture was taken.

A big camera was rolled out into the room, and a table, whose top came up even with the lens, was placed beside it. A brick was placed upon the table, and upon this brick the doctor put about six grains of gun cotton, and sprinkled over it from ten to fifteen grains of magnesium powder. A chair was placed in front of the camera about ten feet away, and Mr. H. J. Newton seated himself in this chair. A wax taper was lit and handed to Mr. Newton, who held it close to his face. He was focused in this position, and then the lights were turned down until the room was dark. A dry plate was placed in the camera, and then Dr. Piffard lit a match and applied it to the compound. There was a flash of of light that made the entire room as bright as noonday for a second. Then the gas was turned up.

Mr. Robert Roosevelt was photographed in the same way. The pictures developed in a few minutes, and negatives were handed around. Ehey were perfect, and a burst of applause greeted the experiment.

All manner of dark places can be photographed by this method, such as thick woodland scenes and dark caves. It will enable amateur photographers to take pictures in their homes at night, and will prolong the hours of work for the professionals, and correspondingly increase their incomes.

An entirely original use to which it can be put was referred to by Dr. Piffard. He explained that a small wad of the compound could be placed in the barrel of a pistol and exploded by concussion. He did this, and the flash was just as bright as when it was ignited in the loose state. The idea is the construction of a small camera made so that it can be fastened to the barrel of a pistol. It is claimed that the uses to which this can be put are manifold. Among them is the avoidance of any more struggles at police headquarters when a picture is wanted for the Rogues' gallery. The rogue can be photographed in a cell so dark that he will not be able to see the photographer, The flash is so quick that he will be given no time to distort his features, to close his eyes, or to disguise himself in any way. It will also make a handy weapon for a man to have by his bedside. For instance, a man can have a self cocking revolver with a camera fastened on the barrel. One of the chambers can be loaded with this compound and the other chambers with bullets. When a burglar appears, the citizen can point his revolver toward him and take his photograph first. The flash will enable him to see if there is more than one burglar around, and if there is not, then he can fire a bullet at the one whose photograph he has. If the man escapes, his photograph can be handed to the police. If there is more than one burglar, the wisest thing to do would be to shoot the one who hasn't been photographed, for the other one can be caught at any time by means of the picture. Suppose a desperate burglar enters a house, and the house owner has only time to photograph him before he is murdered. In the morning, providing the burglar hasn't stolen the camera, as he surely will if he happens to read this story, the police develop the picture and there is evidence enough to hang him.

The ingredients in Dr. Piffard's compound are said to be absolutely safe. Among other things exhibited was a new developer known as "hydrochinon." Several pictures that had been developed by it were so perfect that the hair on a man's hand could be distinctly seen. A film, upon which negatives can be taken, created much favorable comment. These can be carried conveniently, and are not only much lighter than glass, but they are also less fragile.

Dr. Higgins produced what he termed a "finder." This is to be used for the purpose of rapidly locating any moving object, so that it can be photographed before it can get beyond the range of the camera. The "finder" is a small square box with a ground glass top and a small lens in one end. If you want to photograph a running deer or a savage animal in the act of springing upon a victim, a moving steamboat, a bird flying through the air, or anything else that hasn't got time to wait, you just place the "finder" on top of your camera, push the camera in or out, as the case may be, until the object is seen in the ground glass, and then you are sure the focus is all right.—New York Sun.

Why People Have Poor Teeth.

Dr. Julius Pohlmann, in an interesting article on "The Human Teeth Viewed in the Light of Evolution," shows the inadequacy of many of the explanations of the poor teeth of modern times. He believes that people have poor teeth as they have poor muscles, because they are not used enough. The food of the present day is cooked, softened, and hard particles removed, children are brought up on soft foods, and in general there is a tendency to allow the teeth to lapse into a harmful desuetude.—Boston Journal of Health.

Metal Ropes for Mines.

Signal ropes for mines are on the Continent made of ditta metal, for the reason that this metal resists corrosion. It is said to have a tensile strength of more than fifty tons per square inch of section.

CHINAMEN STARTING HOME.

Odd Scenes Witnessed in San Francisco. Celestials Departing for Cathay.

When the city slept and nothing disturbed the stillness of the hour save an occusional milk wagon rattling over the cobbles, and only a police officer, night worker or carouser was strolling through the streets, or, perhaps, a quiet newspaper man going wearily to his home, wagon after wagon loaded with Chinese and their luggage were arriving at Brannan street, opposite the wharf of the Pacific Mail Steamship company, San Francisco. It may seem strange why they should be there so soon, as the wharf is not opened for them till 7 o'clock. They were there, however, each one wishing his wagon was first at the gate, so that he could secure what he considered the best berth in the steerage. Shortly after 4 a. m. a load of seven coolies, sitting high on top of a large quantity of luggage, drove up to the gate and had first place. During the next hour a few arrivals lengthened the line of teams; but about 5 o'clock a gray light stole softly over the listless undulating water of the bay, and from the dark fog that lay off in the distance a hazy purple came and dissolved into a silvery gray that spread over the eastern sky, dimming the stars and rendering the lights on the ship useless.

This heralded the arrival of express and freight wagons loaded with all kinds of conceivable luggage—bundles of clothes, matting bags, strange looking boxes, tin vessels, Saratoga trunks, "'Melican" tools, and, with the Chinese, the ubiquitous round baskets that are carried on each end of a strong pole over the shoulder—all containing good things for the Flowery Kingdom. On top of all this were huddled four or five, or perhaps more, Chinamen bound for home.

The hoarse, warning voice of the fog horn and the steady measured beats of the fog bell coming dolefully across the water ceased after sunrise, but the wharves were alive with the hum of a coming day's toil, and the din of the Chinese jabbering and yelling ere the work of the day was commenced. A reporter, who was there in time to see the first arrival, tried to converse with many of the Chinese, but "Me no sabe," they would say, fearing perhaps that it might not be just right for their wellfare.

For two or three hours the coolies gathered outside the wharf gate, anxiously waiting to be admitted. At last the time came when the door was opened, about 7 o'clock, and a wild rush was made toward the steamer. Sometimes, indeed, the rush from the Oakland ferry on landing at the mole is like it, but a band of restless cattle let loose would be the closest possible resemblance to the race of Chinese down the wharf. They were stopped about half way by officers and workmen on the wharf, but the coolies would try every scheme to get beyond the line, only to be driven back as a steer would when running off from a pen. At this time the gentlemanly freight clerk of the steamer asked the reporter to come to the front, adding: "Now the fun commences; keep in front where the crush is, and their attempts at crossing the line will be amusing."

It certainly was. Two men were stationed before the Chinese, one armed with a heavy broom that often came down unmercifully on the back or head or shoulders of some coolie as he tried to make a break. When one of the men would turn his back for a moment another break would be made, but the unfortunate would be hurled back with a cuff or shake, and very often a little stronger language than "Get up there," "Come in here," or "Get back," with the accent on the back, and something else on the coolie's. The men who tried to preserve an unbroken front cut a funny figure as their mates joked over their task; indeed, every time a Mongol would be put back a fresh sally of laughter would be made and something funny said, much to the discomfort of the Chinese. A Chinaman carrying a live duck went boldly to the ship, but the duck's quacking attracted the attention of the broom armed guard, who was told by an officer close by that the ducks wanted to "walk, walk," but John carried them. This was a pun the guard enjoyed, still he thought John had better walk back, too, but on attempting to turn him back was answered with "belong ship," which evidently was a password for the Chinese deck hands.

After a long wait the ship was ready, and the word was given to let the Chinese aboard. The line was broken like a flash, and a tremendous sally made for the gang plank, one coolie battling with the other for precedence; in fact, a scramble amounting almost to a free fight ensued; hats, bundles, baskets, sticks, tin vessels and "pig tails" were flying over the heads of the crowd, and at the end of the gang plank prostrate and fighting forms rendered the plank impassable. At last two stalwart officers seized the nearest coolie and threw him toward the ship along the plank. This cleared the way a little, and, between boxing, pushing and the combined efforts of four men, a kind of wild order was preserved ashore and the gang plank kept clear; but in their quarters, where every one was looking for the best bunk, a scene of indescribable tumult was witnessed. Every Chinese seemed full of an eager desire to push his way through the narrow passages between the bunks and up and down the stairs, elbowing every one else, only thinking of himself, and roaring, jabbering, fighting, hauling loads of luggage and securing his berth.

For some hours they kept coming in, increasing the din. Later in the forenoon detachments from the country arrived, and as the day advanced the wharf looked like a street in Chinatown—loads of the luggage with at least 500 men, women and children sitting between them and drinking tea or smoking. Their faces wore a happy, anxious and excited appearance. All the time Chinese money changers walked among the crowd with handfuls of Mexican dollars, which they changed for American coin with a profit of twenty cents on the dollar. But the traveler loses little or nothing by the change, as Mexican money is current in Hong Kong and is equal in value to American there.

At noon the ship was cleared of the Chinese to prevent stowaways and to issue customs certificates, which, when once in receipt of, the Mongola went peacefully aboard, and with goodbys that sounded like "ya-yas" they parted with their friends ashore.—San Francisco Call.

In Memoriam.

The members of a prominent family in this part of the state have recently been called upon to part with two of their number in singularly rapid succession. The first bereavement was the death of a lady widely known throughout our commonwealth for her devotion to what she regarded as a great reformatory idea. To those who gave but a superficial view of her methods, it might have been regarded as a pastime of a lady of wealth, this pursuit of a purpose with such singular zeal and delight. To those associated with her, it was the unceasing work of a woman determined to carry on a reform until the community was aroused to its consequence, and became alive to its necessity and learned to appreciate its results. The energy and untiring devotion to this reform of modern growth, incited the admiration of those who contemplated the great work accomplished by this zealous advocate of the claims of dumb animals to proper treatment. Fortunate indeed will be the champion of this reform who can achieve such results as have been accomplished in the last few years by the projector of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals in New Hampshire.

Allied by marriage to a branch of this family was the late Ex-Governor Hamilton of Maryland. He was often a visitor here, and had many warm and appreciative friends in Portsmouth. Gov. Hamilton was not only a successful lawyer, a prominent man in state and national politics, and a gentleman of large wealth. He was more than all these. He was a man of sterling character. He was the soul of honor. He preferred probity to partisanship. He was a statesman always before a politician. He was loyal to the best interests of his party, but to him, whether in or out of public office, all consideration of petty political tricks had no weight whatever. He served his country first. In his responsible duties as governor of his state, and as a senator of the United States, he knew no claim of party above that of his bounden duty to the state and the country. The death of such a man is a loss to the republic. His life is a noble example to every one who essays to enter political life, to keep well in sight the principle of integrity which always characterized the acts of the deceased statesman, in public as well as private relations. Few public men have been able to withstand the pressure extended toward what is so often regarded as party advantage, as did the governor. But he was made of sterner stuff than is found in the average man who enters public life. He was never swerved from his convictions of the right, and in his political lexicon there was no such word as expediency.

GOOD COMPANY SERIES.—We have received from Messrs. Lee & Shepard, publishers, Boston, three more of the books of this valuable series, entitled "A Physician's Problems;" by Dr. Elane. "The Lover and Other Papers;" by Richard Steele; and "Dreamthrop," by Alexander Smith. "A Physician's Problems" consists of seven profound essays, which are intended as a contribution to the natural history of those outlying regions of thought and action, whose domain is in the "debatable ground" of brain, nerve and mind. These essays are the results of most careful and earnest thought on the part of the author, and relate to "problems" of no ordinary complexity and difficulty, in regard to which great differences of opinion are inevitable. The learned author of this volume desired to direct intelligent inquiry to the solution of the "problems" to which he calls attention, and to cause investigation of, and remedy for the evils which are enumerated. It is no exaggeration to affirm that the essays evince deep insight into the habits, tendencies, capabilities and idiosyncrasies of the human organism, as especially demonstrated through the mental qualities, without pretending to fully account for the causes which lead to certain actions and conditions. The subjects are, first—"Natural Heritage," Second—"On Degenerations in Man," Third—"On Moral and Criminal Epidemics." Fourth—the problem is as to what effect the work of the brain has upon life, health and mind. Fifth—"Illustrations and Hallucinations," under which is propounded the problem, "Under what conditions are our senses reliable or unreliable witnesses?" Sixth—"On Somnambulism," and lastly, on "Revery and Abstraction."

SEPIATINT NOVELTIES.—Among the holiday souvenirs, none surpass in exquisite attractiveness the dainty "Sepiatint Novelties" which are published by Messrs. Lee and Shepard, Boston. The "Sepiatint" publications consist of "A Christmas Carol," and "A Friend Stands at the Door," by Dinah Maria Mulock, the distinguished author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," and a matchless and charming calendar of "All Around the Year," for 1889, by J. Pauline Sunter, who has deliciously illustrated all three of these novelties.

Miss Mulock's "Christmas Carol" is a little poem worthy to be be set in gold. Indeed, it has a better than golden setting in thousands of true hearts. Miss Mulock's tribute to the great day of the year, is the equal in merit to Charles Dickens's famous Carol, while its appeal to the religious and kindly qualities of the heart is at once forceful and tender. The artist, in her original embellishment of the poem, is in harmony with the author.

In Miss Mulock's "Psalm for New Year's Eve," the same high poetic standard is reached, and the illustrations are equally as chaste. The artist catches the inspiration of the poet, and is exceedingly happy in her embelishments of the subject. Of the universal love for children she has taken advantage, and her illustrations introduce charming types of children, whose pretty faces will win all hearts. The maturer beauties have not been passed by, but have their realization in such pictures as that of the "Sower," and kindred subjects. From the opening line, "A Friend Stands at the Door," to the benediction, there flows a constant stream of graceful and appropriate decoration of the timely verses of the gifted author, in life-like flowers, in joy bells ringing the "old year out and the new year in;" in sprays of foliage, and the spray of wave-dashed shore, with many a quaint and curious turn of the artist's pencil.

And then the "All Around the Year" calendar, hung on rings, with silver chain, deftly tied with a silken cord with tassels. In the artistic grouping of a year's progress as presented in Mrs. Sunter's Sepiatint Calendar, a series of illustrations of the flight of time from the prominent attractive features of this exquisite boudoir almanac, in which the successive dates of the months appear in plain figures or tablets, twelve in number, and with other illustrations form a beautiful souvenir.

"DAYS SERENE" is the restful and dreamy title of a new art-book just published by Lee and Shepard, Boston. The illustrations are by Margaret MacDonald Pullman, and have been engraved by George T. Andrew, and printed under his direction,—sufficient guarantee of their excellence. The book is a royal oblong quarto, with emblematic cover, and contains twenty-six full-page original illustrations. The pleasure of an examination of the work, which the title happily anticipates, is continually enhanced, until the last page has given the eye and the mind actual delight. Beautiful landscape scenery, the grand and picturesque in nature,—has been photographed, as it were, upon these charming pages by this student of nature and new competitor for artistic honors. Down by the sea, as its billows pound the rocks and the shore; on the side of the mountain, with its ap-

What a Time

People formerly had, trying to swallow the old-fashioned pill with its film of magnesia vainly disguising its bitterness; and what a contrast to Ayer's Pills, that have been well called "medicated sugar-plums"—the only fear being that patients may be tempted into taking too many at a dose. But the directions are plain and should be strictly followed.

J. T. Teller, M. D., of Chittenango N. Y., expresses exactly what hundreds have written at greater length. He says: "Ayer's Cathartic Pills are highly appreciated. They are perfect in form and coating, and their effects are all that the most careful physician could desire. They have supplanted all the Pills formerly popular here, and I think it must be long before any other can be made that will at all compare with them. Those who buy your pills get full value for their money."

"Safe, pleasant, and certain in their action," is the concise testimony of Dr. George E. Walker, of Martinsville, Virginia.

"Ayer's Pills outsell all similar preparations. The public having once used them, will have no others."—Berry, Venable & Collier, Atlanta, Ga.

ests; in the blooming meadow, and beside playful streams, has this lover of nature wandered that she might transcribe the enchanting pictures for the pleasure of the multitude. There is evidence in this artist's work that her conceptions of nature are mellowed by a gentle sympathy with her beautiful subjects. The poetic selections—the choice thought of some of our favorite poets—which are associated with this artistic production, still further and forcefully appeal to "the better angels of our nature." The book's magnificent proportions, rich binding, creamy paper, and handsome letter-press, make it deservedly a choice art volume.

LITTLE JACKET SERIES.—"The Last of the Huggermuggers" and its sequel "Kobboltozo" are two of the fascinating giant and dwarf stories that always find a place in a boy's heart. They are written by Christopher Pearse Cranch. Another of the series is "The King of the Golden River, or the Black Brothers, a legend of Stiria," by John Raskin, M. A., a little book of marvels. They are published by Lee & Shepard, Boston and for sale by Mr. Goodrich.

The "Lord Sackville" Letter.

The following is the full text of the letter written September 4th by a resident of Pomona, Cal., to "Lord Sackville," the British minister at Washington, which called forth the reply from the latter that has caused so much comment:

Sir—The gravity of the political situation here and the duties of those voters who are of English birth, but still consider England the mother land, constitute the apology I hereby offer for intruding for information. Mr. Cleveland's message to Congress on the fishery question justly excites our alarm and compels us to seek further knowledge before finally casting our votes for him, as we had intended to do. Many English citizens have for years refrained from being naturalized, as they thought no good would accrue from the act, but Mr. Cleveland's administration has been so favorable and friendly toward England, so kind in not enforcing the retaliatory act passed by Congress, so sound on the free trade question and so hostile to the dynamite school of Ireland, that by the hundreds—yes, by the thousands—they have become naturalized for the express purpose of helping to elect him over again, the one above all of American politicians they consider their own and their country's best friend. I am one of these unfortunates with a right to vote for President in November. I am unable to understand for whom I shall cast my ballot, when but one month ago I was sure Mr. Cleveland was the man. If Mr. Cleveland was pursuing a new policy toward Canada temporarily only and for the sake of obtaining popularity and continuation of his office four years more, but intends to cease his policy when his re-election is secured in November and again favor England's interest, then I should have no further doubts, but go forward and vote for him. I know of no one better able to direct me, sir, and I respectfully ask your advice in the matter. I will further add that the two men, Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Harrison, are very evenly matched, and a few votes may elect either one. Mr. Harrison is a high tariff man, a believer on the American side of all questions, and undoubtedly an enemy to British interests generally. This state is equally divided between the parties, and a mere handful of our naturalized countrymen can turn it either way. When it is remembered that a small state (Colorado) defeated Mr. Tilden in 1876 and elected Hayes, the republican, the importance of California is at once apparent to all. As you are at the fountain head of knowledge on the question, and know whether Mr. Cleveland's present policy is temporary only, and whether he will, as he secures another term of four years in the presidency, suspend it for one of friendship and free trade, I apply to you privately and confidentially for information, which shall in turn be treated as entirely secret. Such information would put me at rest myself, and if favorable to Mr. Cleveland, enable me on my own responsibility to assure many of our countrymen that they would do England a service by voting for Cleveland and against the republican system of tariff. As I before observed, we know not what to do, but look for more light on a mysterious subject, which the sooner it comes will better serve true Englishmen in casting their votes.

We have already published "Lord Sackville's" reply to this letter, in which he informs his interlocutor, by "private" answer, that British interests will be best advanced by Cleveland's re-election. It is claimed by the democratic managers that the Pomona letter was a trap; quite possibly it was; but that does not alter the fact that the British minister at Washington advocates the re-election of Cleveland in the interests of Great Britain. That his letter was "private" is proof that it was honest in its expression of sentiments.

LITERALLY THE STAFF OF LIFE.

Another greatly superior quality possessed by the Royal Baking Powder is that by which the preservation of important elements of the flour is effected in raising the bread by the mechanical operation of the gas, without fermentation.

Yeast, and all baking powders that produce the leavening gas by fermentation, as is well known, destroy a portion of the nutritive elements of the flour, and particularly those which are the most healthful and the greatest aids to a perfect assimilation of the food.

The Royal Baking Powder, while perfectly leavening, retains without change or impairment all those elements which were intended by nature, when combined in our bread, to make it literally the "staff of life."

No leavening agent or baking powder, except the Royal Baking Powder, possesses these great qualifications.

Be Sure

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation, curative power superior to any other article. A Boston lady who knew what she wanted, and whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

To Get

"In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me their's would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was. I had taken it, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other.

Hood's

When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable, suffering a great deal with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked, and had for some time, like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it." MRS. ELLA A. GOFF, 61 Terrace Street, Boston.

UNITED STATES COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

FRIDAY, Oct. 26th.

Charles H. Seavey of Barrington was brought by United States Marshal Barker on the 26th before Commissioner Hackett, charged with selling tobacco from a peddler's wagon in broken packages, otherwise than had been put up by the manufacturers. This is an offence against the internal revenue laws. The defendant pleaded not guilty. A sale was proved to have been made at Barrington, and defendant was held in $300 for the May court in this city. Frink for United States; S. W. Emery for defendant.

OBITUARY.

Wm. T. Hamilton, ex-senator of the United States from Maryland and ex-governor of that state, died at his home in Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 26th, in the 69th year of his age. He was born in Hagerstown, and educated at Jefferson college, Pa.; was admitted to the bar in 1843, and in 1846 elected to the state assembly on the democratic ticket. In 1848 he was one of the Cass electors, and in 1849 was elected to Congress, serving until 1855. During the war he withdrew from politics, but at its close again assumed prominence. In 1867 he was defeated by one vote for the nomination for governor; the next year he was elected United States senator. In 1875 he was a candidate for governor, but was defeated; in 1879 he was unanimously nominated by the convention, and elected by over 22,000 majority. During his term as governor he waged determined war against the Gorman ring, and other corrupt agencies in his party in Maryland; vetoed many corrupt bills passed by the legislature, and was outspoken in his opposition to the fraudulent and dishonest practices of many of the democratic state officials. After retiring from the governorship he was not again a candidate for any office.

He owned large farms at Hagerstown, and was one of the largest wheat growers in the county. Finding it agreed with his health, he applied himself during late years to agriculture with the same degree of zeal and research which had characterized his legal practice; and he was a rare instance of great success in the role of gentleman farmer.

Gov. Hamilton was a well read lawyer, and until he was compelled by reason of ill health to forego professional engagements, enjoyed a large practice; he was a wise counsellor and a sagacious advocate.

In his political views and acts he was conscientious, firm, and unyielding to the machinations of the corrupt element of his party. In social life he was companionable to the utmost degree, an excellent conversationalist, possessing a knowledge of men and events of no ordinary extent. He thoroughly investigated questions of political and economic character, and his impulses were ever in the right direction.

Gov. Hamilton married Miss Clara Jenness, daughter of the late Richard Jenness of this city, who with two sons and four daughters survives him.

Young republicans who will be legally entitled to vote on November 6th for the first time, are requested to hand their names to the ward committees of the wards in which they live, in order that their names may be presented to the inspectors of election to be added to the checklists. Prompt action is requested, that no votes may be lost through the omission from the list of names legally entitled to be there.

The Boston towboat Confidence brought into the lower harbor on Saturday a schooner owned by the Standard Oil Co., bound from New York to Portland; the schooner was left below, the tug coming up to Steamboat wharf.

NATHAN PARKER SIMES.

Captain N. Parker Simes, a retired shipmaster, and one of our well-known citizens, died of pneumonia, at his home in this city, on Tuesday October twenty-third, in the fifty-sixth year of his age. Captain Simes was born in Portsmouth, August 1, 1833, in the old Jaffrey house, on Linden street, and was the son of the late Mr. Stephen Hardy Simes, in earlier years one of our most highly respected merchants, who married Miss Ann Elizabeth Yeaton of this place. The issue of this marriage was five children, the first two of whom died in early life; Maria Louise, who married the late Martin Parry Jones, merchant, and who died in 1886; William Jones, who was lost at sea from the ship Peterhof, in 1849; and Nathan Parker, named for the former distinguished pastor of the South Parish. It will thus be seen that Captain Simes was the last of his family in this generation.

His first acquaintance with sea-life began at the early age of sixteen, at which time he sailed before the mast in the ship Gentoo, of Boston. At a subsequent period he was made master of the fine ship Emily Farnum, owned by the firm of William Jones & Son, of this port, of which he held uninterrupted command for the term of seventeen years, making many prosperous voyages, chiefly in the Liverpool and East India trade. During his captaincy of this vessel, which embraced the period covered by the civil war, the Emily Farnum was captured (October 3, 1862) by the Confederate cruiser Alabama, Captain Raphael Semmes, but, after a short detention, was released on ransom-bond—her cargo being properly documented as neutral property—and was made use of as a cartel. The numerous prisoners on board the Alabama were transferred to the Emily Farnum, and Captain Simes allowed to proceed on his voyage to Liverpool, upon his agreement to deliver them at that port. Later, he took command of the ship Blackwall, of London, owned by the firm of G. C. Trufant & Co., which he retained for two years or more, after which he sailed as master of the Sonora, of Boston, flying the flag of William F. Weld & Co. At the termination of this last engagement he retired from the sea, and, with his family, made this city his residence.

Captain Simes was married at St. Aidan's Church, in Liverpool, (since removed,) February 12, 1864, to Mary Jane, daughter of Mr. William Daniel Turner, of Liverpool, formerly of London, recently deceased, who was for many years prominently identified with the powerful and influential corporation known as the Mersey Docks Company, of Liverpool. The children by this marriage were William P. and Harold L., who died young, and Frank Turner, Alice Parker and Thomas Hardy, who, with their mother, survive. Captain Simes was of kindly and generous nature, of a keen sense of honor, an affectionate husband and father, and a true and loyal friend, whose genial presence will be sadly missed by the many in this community who possessed and highly esteemed his friendship, and whose warmest sympathies go out to his bereaved family. The funeral services took place on Thursday afternoon last, at three o'clock, from the family residence on Union street, and interment was made in the Proprietors' Burying Ground.

THE TILDEN GUARDS BEAT IT.

The Times, in its report of the democratic parade on the evening of Thursday last, says that on arriving at the Parade at the end of the march "the command was formed in a hollow square and each man supplied with roman candles. At a given signal the discharge of rockets and roman candles commenced. The scene was a brilliant one, and we doubt if it was ever eclipsed in this city before."

The show that evening was a pretty one, certainly; five or six hundred men and boys, more or less, and we do not know which, nor care, all engaged in firing off roman candles at once, while red fire was adding its glare, and rockets with colored fires were being sent up without regard to expense, made a scene which we greatly appreciated as we sat at our window and enjoyed an excellent cigar given us that day by a democratic commercial traveller who in answer to our interrogatory as to how things looked replied, "I don't know; I want Cleveland to be re-elected, but it looks mighty dubious now." It was a good show, and indicated that whatever strait the democratic national committee may be in for money, the local democratic managers are in no trouble on that account. We were somewhat pained by the consideration of what a job the wind-jamming musicians must be having to blow an atmosphere so densely loaded with choking smoke through their instruments in their attempts to produce alleged music, but the hearty and unconcerned vigor of the drummers was a joy indeed.

But the Times is mistaken in thinking that this display was never eclipsed in this city. The finest display of the kind we ever saw, and the fist political display of the kind we ever heard of, was in this city on the night of Monday, Nov. 6th, 1876, when the Tilden & Hendricks Torchlight Battalion, some six or seven companies commanded by the late Capt. Frank W. Hilton, a gallant veteran of the war and then manager of the Rockingham house, had "a last rally before victory"—as the call was headed—and after a march of two hours around town arrived at Market square. A report of what followed we copy from the Gazette of Nov. 9th, 1876:

The battalion then formed in hollow square, standing at parade rest, * * * and at the same moment a half dozen or more rockets, several bombs, and other fireworks, were set off from various points inside the square, and hundreds of roman candles in the hands of the processionists sent balls of colored fires into the air. The spectacle was a brilliant one—undoubtedly the most brilliant one ever seen in this city in the shape of a fire works display, while it lasted; rockets were sent up as fast as possible from a dozen points within the hollow square, and colored fires were kept burning until the roman candles were exhausted and the last bomb had been sent skyward. And then the battalion formed company fronts and marched up street," etc.

This was beyond comparison the prettiest fireworks display we ever saw, and we have seen a good many, some many times more elaborate and extensive.

NAVY YARD ITEMS.

The Kearsarge will go into commission on Thursday, Nov. 1st.

Lieut. Charles Belknap is detached from the naval war college, and ordered to the Kearsarge as executive officer. Lieut. Corwin P. Rees is detached from the naval war college; Lieut James K. Cogswell from duty at the South Boston iron works; Asst. Engr. Martin Bevington from the Michigan; Lieut. Richard Mitchell from the Wabash,—and all ordered to the Kearsarge on Nov. 1st. Ensign H. McL. P. Huse is ordered to the Kearsarge.

A good gang of men under direction of Carpenter N. H. Junkins, U. S. N., commenced on Friday of last week the work of repairing the bridge which connects the navy yard with Kittery. It was known to be in a bad condition, but on the planking being torn up it was found to be worse than had been supposed, several of the stringers being so rotten that when the planks were removed they broke to pieces of their own weight, and fell into the water. It is said that the outside stringers have never been renewed since the bridge was built. The new stringers will be large, square sticks of hard pine; the planking will also be of hard pine, four inches thick, and when the present job is done the bridge will be in better condition than for many years, and safe to travel over, which is more than it has been for a good while. The railing will also have to be renewed to a considerable extent. The Kittery end of the bridge has been raised about six inches, which is an improvement.

The miserable thing has some sort of a patent anti-burglar alarm attachment, so that you cannot open it unless you know the combination, and we got soaked through the other night on that account. If the owner of the wretched machine has any regard for his property he will claim it at once, before we build a fire with it.

Check-List Notice.

THE Board of Inspectors of Check-Lists of the City of Portsmouth give notice that they have posted lists of the voters in the several wards of the city, in the corridor of the City Building; also, of Ward One in the Railroad Station, of Ward Three in the store of John Mitchell on Islington street, of Ward Four in the store of John J. Laskey on Pleasant street, for the inspection of the voters of the city.

They also give notice that they will be in session in the City Building on Friday, October 26th; on Wednesday, October 31st; and on Friday, November 2d, 1888, from 9 o'clock A. M. to 12 M., and from 2 to 5 o'clock P. M., on each of said days, for the purpose of revising and correcting the list of voters.

They will also be in session at the same place from 8 to 10 A. M. and from 1 to 2 o'clock P. M., on the day of election, for the purpose of furnishing certificates to any persons whose names may have been omitted, and who the board are satisfied have resided in the ward one year next preceding said election.

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame.—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with boiling water or milk. MASON & HAMLIN

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their Organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions since that of Paris, 1867, they have received the highest competition with best makers, and the only medals of all competitions in Europe, the highest honors, illustrated catalogue, 22 pages, 8vo, free.

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all others. They combine the high excellence achieved by other makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "Mason & Hamlin Piano Strings," by means of which the treble is secured the desirable purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity and durability for standing in tune and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians, and dealers, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

Pianos and Organs sold for cash or easy payments; also rented.

FOR THE BLOOD.

No Mercury, No Potash,

Or any other Mineral Poison.

It is Nature's Remedy, made exclusively from Roots and Herbs.

It is perfectly Harmless.

It is the only remedy known to the world that has ever yet Cured contagious Blood Poison in all its stages.

It cures Mercurial Rheumatism, Cancer, Scrofula, and other blood diseases heretofore considered incurable. It cures any disease caused from impure blood. It is now prescribed by thousands of the best physicians in the United States, as a tonic. We append the statement of a few:

"I have used S. S. S. on patients convalescing from fever and from measles with the best results. J. N. CASEY, M. D., Ellaville, Ga."

BERNEN, GA.—Willie White was affected with scrofula seven years. I prescribed S. S. S., and to-day he is a fat and robust boy. G. W. PARKER, M. D.

RICHMOND, VA., Dec. 13, 1883.—I have taken three bottles of Swift's Specific for secondary blood poison. It acts much better than potash or any other remedy I have ever used. R. F. WINFRED, M. D., Formerly of Sussex Co., Va.

DR. E. J. HALL, the well-known druggist and physician, of Nashville, Howard County, Ark., writes: "Having some knowledge as to what S. S. S. is composed of, I can safely recommend it as the remedy for all skin diseases, it matters not what the name may be."

We have a book giving a history of this wonderful remedy, and its cures, from all over the world, which will convince you that all we say is true, and which we will mail free on application. No family should be without it. We have another book on Contagious Blood Poison, sent on same terms.

Write us a history of your case, and our physicians will advise with you by letter, in strictest confidence. We will not deceive you knowingly.

Overpressure in the Schools.

I think it is an unfortunate fact that our public school system is not elastic enough to mold itself to the needs of the individual. Grades are a necessity in it, and grades must be quite rigidly fixed. But I think that the parents can mold the system so that there shall be no overpressure. A great source of trouble is that the parents often positively encourage the pressure. A mother brought to me her daughter, a shamefully overworked high school scholar; no exercise, except the walk to and from school. If this mother takes my advice, and sends word to the teacher, "My daughter is not going to stand at the head of her class any more; if necessary, she will be honestly and healthily at the foot," the teacher may reply, "Then she cannot graduate and have a diploma." Then the mother must mold the public school system to her daughter's needs, and say, "Then she will not graduate. I am content to have it so." Perhaps she will not say this, for parental pride is one cause of the overpressure.

Another cause is parental laziness. It is easy to keep a boy employed evenings by compelling him to stay at home and study his lessons. Otherwise he must either be allowed to choose his own amusement, in the house or out of it (which, of course, is not the best thing), or the parents must have him on their minds, and provide amusements for him, or at least have an oversight of his recreations, which is a trouble. In practice, too, many parents either let their children roam the streets at night, or beg the teacher to give their children enough to do, so that they must have some lessons to occupy their evenings.—E. P. King in Science.

Texas Rangers as Cavalrymen.

When the war broke out, we of the south placed great reliance on the Texas rangers to furnish us with magnificent cavalry, and the same belief pervaded the north, where they were greatly dreaded. But the experience of a few months proved that as cavalry they were utterly worthless, and this because they did not know how to ride. This statement will doubtless appear most extraordinary, but those acquainted with the subject will fully bear me out in it.

The Texas rangers were perfectly at home in the saddle, could ride the wildest horse with ease, and as far as stamina go went, were probably the best horsemen in the world. But in spite of this they were about the worst cavalrymen imaginable, because they could not be made to see the necessity of taking care of their horses. Schooled in a land where men were few and horses a drug in the market, they would ride a horse to death in a few days, and after a two weeks' campaign scarcely a dozen serviceable mounts would be found in an entire regiment. Had the armies possessed four or five horses to every cavalryman, the Texas rangers would have been unsurpassed, but with only one horse to a man they soon became nothing but an incumbrance. As the war went on they became most effective troops, but not until they had ceased to be cowboys and learned to ride like cavalrymen. As cavalrymen they were excellent, but as long as they remained rangers they were an unmitigated nuisance.—Ex-Confederate in Globe-Democrat.

Fishing for a Cow's Cud.

"There is great excitement on the place when a cow loses her cud," said the old farmer. "The boys run as fast as they can for the cow doctor, and we all turn to and get things ready for him. The cow stands with her head down and neck stretched out, and is altogether the most woe begone animal you ever saw."

"What will happen if she doesn't find the cud?"

"She will starve to death. You see a cow has four stomachs, and what she eats through the day goes into the first one. And at night she brings up some of the food from the first stomach and masticates it. This is called chewing the cud. After she has done this, it goes to the second stomach and is digested. If she loses her cud, she can't pass the food from the first stomach to the second, and is bound to starve.

When the doctor arrives he slaps the cow's sides, twists her tail and looks in her mouth. Then he calls for a piece of salt codfish and puts it in her mouth. If that fails to bring the cud he rubs her throat and calls for slippery elm. He puts a wad of it into her jaw and tries to get her to chew. That failing, he tries a bunch of grass and a wad of willow leaves. If all fail, a live frog is brought and started down the cow's throat. This never fails. The cow gives a heave when the frog tickles her windpipe, and up come frog and cud."—New York Mail and Express.

The Pilot at Home.

The pilot's house is furnished in a peculiar manner—partly like a ship, partly like a parlor. There is a prevalence of nautical pictures and engravings interspersed with bric-a-brac from every portion of the globe. This is accounted for by the fact that nearly every sea captain makes presents of all kinds to the pilot that brings his ship into harbor. Monkeys and parrots are the common gifts, while now and then a rich rug, a shawl or a piece of rare silk is thrown in. The china that adorns the table is of every hue and shape, while the mantelpieces are decorated with the skillful work of sailor hands, such as painted shells, whales' teeth, carved images and foreign reeds and grasses. Especially interesting is the parlor of the pilot's home. Huge engravings of ships, steamers and yachts adorn the walls, while upon the tables and stands are the photographs of sea captains and comrades, of East Indian princes and heathen belles. The furniture is universally expensive and elegant, and all the interior is arranged in a happy free and easy style in consonance with the pilot's life. Pride of home and family are two striking characteristics of all pilots. They are never happier than when with their wives and little ones. The pilot's children are, as a rule, prototypes of either papa or mamma. Strong, sturdy, robust and hilarious, the sons seem to inherit the frankness and freedom of the father, while the daughters reflect the modesty and beauty of their mother.—New York World.

The experience of years furnishes the most convincing evidence that thousands of lives are annually saved by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It speedily cures all affections of the throat, bronchial tubes, and lungs.

"For twenty years I have suffered with a severe bronchial cough, never lying down without a severe attack of the same. After much pursuasion, I was induced to try Adamson's Balsam, and its good effects for six months are certainly marvellous. Please use this truthful testimony for the advantage of all sufferers like myself.

The presidential election will be fought out on the lines laid down months ago. President Cleveland has been accused of having shrunk from the free trade policy he then advocated. The accusation is unjust. * * * President Cleveland is substantially in favor of a financial policy which will impose duties mainly for revenue purposes, will take duties off raw materials, and so widen the market of the American purchaser. These are the aims and this is the policy of the free traders of all countries.—London Saturday Review, Sept. 15th, 1888.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam, for Coughs and Colds, does it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles at 50c and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption.

Defenders of American Industry.

We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Annihilating a Multiform Disease.

Miasmatic, or malarial, disease has many forms. Physicians have for the sake of convenience and for the purpose of indicating its most strongly marked forms, subdivided it into intermittent and biliousness remittent fever, dumb ague and ague cake. But it presents an infinite variety of symptoms in different individuals. Be these symptoms what they will, always remember that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will annihilate them at the outset, and prevent their recurrence. A review of the proofs would convince any one of the fact. This, however, is impossible because they are too numerous, and unnecessary because the effects of this grand anti-malaria specific are a matter of common knowledge. No less familiar to the public are its remedial and preventive effects in billious attacks, constipation, dyspepsia, incipient rheumatism, debility and kidney troubles. It is moreover, an excellent appetizer and tonic nervine.

Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. Prepared by a combination, proportion and process peculiar to itself, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

It is useless to attempt the cure of any disorder, if the blood is allowed to remain impure. Neuralgia and rheumatism are traceable to a disordered condition of the blood, and in numberless cases have been cured by taking a few bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

GLIMPSES OF EDEN.

In some dim land of long ago
I hear the silent waters flow
To fields afar with bloom, I know,
In some dim land.

Of dreams alone is that strange land,
Where I in solemn silence stand,
Hearing strange voices from the strand—
Of dreams alone.

Songs sweeter far than earth there blow,
Like winds of heaven that come and go,
But in some tongue we do not know—
Songs sweeter far.

Above our speech that spirit sings,
Each strange sweet word hath strong swift wings;
We hear but sad sweet murmurings
Above our speech.

We may not know what in them lies—
Glimpses of Eden's long lost skies;
What dreams of heaven and paradise—
We may not know.

WHAT INVENTOR EDISON SAYS.

The Next Important Invention—Cheap Motive Power—Labor Question.

I asked Edison "What is to be the tendency of invention during the next quarter of a century?"

"The next invention, I think," he said, "is likely to be the turning of coal into motive power without the mediation of steam. I am now at work on a machine called the pyro-magnetic dynamo for this purpose—to get electricity directly from coal. Almost all of our available energy is in wood and coal. We get it out at a terrible waste. As four-fifths of the heat in a fire place goes up the chimney and only one-fifth out into the room where it is wanted, so about three-fourths of the energy in coal is lost in getting at the other fourth. Coal can be turned immediately into electricity—I have demonstrated that—and I will know in a short time whether it can be done commercially—that is, without costing more than it comes to. If my idea can be realized, a steamer that now burns 150 tons of coal a day will burn twenty-five tons instead. Very certain I am that the whole tendency of invention for the last thirteen years of this century will be directed toward economy of motive power."

"What do you think of the Keely motor?"

"I have never seen it, so I have no opinion about it. But all the results he is said to have obtained can be got from compressed air. All the air in this room can be condensed into a liquid that could be carried in a filbert shell, and its explosive force would be tremendous. Skillfully released and reconstructed it would move a great machine."

"When motive power gets to be four times as cheap as it is, Mr. Edison, what will become of the laboring man?"

"He will be enriched by it. Machinery will be his slave. See how machinery has multiplied in the last fifty years. As a direct result, workingmen get double the wages they did then and the necessities of life cost only half as much. In other words, a hand worker can today buy four times as much with ten hours of work as his father could fifty years ago. For the first time in the world's history a skilled mechanic can buy a barrel of flour with a single day's work. The machinery in the United States represents the labor of 1,000,000,000 men—or fifty times as much labor as that of all the men in the country. When motive power is still further cheapened—say in another generation—I believe that the unskilled laborer, if sober and industrious, can have a house of his own, and a horse and carriage, and a library and a piano. It is terrible stupidity that leads some laboring men to suppose that machinery is their foe. It is the thing that gives them independence and even freedom. Without machinery society would drift into the condition of master and slave; the multiplication of machinery means for every worker more food, better clothes, better house, less work. In fact, I believe that the indefinite increase of machinery is going to solve what folks call 'the labor question'—that is, the desire of hand workers to get a bigger slice of the margin of profit."—W. A. Croffut in New York Mail and Express.

A Very Life Like Description.

When the Saxe Holm stories first appeared, and some of them were at once credited to Helen Hunt, a friend who greatly enjoyed the beautiful description of a lovely Quakeress in "My Tourmaline," read it aloud to the one whom she believed to be the original of the story. The description included an allusion to a tiny gold pin, with little chains to it, by which the fair Quakeress always fastened the white lace over her bosom.

"When I write to H. H., what shall I tell her that you said about the story?" asked the friend, anxious to tease H. H. with an apparent discovery of the authorship, and curious to see how the beautiful Quakeress would accept a flattering description that it seemed almost impossible not to associate with herself.

"They may tell her," was the gentle reply, with scarcely a deepening of the exquisite pink on her cheek, "they may—may tell her that the description of the pin is very life like!"—The Epoch.

The Potato Bug in Germany.

The potato bug made two simultaneous appearances in Germany this year, one in Saxony and one in Hanover. The German government at once had men at work, who carefully picked all the bugs and larvæ off the plants. The stems of the vines were then cut off and placed in baskets lined with sacking, which were thoroughly soaked in benzine oil and buried deep in the ground. After this the land was plowed twelve or fourteen inches deep and well harrowed, and the surface picked over for any insects that might be on it. Finally the land was saturated with benzine oil. In one case eight acres and in the other three-quarters of an acre had to be treated in this way.—New York Sun.

The English Army.

The English army consists nominally of 211,474 officers and men, but it is said that only one army corps can actually be put in the field, and this only by frantic makeshifts. Of the 71,810 officers and men stationed in England, it is alleged that 15,000 are boys under 19, and that 10,000 more are under 20.—New York Sun.

THE TURTLE AT HOME.

How the Bahama Negroes Harvest the Crop—Capture of a Prize.

The green turtle of the metropolitan restaurant, when it does not come from the remnants of the roast veal and fried chicken of the day before, comes chiefly from the Bahamas and from Nassau, the only city of the Bahamas. They are harvested also in Cuba, Hayti and at many points on the southern coast, but in the Bahama Islands they seem to find the richest feeding grounds. Circuit Justice L. D. Powles, of Bahama Island, whose experience has been ample, telling how the amiable and luscious beast is captured in his neighborhood, says:

"These families who live in the out islands and do all the turtle fishing that is not done by the strictly business schooners and men from Nassau, have for a home a house whose walls are built of coral limestone, roughly plastered together and roofed with palmetto thatch. There are probably twelve or fourteen in the family, and they all live in one little room, pretty nearly bare of furniture. Nobody but papa and mamma rise to the dignity of a bed. The rest can sleep anywhere. When not asleep, nearly all their lives are spent out of doors. Behind the house is some big tree, where mother cooks and washes and father whacks her and the children by turns, unless, as occasionally happens, she is boss, and does the whacking herself. They have not much need of money, for they can grow oranges, bananas and other tropical fruits in plenty, with corn and sweet potatoes, and fish is to be had for the catching. But the out-islander stands sometimes in need of clothes and groceries, which have to be paid for. As turtles will either produce cash or its substitute, he occasionally goes off on a turtling expedition. After days of postponing and putting off, he finally pulls himself together, and off he goes, pressing all his family into the service. There is not much need to close up the house, for there are no robbers, and no probable intruder except the hogs, which don't count. Still he probably shuts it up, for 'de look of de ting,' for the darky is very punctillious about certain matters.

"The turtle beach may be many miles away, but most likely he has a boat, in which he manages to reach it in the course of a few hours. All the party have bare feet, but otherwise are dressed much the same as civilized people. External decency is one of those matters on which the Bahamian negro is most scrupulous.

"Arrived at the turtle beach, he puts one of the boys in the boat and lets him row along it, while the rest of the party walk, keeping a sharp lookout for turtles. Sometimes the beach is ten miles long, and perhaps the party draw the whole of it blank, in which case they beach the boat and camp out for the night. Perhaps they have the luck to see a monster green turtle before they have measured half the distance. If the party is in luck and sights a monster female turtle of 500 pounds, laying her eggs in the hot sand a little ahead, the party divides at once and the chattering ceases—silence is a necessary element of success. One-half of the party make for the water to cut off her retreat; the other half steal noiselessly up and turn her on her back—a tough job in the case of a turtle as big as 500 pounds. Once on her back she is helpless, and some of the other party go off in search of palmetto leaves or tough grass with which to tie her fins, while the others stand round and talk to her, jeering and making game of her forlorn condition, taking care, however, to give her mouth a wide berth, for she is still able to bite with considerable effect. When the others return they cut slits in her fins and tie them back tightly together. Thus secured, she is carried on board the boat and given in charge of the boy, while the land contingent start on their road rejoicing, in search of another victim. Before going on, though, they will lunch on the eggs their prisoner has left behind her. These eggs are a delicacy much prized in Nassau, but probably by the time they get there they will have gone bad, and it is only on rare occasions, when turtles are caught in New Providence or its immediate neighborhood, that they are found in the market.

"The eggs disposed of, the party moves on once more, and perhaps, just at the close of the day, catches a hawksbill, a good deal smaller in size, but quite as valuable, for this time the value is in the shell, not in the weight. This is a good day's work; the family row home contented, and place their turtles in a cool place to await the chance of a ship to carry them up to Nassau."

Another way of catching turtles is the pegging of them in shoal water—that is, striking them with a grain or two pronged spear. This way is adopted by vessels engaged in the turtle fisheries, but it can only be used in the case of green turtles, as it damages the shell.

Besides the green turtles and hawksbills, there is another species called the lubberhead, which is of no practical use at all. The flesh of both the latter species is considered valueless, but the natives manage to make substantial meals out of them all the same.

Most of the turtles taken are females, for it is the females only that come ashore for the purpose of laying their eggs, the males remaining usually in much deeper water. The female is easily distinguished from the male by her tail, which is so short as to be absolutely nominal, while his usually averages six or eight inches in length.—New York Sun.

The Camels of Texas.

In 1852 the United States government sent a small herd of camels into Texas with the idea of using them and their get to cross the so-called Great American Desert. The camels prospered and multiplied; but when the war came they were scattered through the state and in Arizona, and many of became wild. Railroads have solved the Great American Desert problem, and the camels have fallen into innocuous desuetude.—New York Sun.

Riding for Exercise.

Riding gives the whole system a shaking up and is therefore a first class exercise. It draws people out into the pure air and gives them something besides routine business and troubles of life to think about for the time being. Ride at a good, brisk pace and take a good rub down and a shower bath afterward and it is better than any medicine.—"J. A. McK." in Brooklyn Eagle.

Lord Sackville's Bomb.

The democratic managers and papers, which considered the Morey letter, the Burchard trick, and the forging in this state of Hon. Charles H. Sawyer's name to a letter he did not write, not only evidences of "smartness" but entirely justifiable if indeed not admirable political schemes, are shocked beyond measure at the moral depravity of the agency which has given to the country the Lord Sackville correspondence. Some say the Pomona letter which drew My Lord's answer was a trap laid by the national republican committee; others have credited it to the city editor of the Los Angeles Times, which first published the letters, or to his instigation; and others again are wrathful against the New York Tribune, or that terrible man, James G. Blaine. That the letter should be made public, to the serious detriment of the Cleveland party, although the California enquirer stated in his letter that the answer should "be treated as entirely secret," and the answer was marked "private" by the British minister, is another source of anguish to those lofty moralists, Barnum, Gorman, Higgins et al.

But as to the question of whether the publication of the letter was a breach of good faith or not, or whether "A. Murchison" of Pomona wrote his letter in good faith or as the agent of some republican paper or organization, the public care little. Whatever or whoever prompted the first letter, the fact which stands out prominently is that a professed British-American wrote to Minister West that he and hundreds of other British-Americans wished to vote for Mr. Cleveland, as his "administration has been so favorable and friendly toward England, so kind in not enforcing the retaliatory act passed by Congress, so sound on the free trade question, and so hostile to the dynamite school of Ireland," while "Mr. Harrison is a high tariff man, a believer on the American side of all questions and undoubtedly an enemy to British interests generally;" and that the representative of the British government, who has been credited, whether rightfully or not we of course cannot say, with a large share in shaping the course of the Cleveland administration in regard to the fisheries dispute, replied in effect if not in direct terms, in a letter which he intended to be and thought would be "private" and which therefore gave unquestionably the honest opinion of its writer, that British-Americans who wished to vote for the interests of the "mother country" should vote for Mr. Cleveland.

How the letters came to be written—whether some private individual has acted dishonestly or not—is of little matter to the nation. The statements of Lord Sackville's letter are what concern the people.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28th. Irish-Americans here are expressing in round and unmeasured terms their indignation over the action of Lord Sackville in writing that letter pactically advising a British-American voterin California to vote for Cleveland at the ensuing election. The leter is talken of in the hotels, on the streets, in the cafes, at the theatres between the acts and in the street cars; and the concensus of opinion expressed everywhere is that Lord Sackville desires both in his private and official capacity the re-election of Grover Cleveland. Irish-Americans who have been interviewed on this subject express the opinion that an irreparable error has been committed, which the democratic managers will not be able to clear away to the satisfaction of the Irish nationalists.

It is reported in well informed circles that Chairman Barnum, Col. Brice, Senator Gorman and Secretary Whitney the secretary [illegible]ence over the letter; the democratic campaign managers plainly see that it is having an injurious effect upon the ranks of the Irish-American voters, and they are at their wits' end to stem the tide of desertion which has begun. One of the devices resorted too, in the hope that it might partly counteract the effect of the letter, was the placing of Mrs. Delia Parnell on the reviewing stand last evening in a very conspicuous position, that her presence might cheer up some of the Irish nationalists.

Prominent Irish-Americans here express themselves in strong terms concerning this British intervention in American politics. Patrick Ford, of the Irish World, said: "I think that letter must have much effect on thinking Irishmen, though the extent cannot be estimated. Americans generally will resent this interference with our affairs, and probably the result will be plainly seen at the polls." Robert E. Ford, of the Freeman's Journal, thinks "the letter will cost Cleveland at least 10,000 votes, and cause the election of Harrison and Morton, as it ought." General Michael Kerwin, editor of the Tablet, said to-day: "We have made the allegation all along that Mr. Cleveland was friendly to the British influence, and this letter will go far to prove the position that the opponents of Mr. Cleveland have taken."

A Return to Duty.

This is always desirable, and the speedier it takes place the better. Doubly welcome is it in the case of those usually industrious little organs, the kidneys, which, when they go on a strike—so to speak—and drop work, seriously imperil health in more than one way. First and foremost, their inaction begets their disease, which is hydra-headed, including such dangerous maladies as Bright's disease and diabetes. Next, when inactive they fail to assist in removing from the blood impurities that beget rheumatism, gout and dropsy. Third, their inaction weakens the bladder. All this is preventable and remediable by the pleasant promoter of organic action, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, at once a tonic and a regulator. This gently but effectually impels the kidneys to return to duty, and strengthens them and the bladder. Upon the bowels, stomach and liver it likewise exerts a regulating and invigorating influence, and it strengthens the system, and averts and remedies malaria and rheumatism.

The Yellow Fever.

A despatch of Oct. 28th from Jacksonville, Fla., says: "Dr. Caldwell, a volunteer physician at Enterprise, has issued a call for $1,500 for the immediate relief of sufferers there. Sixteen cases are now under treatment. Postmaster Clark has received official information of the extension of yellow fever at Baldwin. The disease appears to be spreading in various parts of the state. The weather is very warm here, and showery."

Lieut. J. G. Eaton is ordered as inspector of ordnance at the South Boston iron works.

Passed Asst. Surgeon Howard Smith is detached from the Wabash, and granted six months leave.

Chaplain Thomas H. Gill is ordered to the Constellation.

Lieut. D. H. Mahan has been ordered from the naval war college to the coast survey.

Asst. Engr. F. H. Eldredge is ordered to the Michigan.

Boatswain Patrick Haley is detached from the Mare island navy yard, and placed on waiting orders.

Chaplain Alfred L. Royce is ordered to the Minnesota.

Boatswain Woodward Carter is ordered to the New York navy yard.

Among the Maryland democrats who purpose to vote for Harrison and Morton is Judge Yellot of the third judical district, a member of the court of appeals, and the oldest judge in point of service in the state. The judge concludes the letter in which he defines his position as follows: "Any farmer or any workingman who votes for a party that is moving in the direction of free trade will be voting to impoverish himself, beggar his family and bring on the country calamities which afflicted us in 1840. In that year I cast my vote for Gen. William H. Harrison, and this year it is my intention to vote for his worthy grandson, Gen. Benjamin Harrison, who, I believe, will make as good a president as any man now living in America."

It is subject of remark in New York, as illustrating the harmony existing between the Cleveland and Hill wings of the democratic party, that when the president was in New York city on Saturday on a political errand in his own behalf, he was not called upon by the chairman of the democratic state committee.

On Saturday last Hon. John Sherman telegraphed from Nelsonville, Ohio, as follows: "There is not one word of truth in the statement published in some democratic papers, that I said Indiana was lost, or likely to be lost, to the republicans. Have not been there yet; will go next week."

The immigration statistics show that since the first of last January nearly 180,-

Ireland, to settle in this country. Would it not be well for some able democratic orator to explain how it happens that so many people are disposed to forfeit the alleged advantages of free trade by coming to a country in which protection is the established policy?

Prominent Clergymen, Physicians, and all classes of citizens are unanimous in the endorsement of Salvation Oil, the greatest curse for rheumatism.

No greater guarantee of the excellence of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup could be furnished than that it is recommended by all leading druggists.

A despatch of Oct. 28th from Louisville, Ky., says: "The Courier Journal's Omaha correspondent telegraphs that Patrick Egan, ex-president of the Irish National League, is the author of the Murchison letter to Minister West. The information to the correspondent comes from a prominent republican editor, who says that the scheme was arranged last August and was prematurely sprung, the original intention being to make it public next Wednesday." The star-eyed goddess of reform must have been taking some old Bourbon. How could the scheme have "been arranged last August," when Minister West's letter was not written until the middle of September? Was it a certainty that he would write, in reply to an inquiry, that American citizens wishing to vote for England's benefit should vote for Cleveland?

To any one purchasing a bottle of Constitutional Cough Syrup of me and it does not give satisfaction I will refund the money. David Kimball & Co., No. 36 Market street.

At Bath, N. Y., one afternoon last week, a Harrison and Morton flagpole was raised by seventy-five life-long democrats, who in the evening had a rousing protection meeting. The pole raisers wore badges bearing Harrison's picture, and the words: "Protection to American labor; justice to Union veterans. Democratic pole raising, Oct. 23d, Bath, N. Y."

Mrs. J. P. Lynch, daughter of John Tobin, formerly president of the New York Central railroad, and wife of a wealthy New York merchant, killed herself Oct. 27th by jumping from a window insane. She was thirty-six years old.

Queen Natalie of Servia refuses to accept notice of the decree of divorce recently granted against her by the debauched head of the Servian church, at the bidding of the immoral scoundrel, King Milan.

Chronic catarrh usually indicates a scrofulous condition of the system, and should be treated, like chronic ulcers and eruption, through the blood. This disease has been cured, in hundreds of cases, by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Price $1. Six bottles $5.

If General Harrison wears so well as a candidate, will he not wear equally well as a president? The logic of the case says he will. We have to take a good many things on faith. Our faith on this point is strong.

The fact is—and it a fact which republicans cannot too gratefully acknowledge—that no feature of their campaign has been more helpful and inspiriting than General Harrison's speeches. Lucid, manly, sensible, acute, invariably dignified, and rising to genuine and unaffected eloquence when the theme and the surroundings were such as to touch his own heart and the hearts of those before him, they have set the issues of the campaign in the pure white light of truth. But they have done even more than this—they have served to reveal the man. In the last weeks of the struggle which means so much to him, to his party and to the country, he stands before the people without fear and without reproach, wise, steadfast, forceful—and a gentleman.

Gaetno Russo, an Italian of New York city, and his wife Para, notorious counterfeiters and passers of counterfeit money, got twelve and fourteen years in the penitentiary last week.

At Fort Worth, Texas, on the night of Oct. 26th, a brakeman named Brady instantly killed an engineer named Corocran with a hatchet, and fatally wounded a fireman named Gregg. The murderer fled.

The barn and outbuildings of Walter E. Sweatt of Penacook, with two horses and twenty tons of hay, were burned Oct. 26th; loss $2500. The fire caught from a boiler.

drawn from Hull, Ont. The place has been three times nearly destroyed by fire within the past six years.

Sixteen persons were killed and twenty-four injured by the collapse of a club house in Moscow, Russia, Oct. 25th.

Be Sure

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation, curative power superior to any other article. A Boston lady who knew what she wanted, and whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

To Get

"In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me their's would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was. I had taken it, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other.

Hood's

When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable, suffering a great deal with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked, and had for some time, like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it." MRS. ELLA A. GOFF, 61 Terrace Street, Boston.

LITERALLY THE STAFF OF LIFE.

Another greatly superior quality possessed by the Royal Baking Powder is that by which the preservation of important elements of the flour effected in raising the bread by the mechanical operation of the gas, without fermentation.

Yeast, and all baking powders that produce the leavening gas by fermentation, as is well known, destroy a portion of the nutritive elements of the flour, and particularly those which are the most healthful and the greatest aids to a perfect assimilation of the food.

The Royal Baking Powder, while perfectly leavening, retains without change or impairment all those elements which were intended by nature, when combined in our bread, to make it literally the "staff of life."

No leavening agent or baking powder, except the Royal Baking Powder, possesses these great qualifications.

ACCIDENTAL.

The Pullman train due in this city shortly before nine o'clock was two hours late on Sunday evening, the engine attached breaking down at Seabrook. An engine went out from this city, and towed in the disabled train.

A man about sixty years old, giving the name of James Fitzgerald, applied at the police station on Sunday evening for lodging, and stopped there for the night, being turned out in the morning. About eleven o'clock Monday forenoon he was hanging around the railroad station, evidently the worse for drink, and was driven off by Mr. Moses Leighton, flagman at the Vaughan street crossing. Shortly after eleven o'clock, as a freight train bound east was passing out by the depot on the tracks to the northward of the building, the man attempted to get on, but fell under the wheels and was literally ground up, his body being scattered for sixty feet along the track. Coroner Whittier viewed the body, and ordered the interment of the remains. It is said the unfortunate man was an honorably discharged soldier of the union, a native of Ireland, and was trying to make his way to the soldiers' home at Togus, Me.

Mr. Thomas Russell, of Hunking street, employed in the wood department of J. Albert Walker's wood and coal depot, while passing over a heap of sawed wood on Monday morning struck one of his feet against a circular saw, and had it so badly torn and cut that twelve stitches were required to be taken in dressing the wounds. Mr. Russell will be confined to his home several weeks.

It was reported on Monday afternoon that Mr. George U. Foote, employed at the Concord railroad wharf, had been killed by a coal tub falling upon his head. In the evening information was given that he was not killed, but was severely injured, being struck on the head by a falling lump of coal.

Mr. Frank Moore, of No. 3 Woodbury street, aged about twenty years, son of the late John Moore, was terribly injured in the freight yard of the Concord & Potsmouth railroad about five o'clock Monday afternoon, being run over by a train, and having one leg cut off just below the knee, and the other leg just above the ankle. The unfortunate young man, who has borne an excellent reputation and has been employed in the freight shifting gang of the Concord road for a year or more, was taken to the Cottage Hospital; whether his injuries would prove fatal or not the physicians could not say that evening.

DEMOCRATIC MEETING.

The democrats had a meeting at Music hall on Monday evening, Hon. John G. Sinclair of Florida, formerly of this state, and Charles F. Stone of Laconia, chairman of the democratic state committe of New Hampshire, being the speakers. The meeting was well attended.

We believe this was Mr. Sinclair's first appearance in this city as a campaign speaker since the joint debate he had in the old Temple, during the war of the rebellion, with the late Gen. Walter Harriman, the latter being at the time the republican candidate for governor, and Mr. Sinclair the candidate of the democrats for the same office. The hall was packed that night, and we doubt if Mr. Sinclair has yet forgotton the raking down he received from the pugnacious military ex-parson, who was elected governor by a good majority,—and whose son, Walter H. Harriman, Esq., afterward elected city solicitor of Portsmouth and county solicitor of Rockingham county, solely on the strength of his father's name and services, is now on the stump for the democrats in this state. Mr. Sinclair is a very smooth and pleasing speaker, and was always a gentleman; his political faith, however, is horrid, and always was.

NOT OUR "TOMMY."

The Times of Monday evening, under the heading "Taken to Brentwood," said: "This morning Assistant Marshals Hurley and Peverly carried Franklin Hoyt to Brentwood on order of the county commissioners. Hoyt, who has boarded at the Welcome house on Deer street, has been suffering from aberration of the mind for five or six weeks, and it was finally decided by the doctor and county commissioners to take him to Brentwood for treatment." This Franklin Hoyt is not Mr. Franklin C. Hoyt, the printer and well known democrat of ward two, who has been as steady as a tight ship's pump-bolt for the past four months.

THIRD PARTY NOMINATIONS.

At the prohibition county, councillor and senatorial conventions held at Epping last week the following nominations were made: Isaac F. Underhill of Candia, sheriff; Enoch H. Pearson of Epping, treasurer; Charles T. Wiggin of Portsmouth, register of probate; Henry Little of Exeter, register of deeds; Samuel Hoyt of Newington, Benjamin F. Cram of Kingston, Charles H. Harvey of Newmarket, commissioners; George S. Thompson of Epping, solicitor; senatorial district No. 22, Nathaniel Chapman of Greenland; councillor district No. 1, Frank K. Chase of Dover.

Young republicans who will be legally entitled to vote on November 6th for the first time, are requested to hand their names to the ward committees of the wards in which they live, in order that their names may be presented to the inspectors of election to be added to the checklists. Prompt action is requested, that no votes may be lost through the omission from the list of names legally entitled to be there.

Pears' is the purest and best Soap made.

A gentleman who lives at Christian Shore and has voted the democratic ticket for fifty-five years, says he wants $100 for his vote this year.

There are thirty-two voters in the town of Hampton who voted for William Henry Harrison forty years ago, and every one of them will vote this year for his grandson.

Preston's Jamaica Ginger is increasing in popularity.

A fine assortment of pocket and corn knives, button-hole and pocket scissors; also razers in great variety, at Grace's drug store.

A fine constitution may be ruined by simple neglect. Many bodily ills result from habitual constipation. There is no medicine equal to Ayer's Pills for restoring the system to natural and healthy action.

The daily call at Staples' Dry Goods store: "Got any more of those remnants of drilling at 6 1-2 cents?"

We have.

Mr. Daniel Clark has hauled his fishing boat, the Fearless, up for the winter, and will soon engage in buying fish at his old stand, Commercial wharf.

Mr. D. Clark has bought a small fishing vessel, of about five tons burden, called the Lightning, which will be used for fresh fishing. He has caught within ten days one hundred barrels of herring, which he has salted.

There were but few arrivals of fish the latter part of last week, and prices ruled high—$3 to $4 per hundred pounds.

Mr. Charles Mills, of Kittery Point, went to Boston on Thursday of last week to get the fishing schooner Cosmos, which will fish out of this port the coming winter.

Mr. Adolph Enau, for several years past foreman of Mr. J. P. Norton's extensive brickyard at York, has removed to Haverhill, Mass.

Mr. S. G. Donnell of York beach is buying fresh fish at Cape Neddick this fall, and shipping to Boston. The boats there are taking good fares of haddock now. The herring catch at the Nubble this season is not so large as usual; at "the Cove" and York harbor these fish have been unusually plentiful.

Capt. James S. Brewster, who sailed the bricker Hattie Lewis several years ago between this port and Boston, is at work carpentering for Mr. Edward Freeman at York beach.

Burglars broke into the post-office at Springvale, York County, Me., on the night of Oct. 26th. They blew open the safe, and stole $300 in money and stamps. They also entered Williams' grist mill near the railroad station, and took about twenty dollars. There is no clue to the thieves.

The Grant brothers, Charles L. and Willard, of York, are hauling large quantities of cord wood from the Scituate district to Blaisdell's wharf at Sewall's bridge, for shipment.

The apple crop in York this year is very heavy, the yield of grafted fruit, which in this town is of first quality, being especially abundant.

Recent transfers of real estate in York county, Me., as left for record in the office of the register of deeds: Kittery—William G. Billings of Portsmouth, N. H., to Maria D. Mayo of Kittery, land in Kittery for $1100. York—Donnell Weare to Edward S. Marshall, et al., real estate for $2,000. South Berwick—Susan McCabe to Ann McCabe, land and buildings for $1. Wells—Charles W. Tibbetts of Dover, N. H., to Frank S. Tompkins of Dover, land in Wells for $1. Kennebunkport—Kennebunkport Sea Shore Co. to Mrs. Ellen K. Brazier of Philadelphia, Pa., land in Kennebunkport for $1,100; Wm. H. Goodwin of Boston, Mass., to Frank F. Gerry of Sudbury, Mass., land in Kennebunkport for $1; Frank F. Gerry of Sudbury to Josephine Goodwin of Boston, land in Kenkebunkport for $1.

Sanford, York county, is to have a weekly paper, to be called the Sanford Siftings. It will commence its issue about the 1st of November, and will be devoted to the interests of Sanford in particular, and the northern part of York county in general.

Mr. Edward M. Freeman, the contractor and builder of York beach, has several building contracts on hand. He is putting an enlargement on the main building of the Thompson house at Union Bluff, of which Samuel Ramsdell is proprietor; this addition is thirty-five by sixty-five feet on the ground, and will have two wings, one thirty by fifty feet and the other sixteen by fifty feet, and three stories high, making the Thompson one of the largest houses at York beach. Mr. Freeman is also putting up at Dover Bluff a two-story cottage for Mr. Charles Varney of Boston, the main building being eighteen feet by twenty on the ground, with a wing fourteen by sixteen feet; it is to be finished throughout in whitewood, and will be the finest private cottage at the beach; it will cost about $5000. He is also erecting a building twenty by thirty feet on the ground and two stories high, to be used as a hardware store by Messrs. Freeman & Clement; and will build an addition to the summer residence at Dover Bluff of Col. John Bracewell of North Adams, Mass., before the opening of the next "season." In readiness for occupancy next season, also, he will put up a handsome cottage at York beach for Marcellus Perkins. Mr. Freeman will employ a force of twenty men all through the winter, and probably considerably increase this force after the opening of spring.

On Thursday of last week the town authorities of South Berwick received a telephone despatch from Biddeford to stop a horse thief who had stolen a team from that place. It had been noticed that the team described had been driven through the town a little while before, and the officers gave chase and overtook the team at the lower landing. The thief seeing he was being chased jumped out of the team, took to the woods and escaped.

Herbert Trafton of York has about completed a fine residence for himself at the corner of Railroad avenue, which is the name recently given to the new road leading to the York Harbor station of the York Harbor & Beach railroad.

Charles I. Hutchins, who several years ago bought the Theodore Ramsdell place on the Scituate road, York, has fitted the house up in first-class style, and built a large barn of modern architecture. Mr. Hutchings was for many years clerk in the government employ at Washington, D. C., but like many others, at the incoming of the present "reform" administration took himself out.

The cranberry crop of Kittery Point and Cape Neddick is a failure this season, owing to the constant overflowing of the beds during the latter half of the summer and the early autumn by the heavy rains. The cranberry meadows in these places never promised better for an abundant crop than before the setting in of the heavy and almost continuous rains which have prevailed for the past two months.

From the Vidette of Grand Crossing, Ill., we take the following in regard to a former resident of this city: "Last Friday night the republicans gathered at their weekly meeting at headquarters, and were addressed by Mr. William H. Gardiner of Brookline. Mr. Gardiner came from Washington [illegible] years residence there, to Illinois a year and a half ago. He was especially prepared to speak on the shallow pretences of this hollow civil service reform administration. He told some unpleasant truths in a clear and forcible manner. We have not space to give in detail his speech. He took for his 'text' the following: 'Why I am a Republican.' Here is the synopsis: The republican party is a party of freedom; it is the party of progress, particularly in internal improvements; it is the party of honest money; it is the party of toleration; it is the party of protection; it is the party of temperance; it is the party of education; it is the party of true civil service reform; finally, it is the party of a free ballot and a fair count." It did not need this to prove that the republicanism of our old friend Will is of the kind that holds out, being founded on reason and reflection.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

Sold only in cans, full weight.

Check-List Notice.

THE Board of Inspectors of Check Lists of the City of Portsmouth give notice that they have posted lists of the voters in the several wards of the city, in the corridor of the City Building; also, of Ward One in the Railroad Station, of Ward Three in the store of John Mitchell on Islington street, of Ward Four in the store of John J. Laskey on Pleasant street, for the inspection of the voters of the city.

They also give notice that they will be in session in the city Building on Friday, October 26th; on Wednesday, October 31st; and on Friday, November 2d, 1888, from 9 o'clock A. M. to 12 M., and from 2 to 5 o'clock P. M., on each of said days, for the purpose of revising and correcting the list of voters.

They will also be in session at the same place from 8 to 10 A. M. and from 1 to 2 o'clock P. M., on the day of election, for the purpose of furnishing certificates to any persons whose names may have been omitted, and who the board are satisfied have resided in the ward one year next preceding said election.

No Mercury, No Potash,

Or any other Mineral Poison.

It is Nature's Remedy, made exclusively from Roots and Herbs.

It is perfectly Harmless.

It is the only remedy known to the world that has ever yet Cured contagious Blood Poison in all its stages.

It cures Mercurial Rheumatism, Cancer, Scrofula, and other blood diseases heretofore considered incurable. It cures any disease caused from impure blood. It is now prescribed by thousands of the best physicians in the United States, as a tonic. We append the statement of a few:

"I have used S. S. S. on patients convalescing from fever and fever and ague with remarkable results. J. R. CHENEY, M. D., Ellisville, Ga."

BREMEN, GA.—Willie White was afflicted with scrofula seven years. I prescribed S. S. S., and to-day he is a fat and robust boy. C. W. PARKER, M. D.

RICHMOND, VA., Dec. 15, 1885.—I have taken three bottles of Swift's Specific for secondary blood poison. It acts much better than potash or any other remedy I have ever used. J. F. WINFIELD, M. D., Formerly of Sussex Co., Va.

DR. E. J. HALE, the well-known druggist and physician, of Nashville, Howard County, Ark., writes: "Having some knowledge as to what S. S. S. is composed of, I can safely recommend it as the remedy for all skin diseases, it matters not what the name may be."

We have a book giving a history of this wonderful remedy, and its cures, from all over the world, which will convince you that all we say is true, and which we will mail free on application. No family should be without it. We have another on Contagious Blood Poison, sent on same terms.

Write us a history of your case, and our physician will advise with you by letter, in strictest confidence. We will not deceive you knowingly.

Defenders of American Industry.

We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform, 1888.

"American wages for American workmen." Republican motto.

A Return to Duty.

This is always desirable, and the speedier it takes place the better. Doubly welcome is it in the case of those usually industrious little organs, the kidneys, which, when they go on a strike—so to speak—and drop work, seriously imperil health in more than one way. First and foremost, their inaction begets their disease, which is hydra-headed, including such dangerous maladies as Bright's disease and diabetes. Next, when inactive they fail to assist in removing from the blood impurities that beget rheumatism, gout and dropsy. Third, their inaction weakens the bladder. All this is preventable and remediable by the pleasant promoter of organic action, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, at once a tonic and a regulator. This gently but effectually impels the kidneys to return to duty, and strengthens them and the bladder. Upon the bowels, stomach and liver it likewise exerts a regulating and invigorating influence, and it strengthens the system, and averts and remedies malaria and rheumatism.

Mr. Cleveland has taken his stand on free trade, * * and on that broad question Mr. Cleveland's candidature naturally and necessarily carries English sympathy.—London Globe.

An Important Element

Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. The familiar headline "100 Doses One Dollar," stolen by imitators, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This can easily be proven by any one who desires to test the matter. For real economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists.

When our manfactures are grown to a certain proportion, as they will under the fostering care of the government, * * the farmer will find a ready market for his surplus produce, and, what is of almost equal consequence, a certain and cheap supply for all his wants.—John C. Calhoun.

Be Your Own Doctor.

It won't cost you half as much. Do not delay. Send three 2-cent stamps for postage, and we will send you Dr. Kaufmann's great work, fine colored plates from life, on disease, its causes, and home cure. Address A. P. Ordway, & Co., Boston, Mass.

Upon the success of our manufactures, as the handmaid of agriculture and commerce, depends in a great measure the independence of our country, and none can feel more sensibly than I do the necessity of encouraging them.—Andrew Jackson.

Prepared by a combination, proportion and process peculiar to itself, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

It is useless to attempt the cure of any disorder, if the blood is allowed to remain impure. Neuralgia and rheumatism are traceable to a disordered condition of the blood, and in numberless cases have been cured by taking a few bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

It is to the New World that the Cobden Club is chiefly looking as the most likely sphere for its vigorous foreign policy. It has done what it can in Europe, and is now turning its eye westward and bracing itself for the struggle which is to come. It cannot rest while the United States are unsubdued.—London Times, July 18th, 1880.

VESPER BELLS.

'Tis evening and the dreamy chime
Of vesper bells falls on my ear.
In sad response my heart beats time;
A year today
They laid away
On distant shore my love so dear.

The joyous lark has gone to rest,
The sun's last glow fades on the sky—
So would I hush within my breast
The strains so low
Of long ago,
Caught from my love in days gone by.

Oh, vesper bells, so low, so sad,
Your troubled chime I cannot bear;
Those minor chords will drive me mad.
Hush, I implore!
Oh, peal no more
The dissonance of my despair!

—Emile Pickhardt.

RETURN OF THE GYPSIES.

Dickering with Unfortunate Farmers. Laying by a Winter's Stock of Hay.

Thus many return to the cities to their actual habitations, which may have stood idle the summer through. Numbers trail along the highways until their farm homes are reached, where, if they be rented, as they usually are to some less thrifty farmer, they have reserved a few months' housing. Thousands wander into the central south for all winter dickering and trading there. Many return to their village homes, over or alongside mammoth barns, where a winter's gypsy jockeying is done. Great crowds of them, not yet so well along as their brethren in gainings, straggle into the cities. In the commoner quarters these turn their hands to bird training, basket weaving, training and trading in valuable cats and dogs, while hundreds of gypsy youths secure ready employment under gentlemen's grooms, and particularly at the care of horses being fitted for the next year's events of the turf. Still others, and these comprise the larger number, come trooping into thousands of little villages and countryside places throughout the southern portions of northern states and in the northern tier of southern states, arriving as early as the last October days. The movements of these provide a genuine gypsy study.

Their arrival is hardly noticed, as they never come in a large body, but in twos and threes, and it is often weeks before the little gypsy community is at its best. The vanguard has quietly rented some deserted roadside inn at the outskirts of the village, or some former spacious home long gone to decay. This is always got for a song. However much house room it may have, it must invariably possess the requisite of a great ramshackle barn and outlying sheds. For a little time the gypsies seem to merely exist here. But every day their women folk may be seen miles away, spinning in light buggies over the autumn roads in every direction. Not only are they found on the well traveled highways, but every grass grown wagon road leading to secluded and remotest farms has been hunted and haunted. At this home and that; there tarrying under pretense of admiring some animal; there making a trifling purchase of vegetables and poultry; over yonder bartering for, but never buying, grain and hay; again telling a fortune or two if appealed to; but seldom urging such profitable vocation—in a little time these canniest and most indomitable of all human detectives have at their tongue's end, for home reference, every possible item of information regarding the financial standing and condition of every farmer for half a county round.

Then of a sudden some luckless wight, under terror of an overdue note or relentless mortgage, has sold his cornfield "in the shock" to the gypsies. Another's weather browned stacks of hay have come into their possession. Then begins, and to continue the whole winter through, a ceaseless procession of young stock, horses and mules, toward the gypsies' temporary domicile. Drunken farmer, unfortunate farmer, thriftless farmer, in all directions, pays the penalties of ill doing or ill luck to these superb jockeys, who, buying for pittances, and for months selling at excellent prices or not at all, at their improvised market, make large profits; and the spring finds them ready for greedy city buyers with great numbers of stock transformed from shaggy, ambling beasts to animals of such splendid form and spirit as do even a city gypsy trader's eyes good to look upon. The amount of live stock thus gathered up every winter throughout the country is tremendous; the profits are inconceivably great, and these wizards of the stable must eventually largely control the entire horse trade of the country.—Edgar L. Wakeman's Letter.

An Interesting Experiment.

A highly interesting as well as instructive experiment in night signaling at sea will be tried at the first favorable opportunity. The new method is one suggested by Mr. Edison. It consists in throwing the rays of the electric light on the clouds. The clouds, thus acting as reflectors, permit the flashes of the light being seen at a very great distance. The regular system of flashes of different lengths can be utilized in this manner by corresponding them with the dashes and dots of the regular army and navy code of telegraphy. This system could be used to great advantage where the means usually employed would be inadequate and unreliable. The present manner of sending messages at night between different vessels consists of the common torch, which is used in the same manner as the "wig wag" flag in daytime.—Newport Cor. New York World.

The Regular Thing.

An old gentleman of Detroit was passing through the ceremony of taking his fourth wife the other day. At the impressive climax of the good preacher man's part in the performance somebody was heard sobbing in an adjoining room.

"My goodness!" exclaimed one of the guests in a dramatic whisper, "who on earth is that crying on this festive occasion?"

"That?" replied a mischievous member of the experienced bridegroom's family. "That's nobody but Em. She always boohoos when pa's getting married."—Detroit Free Press.

Perhaps the most lucrative office in the national government, next to the presidency itself, is the clerkship of the supreme court at Washington. It yields an annual income in fees of from $25,000 to $40,000.—New York Evening World.

The Norfolk Dialect.

The natives of Norfolk speak in a singsong voice, with a rising inflection, which reaches its highest pitch on the last word of the sentence. I am assured by people learned in the Norfolk dialect that the vocabulary contains but little slang, and that many of the words that I used when a boy, and which sound so oddly now, are pure Saxon. Nevertheless, if you visit Norfolk you must be prepared to hear a rivulet called a "beck," a house flannel a "dwile," a pitcher a "gotch," a ditch a "holl," a small tub a "killer," a narrow lane a "loke," a small field a "pightle" and strong beer "nogg." You will be addressed on all sides as "How du you du, bor?" the last word being a contraction of neighbor. The braying of a donkey will sound no more melodious to your ears because it is called a "dickey," while a Norfolk girl is none the less attractive for being called "mawther."

A Norfolk man will "crowd" a barrow, not wheel it; while his little son will "jiffle" at church, not fidget. Spring lambs down there are "kedgey," not sprightly; while ducks enjoy themselves in a "swidge" instead of a puddle. The tart and juicy gooseberry becomes a "thape," and the ringdove a "dow;" the jackdaw a "cadder," the sea gull a "cob" and the snail a "dodman." The Norfolk people "mardle" instead of gossip; they are "slake," but not idle; they build "stugey" when they build strongly. They "shuck" peas, "would "shug" (shake) a cocktail, if such a thing were known there, and "skink" (serve) out beer; while water just frozen is said to be "laid." The mist and fog which rise over the fen country is called "roke;" and if you failed to understand this very pure Saxon it is more than likely the honest Norfolkese would put you down as a little "shanney," or slightly crazy.—Home Journal.

Drinking Instead of Eating.

"Beer wagon drivers eat less and drink more than any class of people living." The speaker was a big brewer and knew what he was talking about. "Yes," he continued, "the wagon drivers drink beer so frequently and so continuously that they are almost constantly in a drowsy condition. They drink mechanically whether they want it or not, and I never knew one to refuse an invitation to have more. They seem to think it is their duty to swill all the beer they can put down. They get into the habit at the brewery. Every brewery has what is called a taproom, which is nothing more nor less than a free bar. Beer is always on tap there, and the employes have free access to it, with the privilege of helping themselves whenever they please. Whenever a breweryman goes to the taproom for beer he never drinks fewer than two glasses. These are turned off in the twinkling of an eye. The men drink so much that they lose their natural inclination to eat like other people. They seldom eat a hearty meal, a bite now and again between drinks being sufficient to appease the appetite. There are few brewerymen who drink less than a hundred glasses of beer a day, and I know of some who never go to bed without taking in that number and twenty-five more."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Gaining or Losing a Day.

In sailing round the world eastward the days are each a little less than twenty-four hours, according to the speed of the ship, as the sun is met every morning a little earlier. These little differences added together will amount in the course of the circumnavigation to twenty-four hours, giving the sailors an extra day, not in imagination, but in sober truth, as they will have actually eaten an extra day's food and consumed an extra day's grog. On the other hand, in sailing westward, the sun is overtaken a little each day, and so each day is rather longer than twenty-four hours, and clocks and watches are found to be too fast. This also will amount, in sailing round to the starting point again, to one whole day, by which the reckoning has fallen in arrear. The eastern ship, then, has gained a day and the western ship has lost one, leading to this apparent paradox, that the former ship has a clear gain of two whole days over the latter, supposing them to have started and returned together.—Chambers' Journal.

Found at Pompeii.

The excavations that are being carried forward at Pompeii are giving most interesting results. In the beginning of the month a wooden case was dug up, containing a complete set of surgical instruments, many of which are similar to those used in the present day. A few days later four beautiful silver urns of considerable height were found, together with four smaller cups, eight open vases, four dishes ornamented with foliage and the figures of animals, and a beautiful statue of Jupiter seated on his throne. Besides these silver objects several gold ornaments were also found, such as earrings and rings. The excavations are being rapidly pushed forward.—Rome Cor. London News.

Reading for Ward Rooms.

"Since you are curious to know what is read in ward rooms," writes a naval officer, "I will undertake to give you a general statement. Old newspapers, particularly local papers and cheap novels, form the bulk of our literature. There are a few omnivorous readers among us, and now and then a critical one. I have a friend who enjoys the whole of Herbert Spencer, and in my last ship there were three who appreciated Stevenson, Meredith and Jane Austen. Perhaps something of this latter result was due to missionary effort."—W. D. Howells in Harper's Magazine.

The Personal Equation in War.

The official records are invaluable and in themselves compose a large part of the history of the war. But they are far from justifying the blind faith with which they are appealed to in some quarters. Who, from the unassisted reports, would be able to reconstruct the character, the eidolon, of Grant, or McClellan, or Hooker, or Lee, or Jackson, or Hood? —and yet, in war, the personal equation is everything.—The Century.

Side saddles are slowing going out of fashion in England, and the man fashion way of riding is being adopted by many of the ladies. Side saddles have been in use since 1388.

OVER WORKED Women

For "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated school teachers, milliners, seamstresses, housekeepers, and over-worked women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best of all restorative tonics. It is not a "Cure-all," but admirably fulfills a single one of purposes, being a most potent Specific for all those Chronic Weaknesses and Diseases peculiar to women. It is a powerful, general as well as uterine, tonic and nervine, and imparts vigor and strength to the whole system. It promptly cures weakness of stomach, indigestion, bloating, weak back, nervous prostration, debility and sleeplessness, in either sex. Favorite Prescription is sold by druggists under our positive guarantee. See wrapper around bottle. Price $1.00, or six bottles for $5.00.

Free Raw Material.

There has been a good deal of fallacious argument, arrayed in high sounding phrases, employed by the democratic press and orators during the presidential campaign now nearing its end, and on no point has this been more marked than in the talk about "free raw material."

Just what "free raw material" may be we cannot say. It would be iron ore for the smelter; pig iron for the foundryman; cast steel for the tool maker; plain wool for the yarn maker; yarn for the stocking weaver; finished broadcloth for the tailor; and so on. One manufacturer's finished product is another's "raw material;" and while the democratic orators may be able to draw the line, we are not, and knowing that, shall not attempt it.

But whatever "free raw material" may be, we are told by the free traders that "free raw material" is all that is required to enable the American manufacturers to take control of the markets of the world, as well as those of the United States. Free wool seems to be the standard "free raw material" of the democratic "tariff reformers," as they prefer to be called, although Mills and the Star-Eyed Goddess of Reform, and Frank Hurd and Henry George, do not hesitate to declare that they aim at absolute free trade. Congressman McKinney, in his speeches, says that free wool would give us cheaper goods and we could drive England out of the markets of the world. If this is so, the republican (senate) tariff bill secures us the markets of the world, for it provides that wool and all other materials manufactured for export may be imported free—not for the purpose of competing in our own home market, but in the markets of the world. This is absolute free raw material for every manufacturer who wishes to compete in the markets of the world with the cheaply run factories of Europe.

But it is the merest bosh to talk of free raw material enabling us to so compete; only cheaper labor will do it—labor cheaper than the labor of Europe. Were this not true, where would England be in regard to cotton manufactures? Certainly not where she is now, ruling all markets save those of the United States. We have "free raw material" in cotton, and always have had; not only that, but we grow the cotton, and the "free raw material" market is 3000 miles nearer our mills than to those of Lancashire; and yet our manufacturers do not control the markets of the world, and did not control our own markets until a protective tariff enabled them to do so. The reason is, that the American artisan is paid a higher price for his labor than the British workman,—just this, and nothing else.

"The Free Whiskey Party."

One of the humors of this presidential campaign has been the wailing of the democratic party and their third-party prohibition allies, over the "free whiskey" tendencies discovered by them in the republican party. We have not alluded to this amusing phase of the political contest until now, but all the democratic papers having dropped the free whiskey cry, and gone to work to prove that Lord Sackville has never been on friendly terms with the Cleveland administration, but on the contrary wrote his bombshell letter with the intent to defeat Cleveland, by the demobitionists was the declaration by the republican national convention that under certain conditions, rather than the protective feature of the American tariff laws should be vitiated, the republican party would consent to reductions in the internal revenue taxes on alcohol and liquors. From this, and this only, has come the democratic and prohibitionist charges that the republican party favors "free whiskey."

If the republican party is to be charged on this ground with favoring free whiskey, what can we say of the prohibition party? The republican national platform declares that the party under certain suppositious circumstances might consent to the partial repeal of the whiskey tax; the prohibition national platform demands the unconditional and immediate repeal of all taxes on whiskey; which is the party of "free whiskey?"

The democratic national convention declared "against all sumptuary laws"—meaning, plainly, against all laws regulating or taxing the liquor traffic; the New Hampshire democratic convention resolved in favor of the repeal of the present ironclad prohibitory laws, and the substitution of a license law; and the Mills tariff bill, approved by the democratic national convention, provides for the presentation annually by the people of the United States, to the retail liquor dealers, of about $5,000,000—in other words, "all special taxes upon retail dealers in liquors and retail dealers in malt liquors are hereby repealed,"—an annual gift of $25 to every retail liquor dealer in the country, as an inducement to work for the democratic party, with not a dollar of saving to the people in consequence.

Miss Frances E. Willard, president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, stumped Maine against the republican party, on the ground that it is the party of free whiskey, as indicated by its willingness to take off part of the whiskey tax under special conditions. Accepting her reasoning, the W. C. T. U. is an extreme free whiskey organization, for the last summer's national convention which re-elected her as president of the Union resolved in favor of "the abolition of the internal revenue on alcoholic liquors"—the unconditional taking off of all taxes on whiskey, and at once. We doubt if Miss Willard considers herself a free whiskey apostle, but according to her own argument she certainly is, and the Woman's Christian Temperance Union the most advanced "free whiskey" organization in the land, unless indeed the third-party prohibitionists may be ahead of it in that direction.

In the face of these facts; of the knowledge that a democratic victory in this state means the repeal of the present prohibitory laws, and the enactment of "such a license law" as "the sentiment of the community will sustain," unless the state platform of the democratic party is a lie; in face of all this, the prohibitionists of this state and county have nominated a separate ticket, the support of which can have no other possible result than a democratic triumph, as their own ticket has not the remotest chance of success. We have nothing to say against the honesty of the prohibitionists. If they think the temperance cause would be advanced by the repeal of the prohibitory laws, they are right in their action. But we do not mean to allow any real prohibitionist to vote for democratic success and republican defeat under the mistaken idea that the republican national or state platform declares for "free whiskey," when at the same time the prohibition national platform goes ten times farther in the same direction, and the democratic national and state platforms really declare for free rum.

"The Errand Boy;" or, How Phil Brent Won Success." By Horatio Alger, Jr. No. 14 of the "Boys' Home Library." Paper, 12mo.; price twenty-five cents. Published by A. L. Burt, 56 Beekman street, New York.

"The Errand Boy" is the latest issue of the popular "Boys' Home Library," and is in Horatio Alger's well-known vein. It will compare favorably with the best of his many stories for boys, and no one has better learned the secrets of interesting the young folks than he. There is nothing "preachy" in his books, though their tone is high and pure; they tell of honest, manly boys full of pluck and grit, just such youngsters as boys themselves like. The "Boys' Home Library" is one of the greatest successes of this era of

Want of Sleep

Is sending thousands annually to the insane asylum, and the doctors say this trouble is alarmingly on the increase. The usual remedies, while they may give temporary relief, are likely to do more harm than good. What is needed is an Alterative and Blood-purifier. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is incomparably the best. It corrects those disturbances in the circulation which cause sleeplessness, gives increased vitality, and restores the nervous system to a healthful condition.

Rev. T G A. Coté, agent of the Mass. Home Missionary Society, writes that his stomach was out of order, his sleep very often disturbed, and some impurity of the blood manifest; but that a perfect cure was obtained by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Frederick W. Pratt, 424 Washington street, Boston, writes. "My daughter was prostrated with nervous debility. Ayer's Sarsaparilla restored her to health."

William F. Bowker, Erie, Pa., was cured of nervousness and sleeplessness by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla for about two months, during which time his weight increased over twenty pounds.

Prominent Clergymen, Physicians, and all classes of citizens are unanimous in the endorsement of Salvation Oil, the greatest curse for rheumatism.

President Cleveland appreciates the gravity of the situation, and that something must be done to counteract the disastrous effect of My Lord West's letter. The Washington correspondent of the New York Herald says that he is about to issue a proclamation putting into effect the retaliation act against Canada. As Canada has given no cause of complaint for more than a year past, and cannot possibly give cause of complaint for seven or eight months to come, such a proclamation will be merely a confession of political distress on the part of the great "reformer."

To any one purchasing a bottle of Constitutional Cough Syrup of me and it does not give satisfaction I will refund the money. David Kimball & Co., No. 36 Market street.

A Needless Hunt.

A despatch of Oct. 30th from Pomona, Cal., says that four detectives have been there several days hunting for the author of the "Murchison" letter to Lord Sackville, these detectives being in the pay of the democratic national committee. We should be pleased to know what the democratic national committee propose to do with him, when he is found out! He—or they, or it—had as much right to ask the questions that were asked, by mail, as a mother has to ask her son by letter if he is coming home at Thanksgiving. The answer is what is making the trouble in the democratic camp, and the authenticity of that is not denied by the British minister.

The Keene fire department's annual inspection and parade took place Oct, 26th. There was some spirited practice in running and laying hose.

George O. Odlin, brother of James W. Odlin of Exeter, died very suddenly in Morrison, Ill., Oct. 25th, aged sixty-five years.

Attractive, but How They May Become So.

In a recent lecture before the Congress of Women Miss Agnes Willard said;—

"Why are the women of to-day so delicate, so feeble? Why do they fade so quickly, lose their color and become old before their time? Why do they endure such silent agony? Because of weakness. What causes weakness? Many things. Want of care in early maiden life. Heedlessness in matrimony. Thoughtlessness during motherhood. Hundreds of girls are ruined for life by neglect during the early period. Most marital misery comes from inattention and want of consideration. Many women as the hour of maternity approaches, sadly realize that they have not prepared for the solemn event by careful living, and adopting all the means in their power. These things are, sad but, unfortunately, they are true. What then is to be done? Live rightly and temperately. Use some valuable help for nature constantly and thoroughly. I know of one which is pure, simple and good, and I believe it to be the only remedy that will certainly regulate and cure the many troubles of women, keep them in health or restore them to beauty and attractiveness. I refer to Hunt's Remedy, which has been a godsend to me, and I believe should be in all homes. I know scores of women who not only owe their lives to it, but who are kept in constant health by its use. I endorse it most heartily."

John B. Pray, ninety-two years old, died last Friday at Rochester. He was a veteran of the war of 1812, a member of the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanic association, and was a master builder for fifty years.

The Cutest Little Things.

"Cute"! he echoed. "Well, I don't know as the adjective would have occurred to me in just that connection. But if you mean that they do their work thoroughly, yet make no fuss about it; cause no pain or weakness; and, in short, are everything that a pill ought to be, and nothing that it ought not, then I agree that Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are about the cutest little things going!

Young republicans who will be legally entitled to vote on November 6th for the first time, are requested to hand their names to the ward committees of the wards in which they live, in order that their names may be presented to the inspectors of election to be added to the checklists. Prompt action is requested, that no votes may be lost through the omission from the list of names legally entitled to be there.

LITERALLY THE STAFF OF LIFE.

Another greatly superior quality possessed by the Royal Baking Powder is that by which the preservation of important elements of the flour is effected in raising the bread by the mechanical operation of the gas, without fermentation.

Yeast, and all baking powders that produce the leavening gas by fermentation, as is well known, destroy a portion of the nutritive elements of the flour, and particularly those which are the most healthful and the greatest aids to a perfect assimilation of the food.

The Royal Baking Powder, while perfectly leavening, retains without change or impairment all those elements which were intended by nature, when combined in our bread, to make it literally the "staff of life."

No leavening agent or baking powder, except the Royal Baking Powder, possesses these great qualifications.

WHAT IS

SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" which fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, sores breaking out on them in various places. My little boy, three years old, has been a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. I was advised to use Hood's Sarsaparilla, and we have all taken it. The result is that all have been cured of the scrofula, my little boy being entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy." W. B. ATHERTON, Passaic City, N. J.

INDEPENDENT DEMOCRATIC CLUB.

The next meeting of the Independent Democratic Club will be holden at their room in the Old Custom House building this (Wednesday) evening at seven o'clock. The meetings will be held each evening until after the result of the election is known; and the real friends of the club and of the objects sought to be attained, are invited.

N. K. RAYNES, Sec.

ONE INCIDENT.

Mr. Editor: There is some wonderment in some quarters at the great amount of democratic disaffection in this city,—disaffection which will show itself at the polls to an extent not now dreamed of by the bosses. Let me relate one incident which has a bearing on the matter.

It is within my personal knowledge that when Capt. Daniel Marcy was a candidate for Congress from this district, in 1862 or '63, a navy yard workman who had never been anything but a democrat, and was a warm personal admirer of Capt. Marcy, voted for him. The day after the election the recalcitrant voter was notified by the master shipwright, under whom he was employed, that his services were no longer desired, the "boss" adding, "I suppose you know well enough what you're discharged for?" "I am not particular about knowing," was the reply. "Well," said the boss, "we want you to understand that we don't want anybody on this yard that votes for that d——d old copperhead Dan Marcy." From that day to this the democrat who was so insultingly dismissed for voting for a political and personal friend, and who has ever since been a democrat, has never had an hour's work on the yard; while the boss who dismissed and insulted him, and who continued to be a tearing republican until he was superceded, when he became a democrat, was one of the first men put in position on the navy yard by the so-called democratic administration, and to-day, as he was when he spoke of "that d——d old copperhead, Dan Marcy," is foreman shipwright on the yard. M.

ROUSING REPUBLICAN RALLY AT RYE.

The republicans of Rye had a torchlight procession and flag raising, and a meeting in the hall of the Sea View house on Monday evening, which was by far the most successful political demonstration ever held in the town. The procession consisted of the Harrison Guards, fifty men, of Rye; the Gallinger Guards, forty-five men, of North Hampton; and the Republican club of Hampton, forty men,—all headed by Spear's Cornet band of Rye, twenty-five pieces—and they made a most excellent display. The line of march extended over a distance of three miles, and every house on the route and some not on it, occupied by a republican, was illuminated, and it is safe to say that no such display was ever seen in Rye before.

It was generally conceded that Horace Sawyer's house was the most brilliantly lighted, it being a blaze of light from the top to bottom. The Sea View house was also a magnificent sight, every window from base to roof being illuminated, and in addition there were many Chinese lanterns to add effect to the scene. Samuel B. Spear's residence was also conspicuous for its tasteful appearance, and Hon. Emmons B. Philbrick had flags and Chinese lanterns profusely displayed, in addition to lights in every window in the house. Wm. J. Frazer and John F. Frazer of the Cable staff, had their houses brilliantly illuminated; James Webster Brown had a very neat and tastefu who had their dwellings illuminated were, Lewis H. Foss, J. Curtis Philbrick, D. Webster Philbrick, Gilman and Charles Garland, Wesley Jenness, Rufus W. Philbrick, Andess Swinson, Mr Mayo at the Washington house, Con. O. Philbrick, Abram and James H. Perkins, and James Burke. In addition to these many democrats had their houses illuminated, as two of their number had flag raisings that same evening, and the Rye democratic campaign company was out, so that the whole south end was illuminated as it never was before.

Mr. Geo. G. Lougee had made all necessary arrangements for raising the flag, and as the column of torch bearers passed between the poles on which the flag was to be suspended it was run up in a ball, and remained so while the company was coming into line, and just as this was accomplished and the companies had "presented arms" the head of the marching democratic club came under the ball of bunting overhead, which, strange to say, immediately spread out and showed itself to be a magnificent star spangled banner with the names and portraits of Harrison and Morton inserted thereon—and amid the rousing cheers of the crowd assembled, for the flags and the candidates, our friends of the democratic Cleveland and Thurman club had the honor of being the first to pass under this glorious emblem of our nation.

At the conclusion of the march the companies filed into the hall of the Sea View house, which was quickly filled, and among the audience were many ladies. The speakers were Edwin G. Eastman and Dr. Severance of Exeter, and they both held the attention of the audience by their clear and candid statements of their reasons for the faith they have in the principles of the republican party. They were frequently applauded.

At the close of the speaking the three campaign companies were invited to the dining room of the Sea View, where a most abundant and excellent collation was spread and to which all did justice; and then with rousing cheers for the cause and the candidates, this most successful demonstration was brought to a close about midnight. PERSONAL.

Miss Emma F. Lowd and Miss Eva C. Lowd leave this city on Thursday, Nov. 1st, for Philadelphia and the west, to pass the winter.

Mr. J. Albert Walker, wife and daughter, started on Tuesday to drive to Boston, where they will pass the winter at the Vendome.

Col. Elbridge G. Peirce of this city, for several years past superintendent of the Boston & Hingham steamboat line, has accepted the position of superintendent of an important railroad line in Tennessee, and will assume his new position in November. Bert C. Rowe, who has been purser on one of the steamers under Col. Peirce's management, has been tendered and accepted a responsible position on the Tennessee road.

William Tindall, a member of Osgood Lodge, No. 48, I. O. O. F., of this city, has entered the Odd Fellows' Home at Concord. He has been a member of the order for nearly fifty years, and is without a near relative.

Mrs. Sarah Hooper and her daughter, Miss Kate H. Hooper, of South ssreet, are to pass the winter at Prince Edward island, leaving this city for that place on Thursday, Nov. 1st. Their house here will be occupied by George D. Whittier, teacher of music in our public schools.

We have.

Mr. Stephen Preston, the Haytian minister at Washington, has received a cable despatch from his government announcing the capture by the Haytian man-of-war Dessalines of the American steamer Haytian Republic "while attempting to force the blockade of the insurgent port of St. Marca, with rebel troops, arms and ammunition on board. The vessel has been brought to Port-au-Prince and her case referred to the prize court. The prisoners are well treated by the authorities of Port-au-Prince."

The whaling barque J. A. Howland arrived at San Francisco from Fox island, in the Arctic ocean, Saturday, Oct. 27th. She reports the following thirteen whalers in the ice with little prospects of their being able to get out: The Andrew Hicks, William Baylis, Lancer, Sea Breeze, Ohio 2d, Rosario, Reindeer, Eliza, Mars, Hunter, J. P. West, Hidalgo and Ocean. Nearly all of these vessels are from New Bedford, Mass. Assistance has been sent to the imprisoned ships, but it is feared that they will be broken up before they can be released. There are between 500 and 600 men in the ships. On the New Bedford fleet the $50,000; Ohio 2d, $27,000; William Baylis, $50,000; Reindeer, valued at $15,000.

Capt. Tufts, of the schooner E. H. Foster, of and for St. John, N. B., from New York Oct. 16th, put into Southwest Harbor, Mt. Desert, Oct. 26th, and reports that on Wednesday, Oct. 24th, he fell in with an unknown schooner on Jeffries bank about eight o'clock in the morning. At noon the wind had increased to a gale, accompanied by snow and rain. The captain of the E. H. Foster noticed that the strange schooner was steering badly, and was falling astern. He watched for signals of distress, and was prepared to render assistance. A little later, she being then about a mile and a half in the rear, the unknown schooner suddenly sank, and Captain Tufts has no doubt that all on board went down with her. The unknown schooner was laden under deck, carried a main topmast, and had a new foresail. She appeared to be about 120 tons, and of American build.

Capt. H. A. Gordon, commander of the Dominion fisheries protection steamer Acadia, and admiral of the Dominion navy, reports that the late season was a poor one for the fishermen, mackerel being scarce. "The American fishermen showed no disposition to trespass within the three-mile limit. No vessels were seized this year, and captains of American vessels were permitted to go on shore to mail letters or communicate with their homes whenever they wished to do so." It is indeed pleasing to know that captains of American vessels, lawfully pursuing their avocation on the seas, have been allowed to land to mail letters in the ports of a country whose vessels can come into American ports and be rebuilt if they so desire, without having their vessels detained and the American flag insolently hauled down by some petty official.

Minister Bayard has informed the owners of the steamer Haytian Republic that a man-of-war will be at once sent to Hayti to protect the lives and property of American citizens.

Frank Moore, the young man who had both legs cut off in the freight yard of the Concord railroad on the afternoon of Oct. 29th by a shifting engine, was on the 30th reported to be as comfortable as could be hoped for, and likely to recover.

Gen. Joslah G. Hadley, who voted for Andrew Jackson in 1824, and has been a staunch democrat ever since, will not vote for Cleveland this year.

Only two policemen were on duty in this city on Tuesday night; all the rest were in Dover, to head the democratic procession in that city. The railroad station in Eliot was burglarized Monday night.

Mrs. Samuel Clark of Eliot will move into Portsmouth for the winter, leaving an Eliot man in charge of her large farm until her return in the spring. Mrs. Clark, who will be accompanied by her son and daughter, will take the house on Vaughan street occupied by her brother, Mr. Albert Shapleigh.

Mr. Richard Remick of South Eliot this season raised a curiosity in the shape of a double pumpkin, there being evidently two pumpkins, but growing into each other, and both on one stem. It will be exhibited at H. C. Locke's store on Market street this week.

A Colored Man Made Rich Down South.

Amos Marsh, an old colored man, living on Bell 8, who does odd jobs around the city, has just drawn $15,000 in the Louisiana State Lottery. In July he and a friend invested $1 each in tickets for the monthly drawing, which took place Aug. 7. Last week Marsh learned that his ticket, which was 3,894, had drawn $300,000, making his share $15,000. He placed the ticket in the hands of the Adams Express Company for collection. Marsh has a large family and is poor.—Orange (N. J.) Chronicle, Aug. 25th.

The Boston & Maine railroad station in Eliot was broken into on the night of Oct. 29th, and the safe drilled into and blown open; the thieves, however, got recently arrived at the mouth of the Saco, but were driven away before firing the charge they had laid, and who also are credited with blowing open the post-office safe in Springvale, York county, on the night of Oct. 26th, and stealing $300 in money and stamps.

Ringing Noises

In the ears, sometimes a roaring buzzing sound are caused by catarrh, that exceedingly disagreeable and very common disease. Loss of smelling or hearing also result from catarrh. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, is a peculiarly successful remedy for this disease, which it cures by purifying the blood. If you suffer from catarrh, try Hood's Sarsaparilla, the peculiar medicine.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

Sold only in cans, full weight.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS PIANOS

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin. Said form has been followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best instruments. Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Industrial Exhibitions held in Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues $22 TO $900. free.

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but claim improvement. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which they claim to have secured the greatest possible purity and evenness of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune and other important advantages.

Defenders of American Industry.

We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform, 1888.

"American wages for American workmen."—Republican motto.

A Return to Duty.

This is always desirable, and the speedier it takes place the better. Doubly welcome is it in the case of those usually industrious little organs, the kidneys, which, when they go on a strike—so to speak—and drop work, seriously imperil health in more than one way. First and foremost, their inaction begets their disease, which is hydra-headed, including such dangerous maladies as Bright's disease and diabetes. Next, when inactive they fail to assist in removing from the blood impurities that beget rheumatism, gout and dropsy. Third, their inaction weakens the bladder. All this is preventable and remediable by the pleasant promoter of organic action, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, at once a tonic and a regulator. This gently but effectually impels the kidneys to return to duty, and strengthens them and the bladder. Upon the bowels, stomach and liver it likewise exerts a regulating and invigorating influence, and it strengthens the system, and averts and remedies malaria and rheumatism.

Mr. Cleveland has taken his stand on free trade, * * and on that broad question Mr. Cleveland's candidature naturally and necessarily carries English sympathy.—London Globe.

An Important Element

Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. The familiar headline "100 Doses One Dollar," stolen by imitators, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This can easily be proven by any one who desires to test the matter. For real economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists.

When our manufactures are grown to a certain proportion, as they will under the fostering care of the government, * * the farmer will find a ready market for his surplus produce, and, what is of almost equal consequence, a certain and cheap supply for all his wants.—John C. Calhoun.

Be Your Own Doctor.

It won't cost you half as much. Do not delay. Send three 2-cent stamps for postage, and we will send you Dr. Kaufmann's great work, fine colored plates from life, on disease, its causes, and home cure. Address A. P. Ordway, & Co., Boston, Mass.

Upon the success of our manufactures, as the handmaid of agriculture and commerce, depends in a great measure the independence of our country, and none can feel more sensibly than I do the necessity of encouraging them.—Andrew Jackson.

Prepared by a combination, proportion and process peculiar to itself, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

It is useless to attempt the cure of any disorder, if the blood is allowed to remain impure. Neuralgia and rheumatism are traceable to a disordered condition of the blood, and in numberless cases have been cured by taking a few bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

It has done what it can in Europe, and is now turning its eye westward and bracing itself for the struggle which is to come. AMONG THE SWEETS.

How Sugar is Handled on the Spacious Levee at New Orleans.

Now that the busy season is opening, the levee will soon become the scene of bustle and activity. The whistle of steamboats, the yelling of boss stevedores, the whooping of drivers as they back up to load and unload freight, cracking their whips about the ears of the mules or raising welts along their sides with the lash, the jam of carts, wagons and floats always heralds the approach of winter on the levee and the resuscitation of trade. From the middle of October until the balmy breezes of spring are about softening into the airs of summer the work on the levee is almost continuous.

The principal commodities handled are the staple products of the state—cotton, sugar and molasses. A hogshead of sugar is a huge arrangement of staves, hoops and heads, weighing, when filled with sugar, from 1,100 to 1,500 pounds. The cooper shop and the plantation together produce the hogshead of sugar. When the cane has been cut and pressed and the juice boiled into sugar the sweet stuff is packed into the hogshead, put on board a steamboat and shipped to this city, consigned to the factor representing the planter. On arriving at the landing the sugar is unloaded on the wharf, where it is allowed to remain for twenty-four hours, and even longer when room is plentiful. Then, if not hauled away, it is rolled into the sugar sheds at the expense of the owner.

Open kettle sugar is sold to the dealer on the levee. The factor is the seller, whether he employs a broker or not. The majority of factors have the services of a broker to attend to the sales on the landing. The first hand factor or broker only sells in lots, and the bids are either made openly, as the buyers gather around the hogsheads, or the sugar is sold on private offers if the price proffered is the highest.

The party selling the sugar generally does the sampling, either in person or through a clerk or other employe. This is done by means of a long steel instrument known as the gimlet, which is run through the bunghole down into the sugar, twisted about, and drawn out full of the saccharine matter. This operation is performed several times, until a sufficient quantity is obtained to clearly show the quality of the article. These samples are generally piled up for the time on the hogshead they are taken out of for the critical examination of the buyer. After they have answered the purpose they are put into little paper bags and kept by the broker or dealer as a type for reference, or sent to the consignee.

It is while the sampling process is going on that the buyers gather round, each in his turn making his offer. The buyer generally attends the sales to personally inspect his purchase, but sometimes sends for samples, and then, on receipt of his goods, compares them with the samples furnished him.

Although the first hand broker sells but round lots, in case of damage of any portion of a lot or it showing up as an inferior grade, he takes a reduced price for it; still the buyer must take the entire lot. Second hand brokers sell in any way, by the whole or broken lots. Clarified sugar is sold by sample in the Sugar Exchange. The supplies are collected and taken to the exchange, where they are spread out on the table for the inspection of buyers.

After the sugar is sold it is weighed and gauged and is then ready for shipment after the first cooperage. It is swung from the scales by means of large hooks that catch on the chimes of the hogshead so that when the beam is pulled down the hogshead is lifted from the ground and the weight ascertained. Four men usually constitute the weighing gang, together with the clerk taking the records of the weights. These hogsheads as a general thing run from 1,100 to 1,500 pounds, but in weighing open kettle sugar the figures give the five and ten pounds. Thus, if a hogshead weighs 1,214 pounds it goes down as 1,210 pounds. Then 12 per cent. is knocked off from the gross weight. In clarified sugar the actual weight goes.

When the hogsheads have been coopered the boss drayman or his clerk, with his teams, appears on the scene. The sugar is marked, rolled on the floats, and hauled to its destination in the city or to the point of shipment, in case it is being forwarded to some other port, domestic or foreign. The low float is driven up close to the lots to be handled, a skid is hooked into the iron brackets at the side of the float, and the teamsters strain themselves in rolling up the great hogsheads on to the bottom of the wagon. After this handling the sugar soon comes into use on the table or in the pantry.

Molasses is disposed of in the same way as sugar. The brokers always come down to the levee to see the samples of molasses, as they are not taken to the exchange. Immediately on their arrival the barrels of molasses are coopered by the first hand cooper, so as to keep them tight and prevent leakage.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A Strange Phenomenon.

There is a strange phenomenon connected with the Upper Red river. I have several times been stranded by low water in the Upper Red, say 500 miles below the source, lying with a steamboat for weeks awaiting rain and a rise. Without any rain in the vicinity of where the boat was I have seen the river come up twenty feet or more in one night. I figure out the phenomenon in this way: The sources of the Red river are in the Llano Estacado of New Mexico, and the rains falling upon these great plains pour down into the head waters of the river, and the water comes rushing down many hundreds of miles, where there have been no rains for weeks, and thus result in the unlocked for swell in the water.—Globe-Democrat.

Water Power in a Mine.

At the Comstock silver mines in Virginia City mining science has reached its highest point, according to a San Francisco newspaper, which says that there they carry water down a vertical shaft to the depth of 1,700 feet, and then gear it back to the surface, running the gigantic mills by the 1,700 foot pressure. When the plan was suggested to engineers of Europe they laughed at it; but now it's a proved success, and furnishes a power immeasurably greater and cheaper than anything hitherto applied in mining.—New York Sun.

The Ways of Baby Elephants.

How the young elephants in the large herds escape from being crushed is something of a mystery, as they are almost continually in motion; but when a herd is alarmed the young almost immediately disappear. A close observer would see that each baby was trotting along directly beneath its mother, sometimes between her fore legs.

On the march, when a little elephant is born in a herd, they stop a day or two to allow it time to exercise its little limbs and gain strength, and then they press on, the mothers and babies in front, the old tuskers following in the rear, but ready to rush forward at the first alarm. When rocky or hilly places are reached, the little one are helped up by the mothers, who push them from behind and in various ways; but when a river has to be forded or swum, a comical sight ensues.

The stream may be very rapid and rough, as the Indian rivers often are after a rain, and at such a place the babies would hardly be able to keep up with the rest; so the mothers and fathers help them. At first all plunge boldly in—both young and old—and when the old elephants reach deep water, where they have to swim, the young scramble upon their backs and sit astride, sometimes two being seen in this position. But the very young elephants often require a little more care and attention, so they are held either upon the tusks of the father or grasped in the trunk of the mother, and held over or just at the surface of the water. Such a sight is a curious one, to say the least—the great elephants almost hidden beneath the water, here and there a young one seemingly walking on the water, resting upon a submerged back, or held aloft while the dark waters roar below.—C. F. Holder in St. Nicholas.

The Meaning of "America."

The meaning of the name Amerigo has often been discussed, the only thing certain being that it is one of those names of Teutonic origin, like Humberto, Alfonso, Grimaldi, or Garibaldi, so common in northern Italy, which testify to the Gothic or Lombard conquest. Americ, which occurs as early as 744 A. D., is probably a contracted form of the name Amalaric, borne by a king of the Visigoths, who died in 531. A Bishop Emrich was present at the Council of Salisbury in 807, and an Americus Balistarius is mentioned in the Close Rolls (Thirteenth century). It has been conjectured that the stem is im, from which we get the name of Emma. The meaning of this is not known with certainty, though Ferguson thinks it may denote "strife" or "noise." Since, however, the name is probably of Gothic origin, and since the Amalungs were the royal race of the Ostragoths, it is more likely that the stem is amal-, which was formerly thought to mean "without spot," but is now more plausibly connected with the old Norse aml, "labor," "work." The suffix ric, cognate with rex, reich and rick, means "rich" or "powerful," and therefore the most probable signification of Amerigo is "strong for labor."—Isaac Taylor in Notes and Queries.

Violinist Remenyi's Ways.

During his tour through the country several years ago Remenyi played at Whitewater, and while there was invited to the residence of T. D. Weeks, a prominent citizen of Whitewater. He took with him his famous Cremona violin, which he carefully deposited on a sofa in the parlor. Shortly afterward several young ladies who were there to meet the great violinist went into the parlor, and removing the violin from the sofa stood it up in one corner of the room. When Remenyi entered the room again he noticed his violin on the floor; he seized it and exclaimed, "My princess on the floor!" and then he turned to the astonished misses and scolded them roundly for putting his "princess" on the floor.

There was present at the same time a pianist who had joined Remenyi in this city, and who traveled with him during the balance of his tour. Whitewater was the first place where the new pianist played and on this occasion he sat down to the piano and gave an exhibition of his playing. When he had finished Remenyi was so delighted that he went up to the performer and embraced him in the most effusive manner, repeating this performance every time he played.—Evening Wisconsin.

Genius Seldom Seeks Advice.

In my whole literary experience, I never received but one manuscript from a young lady which evinced sufficient genius to justify me in urging her to attempt literature as a profession and means of support. She possessed a heaven born gift, and without my advice the force of her genius would have compelled her to write.

I believe more strongly each day I live that true genius or great ability seldom seeks advice. It only seeks an outlet. The artesian spring has to be bored and its course directed. The natural spring forces its own way through earth and rock. The woman who does not feel that she has thoughts and expressions within her strong enough to force their way through every obstacle and to compel the world to listen can never hope for marked success in literature. If she feels that unconquerable impulse towards creation which is divine in its source and power, she will not ask to be shown the way out of the loam into the light. Success may be long in coming, but she will win it at last without being led into it.—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

"Cleopatra's Needle."

Though we hear little about it nowadays, yet the monolith called Cleopatra's Needle is regarded as one of the sights of New York by country visitors. Every day throngs from the country go to the park to see this relic of the past, and the great majority of them express disappointment after looking at it. It is one of the first questions which country visitors hear when they get back to their homes: "Did you see Cleopatra's Needle when you were in New York?"—New York Sun.

Photograph of the Sun.

It is a singular fact a photograph of a sun or star taken through the big telescope recently constructed at Cleveland for the Lick observatory gives a view of the heavenly object much clearer and more distinct than that seen by the naked eye in looking through the powerful instrument.—New York Evening World.

The Man of Destiny Scared.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30th.—The Sackville-West trouble still continues to be the main topic of conversation in political circles here. The action of the president to-day in virtually ordering that the passports be sent to the British minister is a complete change in the position which he took last Saturday. Early this afternoon private despatches were received in this city from Washington, to the effect that the president had finally decided to bounce the British minister. It is stated on good authority that the managers of the democratic campaign became greatly alarmed yesterday over the situation in which Mr. Cleveland had been placed by this controversy. A delegation of three gentlemen went to Washington on the limited yesterday afternoon, and took to the president an account of the political situation as it appeared here from this standpoint. They called upon him, so it is said, last evening. They laid before him all the facts of the case, and laid special stress upon its gravity. He was told that there was no hope for the democratic ticket receiving a single Irish vote in this country unless prompt and immediate action was taken from this end of the line, and that the democratic national committee would not hold itself responsible for the campaign unless he acted immediately in the matter. When the fact became known to-night in political circles that the president had for once listened to his advisers, a quiet smile was seen on the face of every prominent democratic politician. The expression was universal, "Well, the president at last sees things as we see them; he is human, after all; he isn't invulnerable to being thoroughly scared."

Lord Sackville Gets the Sack.

Secretary Bayard on the 30th inst., by direction of President Cleveland, notified Lord Sackville, better known as British Minister West, and better still as the writer of the letter advising "Mr. Murchison" to vote for Cleveland if he wanted to vote in England's favor, that his services are no longer required; in other words, the British minister is kicked out. Just how England will regard this proceeding, which is looked upon there as it is here, as a mere electioneering dodge, time only will show.

A Washington despatch of the 30th says: "The letter of Secretary Bayard is false upon its face. It bears date of yesterday; it was written to-day, and it had not been decided upon until after the following urgent despatch was received at the White House from members of the national democratic committee in New York:

'The despatches in the morning papers are very discouraging. Does the president know that the Irish vote is slipping out of our hands? Something must be done to-day.'

Something was done. The president has taken this step at the instance of the democratic national committee."

Two Hundred Dollars in Gold.

We are authorized by advice received from I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, to say that they have for three years offered poultry raisers premiums payable in gold coin, for the best results obtained from using Sheridan's Powder to make hens lay. Their object has been to satisfy themselves beyond the shadow of a "Nothing on earth will make hens lay like Sheridan's Powder," was positively true. The hundreds of testimonials sent them from people who have used the Powder, prove the statement; so that it seems folly to again offer premiums; but so many persons, especially women who kept a few hens, have made such a good showing in former trials, and been beaten by some one else by a slight fraction in average, that in justice they ought to have another trial. Johnson & Co. have devised a plan this year, to overcome that trouble in a measure, by offering twice as much cash and six times as many Gold Coin Premiums as last year. The larger premium is $50.00. It is well worth trying for. If you miss that, there are twenty-three more chances for some other premium. But suppose a competitor did not get any premium, they would still have the satisfaction of getting a lot of eggs to sell at a good round price. The retail price for eggs in Boston and New York last year reached as high as 50 to 60 cents per dozen. It pays to use Sheridan's Powder when eggs sell for even 10 cents. One of the competitors last year wrote as follows: "I am well paid in eggs without a premium. I will cheerfully recommend Sheridan's Condition Powder to poultry raisers generally for egg production, and all diseases of hens. I can now say confidently that it will beat anything I ever tried to make hens lay. I was surprised at the end of eight weeks trial." He was evidently satisfied, as well he might have been; for during eight weeks he got from 30 hens, 1420 eggs, which at the average of prices above would amount to $65.08.

Any person can compete. Johnson & Co. will send full particulars free to anyone, whether they order Powder or not.

For 50 cents in stamps, I. S. Johnson & Co., 22 Custom House street, Boston, Mass., will send to any P. O. address two 25 cent packs, five packs for $1.00; or, for $1.20, a 2 1-4 can of Powder sent postpaid; six cans for $5.00, express prepaid. Send for full particulars.

LEAVES FROM AGAMENTACUS.

AGAMETICUS, YORK, Oct. 30th.

We are having a great deal of bad weather here this fall. It never rains but it pours. When it rains anywhere else, it pours here, and even when it is fair weather below, clouds can be seen trailing across the head of old Agamenticus. It seems almost like spring in the amount of mud and water in the roads, but the weather has been anything but springlike. It has been very cold, with several snow storms.

It is said two men came near perishing with cold while digging potatoes on Ground Root hill, a few days ago. It seems they had sense enough left to turn their team towards home, though how they did it and managed to get from the potato field to the house nobody knows. However, the team arrived home all right, with the men in a speechless condition. They were taken into the house and several quarts of hot coffee administered by sympathizing friends. Then, after a generous supply of hot, nourishing and very toothsome edibles, they recovered sufficiently to relate the harrowrowing tale of their sufferings, danger and fortunate escape.

But in spite of rain and snow, although nearly cut off from communication with the outside world by the mud, we are not only a cheerful, but a lively and social community. Huskings, paring-bees and sociables follow each other in due succession, and are well attended by our young people and others not "so young as they used to be."

The party given last week by Mrs. Henry Plaisted was a brilliant success, and the party departed at a late, or rather an early hour, much pleased with their entertainment.

Report says this place will soon be further enlivened by the wedding of Mr. Ernest Plaisted and Miss Jennie May Lewis, who are about to be united in hand as they have long been in heart. The young couple have the sincere congratulations of their numerous friends, who wish them a safe and prosperous voyage together over life's stormy sea.

Mr. Charles Johnson and family, who moved to North Berwick two years ago, have moved back on their farm in York, much to the gratification of their neighbors, who are pleased to welcome home again this interesting and amiable family.

George Moulton has got his new stable

We hear that Henry Plaisted has sold his farm to Thomas Earl of Lowell, Mass.

Judkins and McIntire are getting out stone for a new dam at Chase's pond, where, we hear, a mill will soon be built on the stream.

Will Downs is at work for John F. Plaisted. Will is young in years, but has seen much of the world in his short though eventful career. His ready wit and lively conversation make him a genial companion, especially at the table, where he can do good service in more ways than one. "A hearty laugh helps digestion."

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman of Burlington, Vermont, are visiting their son, Mr. Eugene Sherman of Gound Root hill.

Rev. G. D. Holmes of York Village has an appointment to preach at the school house Thursday evening, and we hope all who like a good sermon will come out and hear him. Mr. Holmes has favored us with quite a number of his interesting sermons in the past year, and we hope we shall be favored with many more befores he leave York.

The two men caught out in the blizzard while digging potatoes on Ground Root hill still survive. F.

To any one purchasing a bottle of Constitutional Cough Syrup of me and it does not give satisfaction I will refund the money. David Kimball & Co., No. 36 Market street.

The recent decline of more than $30 a share in the stock of the Boston & Maine railroad brought the following remark from Edwin Morey of Boston, who was president of the Lowell road when it was leased to the Boston & Maine. A prominent broker interviewed Morey as to the effect of the decline on the Lowell lease. "Yes," said Morey, "we leased the Lowell road, its franchise, its income, and its debts, but we didn't lease its brains."

"Cute"! he echoed. "Well, I don't know as the adjective would have occurred to me in just that connection. But if you mean that they do their work thoroughly, yet make no fuss about it; cause no pain or weakness; and, in short, are everything that a pill ought to be, and nothing that it ought not, then I agree that Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are about the cutest little things going!

Little Peach Pit Hunters.

"I got 110 now," said a ragged, dirty faced street urchin to a companion the other day. The boys were searching the streets for peach pits. As fast as they collected them they deposited them in battered tin cans.

"What are you going to do with them?" inquired the reporter.

"Oh, say, where wuz you brought up? Don't yer know dat dis is der time in the year when the boys go round after peach pits? When we get 100, we crack 'em, take the meat out, put 'em on a string and sell 'em to a druggist in Pearl street, who pays us five cents a 100."

"How many can you gather in a day?"

"If you walk far enough and look close enough you can get 200," said the boy.

The reporter left them and went to a drug store and inquired if the druggist bought peach pits. He said he didn't, but he knew of parties who did. He could not tell what use they were put to and didn't care, but judging from the taste of some of the patent cough medicines he wouldn't be surprised if they were ground up and used in that manner.—New York Evening Sun.

Safety of Factory Employes.

Quite a number of factories in Philadelphia are discarding the use of belts to convey power from one floor to another. In place they run a vertical shaft from the top to bottom of the building, connecting each floor by bevel gears on quarter twist belts. This is done to prevent accidents from clothing catching in belts, also to prevent it forming a draught for fire. The shaft can of course be fitted in a box in the floor, with no place to catch skirts or aprons, and no air passage for draught. It shows a good spirit on the part of the firms employing these methods, as the safety of their employes increases their respect for the men they work for.—Boston Budget.

Canada's Craze for Titles.

The craze for titles is spreading rapidly among the middle classes of Canada, and it is said that nine mothers out of ten who take their infants to the baptismal font have them christened "Lord John," "Sir William," "Lady Ellen," etc., even when they have not the slightest claim to bear a title.—New York Evening World.

LITERALLY THE STAFF OF LIFE.

Another greatly superior quality possessed by the Royal Baking Powder is that by which the preservation of important elements of the flour. effected in raising the bread by the mechanical operation of the gas, without fermentation.

Yeast, and all baking powders that produce the leavening gas by fermentation, as is well known, destroy a portion of the nutritive elements of the flour, and particularly those which are the most healthful and the greatest aids to a perfect assimilation of the food.

The Royal Baking Powder, while perfectly leavening, retains without change or impairment all those elements which were intended by nature, when combined in our bread, to make it literally the "staff of life."

No leavening agent or baking powder, except the Royal Baking Powder, possesses these great qualifications.

Want of Sleep

Is sending thousands annually to the insane asylum, and the doctors say this trouble is alarmingly on the increase. The usual remedies, while they may give temporary relief, are likely to do more harm than good. What is needed is an Alterative and Blood-purifier. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is incomparably the best. It corrects those disturbances in the circulation which cause sleeplessness, gives increased vitality, and restores the nervous system to a healthful condition.

Rev. T. G. A. Coté, agent of the Mass. Home Missionary Society, writes that his stomach was out of order, his sleep very often disturbed, and some impurity of the blood manifest; but that a perfect cure was obtained by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Frederick W. Pratt, 424 Washington street, Boston, writes. "My daughter was prostrated with nervous debility. Ayer's Sarsaparilla restored her to health."

William F. Bowker, Erie, Pa., was cured of nervousness and sleeplessness by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla for about two months, during which time his weight increased over twenty pounds.

WHAT IS

SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" which fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, sores breaking out on them in various places. My little boy, three years old, has been a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. I was advised to use Hood's Sarsaparilla, and we have all taken it. The result is that all have been cured of the scrofula, my little boy being entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy." W. B. ATHERTON, Passaic City, N. J.

CIRCUIT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES.

Oct. 30th; Colt J.

The Indurated Fibre Co. of Portland, Me., vs. the Amoskeag Indurated Fibre Ware Co.

This was an application for an injunction to restrain the defendants from using the words "Indurated Fibre" on the goods manufactured by them under their charter, the piffs. contending that it was an infringement of their trade mark. Affidavits were read which either side had taken, the record being printed. The defendants denied the jurisdiction and contended that the alleged trade mark and trade name were descriptive of quality, and that there had been no fraud or attempt at unlawful competition on the part of the defts. Lunt of Maine for compt.; Livermore and Fish for deft.

The works of the defendants are at Peterborough in this state, and are principally owned by Ex-Governor Cheney.

IS IT BULLDOZING!

There are rumors in the air this week to the effect that the republican employes of the Portsmouth Shoe Co., and the larger part of the voters in that employ are republicans, are being labored with by the democratic managers, who give them to understand that they can vote just as they please, so long as they please to vote the straight democratic ticket. "Vote right, or go," are the alternatives it is said.

SUPREME COURT.

WEDNESDAY, Oct. 31st.

The court was engaged during the day in hearing applications for naturalization, there being forty-eight applicants for citizenship from towns in the county outside of Portsmouth, and forty from this city

NAVY YARD REMINISCENCES.

PORTSMOUTH, Oct. 31st.

Editor of Chronicle: In your paper this morning I see the relation of an incident which should open the eyes, if they were not already opened, of the old-line democrats of this city, and more particularly of one of those old-liners, who, stubborn as he has always been in his thick-and-thin devotion to whatever his party has decided to be "democracy," has always had and now has the warmest good will of his republican fellow-citizens, Hon. Daniel Marcy. Who "M" may be I do not know; but I do know, as far as one who did not actually hear the conversation reported can know, that his statement is correct, excepting that the language employed in designating Capt. Marcy may have been somewhat softened down.

The democrats, in running the navy yard as a political machine, have made the same blunder, only in an aggravated form, that the republicans did. The republicans used to refuse work to good men of their own party, who were not only capable men but republicans from principle, and give it to men whose only claim was that they were "shaky" in their devotion to the democratic party, and might change their votes—for a consideration. Most of these "shaky" fellows used to vote their straight ticket on election day, to their credit be it said; and some of the justly angry republicans used to go with them, too, as was natural, if not wholly commendable.

Had the democrats, on gaining control of the navy yard patronage, put in good, square democrats in the good places, and in subordinate places that they were competent to fill, there would have been no fault found; the republicans expected it, and so did the democrats. But instead, all the good jobs on the yard have been given to men who, however competent they may be in their several positions, had no political claim other than that they had once been strong republicans, but deserted their party on losing office under it.

I am a republican, and always have been. I was on the yard myself, years ago, for a time; and I was one day told to my face by the gentleman who then held the position of boss teamster, that I was "only a half-and-half republican anyway," because I objected to his applying the epithet "copperhead" to a Kittery democrat then employed on the yard, who had volunteered early in the war and rendered faithful service until honorably discharged at its close. The same gentleman is boss teamster on the yard now, he having experienced a political change of heart on being removed from his position by a republican administration, and been re-appointed by the democratic managers. Whether his favorite aversion, the "copperhead" Union veteran, is now driving a team on the yard or not, I cannot say. It is such things that overcome us like a summer's cloud.

REF.

THE COTTAGE HOSPITAL.

The following letter explains itself:

PORTLAND, Oct. 27th.

REV. HENRY E. HOVEY—Dear Sir: The information has reached me that the Cottage Hospital which you have organized has a prospect of permanency and is supplying much needed treatment to the sick of your community. Portsmouth was one of my many homes and I am an invalid. Therefore your institution enlists my aid and sympathy and I enclose a check for $1,000 towards the permanent fund, with my earnest wishes for its success. Yours respectfully and cordially,

VIRGINIA L. W. FOX.

POLICE COURT---BATCHELDER J.

WEDNESDAY, Oct. 31st.

James Stewart and Martin Daley, two hard looking tramps, were assessed $9.90 each, for drunkenness. Brentwood in default of payment.

REAL ESTATE SALES.

Mrs. John B. Downs has sold the old Downs homestead on Star island, Isles of Shoals, to the Laighton Bros. Mrs. Downs' late husband was the last native of the islands to retain a home there, and the "Laighton boys" now own the whole of Star, Cedar, Smuttynose, Malaga, Appledore and Duck islands — the whole group to the eastward of Star island gut. White Island is owned by the United States government, and Seavey's island, which is connected with White island by a half-tide bar, is also claimed by the government; and Lunging island is owned by other parties.

The Tucker place on Rye road was on Wednesday, Oct. 31st, sold by Auctioneer C. Dwight Hanscom, under orders from Charles E. Batchelder, Esq., administrator of the estate. Before the sale commenced, four acres of marsh land were sold for $200 to Mr. Edward Drake of Breakfast hill; and "Scott's orchard," containing about four acres of grass land and a lot of trees which are alleged to be somewhere near 200 years old, was bought by Mr. John W. Johnson of Rye road for $200, also at private sale. A heavily timbered woodlot of about fifteen acres was sold by auction at $1050; a fifteen-acre field, having on it a large barn, for $767; a four-acre field for $166, and a field of ten or twelve acres for $401, Mr. James R. Connell of this city being purchaser of all these lots, which comprise the whole of the estate lying to the southward of Rye road. The Tucker house, with about half an acre of land, brought $145, Mr. Joseph Stoddard of Rye road being the purchaser; Mr. Stoddard also bought a five-acre lot of meadow and marsh land on Sagamore creek for $113—one of the best bargains of the day. The prices realized for the several lots were considered very fair.

OBITUARY.

CAPE NEDDICK, ME., Oct. 31st.

The announcement in the local papers of the current month, of the death of Mrs. Martha Louise Freeman, wife of Geo. M. Freeman, Esq., of Malden, Mass., will arouse tender recollections and regrets among a wide circle of friends and acquaintances. Mrs. Freeman was the youngest of the five daughters of the late Wm. Simpson of Cape Neddick, the eldest of whom was for many years the well known hostess of the Cape Neddick house, of former days. Mr. and Mrs. Freeman resided several years in Chester, N. H., whence they removed to Malden, as being more readily accessible to their two eldest sons, since become successful shipmasters. Mrs. Freeman was a lady who possessed many strong and serviceable traits of character, taking always an active interest in passing events, and entertaining intelligent and well-defined opinions drawn from the experiences of life and constant and varied reading; these characteristics, with the ardor of her attachments, her native humor, and a peculiar charm and cordiality of manner quite her own, combining to form a marked and attractive personality. Her memory will long be cherished by numerous friends, especially all who ever shared in the perfect hospitality of her beautiful home in Malden, or in her two former places of residence.

M.

As Mrs. James Hall, of Miller avenue, was crossing Congress street at the academy on Tuesday evening of this week about six o'clock, she was struck by a two-horse carriage and knocked down. She was taken up senseless, and it was at first thought she was killed, though this fortunately proved not to be the case, and next day she was reported to be doing well, though still very lame and sore.

The ward one republican committee are requested to meet at the headquarters on Congress street this (Thursday) evening.

Do you suffer from catarrh? You can be cured if you take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier. Sold by all druggists.

Young republicans who will be legally entitled to vote on November 6th for the first time, are requested to hand their names to the ward committees of the wards in which they live, in order that their names may be presented to the inspectors of election to be added to the checklists. Prompt action is requested, that no votes may be lost through the omission from the list of names legally entitled to be there.

Our latest great bargain, Gentleman's Scarlet Shirts and Drawers at seventy-four cents. They are regular $1.00 quality. LEWIS E. STAPLES, 7 Market St.

The south mill pond is being drained for cleansing purposes.

The Winchester Cadets went to Rochester by special train on Wednesday evening, Oct. 31st, to take part in the republican parade there. There were not so many of them as there were of the democratic companies that went to Dover the previous evening; but then the Winchesters have to pay their own fares, as well as for their uniforms and all incidentals, instead of having all expenses paid by the bosses.

Mr. John H. Ferguson of Brookfield, this state, formerly of this city, is passing a few days here this week.

The schooner John P. Whitney, Capt. Isaac M. Churchill, from an eastern port bound to Philadelphia with 260 tons of guano, was towed up to Commercial wharf in the forenoon on the 31st ult. in distress, her crew being disabled by a disease resembling scurvy, supposed to be caused by the guano.

The democrats of Newington had a rally in the town hall Tuesday evening, Oct. 30th, Hon. Sam. B. Page and Hon. John G. Sinclair being the speakers.

Boxes 38, 8, 14 and 26, and the no-school signal, will be struck to-day by the superintendent of the alarm during his monthly test of the apparatus.

It is stated that by reason of the decline in price of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, the Atchison, the Boston & Maine, the Eastern and other railway shares, Boston is sixty millions poorer in the market value of these stocks than was the case a few months since.

It is reported that the movement for the annulling of the lease of the Eastern to the Boston & Maine railroad now on foot will be headed off by the Boston & Maine uniting with the Eastern on such terms as will pacify some of the malcontents.

Mr. B. Frank Vittum of Dover, democratic candidate for mayor of that city in 1884, and always a liberal contributor to the party campaign fund, wrote to the Dover Democrat, Oct. 30th, expressing surprise that any person should suppose he would vote for Cleveland. Said he: "I voted for him four years ago, but shall never do it again. I am, and always have been, a democrat, and that is good and sufficient reason to my mind for opposing the re-election of a man who has given no evidence since in office that he is, or ever was, a democrat."

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

Sold only in cans, full weight.

CLEVELAND BROTHERS, ALBANY, N. Y.

Check-List Notice.

THE Board of Inspectors of Check Lists of the City of Portsmouth give notice that they have posted lists of the voters in the several wards of the city, in the corridor of the City Building; also, of Ward One in the Railroad Station, of Ward Three in the store of John Mitchell on Islington street, of Ward Four in the store of John J. Lackey on Pleasant street, for the inspection of the voters of the city.

They also give notice that they will be in session in the City Building on Friday, October 26th; on Wednesday, October 31st; and on Friday, November 2d, 1888, from 9 o'clock A. M. to 12 M., and from 2 to 5 o'clock P. M., on each of said days, for the purpose of revising and correcting the list of voters.

They will also be in session at the same place from 8 to 10 A. M. and from 1 to 3 o'clock P. M., on the day of election, for the purpose of furnishing certificates to any persons whose names may have been omitted, and who the board are satisfied have resided in the ward one year next preceding said election.

PORTSMOUTH, Oct. 20th, 1888.

BENJ. M. PARKER, Clerk.

head of the reform party as he sat at luncheon with his private secretary, "this ale does not taste quite as good as common. It may be the fault of my taste, but it seems not quite up to the standard of Jones' three X's." "No, sire," returned the wide awake scribe, "we have been having stock sale. This is present use! I suppose they think up in New Hampshire that the present use is all that can be made out of your administration, and they will not want anything of us after March." The president seemed to drop into a brown study upon the danger of free trade messages and the ingratitude of politicians.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS PIANOS
The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.
Mason & Hamlin offer, as conclusive proof of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, they have been the only competitors with best makers of all countries to receive or share the highest honors wherever awarded. Illustrated catalogues $22 TO $900. free.
Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos that they are superior to all others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but they feel justly entitled to a share of the credit of this result. They attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which they secure the greatest possible purity and volume of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune and other important advantages. GRAND & UPRIGHT.

MARK
No Mercury, No Potash,
Or any other Mineral Poison.
It is Nature's Remedy, made exclusively from Roots and Herbs.
It is Perfectly Harmless.
It is the only remedy known to the world that has ever yet Cured contagious Blood Poison in all its stages.
It cures Mercurial Rheumatism, Cancer, Scrofula, and other blood diseases heretofore considered incurable. It cures any disease caused from impure blood. It is now prescribed by thousands of the best physicians in the United States, as a tonic. We append the statement of a few:
"I have used S. S. S. on patients convalescing from fever and from measles with the best results. J. N. CHENEY, M. D., Ellaville, Ga."
BREMEN, GA.—Willie White was afflicted with scrofula seven years. I prescribed S. S. S., and to-day he is a fat and robust boy. G. W. PARKER, M. D.
RICHMOND, VA., Dec. 15, 1885.—I have taken three bottles of Swift's Specific for secondary blood poison. It acts much better than potash or any other remedy I have ever used. R. F. WINFIELD, M. D., Formerly of Sussex Co., Va.
DR. E. J. HALE, the well-known druggist and physician, of Nashville, Howard County, Ark., writes: "Having some knowledge as to what S. S. S. is composed of, I can safely recommend it as the remedy for all skin diseases, it matters not what the name may be."
We have a book giving a history of this wonderful remedy, and its cures, from all over the world, which will convince you that all we say is true, and which we will mail free on application. No family should be without it. We have another on Contagious Blood Poison, sent on same terms.
Write us a history of your case, and our physicians will advise with you by letter, in strictest confidence. We will not deceive you knowingly.
For sale by all druggists.

THE YEARS AND I.

We clasped our hands, the blithe young years and I,
We saw the turing world before us lie,
We laughed aloud, nor dreamed of tear and sigh,
We blessed our fate, the tide of hope ran high
When we clasped hands—the blithe young years and I.

We saw Love flit before us on the way,
And shine with light that far outshone the day,
We heard his call, we hastened to obey,
We sought him eagerly lest he'd delay
To show the site where his sweet city lay,
The blithe young years and I.

We clasped our hands, the gray bent years and I,
We saw the darkened world behind us lie,
We wept aloud, we shook with sob and sigh,
We cursed our fate, the tide of grief ran high
When we clasped hands—the gray bent years and I.

We saw Death flit before us on the way
And cast a shade that did obscure the day;
We heard his call, we trembled to obey,
We shrank from him as fain we would delay
To find the site where his dread city lay,
The gray bent years and I.
—Susie M. Best in Home Journal.

The Hammock and the Swing.
A writer in The Chicago News gives the result of an experiment, showing that the instinct of children has in it, not only a love for recreation of a choice sort, but a sanitary common sense. A number of swings were suspended at a summer home for children; and near by were slung two dozen hammocks. The latter were almost always full, but the swings rarely were in use. The hammock is the most natural invention to give perfect rest and ease to the whole body, with a delicious sense of motion and activity. Every home should have several hammocks swung under trees, for the use of both adults and children. It will tend greatly to relieve the strain of every day toil, and so sweeten the intercourse of its members.—Globe-Democrat.

French Inspection of Butter.
Among the recent decrees made in France is one relating to the inspection of butter for the repression of fraudulent dealings. By this special persons are authorized to take samples of butter in any place, whether the butter is exposed for sale, stored in a warehouse or in transit by land or water. Each sample taken is to be subject to a special examination. Pure butter, mixed butter, margarine, oleomargarine and grease intended for consumption, in transit, must be contained in closed packages, and the origin and nature of the merchandise must be conspicuously specified thereon.—Chicago Herald.

Death in Court Plaster.
"Isinglass court plaster" is a material most plenteously pregnant for evil. It furnishes an ideal atmosphere and pabulum for bacteria, and has sent many an unfortunate to the ground. It is questionable whether it can be disinfected so as to be safe. Phlegmon, pseudo and true erysipelas are its most usual companions; its most frequent victim being the accomodating and officious person (or his friends) who carries it about his person for emergencies, and who dispenses it with a "lick and a stick."—Dr. A. R. Jenkins in The Annals of Surgery.

By Rail in England.
When traveling by rail in England you are not only looked after by the officials with great care (for you are under a "parental government"), but by law you are not allowed to be careless; in fact, it is a criminal act to injure yourself, even by accident. In many cases you are locked in the coaches so that you cannot leave the train while it is in motion, but if the door should be unlocked, and you jump out before the proper time, or if you attempt to board a train after it has started, you are arrested and liable to a heavy fine.—Home Journal.

Efficiency of French Detectives.
The French detective force is organized on the plan of the survival of the highest efficiency, and no clearer recognition of this fact can be found than is shown in the circumstance that whereas French forgers, highwaymen, burglars and homicides who are able to reach the city of London in security usually enjoy immunity from arrest while they remain there, hardly a case is known of a professional criminal from England who ever sought or obtained refuge in Paris.—New York Sun.

Nova Scotia's "Fairy Rocks."
The Smithsonian Institution at Washington has sent an expedition to Nova Scotia and secured fac-similes of the "fairy rocks," on which are curious hieroglyphic characters, evidently very old, which may throw some light on the history of the early discoveries of America. The markings are cut in upon a rock of highly polished slate, and the intaglio is about a sixteenth of an inch deep.—Boston Budget.

An Entirely New Court.
The whole court at Berlin is now entirely composed of new people. The friends of the late emperor have disappeared and the emperor and empress are surrounded by people entirely of their own choosing and sympathies. Those who know say it is impossible to imagine anything more complete than the effacement of every trace of the late emperor and empress' influence.—New York Sun.

The Author's Hardest Task.
Probably the most difficult task in the construction of a story is the management of conversations, so that the individuality of the dramatis personæ may not be hopelessly mixed. The author must keep each character definitely before his mind's eye, so that he may see it as distinctly as he would an intimate friend embodied in the flesh.—Virginia G. Eklard in The Writer.

He Obeyed Orders.
"Call for Ah Song," said an Australian judge to the Hibernian court crier, in a Chinese law suit. "Gentlemen," shouted the crier to the spectators, "would one of yez favor his honor with a song?"—New York Tribune.

Longest Through Service.
The longest through car service of any railroad line in the world is said to be on the Southern Pacific road, between New Orleans and San Francisco, 2,495 miles.

In 1400 there was scarcely a book in Rome but missals.

Our manufactures require the systematic and fostering care of the government. * * Equally important it is to provide at home a market for our raw materials.—James Monroe.

"For twenty years I have suffered with a severe bronchial cough, never lying down without a severe attack of the same. After much persuasion, I was induced to try Adamson's Balsam, and its good effects for six months are certainly marvellous. Please use this truthful testimony for the advantage of all sufferers like myself.
Mrs. Wm. Alden, Duxbury, Mass., Feb 21, 1887.

An extensive domestic market for the surplus produce of the soil is of the first consequence. It is, of all things, that which most effectually conduces to a flourishing state of agriculture.—Alexander Hamilton.

The experience of years furnishes the most convincing evidence that thousands of lives are annually saved by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It speedily cures all affections of the throat, bronchial tubes, and lungs.

We must now place our manufactures by the side of the agriculturist. * * Experience has taught me that manufactures are now as necessary to our independence as to our comfort.—Thomas Jefferson.

The use of a single bottle of Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer will show its efficacy in restoring the natural color of the hair and cleansing the scalp.

The presidential election will be fought out on the lines laid down months ago. President Cleveland has been accused of having shrunk from the free trade policy he then advocated. The accusation is unjust. * * * President Cleveland is substantially in favor of a financial policy which will impose duties mainly for revenue purposes, will take duties off raw materials, and so widen the market of the American purchaser. These are the aims and this is the policy of the free traders of all countries.—London Saturday Review, Sept. 15th, 1888.

Grover Cleveland has done more to advance the cause of free trade than any Prime Ministor of England has done.—London Spectator.

Took First Prize.
The State board of pharmacy recently analyzed twelve of the most popular medicines in order to see whether they were what they were recommended to be. After two weeks of careful work work, they awarded the first prize, a gold medal, to Messrs. A P. Ordway, & Co., proprietors of Sulpher Bitters, it being in their opinion the best and only strictly pure blood purifying medicine in the market.—Weekly Chemist.

The issue of Protection is incalculably stronger and greater than any man, as it concerns the prosperity of the present and of the generations yet to come.—James G. Blaine.

Interested People.
Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam, for Coughs and Colds, does it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles at 50c and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption.

ADAMSON'S BOTANIC COUGH BALSAM
More than twenty years ago Adamson's Botanic Balsam was introduced generally throughout New England as a remedy for Coughs, Colds and Pulmonary complaints. Since its introduction it has constantly won its way into public favor, until now it is the universal decision that ADAMSON'S BOTANIC BALSAM is the best remedy for curing Coughs, Colds and Asthma.

Defenders of American Industry.

We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform, 1888.

"American wages for American workmen."—Republican motto.

A Return to Duty.

This is always desirable, and the speedier it takes place the better. Doubly welcome is it in the case of those usually industrious little organs, the kidneys, which, when they go on a strike—so to speak—and drop work, seriously imperil health in more than one way. First and foremost, their inaction begets their disease, which is hydra-headed, including such dangerous maladies as Bright's disease and diabetes. Next, when inactive they fail to assist in removing from the blood impurities that beget rheumatism, gout and dropsy. Third, their inaction weakens the bladder. All this is preventable and remediable by the pleasant promoter of organic action, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, at once a tonic and a regulator. This gently but effectually impels the kidneys to return to duty, and strengthens them and the bladder. Upon the bowels, stomach and liver it likewise exerts a regulating and invigorating influence, and it strengthens the system, and averts and remedies malaria and rheumatism.

Mr. Cleveland has taken his stand on free trade, * * * and on that broad question Mr. Cleveland's candidature naturally and necessarily carries English sympathy.—London Globe.

An Important Element

Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. The familiar headline "100 Doses One Dollar," stolen by imitators, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This can easily be proven by any one who desires to test the matter. For real economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists.

When our manfactures are grown to a certain proportion, as they will under the fostering care of the government, * * * the farmer will find a ready market for his surplus produce, and, what is of almost equal consequence, a certain and cheap supply for all his wants.—John C. Calhoun.

Be Your Own Doctor.

It won't cost you half as much. Do not delay. Send three 2-cent stamps for postage, and we will send you Dr. Kaufmann's great work, fine colored plates from life, on disease, its causes, and home cure. Address P. Ordway, & Co., Boston, Mass.

Upon the success of our manufactures, as the handmaid of agriculture and commerce, depends in a great measure the independence of our country, and none can feel more sensibly than I do the necessity of encouraging them.—Andrew Jackson.

Prepared by a combination, proportion and process peculiar to itself, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

It is useless to attempt the cure of any disorder, if the blood is allowed to remain impure. Neuralgia and rheumatism are traceable to a disordered condition of the blood, and in numberless cases have been cured by taking a few bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

It is to the New World that the Cobden Club is chiefly looking as the most likely sphere for its vigorous foreign policy. It has done what it can in Europe, and is now turning its eye westward and bracing itself for the struggle which is to come. It cannot rest while the United States are unsubdued.—London Times, July 18th, 1880.

To-Night and To-Morrow Night,

TRYING THE NERVES.

An Entomologist's Feelings While a Tarantula Was Crawling Over His Face.

Out on Dearborn avenue, near Lincoln park, lives a man whose hobby is bugs—not live bugs with vicious teeth and virulent fangs, but bugs impaled upon pieces of cardboard and kept in glass cases. Herbert Edgerton, the possessor of the collection, was at home when the reporter called upon him the other day. He conducted the visitor to a cozy little den in the rear of the house, which was fitted up with a number of cabinets, the doors of which were appropriately lettered. "I've lots of specimens," said he, "but here is one that I value above all others, though it is not at all rare." Mr. Edgerton took a piece of cardboard from the cabinet and placed it upon the table. Pinned to it was a large hairy spider which was easily recognized as a tarantula. "I was at Camp Grant, A. T., three summers ago," continued the speaker, "visiting a cousin of mine who is in the army. One day, while we were out shooting, I lay down in the sand to get a few moments' rest. We had ridden a good many miles that day, and as I was ahead of the rest of the party I thought I would wait for them to come up. So I tethered my horse and was soon stretched at full length upon the sand. I fell into a sort of a doze and was awakened by a horrible feeling on my face. You know a man's mind acts quickly under such circumstances, and it didn't take me an instant to realize that a tarantula was crawling over my face. If he stung me I knew I was a dead man, but if he simply crawled over my face and away into the sand I would suffer no ill results. My only recourse was to keep perfectly quiet and trust to luck, for as soon as I moved the chances were that the poison would penetrate the skin and be coursing through my veins.

"I closed my eyes and stopped breathing, so fearful was I that the tarantula would be disturbed. Each one of his feet felt like a red hot iron, and seemed to be burning a deep hole in my cheek. The tarantula didn't seem to be in the least hurry, as he remained nearly a minute upon my face, and I was on the point of brushing him off with my hand and taking chances of being bitten, when he crawled off. I lay perfectly still for a moment, and when I got to my feet I was trembling so violently that I couldn't untether the horse. A big draught from a flask of brandy soon pulled me together, and I determined to get that tarantula for my collection. I fastened a small two tined fork to a ramrod which I used for that purpose, and started after the bug. I impaled him without any trouble, and he now has the place of honor in my collection. I wouldn't pass another minute like that, though, for all the collections in the world.

"Here," continued Mr. Edgerton, pointing to an insect nearly four inches in length, "is a rare specimen. It is an elephant beetle—the largest of the Scarabæus family. South Africa is the only place where it is found, and there are but few specimens in this country. This was sent to me by a friend of mine who is a great traveler and who has been in every inhabitable country in the world. Centipedes are common enough, but this one here," taking a cardboard from one of the cabinets, "was a murderer. Several years ago I passed several days in a hotel in Albuquerque, N. M. Though it was nothing but a 'dobe building, there were a number of prominent people there, among them being a family of rich Mexicans by the name of Alvuarez. One of the daughters of Alvuarez—a beautiful girl about 18—awakened the nurse one night with a loud scream. How it happened no one knows, but in some way a centipede had found its way into her bed and stung her. All the known restoratives were applied, but the poor girl did not recover. The centipede was found and killed, and I begged it for my collection. As you can see, it is not a very good specimen, as it is badly mangled; but I prize it for its history. I've a great many more specimens," concluded Mr. Edgerton, "but these are the only ones which have any particular story connected with them."

Suggestions to Collegiate Orators.

The perplexity of students in the selection of a theme is frequently shown in a desire to be original. But if to be original implies that the writer is to select a theme that no one has hitherto chosen, then originality in this sense is scarcely possible. Again, if in the treatment or development of the theme it is to be presented by means of ideas that have not occurred to others, then, also, originality in this sense is scarcely possible. Originality may be attained in the way of putting a thought, in the selection of thoughts, and in their arrangements. Such is one of the meanings of composition. In this view a student may very properly place the thoughts of others, whether written or spoken, under contribution. It is plagiarism when a writer takes bodily the thought and words of another and gives them as his own. It is also plagiarism when a writer, even if he changes the mode of expression, adopts the development of a subject from another and gives this as his own.—College Journal.

Monarch of American Peaks.

"The highest mountain in America" must now be changed from Mount St. Elias to Mount Wrangle, a little to the north. Several of these mountains have been newly measured. Mount Hood, once "roughly" estimated at 17,000 feet, then "closely" at 14,000, was brought down by triangulation to 13,000; an aneroid barometer made it 12,000 and a mercurial barometer 11,255. Mount St. Elias, estimated by D'Agelot to be 12,672 feet, is triangulated by Mr. Baker to 19,500. It now appears that Mount Wrangle, lying to the north, rises 18,400 feet above Copper river, which is in turn 2,000 feet above the sea at that point. If this holds true, Mount Wrangle is at least 1,000 feet higher than any other peak in North America. It lies within the United States boundary.—Salt Lake Tribune.

The "Vomiting Center."

Professor Tumas, a European physiologist, has shown that vomiting is the result of irritation of a space in the medulla oblongata about one-fifth of an inch long and one-twelfth wide, and believes that the brains of ruminants, rodents and other non-vomiting animals lack this "vomiting center."—Arkansaw Traveler.

METHODS OF SHOPLIFTERS.

Stealing as a Means of Livelihood—The Amateur Kleptomaniac.

"Not one-tenth of the people caught surreptitiously appropriating our goods are ever brought to justice," said the superintendent of a large dry goods establishment. "We have our own private detectives, some of whom are women, to protect our property, but shoplifting is so prevalent that not a day passes without the detection of one or more thieves. The professional thieves, adroit as they are, give us less trouble than the new hands. All the notorious shoplifters are well known to our detectives, and the moment one shows her face in the doorway she is warned away. As soon as a professional finds herself spotted she takes to the road and works the principal cities in regular order. It takes her several months to work the circuit, at the end of which time she can start all over again without much fear of being recognized. The expert shoplifter doesn't resort to disguises as much as the uninitiated would suppose. She takes a pride in her profession and looks upon stealing merely as a means of livelihood. She is courageous to the extreme and steals with an audacity that is startling. When detected she becomes dogged, acts with the indifference of a woman of the world, looks upon the matter as one of the fortunes of war and never tries to crawl out of the hole by adding a lie to her other crime. There is some satisfaction in outwitting a foe like this, whose life is tinged with romance, and who will wage as fair a warfare against you as the dishonesty of her practices will admit.

"On the other hand, the amateur thief or kleptomaniac, or whatever you like to call her, will resort to the meanest and most contemptible plans to steal your goods. If detected in the act, she will whify you, say she is insulted, threaten to sue, and lie like a Digger Indian. There is not a person on earth so dear—a father, a mother, a brother or a sister—whom she would not betray in order to secure immunity for herself. Often these new hands travel in pairs. When caught they disgust you with human nature by their mutual recriminations.

"As for the excuses offered by shoplifters when brought to bay most of them have become so threadbare as to be known as chestnuts. Once in a while an ingenious crook will spring a new fake story on us, some of which would be convincing enough if it wasn't for the tangible evidence. I have kept a record of all these excuses, and will enumerate a few of the common and curious ones.

"First, there is the fashionably dressed woman, well connected and of undoubted respectability. Pilfering with her is, no doubt, more of a disease than a crime. She never steals anything very valuable, but picks up little odds and ends that take her fancy, such as a tape measure, a spool of cotton, a match safe, an odd glove, a single garter, etc. You will notice that some of these things are of no possible use or value to her. As far as possible we avoid bringing her failing to her notice. The trifles she has stolen are added to her bill and she pays it without being conscious of having been detected. Sometimes the friends of this class of shoplifters will find out where she has been shopping and return all the things she brought home to see if they have all been paid for.

"The richly dressed woman, who passes as respectable, is the one who gives us the most trouble. She always goes in for a big haul, and haunts the lace and silk counters. Her stealings are of such magnitude, and her work is done in such a bungling manner, that she is sure to be detected almost at-once. When caught and requested to step into the examining room she bursts out in loud and vulgar remonstrance. After getting our goods back we generally have her locked up. Then there is sure to be a hue and cry about an outrage and that sort of thing until she is tried and heavily fined. There are always plenty of shyster lawyers to induce her to bring a suit for damages against us on the whack up plan. These vampires try to blackmail us into compromising the suit, but we know enough to remain firm.

"A very common type of the shoplifter comes from the middle walk of life. She is generally a foolish woman whose husband's salary is not large enough to supply her with the finery she longs for, so she determines to steal it. At first her pilferings are very small, but in time she becomes emboldened by success and there is nothing too rich for her to slip under her dress. When discovered she is full of excuses. She was just taking the article over to the light, or she wanted to buy something at another counter and unconsciously kept it in her hand, or she wished to obtain the opinion of a friend whom she thought she saw at the other end of the store, or the thing got caught in her dress in some unaccountable manner. A woman of this kind is anxious to avoid publicity, and as she is ready enough to pay the full value of the article, we let her go scot free, after the detectives have scrutinized her so that she would be readily recognized again.

"The child shoplifters are hard to detect. They are precious little tots, and become wonderfully proficient in a short time. As they are unable to secrete many articles on their persons, they employ most of their time in picking the sachels of the shoppers. You would think that a little 10-year-old girl would break down and confess everything upon being arrested, but they remain perfectly self possessed and go through the trying ordeal of a searching examination with the easy indifference of a professional. These children are taught to steal by female Fagins, who confiscate everything and whip them unmercifully when they are unsuccessful.

"Most of these children are visions of loveliness and innocence. A woman once told me that she saw a little girl deliberately steal her pocketbook, but there was such an imploring look in the little one's marvelous eyes that she had not the heart to accuse her.

"The contrivances for carrying stolen goods on the person are models of ingenuity. A long bag sewed to the inside of the dress, with a pocket two feet wide, is the most common receptacle, but a large hollow bustle, easy of access, is much used, I don't know how women can store things in such out of the way places in a public store, but valuables have been found stuffed away in their hats, corsets, shoes and stockings."—New York Evening Sun.

Cleveland, Hendricks and Harrison.

Henry D. Pierce of Indianapolis, a nephew of the late Vice President Hendricks, and always a democrat, has written some strong letters to the democrats of Indiana in support of Harrison, and in denunciation of Cleveland for his treatment of Mr. Hendricks. His latest letter, dated Oct. 27th, closes as follows:

A word as to Gen. Harrison and Mr. Hendricks: While the Sentinel is trying to create an impression of unfriendliness between them, common decency calls for the publication of the fact, which every member of the Hendricks family well knows, that when the vice president was stricken down to his death, and while his pulseless form was yet warm, Benjamin Harrison, noble, prompt and ready, was one of the very first to appear at the house, and tender genuine sympathy and service. He was there with the earliest, sooner, even, than all but one or two of the anxious and sorrowing relatives, and was intrusted with a prominent responsible part in the funeral ceremonies—notable funeral ceremonies from which Grover Cleveland coolly and indifferently held aloof, uttering at last, when pressed for it, the ridiculous excuse of "fear of assassination,"—by Indiana democrats, perhaps!

He Did Ship Goods.

Unless the democrats can prepare a more plausible lie to serve as their great ante-election sensation than the story that Levi P. Morton, during the war, sent goods to southern ports by blockade runners, they might as well stick to the truth. Mr. Morton, of course, brands the charge as false, but that was hardly necessary. Everybody knows that if either of the candidates for the electoral votes of this country ever befriended southern rebels by act or by word, it certainly was not Levi P. Morton. It can be truthfully charged against him that he sent a $50,000 shipload of provisions to Ireland at his own expense, when the poor people of that noble example of what British free trade can do for a country, were starving; but then that was a good many years ago, and when he was not a candidate for any office.

Rather a Poor Electioneering Trick.

Mr. Cleveland's summary dismissal of Lord Sackville seems to have fallen as flat on the country, so far as making votes for him is concerned, as did his piece of theatrical bombast known as the as the retaliation message, although the dismissal of the British minister, under the circumstances, is much the graver affair of the two. The retaliation message was pure buncombe; a needless insult to England, for partizan reasons only, is somewhat more serious.

Had Mr. Cleveland at once, on the first presentation of the proof that Minister West, while representing at Washington the government of the British empire, had advised a British-American citizen (and it does not in the least matter, so far as the minister and the people of this country are concerned, whether "Mr. Murchison" is a tangible personality or not) to vote for Cleveland if he wished to vote in favor of England and her interests—had Mr. Cleveland instantly ordered off his earnest but indiscreet supporter, he would have done what was right; but he did not do it. The British state department was notified of West's action; and then, without waiting long enough for the British authorities to act in the matter, but quite long enough to fear of the damaging effect the affair was having on the democratic prospects, the indiscreet minister was bounced—not to assert and uphold the dignity of the United States, but in hope of making votes, or preventing their loss, for Grover Cleveland for president.

Like Mr. Cleveland's other moves, this one was a blunder; it probably will give him some Irish votes which without it he would have lost, but it will cost him votes among those who recognize the act as the expedient of a reckless demagogue, who looks upon the national honor and welfare as a mere bagatelle compared with the gratification of his personal ambitions.

A train bearing the czar of Russia, his wife and attendants, left the track near Borki in consequence of a broken rail, Oct. 29th, and was wrecked. Twenty persons were killed, and eighteen others injured. The czar and his wife escaped unhurt.

At Pittsburg, Pa., about the middle of October, Miss Virginia Knox, a young American woman of considerable wealth, was married to Count Di Montcalleri. The couple were expelled from a hotel in Paris on Oct. 29th, the "nobleman" having scandalized the other inmates of the house by beating his bride brutally, her screams arousing the whole house.

In Brooklyn, N. Y., 300 ladies recently assembled and presented to the Young Men's Republican club of the twenty-sixth ward an elegant silk banner, valued at $160.

The president has issued a proclamation appointing Thursday, Nov. 29th, as a day of national thanksgiving and praise.

The first attempt in this country to record a public speech by means of the phonograph was made at a democratic rally in Orange, N. Y., the other day. The phonograph did not burst, and at the conclusion of the performance it was found to be duly loaded with nonsense about the tariff.

Daniel Wiggin, an employe of the Davidson Rubber company of Boston, accidentally shot himself near Glen Cottage, Gorham, this state, on the 31st ult. With W. F. Hollis he was making a hunting trip about the mountains, and while getting into the carriage he so struck his gun as to discharge the contents into his head. He survived about two hours.

One Fact

Is worth a column of rhetoric, said an American statesman. It is a fact, established by the testimony of thousands of people, that Hood's Sarsaparilla does cure scrofula, salt rheum, and other diseases or affections arising from impure state or low condition of the blood. It also overcomes that tired feeling, creates a good appetite, and gives strength to every part of the system. Try it.

The executors' inventory in the estate of the late William Warren is as follows: Library, costumes, wearing apparel, watchs and jewelry, manuscripts, etc., $1545; household furniture, $645; bonds, stocks, notes and bank deposites, $208,509.90, making a total valuation of $210,699.92. Mr. Warren has no real estate.

While testing a rope fire escape at the Monongahela house in Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 31st, the rope broke, and three boys, James McClure, John Duddy and Daniel Neagle, all about fifteen years old, were precipitated from the fifth story to the pavement, a distance of seventy feet. McClure and Duddy fell head foremost and were killed instantly. Neagle had bot arms and legs broken and will die. The agent of the fire escape, E. C. Wilson of Zanesville, Ohio, who hired the boys to come down the escape, paying them five cents each, was arrested pending the coroner's investigation.

"Table Talk" for November is another seasonably-filled number, full of Thanksgiving sentiment and pabulum. The book opens with the discovery of the "Nation on Her Knees," a short poem by Joseph Whitton; then follows "A Thanksgiving Dinner"; "How to Live on a Thousand a Year;" How Mrs. Ruskin Saved Fuel and Kept Warm;" "Fashionable Luncheon and Tea Toilets;" "Ethel's New Home;" "New Things for Table and Kitchen;" "Housekeepers' Inquiries," with their answers by Mrs. Rorer; also a full list of economical menus for the entire month. Other entertaining and instructive reading will be found in "The Orange—Its Sweet and Discordant Records," and "How to Prepare it;" "The Flutterbys' Folly;" "Fashionable Crazes;" "Woman's Exchange Movement;" "Seasonable Grocery Hints," and a "Thanksgiving Problem," all the solvers of which are promised a prize. How so much meatful matter can be crowded together for a dollar a year is a problem we presume the publishers alone can solve. Table Talk Publishing Co., Race street, Philadelphia.

WHAT IS

SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" which fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, sores breaking out on them in various places. My little boy, three years old, has been a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. I was advised to use Hood's Sarsaparilla, and we have all taken it. The result is that all have been cured of the scrofula, my little boy being entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy." W. B. ATHERTON, Passaic City, N. J.

Want of Sleep

Is sending thousands annually to the insane asylum; and the doctors say this trouble is alarmingly on the increase. The usual remedies, while they may give temporary relief, are likely to do more harm than good. What is needed is an Alterative and Blood-purifier. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is incomparably the best. It corrects those disturbances in the circulation which cause sleeplessness, gives increased vitality, and restores the nervous system to a healthful condition.

Rev. T. G. A. Coté, agent of the Mass. Home Missionary Society, writes that his stomach was out of order, his sleep very often disturbed, and some impurity of the blood manifest; but that a perfect cure was obtained by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Frederick W. Pratt, 424 Washington street, Boston, writes: "My daughter was prostrated with nervous debility. Ayer's Sarsaparilla restored her to health."

William F. Bowker, Erie, Pa., was cured of nervousness and sleeplessness by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla for about two months, during which time his weight increased over twenty pounds.

ANOTHER CONTRIBUTION.

The permanent fund of the Cottage Hospital on the 1st inst. received through Mrs. Robert C. Peirce an addition of $100, the All Saints day offering at St. John's church. This with the noble gift of $1000 from Mrs. Gustavus V. Fox, brings the fund up to $2500.

SORRY HE'S GONE.

Mr. L. V. Favor, who has been in charge of the Western Union telegraph office in this city for several months past, has resigned to accept a position in Springfield, Mass., as manager of the Postal Telegraph & Cable company's office. Mr. Favor, during his short stay in Portsmouth, has made many friends who will be pleased to learn of his receiving so responsible a position, but will be sorry to hear of his departure. Mr. Favor is succeeded by Mr. P. J. Fisher of Boston, Mass., who assumed charge of the office on Thursday.

FOUND DEAD.

Aaron Lang, of Lang road, a bachelor about eighty years old, was found dead on the floor of his bedroom, near his bed, on the morning of Nov. 1st.

A SEEMING DISCREPANCY.

We clip from the Times of Thursday evening the following item of local "news:"

The Winchester Cadets to the number of sixty-five and the Wentworth Guards of Kittery to the number of twelve, the rest of the boys being unable to obtain their mother's permission, went to Rochester last night by special train to participate in the parade in that town.

On the same page of the same issue of our State street contemporary is its report of its Rochester correspondent—who certainly is not open to the charge of straining the truth in favor of the republicans—in which he gives the number of the Winchester Cadets in line at "ninety men," and of the Wentworth Guards at "eighteen men." It was not good editing, to put the two conflicting articles on the same page.

As a matter of fact, there were over a hundred of the Winchester Cadets who went to Rochester that night, and twenty-two of the Wentworth Guards. And our democratic brother should remember that the members of these republican organizations pay their own way—paid for their own uniforms, pay for their hands, and pay their own car fare when they go abroad. They have not got at their backs three immense breweries, the biggest shoe shop in New England, a large machine shop, and two or three railroads, to hire bands for them, pay for uniforms and all "incidental" expenses, and furnish free transportation for them if they "will only go." Neither is there any republican dictator to tell them "You go," in tones they dare not dispute or disobey, as there is on the democratic side. The republican campaigners go because they wish to, and at their own expense; the democratic campaigners in many cases go because they are ordered to, and all their expenses are paid. There is a big difference in the circumstances.

SEE TO IT YOURSELF.

The last session of the boards of inspectors of checklists previous to the election will be held in the city rooms to-day, from nine o'clock in the morning until noon, and from two o'clock in the afternoon to five. The board is unanimously democratic; naturally—and this is not intended as in any sense a slur—the members would be more eager to get on the list the name of every democrat who might have a right to vote, than to get thereon the names of republican voters; and under these circumstances it is quite possible that the names of legal voters who are republicans have been left off the list, and democrats who have no right to vote have been put on. It is the duty of every republican to make sure that his own name is properly on the list, and to object to the listing of any democrat whom he may know cannot legally vote. The several ward committees have been doing good work against very heavy odds, and the republican showing in this city next Tuesday will be much better than for several years past; but the committees cannot do it all, and their efforts should be supplemented by the individual effort of every republican voter.

The Penny Post on the evening of the 31st ult. published lists of the names wrongfully on the checklists of wards one, two and four, as supplied by the ward committees. Of these there were forty-eight in ward one, twenty-seven in ward two, and fourteen in ward four, a total of eighty-nine individuals in the three wards. Besides these, ten names previously published in the ward one list had been stricken off previous to the 31st, including that of Master Fred E. Webber of Deer street, who voted illegally at the late city election, though he will not be twenty-one years old until next Christmas.

It is alleged of some of these men, that they do not live in the wards where they are registered—some of them not in the city; others are mythical personages; and others still, unnaturalized aliens. Probably some of them have a right to vote in the city, though not in the ward or from the residence where placed; and in some cases there may be no greater error than the misspelling of the name. But when all allowances are made for excusable mistakes, it is evident that there is still a considerable margin left of improper registration, and this is what every republican should assist in getting corrected before election day.

Try Preston's Red Fire for illuminations.

A fine assortment of pocket and core knives, button-hole and pocket scissors; also razers in great variety, at Grace's drug store.

Pears' Soap is an elegant toilet adjunct.

Our latest great bargain, Gentleman's Scarlet Shirts and Drawers at seventy-four cents. They are regular $1.00 quality. LEWIS E. STAPLES, 7 Market St.

The milkmen who supply the wants of the people of this city in their line, on the 1st inst. put the jackscrews under the price, and raised it to six cents a quart, from five cents.

The very musical and pleasing tones of the big clock in the tower of the new Jones brewery can be heard all over the city, when it strikes the hours.

Next Monday evening the republicans will hold their final rally in Music hall; the speakers will be Messrs. Harrison Hume, of Massachusetts, and Charles J. Hamblett of Milford, assistant secretary of the New Hampshire republican state committee.

If the stories related of the acts of the board of inspectors of checklists are true, they are crowding on the lists the names of democrats whom they know have no right to vote, and keeping off the lists the names of republicans of whose right to vote they know there is no question. We have no doubt there are some recklessly dishonest partisans on the board, but we are not quite ready to believe that all of them come under that head.

Mr. Adam Lutts of Malden, Mass., formerly of Kittery, met with a painful accident on Saturday, Oct. 27th. He was engaged in hanging a door, when the chisel he was using slipped and entered his wrist, serving the cords of three fingers. The attending physicians say that he will lose the use of that hand.

Mr. Ezra Br dbury of Kittery, who recently resigned the position of station master at Kittery for the Boston & Maine railroad after an incumbency of twenty-three years, and a total service of forty-eight years with the Portland, Saco & Portsmouth railroad, was on Monday evening of this week called upon at his home by some of his friends, and presented with a large and handsome easy chair, Hon. Alexander Dennett making the presentation speech.

One James Lowery was recently arrested in Saco, Me., and taken to Boston, on a charge of having been concerned in the robbery of Maynard's jewelry store on Brattle square, Boston. The robbery was as odd in its inception as it was bold in execution. Maynard went to lunch in the middle of the day, Oct. 16th, locking his store. The instant he was out of sight two men in workmen's dress appearance, one covered the show window with whitewash, and the other by means of a step-ladder entered the store by the transom over the door; and when Mr. Maynard returned after a half hour's absence he found the place cleared of goods valued at several thousand dollars. Another man, Peter Drohan, has been arrested for being concerned in the robbery, and Robert Tate for receiving part of the stolen goods, which have been recovered.

The low prices on rubber water-bottles at Grace's drug store will last but one week longer, from Nov. 1st. As the stock of them is nearly exhausted, we would advise those who have not already purchased, to get one or more before the price advances.

The schooner Mountain Laurel, from Boston with salt, and the Addie Jordan and M. K. Smalley, from Port Johnson with coal, arrived at this port on the 1st inst, all to E. F. Sise & Co.

The schooner Wm. H. Allison, from Rondout with 733 tons of coal, the Samuel Hart, from Elizabethport with 360 tons, and the barge David Brown, from Hoboken with 1886 tons, arrived at this port Thursday forenoon, the 1st inst., all to J. Albert Walker.

The thirteen whale ships previously reported as being held by ice in the Arctic ocean, are fifteen miles southeast from Herald island, instead of twenty miles north of it. This makes their position a little better than first announced, but still very bad.

A New York despatch of Nov. 1st says: "The police canvass of the registered vote has been completed, and as a result, 750 warrants have been obtained for the arrest of persons illegally registered. The warrants were on Superintendent Murray's desk this morning, stacked three feet high. More have been applied for, and it is estimated that the number will probably reach a thousand."

MARRIED.

SHEA—MENDUM. In this city, Oct, 31st, at the Unitarian church, by Rev. Alfred Gooding, Dr. Wm. K. Shea of Philadelphia and Miss Maud B. Mendum, daughter of Charles H. Mendum, Esq., of Portsmouth.

DIED.

SEAVEY. In Hampton, Oct. 26th, Reuben Lane Seavey, aged 87 years and 2 months.

A cablegram from Port-au-Prince, received in New York on Oct. 31st, announces the capture by the Haytian man-of-war Toussaint L'Ouverture, off Cape Haytian, of the British schooner Alta, which left New York about the 19th of October with a heavy cargo of arms and ammunition. The Alta cleared for Antwerp, Belgium.

The Southern Star says that a count was made of the cases booked in the station house in Atlanta, Ga., for the first three months of 1887, and for the same months of 1888. During this year, or since the saloons have opened in Atlanta, there have been 1,132 more cases booked than during the same period of last year under prohibition.

The worst feature about catarrh is its dangerous tendency to consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures catarrh by purifying the blood.

While the Catholic faith in Ohio is held by but a small minority of the citizens, yet two-thirds of the criminals are of that faith. This tends to show that the Catholic religion does not tend to the best of morals.—Luther F. McKinney.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER
THE PUREST AND BEST
Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.
It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.
Sold only in cans, full weight.
CLEVELAND BROTHERS, ALBANY, N. Y.

Check-List Notice.

THE Board of Inspectors of Check-Lists of the City of Portsmouth give notice that they have posted lists of the voters in the several wards of the city, in the corridor of the City Building; also, of Ward One in the Railroad Station, of Ward Three in the store of John Mitchell on Islington street, of Ward Four in the store of John J. Laskey on Pleasant street, for the inspection of the voters of the city.

They also give notice that they will be in session in the city Building on Friday, October 26th; on Wednesday, October 31st; and on Friday, November 2d, 1888, from 9 o'clock A. M. to 12 M., and from 2 to 5 o'clock P. M. on each of said days, for the purpose of revising and correcting the list of voters.

They will also be in session at the same place from 8 to 10 A. M. and from 1 to 2 o'clock P. M. on the day of election, for the purpose of furnishing certificates to any persons whose names may have been omitted, and who the board are satisfied have resided in the ward one year next preceding said election.

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until no strength is left to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame.—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with boiling water or milk. MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as a further proof of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with the best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues $22 TO $900, free.

MASON & HAMLIN PIANOS

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim improvement. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "Mason & Hamlin Two Strings," by the use of which greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune and other important advantages.

GRAND & UPRIGHT.

FOR THE BLOOD

MARK

No Mercury, No Potash,

Or any other Mineral Poison.

It is Nature's Remedy, made exclusively from Roots and Herbs.

It is perfectly tasteless.

It is the only remedy known to the world that has ever yet Cured contagious Blood Poison in all its stages.

It cures Mercurial Rheumatism, Cancer, Scrofula, and other blood diseases heretofore considered incurable. It cures any disease caused from impure blood. It is now prescribed by thousands of the best physicians in the United States, as a tonic. We append the statement of a few:

"I have used S. S. S. on patients convalescing from fever and from measles with the best results. J. N. CHERRY, M. D., Eldaville, Ga."

BERZEN, GA.—Willie White was afflicted with eczema two years. I prescribed S. S. S., and to-day he is a fat and robust boy. C. W. PARKER, M. D.

RICHMOND, VA., Dec. 15, 1885.—I have taken three bottles of Swift's Specific for secondary blood poison. It acts much better than potash or any other remedy I have ever used. B. F. WHITFIELD, M. D., Formerly of Sussex Co., Va.

DR. E. J. HALE, the well-known druggist and physician, of Nashville, Howard County, Ark., writes: "Having some knowledge as to what S. S. S. is composed of, I can safely recommend it as the remedy for all skin diseases, it matters not what the name may be."

We have a book giving a history of this wonderful remedy, and its cures, from all over the world, which will convince you that all we say is true, and which we will mail free on application. We feel it should be without it. We have another on Contagious Blood Poison, sent on same terms.

Write us a history of your case, and our physician will advise with you by letter, in strictest confidence. We will not deceive you knowingly.

How to Enjoy Life.

To enjoy life does not mean going or staying. If you can watch a tree growing, a flower blooming or the blue sky deepening; if you can listen to a goose squawking along a dusty lane, to a pullet cackling over a first egg, to a sleepy child crooning herself to sleep with a little tune; if you can watch a cow licking her calf, a young mother suckling her babe, and take a big interest in all these things, feeling in the marrow of you their meaning and that they are a true part of life's sweetness and simplicity, why then I think you may truly answer "Yes, oh yes," when one questions you "Do you enjoy life, good sir?"

It is not a good habit to be bored of things, to cultivate ennui. Every day the sun comes up and shines, and hearts beat and people are born, and some die and some marry and some hate and more love, so who are you and what are you to strut around like a fool of a turkey gobbler the week before Thanksgiving and say you are bored and life is too dull for your palate? After all you fill no more space than a fool takes on the sidewalk or under the green grass; so be careful how you venture to draw about you a circle of exclusiveness. Be careful how you fall into the way of thinking the earth was made for you. Do not insist, as many selfish people do, on going through the world with an air cushion upon which you may sit in luxurious ease, while there are only stony benches for the rest of poor mortality.—Catharine Cole in New Orleans Picayune.

Disposition of the Dead.

The disposition of the dead is attracting much attention in England. The question is being agitated by the English Burial Reform association. During late years there has been more or less discussion on this topic. The objection to the present mode of burial is based on two grounds. First, the sanitary reason, and second, the financial cost. As funerals are managed in the present time they are expensive and fall with much weight upon the poor, who are as fond of manifesting their respect for the dead by large funerals as are the rich. A medical authority in London declares that the average cost every year for burying the dead in England and Wales alone is $25,000,000. This would make the average expense of every funeral about $50. In the United States it cannot be any less.

The sanitary objection is based upon the reports of sanitary authorities that communities living in the neighborhood of graveyards suffer from ailments to which those who live a distance from the place of burial are strangers. Disraeli, in the house of lords, for this reason urged that all the God's acres in Great Britain should be closed. These reasons are making many converts to cremation. The best evidence of the growth of this idea is to be found in the strength of the International Cremation congress, which was held about a year ago in Milan. The roll included representatives from every part of the civilized world.—Detroit Free Press.

Luck Saved the Trains.

I remember some years ago when I had charge of trains on a southern road, where telegraph offices were few and far between, of giving an order to the operator at a certain station to hold the north bound passenger train for orders, so that I might help the south bound passenger train to make its meeting point, the latter being somewhat late. The operator repeated the holding order, for which I gave him O. K. I then gave the south bound train an order to use some of the north bound train's time to make the meeting point. Instead of holding the north bound train for orders the operator let it go by him. The road was crooked, and as both trains were between telegraph stations I started to walk the floor and wait until I should hear of their coming together. The suspense was terrible, almost unfitting me for my other duties. As good luck would have it, the north bound train, which had undisputed right of the road, was delayed before reaching the meeting point. When the first train reached a telegraph station I felt relieved, but the strain had been so terrible on my nerves that I was not good for much for several days, and the experience of that morning will ever remain in my mind.—Train Dispatcher in Globe-Democrat.

Origin of Steam Power.

The first records we have of steam being applied as a motive power are found in a manuscript entitled, "Spiritalia Sen Pneumatica," written about 200 years B. C., by Hero, a learned philosopher of Alexandria.

In it he describes a little instrument which he calls an "æolipile" or "wind ball." It consists of a hollow ball of metal supported on trunnions, and having a number of jets bent at right angles and equally distant from the points of support. Steam is admitted into the ball through one of the trunnions, and as soon as it is introduced it issues violently from the mouth of each jet, making a noise like the rushing of the wind, and hence its name. On the opposite side of each jet it presses without being able to escape, and this unbalanced pressure makes the globe revolve, giving up a form of rotary engine by which machinery can be set in motion.

The first really practical steam engine was invented by Thomas Newcomen, a blacksmith of Dartmouth, England, and was put in operation in pumping out mines about 1711.—"J. H. E." in Boston Budget.

Asia's Old Effete Nation.

It will not be long before we, the advanced guard of the Aryan race, will be in close connection and intercourse with the parent stock in India. Our ideas are there already, and our institutions are admired and desired in Bombay and Calcutta. Our reapers are in use in their fields and our sewing machines in their houses. But of more importance is the fact that there is a native press growing up with great rapidity all through India. Their congress of 600 deputies is less like the English parliament than like our own house of representatives. Three and one-third millions of pupils are in state schools, while 80,000 young men have, within ten years, passed university examinations. The old effete nation, or complexity of nations, has renewed its youth. We may look for great events in Asia.—Globe-Democrat.

"For twenty years I have suffered with a severe bronchial cough, never lying down without a severe attack of the same. After much persuasion, I was induced to try Adamson's Balsam, and its good effects for six months are certainly marvellous. The experience of years furnishes the most convincing evidence that thousands of lives are annually saved by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It speedily cures all affections of the throat, bronchial tubes, and lungs.

The use of a single bottle of Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer will show its efficacy in restoring the natural color of the hair and cleansing the scalp.

The presidential election will be fought out on the lines laid down months ago. President Cleveland has been accused of having shrunk from the free trade policy he then advocated. The accusation is unjust. * * * President Cleveland is substantially in favor of a financial policy which will impose duties mainly for revenue purposes, will take duties off raw materials, and so widen the market of the American purchaser. These are the aims and this is the policy of the free traders of all countries.—London Saturday Review, Sept. 15th, 1888.

Took First Prize.

The State board of pharmacy recently analyzed twelve of the most popular medicines in order to see whether they were what they were recommended to be. After two weeks of careful work work, they awarded the first prize, a gold medal, to Messrs. A. P. The issue of Protection is incalculably stronger and greater than any man, as it concerns the prosperity of the present and of the generations yet to come.—James G. Blaine.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam, for Coughs and Colds, does it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles at 50c and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. Defenders of American Industry.

We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform, 1888.

"American wages for American workmen."—Republican motto.

A Return to Duty.

This is always desirable, and the speedier it takes place the better. Doubly welcome is it in the case of those usually industrious little organs, the kidneys, which, when they go on a strike—so to speak—and drop work, seriously imperil health in more than one way. First and foremost, their inaction begets their disease, which is hydra-headed, including such dangerous maladies as Bright's disease and diabetes. Next, when inactive they fail to assist in removing from the blood impurities that beget rheumatism, gout and dropsy. Third, their inaction weakens the bladder. All this is preventable and remediable by the pleasant promoter of organic action, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, at once a tonic and a regulator. This gently but effectually impels the kidneys to return to duty, and strengthens them and the bladder. Upon the bowels, stomach and liver it likewise exerts a regulating and invigorating influence, and it strengthens the system, and averts and remedies malaria and rheumatism.

An Important Element

Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. The familiar headline "100 Doses One Dollar," stolen by imitators, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This can easily be proven by any one who desires to test the matter. For real economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists.

When our manufactures are grown to a certain proportion, as they will under the fostering care of the government, * * the farmer will find a ready market for his surplus produce, and, what is of almost equal consequence, a certain and cheap supply for all his wants.—John C. Calhoun.

Be Your Own Doctor.

It won't cost you half as much. Do not delay. Send three 2-cent stamps for postage, and we will send you Dr. Kaufmann's great work, fine colored plates from life, on disease, its causes, and home cure. Address J. P. Ordway, & Co., Boston, Mass.

Upon the success of our manufactures, as the handmaid of agriculture and commerce, depends in a great measure the independence of our country, and none can feel more sensibly than I do the necessity of encouraging them.—Andrew Jackson.

Prepared by a combination, proportion and process peculiar to itself, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free-traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

It is useless to attempt the cure of any disorder, if the blood is allowed to remain impure. Neuralgia and rheumatism are tracable to a disordered condition of the blood, and in numberless cases have been cured by taking a few bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

It is to the New World that the Cobden Club is chiefly looking as the most likely sphere for its vigorous foreign policy. It has done what it can in Europe, and is now turning its eye westward and bracing itself for the struggle which is to come. It cannot rest while the United States are unsubdued.—London Times, July 18th, 1880.

HOLIDAYS IN GERMANY.

Pleasant Life Led by the People of Berlin—Days of Relaxation.

Somehow life in Europe seems more like a holiday than in America—even among the (so called) working classes. In the first place there are so many church festivals that often it interferes sadly with an unfortunate foreigner who has planned to finish his business within a certain limit of time. He will often find it necessary to consult the calendar and see whether some saint has not gotten ahead of him. We lost two days in Amsterdam, one in Berlin and nearly another in Moscow; but fortunately the latter was in honor of some one whom they did not venerate specially, and we saved it. Then, too, the Saturday half holiday seems to be very general, and the length of each working day is much shorter than with us. There is a great deal more to make a holiday attractive in Europe than in America. If the governments seem to be hard on their subjects in some things, they have at least made great provisions for their happiness in this respect. In America our Fourth of July and Christmas and New Year's, as I think, are three of the most tiresome days in the year to get through. We have so few such days that we are at a loss as to how to dispose of ourselves and kill the time.

But here every one seems to appreciate them with all the eagerness of an American boy, and perhaps on the whole they accomplish as much, enjoy life more and live longer. Here, for instance, in Berlin is a large park within easy walking distance. It is entirely free and there are no restrictions of any importance. There are fountains and ponds and statuary and beautiful flowers, and room enough in it for all the 1,300,000 inhabitants to have a good time. Then adjoining are the large zoological gardens, well stocked with animals and birds, and with every improvement that one could think of to make them a pleasant place of resort. Here every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday afternoon from 5 to 8 o'clock two of the finest military bands give open air concerts of the very choicest music. There is but a trifling admission fee, and hundreds of families—fathers, mothers and children—come out together and take their dinners at the fine restaurant connected with the gardens, or it may be bring their own provisions with them. And so they have the very nicest kind of a time, and all the while the air filled with such delicious music as was heard during the centennial year, when one of the German emperor's military bands visited the United States. There is no intoxication. The best of good order prevails. All go home early, and who will say that they are not prepared to do a better day's work on the morrow than they would have done without these few hours of relaxation.

The "Unter den Linden" in its day was doubtless a fine street, but of late years the magnificent old trees have died out and been replaced by small ones, so that aside from the buildings which line it it is no finer than our Madison avenue. Gas killed out the trees, they say; and now the street is to be lighted by electricity, and the wires and being laid under ground. St. Petersburg's finest street, "The Nevsky Prospect," is also lighted by electric wires laid under ground.

Berlin, and in fact all Germany, seems to be enjoying a wonderful era of prosperity. The city has more than doubled in population since 1870. Splendid new buildings are going up on every street. The manufactories are crowded to their their utmost limit. Their exports even to the United States are second only to those of England, and the most of this trade has been of recent growth.

Berlin possesses many attractions to an American, so much so that a great number are making it their home. They are such a go ahead sort of people that they seem quite like our own countrymen. Then there are many advantages to be enjoyed in the study of music, painting, architecture, and the arts and sciences generally, such as are found in few European cities. One likes it at first sight and the feeling continues to grow upon him and he leaves it with regret.—Henry M. Wright's Berlin Letter in Detroit Free Press.

A New Style of Robbery.

As the proprietor of the New York egg and butter store was standing behind the counter a well dressed stranger came into the shop. The stranger said, "Sir, I noticed in the window a sign inscribed, 'Fresh eggs, 28 cents a dozen.' Now, I think those eggs are not fresh." The proprietor of the store, knowing the eggs to be perfectly fresh, so informed the stranger, who immediately offered to bet a $5 note that the eggs were not fresh. The bet was instantly covered by the proprietor, and both laid their $5 bills on the counter. The proprietor of the store went to the window, took one of the eggs, broke it and asked the stranger if the egg was not perfectly fresh. The stranger replied, "Yes, but take another, and you will find that it will be rotten."

The proprietor willingly complied and turned his back to the stranger, and while the storekeeper was reaching for the egg the stranger reached for the $10 and departed, shaking the dust of the store from his heels very quietly and expeditiously. The storekeeper being behind the counter was slow in getting out, but when he did get out the stranger had disappeared.—Detroit Free Press.

A Tree Upside Down.

Trees that layer freely, as the apple and quince, may be made to grow by bending their tops down to the earth and slightly covering with soil. In Eastern tropical climes the banyan tree extends its long, slender branches to the ground, where, taking root, they extend the tree in every direction, presenting a singular appearance. As a curious experiment a quince tree has been turned upside down, first by rooting its top and gradually loosening the roots and turning them into the air, where they budded and bore fruit. For a time such trees will be top heavy, as the trunk is naturally larger next to the original root and tapers downward.—American Cultivator.

Had a Falling Out.

Miss Bruce (who has heard that her friend, Miss Deering, has had a falling out with Mr. Downey)—Why, I thought, Eugenia, that you and Dick were very solid.

Miss Deering (icily)—Oh, dear, no! only plated.—The Cartoon.

A BIG TELESCOPE LENS.

The Great Lick Instrument Not Large Enough—A Delicate Undertaking.

The other afternoon Mr. Alvin Clark, the manufacturer of the great Lick telescope lens, received a letter from the president of the University of Southern California, located at Los Angeles, asking for information as to a forty inch lens, and intimating that an order for a telescope to eclipse that at the Lick observatory would soon be sent.

A correspondent who was present turned his attention to the numerous lenses of different sizes and in various stages of manufacture while Mr. Clark was reading the letter. He had just been talking with the man who had made eyes that could read patent medicine signs on the moon's rocks with regard to the possibility for further advance in astronomical researches, and he feared the letter might make it necessary to shorten his visit. Mr. Clark's eyes twinkled as he read the letter. Then, without a word of comment, he handed the missive to the reporter and resumed the patient rub, rub, rub of a small lens glass on the polishing block.

"What do you think of that?" he asked, when the reporter had made a careful mental note of the contents of the letter.

"I thought it had been stated by some savants that it was impossible to finish a lens any larger in diameter than that sent to the Lick observatory," the reporter said.

"I know such a statement has been made," replied Mr. Clark, "but I do not indorse it. I've been making telescope lenses now for a good many years, and I ought to know something about it. If I can get the glass the proper size there will be no trouble in making a lens forty inches in diameter. I'd make a five footer if my life was spared long enough."

"Do you mean to say that there is a possibility in the future of having telescopes five feet in diameter?"

"I don't see why they should not be as large as that. But mind you, it would take about one man's lifetime to make such a lens. In the first place, it would be necessary to get a piece of glass absolutely perfect in every way. The slightest flaw or variation in density would spoil it for a big lens. It might be a generation before such a piece of glass could be manufactured. Then it must be ground and polished by hand. But I believe such a lens can be made, and I believe it will be made."

"Will it be of any practical advantage to astronomers?"

"Certainly it will. Its increased magnifying power will be in proportion to its increased sized. Take this forty-inch lens that has been mentioned as an example. Its size would be one-ninth larger than the Lick observatory lens, and it would make given objects appear nine times larger or nine times nearer. Increase the diameter of the lens and you will increase the power to examine worlds that have not yet been seen. If a lens five feet in diameter is secured, it will bring the moon so close that we can see every nook and cranny on its surface. As for new stars, there is no limit to the discoveries that could be made. It would revolutionize astronomical researches."

"Had you thought of making a larger lens than that in the Lick telescope before you received this letter?"

"Oh, yes. I am not surprised at receiving this letter, for when I was in California a year ago the president of that university intimated that they should want a larger telescope than that on Mount Hamilton. There is a wonderful amount of interest in astronomy in California. All sorts of people are studying the science. This five inch lens I am polishing is for a telescope I am making for the president of that university. It is for his personal use, and he begged me to make it with my own hands, so I am pegging away at it when I get the time. I have also filled other small orders from that state. In addition to those small orders I have received no less than three letters from different colleges asking if I could make a forty inch lens. I have written all those persons that I was ready to accept any and all orders for a forty inch lens. In fact, I was so sure that there would be a demand for such a lens that I gave an order to the glass men in Paris to save for me the first large mold that they succeeded in getting out. I may get it in a few weeks and I may have to wait months and weeks for it. I heard the other day that they had cut out two extra large plates and were finishing them for the exhibition next year. If it's true, I shall secure them if money will do it."

"What causes this delay?"

"It is all in the casting," was the reply, "All these lenses are made in France, near Paris. They are making them all the time. They melt up a lot of glass, and when it is of the right consistency they set it aside to cool. The glass is melted in huge pots, and after every casting the pots are broken away, leaving a large mass of glass. Then they examine it and test it to see if it is suitable to split up into lenses. It must be just right or it must be melted over. They have orders for all sizes of lens, but they do not consider those orders until they get the block of glass. The least indication of strise or sediment will show that it cannot be used for larger lenses. Then they break it up to see if they can use it for small ones. There are generally enough imperfections to ruin the block for large lenses. If none is visible to the eye the block is tested with the polariscope, to see if it is of even density throughout. If all the conditions are perfect, then they will split up the block and get out a large lens in the rough. If they succeed in doing that there is still great danger that it will be broken in the first handling to get it down to the proper size for grinding and polishing. After that is accomplished the worst danger of breakage is passed, though of course it would require the utmost skill and caution not to break it while putting on the finishing touches."

"Do you break many?"

"Lots of them. We do not break as many now as we did at first, but in the course of a year we smash a good many. Our experience in the past has opened our eyes a little, so we can generally tell, before we touch a lens, whether or not it is sound."—Boston Cor. New York Sun.

The New York Factions

NEW YORK, Nov. 2d. The result of the voting in this state next Tuesday will largely depend upon the democratic plurality in this city. The condition of affairs here on the democratic side is much worse now than it was in 1880, when the democratic majority was about 30,000. For the mayoralty ticket, the County Democracy have renominated Abram S. Hewitt, and Tammany is running a ticket of its own with Sheriff Grant at its head. Between these two factions the bitterest feeling prevails, and if possible the animosity is growing more intense with each passing hour. With the County Democracy, the election of its city ticket is of vital importance, as its very existence is threatened by defeat. Tammany Hall is in much the same position, and both organizations care a great deal more for their local nominations than they do for the success of their party's national or state candidates. They are both bending every effort at every cost to secure the success of their local candidates, and each side is willing to trade votes for the republican national candidates, for votes for their local nominees.

How much trading can be done is impossible exactly to state, but skillful politicians estimate that on a probable vote of 275,000, at least 15,000 democratic votes can be successfully traded; this would mean a loss of 30,000 on what otherwise would be the democratic plurality. It is on this basis that close observers calculate that the democratic plurality in this city on the presidential ticket will not vary much from 35,000. If this calculation is correct, it would imply the certain defeat of the democratic national ticket in the state, as there is no probability of the republicans coming to the Harlem river with a plurality of less than 60,000.

This is one of the reasons that have made the democratic national committee very blue during the last ten days. They have made every effort to bring about harmony between the democratic factions, but without success. Having failed in trying to force a combination ticket between Tammany and the County Democracy, they then went to work to try to stop any trading between those factions and the republicans. They were getting along fairly well until President Cleveland came here, but he by some means or other set the fight going on again with renewed bitterness, and it has been increasing in bitterness ever since his return to Washington. It is now known that the administration is supporting the Tammany ticket. Cleveland don't like Hewitt, and although he is under the deepest obligations to him, is evidently using his influence indirectly to secure his defeat. All of the democratic office-holders in this city, irrespective of their former affiliations, are supporting the Tammany ticket; where they got their word from, or how they got their word, no one knows, but a sudden change came o'er the spirit of their dreams after Cleveland left, and they are now all working one way.

A notable instance of this occurred in the case of the surveyor of the port, who has been the strongest of strong County Democracy men. He was appointed to his present position through the influence of that organization; he has always been one of its most active workers. This year, however, he has quietly retired into a corner of the Manhattan club; club, where the County Democracy leaders meet for consultation, and even goes so far as to openly denounce the candidature of the mayor, who heretofore has always been one of his most ardent friends; and from accounts which came to the surface to-day it appears that he is going one step further in the direction of carrying out what is said to be Mr. Cleveland's wish, that Mayor Hewitt should be defeated. The word has been passed around among the several hundred inspectors, watchmen and clerks in his department that Grant, the Tammany candidate, is the one for whom they are to cast their votes.

A prominent democratic politician said to-night, "I know about this matter. It seems to me to be the very height of political folly, and it is one reason why those who are familiar with the inside of the campaign are looking forward to the announcement of the vote next Tuesday night with blue noses. It means that if the scheme is carried out the County Democracy men will have to resort to desperate tactics in order to hold their own end up. The life of their organization depends upon Mr. Hewitt's election, and from what I hear said on this subject I don't think that after what they know of the administration's action they will leave any stone unturned to save their own bacon. The patronage of this city is of far greater importance to either organization than the patronage of the national government at this port. It is for this reason that the election of the mayor is to those who live by politics paramount to the election of a president. Not only this, but the administration's action has thoroughly disgusted the County Democracy leaders, as well as some of the prominent men in Tammany Hall. It shows the basest of ingratitude on the part of the president, for it was the County Democracy that brought about his nomination at Chicago in 1884. Mr. Cleveland does not like Abram S. Hewitt; he is under the deepest obligations to our mayor, yet with all this he has done nothing for Mr. Hewitt, and at the first opportunity strikes a crushing blow at his candidature. It is hardly possible on rational grounds to account for Mr. Cleveland's action. The only possible theory which applies to the case is the old adage that 'those whom the gods would destroy they first make mad.' How far this open warfare, which means trading by the wholesale on election day, will reduce the vote on the electoral ticket, is problematical. We are to have, with the united party, 65,000 plurality for the electoral ticket; with the party split as it is, I should say that 30,000 or 32,000 would be about all that Cleveland will get in the city of New York."

Another prominent democrat said tonight: "If you rely upon this city to carry this state, and this state is to decide the national contest in favor of the democratic ticket, then the jig is up! My only hope for Cleveland's re-election is that we are going to carry, as Chairman Bruce says he is going to carry, states like Michigan, Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota. I know this is a pretty small tag upon which to pin political hope. I can only add that I am just now not betting on a hope supported by such a slender thread."

Healthful Bread.

Dr. E. C. Goodrich, a prominent physician of Augusta, Ga., writes the result of his investigation of the baking powder question. "I regard Prof. Horsford's powder as healthful and nutritious, it being composed of phosphatic acid and bicarbonate of soda. The excellence of this combination is so universally commended by physicians and chemists, that my indorsement is simply superfluous. Bread made from unbolted or Graham flour, is more healthful than that made from refined flour, simply because the latter has been deprived of the nutritious phosphates. Horsford's powder restores to the flour the phosphates removed in the bolting process and increases the food properties of the bread by that amount.

Bayard and the Bridgewater.

The claim of J. H. Allen, owner of the American ship Bridgewater, for wrongful detention of his vessel at the port of Shelburne, N. S., by the Canadian customs authorities, has been forwarded by Secretary Bayard to the Dominion government through the medium of the British foreign office. The minister of customs has replied to Mr. Bayard's dispatch, stating that inasmuch as Mr. Allen has entered suit against the Dominion government in a Nova Scotia court for $20,000, the government is quite willing to abide by the decision of that court. This is the case where an American ship, putting into a Nova Scotia port in distress, was seized and detained sixty days because her captain refused to pay duty on the cargo which he was forced to land to discover the leak, and which was to be taken on board again, and was so taken aboard. The Dominion government acknowledged that the action of their understrapper in seizing and detaining the distressed ship was not only outrageous but illegal, but declined to make any compensation, as there was no statute law to compel it. This was about two years ago. It is gratifying to know that Secretary Bayard has at last heard of the case.

The importance of purifying the blood cannot be overestimated, for without pure blood you cannot enjoy good health.

At this season nearly every one needs a good medicine to purify, vitalize, and enrich the blood, and we ask you to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. It strengthens and builds up the system, creates an appetite, and tones the digestion, while it eradicates disease. The peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation of the vegetable remedies used give to Hood's Sarsaparilla peculiar curative powers. No other medicine has such a record of wonderful cures. If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other instead. It is a Peculiar Medicine, and is worthy your confidence.

Peculiar To Itself

Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold by all druggists. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

THE WEATHER.

For New England to-day:—
Warmer, southwesterly winds, light local rains.

BUSINESS CHANGE.

The undersigned has sold the Portsmouth Daily Chronicle and the New Hampshire Gazette to Mr. W. Scott Smith, who from this time assumes entire control of both papers. In retiring from the publishing business, the subscriber would express his thanks to the patrons and friends of the papers, and his belief that under the new management the acknowledged high character of the papers will be fully maintained, while their scope as news agencies will be greatly extended. Mr. Smith is widely known as for the past twenty years filling an important position in the newspaper service at Washing—best known in this city and throughout New England as "Scott" of the Boston Traveller, perhaps—and will devote his entire time and energy to providing the best *news*paper in New Hampshire. His long experience is a guaranty of success, and we bespeak for him the favor that we are confident he will merit.

W. FREEMAN.

WARD ONE CAUCUS.

The republican caucus of ward one will be held on Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock, at the headquarters on Congress street, to nominate candidates to be supported at the coming election.

PER ORDER.

WARD TWO CAUCUS.

The republican caucus of ward two will be holden at the court house this (Saturday) evening, at 7:30 o'clock, for the nomination of representatives to the general court and other officers necessary to be chosen.

PER ORDER.

ATTENTION, COMPANIES.

All organizations intending to participate in the republican procession Monday evening, are requested to report to the chief marshal at the republican headquarters on Congress street at seven o'clock sharp.

W. H. MOORE, Chief Marshal.

OUT OF PLACE.

The street commissioner's gang, in tearing up the sidewalk on Mulberry street Friday forenoon, turned over one of the curb-stones, and read as follows:

HANNAH FIELDS,
Died Dec. 9, 1805,
Aged 23 years.

Vain world, farewell to you;
Heaven is my native str;
I bid my friends a short adieu
Impatient to be there.

Who this stone was intended to commemorate, and how it came to be where it was found, nobody knows. The stone was evidently out of place.

RAILROAD VISITORS.

The inspection of the system of the Concord railroad took place this week. On Friday at 12:30 o'clock a special car of the Concord road arrived in this city, having as passengers Ex-Gov. Smyth, president, B. A. Kimball, managing director, and Messrs. Pillsbury and White of the board of directors; also Ex-Gov. Currier, Messrs. John J. Bell, John J. Pickering, directors, and William H. Hackett, clerk of the Concord & Portsmouth railroad. The train was under the general direction of Superintendent Chamberlin, and in the immediate charge of Conductor Butterfield. The directors visited the wharf, and partook of lunch.

On the way from Manchester the improved condition of the roadbed between Manchester and Candia, and the new station being erected at East Candia, were examined. The coal transfer business over the Concord & Portsmouth railroad is largely in excess of any former year, and with reduced grades and more powerful locomotives and special coal cars, the carriage is being done more economically and satisfactorily than ever before. The new, heavy engines, the John H Pearson, named in honor of the prominent director of the Concord, and the Piscataqua, called after the river which bears the immense coal business to the company's wharves at the north end, and capable of hauling about 400 tons of coal to the train, are in striking contrast, with the machines used in the early days of the coal transportation from this city to Manchester and Concord.

THE KEARSARGE IN COMMISSION.

The United States ship Kearsarge went into commissionat the Portsmouth navy yard at noon on Friday, under command of Comdr. Allan D. Brown, detached from duty at the naval academy and ordered to the command. The other officers ordered to the ship we have previously announced. The rumor is that the Kearsarge is to be at once sent to protect American interests in Hayti, which are said to have been endangered by the action of the Haytien government in seizing the steamer Haytien Republic.

MEMORIAL.

At a meeting of the directors of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, held in Boston on October 17th, on motion of Hon Charles L. Flint, the following resolution was unanimously passed:

"The directors of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals have learned with profound sorrow the death of Mrs. John J. Pickering, of Portsmouth, N. H, the founder and promoter of the New Hampshire Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and desire to place on record the deep sense of loss to the cause of humanity and the humane treatment of the animal creation which her lamented death implied."

REPUBLICAN NOMINATIONS.

The republicans of ward three on Wednesday evening, Oct. 31st, met in the Spalding school house, and placed in nomination the following ticket to be supported at the polls on Nov. 6th;

Representative in the legislature, William Sladen;

Delegate to constitutional convention, Elijah Clough;

Moderator, Frank P. Rand;

Ward clerk, George P. Webber;

Selectmen, Ira Brown, Benjamin O. Ham, Edward W. Clough;

Inspector of check lists, Ceylon Spinney.

ITEMS FROM RYE.

RYE, Nov. 2d.

On the democratic posters announcing a rally of their party in the town hall in Rye last Thursday evening, a cordial invitation was extended to the republicans to attend, and so hear the other side of the story. Why, bless our dear friends of the other side, if they would only post themselves on "the other side of the story" it would not be at all surprising if in the near future, the republican party in Rye would not be so much smaller than the democratic party is.

The boys of both campaign clubs are out about every evening, and Spear's band is in demand every night. On Monday last, both clubs paraded in Rye. On Tuesday the republicans went to Exeter, and on Wednesday to Hampton. The democrats went to North Hampton on Wednesday, and had a local parade and rally at the town hall Thursday,—last night—Hon. T. J. Smith of Dover being the speaker. The club turned out thirty-six torches, and there were perhaps two hundred men, women and children in the hall during the speaking. Enthusiasm was conspicuous by its entire absence. The democratic club go to Hampton this (Friday) night, and to Portsmouth Monday night, the 5th.

The republican caucus of ward two, announced for last evening, was postponed till to-night as the court house was not then vacant. See notice.

Hon. Thomas E. O. Marvin, of this city, was elected a vice president of the American Humane Association, at the annual meeting of the association recently held in Toronto, Ont.

The largest and finest display of lamps in the city, of all kinds and all prices, from twenty-five cents to twice as many dollars, can be found at John P. Sweetser's, Market street.

The captain of the Wentworth Guards of Kittery says that his command will not go off again with the Winchester Guards. The guards are too fast company for his little innocents and he don't care to have the guards set a bad example for his company.—Times.

Capt. Donnell, of the Wentworth Guards, desires us to say that the author of the above is mistaken; he has said nothing of the kind.

Rev. Alfred Gooding, pastor of the Unitarian society, who has been giving a series of very interesting Sunday evening lectures on the Epistle to the Galatians, will deliver another one in the course at the vesper service to-morrow.

Mr. Charles Lnagton and several of his neighbors, of Kittery, have recently filled a car with apples at the navy yard station for shipment to Canada, Mr. D. Parker Spinney of South Eliot being among the largest contributors.

Mr. Charles P. Berry, manager of the Portsmouth Shoe Co.'s factory, in a letter to the Times gives his reasons for supporting Cleveland this year. His letter is very long, but he forgot to put in the real reason; it was not necessary that he should.

The low prices on rubber water-bottles at Grace's drug store will last but one week longer, from Nov. 1st As the stock of them is nearly exhausted, we would advise those who have not already purchased, to get one or more before the price advances.

The Langton Brothers, Charles and Paschal, of Kittery, have shipped to that town since the middle of July about 2400 lambs, from Canada. Of these their sons, Chester and Elmer, have dressed about 700 and sold them in the Dover market; the remainder were sold alive to parties in Portsmouth.

Services will be conducted in the Advent chapel on Hanover street next Lord's day (to-morrow) by Eld. W. H. Lannin of Maine. Prayer and praise service at 10:30 A. M.; Sabbath school at 12:00; preaching at 2:45 P. M, subject "The cause and cure of church disintegration." In the evening a praise service will begin at seven, followed by a sermon, subject, "Salvation."

Says the Biddeford Standard: "The Globe Grocery Co. at Saco have issued a circular saying that they will sell no goods to other grocers either at Saco or Biddeford, knowingly, as they intend to deal only and wholly with the consumers, and do not propose to allow other dealers to sell and get a profit on their goods. They have an odd way of doing business, but they are a very successful house and do an immense business wherever they locate."

The proprietor of the Oceanic hotel at Star island has presented J. W. Potts of Albany, N. Y., with a gold medal, engraved as follows: "Presented to J. W. Potts, by the Oceanic hotel, for catching the largest codfish, season of 1888—76 3-4 lbs." Mr. Potts and his father, J. C. Potts, have been at Star island for many years, regularly every season. Col. George W. Rand of New York has a similar medal from the hotel, for being "high line" for the season of 1886, his fish weighing seventy-two pounds.

One Fact

Is worth a column of rhetoric, said an American statesman. It is a fact, established by the testimony of thousands of people, that Hood's Sarsaparilla does cure scrofula, salt rheum, and other diseases or affections arising from impure state or low condition of the blood. It also overcomes that tired feeling, creates a good appetite, and gives strength to every part of the system. Try it.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

Sold only in cans, full weight.

CLEVELAND BROTHERS, ALBANY, N. Y.

Check-List Notice.

THE Board of Inspectors of Check-Lists of the City of Portsmouth give notice that they have posted lists of the voters in the several wards of the city, in the corridor of the City Building; also, of Ward One in the Railroad Station, of Ward Three in the store of John Mitchell on Islington street, of Ward Four in the store of John J. Lackey on Pleasant street, for the inspection of the voters of the city.

They also give notice that they will be in session in the City Building on Friday, October 26th; on Wednesday, October 31st; and on Friday, November 2d, 1888, from 9 o'clock A. M. to 12 M., and from 2 to 5 o'clock P. M., on each of said days, for the purpose of revising and correcting the list of voters.

They will also be in session at the same place from 8 to 10 A. M. and from 1 to 2 o'clock P. M., on the day of election, for the purpose of furnishing certificates to any persons whose names may have been omitted, and who the board are satisfied have resided in the ward one year next preceding said election.

EPPS'S COCOA.

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame.—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in half-pound tins, by Grocers, labelled thus: JAMES EPPS & CO., Homœopathic Chemists, London, England.

MASON & HAMLIN

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free. ORGANS $22 TO $900.

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other makers, but claim in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER, by the use of which a secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity. GRAND & UPRIGHT PIANOS for standing in tune and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, mailed free. Organ, scale, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

Pianos and Organs sold for cash or easy payments; also rented.

It is Nature's Remedy, made exclusively from Roots and Herbs.

It is perfectly Harmless.

It is the only remedy known to the world that has ever yet Cured contagious Blood Poison in all its stages.

It cures Mercurial Rheumatism, Cancer, Scrofula, and other blood diseases heretofore considered incurable. It cures any disease caused from impure blood. It is now prescribed by thousands of the best physicians in the United States, as a tonic. We append the statement of a few:

"I have used S. S. S. on patients convalescing from fever and from measles with the best results. J. R. CHENEY, M. D., Ellaville, Ga."

BREMEN, GA.—Willie White was afflicted with scrofula seven years. I prescribed S. S. S., and to-day he is a fat and robust boy. G. W. PARKER, M. D.

RICHMOND, VA., Dec. 15, 1885.—I have taken three bottles of Swift's Specific for secondary blood poison. It acts much better than potash or any other remedy I have ever used. B. F. WINFIELD, M. D., Formerly of Sussex Co., Va.

DR. E. J. HALE, the well-known druggist and physician, of Nashville, Howard County, Ark., writes: "Having some knowledge as to what S. S. S. is composed of, I can safely recommend it as the remedy for all skin diseases. It matters not what the name may be."

We have a book giving a history of this wonderful remedy, and its cures, from all over the world, which will convince you that all we say is true, and which we will mail free on application. No family should be without it. We have another on Contagious Blood Poison, sent on same terms.

Write us a history of your case, and our physician will advise with you by letter, in strictest confidence. We will not deceive you knowingly.

ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES.

Democrats Trying to Make Capital Out of the Forged Dudley Letter.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 2d. — Chairman Jewett of the Democratic State Central committee last night received the following despatch from New York: "Number of citizens of New York at a private meeting Friday night, moved by the Dudley letter resolved to place at the disposal of your committee the sum of $20,000 for the vigorous prosecution of every man in Indiana who would practice Dudley's methods. CALVIN P. BRICE.

Upon receipt of this telegram Jewett directed the Sentinel to insert the following offer of reward, as agent of the gentlemen mentioned in the short despatch:

I will pay the following reward: Five thousand dollars for the arrest and conviction of W. W. Dudley on a charge of attempting to bribe or conspiring to bribe voters, or inducing others to bribe voters in Indiana at the November election, 1888; one thousand dollars each for arrest and conviction of any number of persons who, in accordance with plan set forth in letter of William Dudley, dated Oct. 24, 1888, have conspired to bribe voters at the November election; one hundred dollars each for arrest and conviction of any number of persons who in accordance with plans set forth in letter of W. W. Dudley shall bribe or attempt to bribe voters at November election, 1888. JEWETT.

Col. Quay's Shot is Heaviest.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4th.—Col. Quay has issued a circular addressed to the chairman of the republican state committee of Indiana, saying that at the final meeting of the national executive committee yesterday $50,000 was set apart to be paid in rewards which may lead to the arrest and conviction of persons conspiring to perpetrate frauds upon the ballot in different sections of Indiana.

At Their Old Tricks.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

AUGUSTA, ME., Nov. 4th.—The following telegram was sent to-night to every member of the Republican State Committee:

Augusta. Me., Nov. 4th.—Evidence in my possession proves that an organized effort is being made to circulate tickets with one or more Democratic electors substituted. Have every town in your county notified. Move promptly and watch closely. J. H. MANLEY, chairman.

It is Being Well Stuck To.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

BOSTON, Nov. 4th.—In an interview to-night John Boyle O'Reilly reiterated his statements made in the Pilot that the republican senators changed the extradition treaty, and that not a democratic senator voted to insert them. He showed a despatch received from Senator Payne of Ohio, in which he said no democratic member of the committee offered an amendment to the treaty. All were offered by republicans, and adopted by them, they being in the majority. O'Reilly admits that he condemned the treaty at first, as he thought the malicious injury clause seemed to open the way for the extration of political refugees, but he says that was a mistake, in that the injury must constitute cause according to the laws of both countries to make the offence extraditable, and there is no such law on our federal statutes. Minister Sackville asked our administration to amend this weak position and met direct refusal. The Republican senators however added an amendment copied from the Irish coercion act.

'Twas But a Little Campaign Lie.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

SCRANTON, PA., Nov. 4th.—The Boston Pilot having accused Gen. Harrison of denouncing the Irish people in bitter terms some years ago, and the same paper having stated that Gen. Harrison had never denied the accusation, Editor Barrett of the Scranton Truth inquired of Gen. Harrison as to the facts, and received the following reply:

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 3d.—John E. Barrett, editor of Scranton Truth: In an address at the great labor meeting held at Indianapolis Oct. 24th, 1888, I said it is false that anywhere or at any time have I ever spoken disparagingly of my fellow citizens of Irish nationality or descent. B. HARRISON.

They Want the Earth—Won't Get It.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4th.—At democratic national headquarters to-night a sweeping victory on Tuesday was claimed by the following ggures:

New York, 35,000 to 40,000 majority; Indiana 12,000 to 15,000, New Jersey 9,000 to 10,000, Connecticut by a plurality larger than in 1884; they feel perfectly confident of increased majorities in West Virginia, Virginia, Tennessee and Delaware, and have most encouraging final reports from Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, and three New England states outside of Connecticut.

When Col. Swords, in charge of the notional Republican committee, was asked what he thought of the Democratic claim, he laughed long and loud. "I'm not surprised," said he, "the democrats think they own they own the earth." Col. Swords said the Republican committee were not going into figures just now but had every reason to believe they were sure of victory.

He Remembers Lord Sackville.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

OTTAWA, ONT. Nov. 4th—The Hon. Mackenzie Bowell will not make public a letter sent him asking his advice how to vote at the Presidential election, until after election day. U. S. Consul Hotchkins happened to be in Bowell's office on official business when the communication was received.

A Ride to Death.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

MIDDLETON, N. Y., Nov. 4th.—A number of boys to-day took a hand car of the Ontario & Western R. R. from the switch out on the main line. While going down a heavy grade near Sands station the car became unmanageble on account of the high rate of speed, and finally jumped the track. One boy named McGalloway had his head cut off, and another was fatally injured.

Coal Mine Disaster.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

LOCK HAVEN, PA., Nov. 4th.—An explosion occurred last night in Kettle Creek coal mine, 20 miles from this city, and but recently opened. The explosion occurred in a new drift in which 21 persons were at work. As soon as possible the mine was entered, 10 dead bodies carried out, four others badly injured; one since died and others likely to die. Cause of explosion unknown; supposed to be a string of pocket-fissure fuse. This afternoon one workman's body was found naked fifty feet from the main air shaft, through which it had been blown.

All but four of the men killed or fatally injured were Hungarians or Italians, whose names are not given. A driver named I. Tarrell was entering a drift when the explosion occurred. He was thrown towards the mouth and escaped. His mule was killed. It is now thought in making a blast a gas feeder was struck, filling chamber with gas which coming in contact with naked lamps produced explosion. Gas feeder is a pocket of gas imbedded in coal, and as soon as a pick is struck into gas if anything ignites explosion follows.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., Nov. 4th.—Special from Williamsport, N. Y., says that among rumors going the rounds as to the cause of the explosion is one that it was directly due to inexperienced use of dynamite. One of the drivers in the mine who escaped says he learned that an Italian had gotten 100 sticks of the deadly stuff and 100 caps from the storekeeper in the mine, and had returned for some fuse, but there being none in stock, it is supposed he tried to fire it in some other way, causing the disaster. In a blacksmith shop near the scene was the unrecognizable body of Angus Peterson, who was blown fifty feet through the air shaft; some of his clothing is still hanging to limbs of large trees near the shaft. Next him is Mark Currier, who was blown 200 feet from the mouth of the mine, and found dead, still clinging to the handle of his shovel; leaves widow and seven small children. Beside him lay P. F. Daley, also blown out of the mouth of the mine; leaves widow and four children. In a row are Sam Killenger, Chase Ulmer, John Carlson, John Anderson, Stephen Plutas, and others whose names could not be learned.

Consecration of Bishop Foley.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

BALTIMORE, MD., Nov. 4.—Right Rev. John S. Foley, Bishop of Detroit was consecrated to-day at the cathedral with great pomp and splendor. The cardinal, three archbishops, nineteen bishops and about 100 priests participated.

From Manchester.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Nov. 4th.—This afternoon the body of Herman Reiman, a teamster was found in a shed in West Manchester, covered with blood and a bullet hole near the corder of his left eye. No deadly weapon was found in proximity.

Last evening a noted Concord character named John Flagg died from a dose of opium at a hotel in West Manchester where he had been stopping for the past few weeks with a female companion named Carrie Emmons. A large sum of money which he was supposed to possess is missing. The Emmons woman is under arrest.

Telegraphic Notes.

VICKSBURG, MISS., Nov. 4th. — A freight train on the Louisville, New Orleans & Texas Railroad struck a cow at two o'clock to-day and was thrown from the track. Engine and 13 cars wrecked. Charles Seymour of New Orleans and Jackson May of Vicksburg, employees, and an unknown tramp who was stealing a ride were killed. J. L. Martin, boilermaker of this city, and John Brown, colored, fireman, probably fatally hurt.

HALIFAX, Nov. 4th. — The steamer Thingvilla, which collided with and sunk steamer Geyser, will sail for New York Wednesday. Reloading her cargo. Expenditures for repairs amounts to about $60,000. The vessel is now as good as new.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4th.—Mrs. James G. Blaine, Jr., was reported a little better to-day, but she is not yet out of danger.

Mr. Blaine Leaves for Home To-day.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4th.—Mr. Blaine and party will leave for home to-morrow over the New Haven road. He will stay at Young's Hotel in Boston for one night, and take the 9 o'clock train for Augusta Tuesday morning, arriving at 3 P. M.

Our Mary Returns.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Miss Mary Anderson, in a neat fitting grey ulster and black hat, looking piquant, healthy and smiling, came off the Umbria to-day and affectionately met her mother and sister and greeted groups of friends in waiting. They were driven at once to the Grand Central depot where they took the train for Irvington, the residence of her mother. Miss Anderson's repertoire has been increased by several new plays, but she will open Monday at Palmer's Theatre in a "Winter's Tale. She is to be supported by an English company which accompanies her.

Seems Nearly a Draw Game.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

DES MOINES, IOWA, Nov. 4th.—Cases brought by jobbers of Davenport, Dubuque and Burlington before the Railroad Commissioners were decided yesterday. They charged roads with conspiracy to maintain high and extortionate rates so as to discriminate against Iowa City. The combined charge of conspiracy was not sustained. Charges of discrimination, made under the state law, are beyond jurisdiction of the board. Charge of extortionate rates was fully proven by evidence, and is sustained. Opinion signed by Commissioners Smith and Campbell. Com. Dey says he has been threatened by jobbers in case he did not give an opinion before Nov. 5th, so he declines to state his views till after election.

Collision off Cowes—A Steamer Sunk and 72 Persons Drowned.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

LONDON, ENG., Nov. 4th.—Norweigian bark Nor, Capt. B. Janness, from New York Oct. 2d for Stettin, collided and sank the steamer Sax-Mundham off Cowes. Seventy-two persons missing, and supposed to be drowned. Eight survivors landed at Weymouth. The Nor was abandoned. The crew landed at Portland.

LONDON, Nov. 4th.—Cardinal Newman is out of danger. Thanksgiving service for his recovery was held to day.

The Blue book on the Lord Sackville affair is being prepared by Parliament.

LONDON, Nov. 4th.—Woodcock and Henler, American favorites of the king of Wurtemburg, left Nice suddenly on Saturday. The king lodged them in a pretty villa opposite his own hotel. Woodcock was seen by a reporter before departing, but refused to say anything of the charges against him, and the Wurtemburg court officials are silent.

LONDON, Nov. 4th.—On the meeting of parliament to-morrow statements will be made in both houses relative to the Lord Sackville affair.

Too Much Politics—Two Men Shot.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

COLUMBUS, IND., Nov. 4th.—Last night at a republican rally at Hope, this county, two young men named Gideon Percefield and Joe Middleton, who reside here, quarrelled with Town Marshal Brennan; the latter fired several shots, wounding Middleton so that he died soon after, also fatally wounding Percefield. Brennan was arrested.

A Generous Contribution.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

BANGOR, ME., Nov. 4th.—The Young Men's Christian Association held its eighth anniversary this evening in Normbega hall, which was densely packed. General Secretary Jordan presented his annual report of the work of the Association the past year, showing the value of the work done, and the pressing need of more convenient rooms. Rev. George D. Lindsay delivered an eloquent address, and then made a stirring appeal for funds. A collection amounting to $113,225 was taken up in the hall.

A Democratic Editor Claims California.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4th.—Wm. R. Hearst, proprietor of the San Francisco Examiner, (democratic,) was in the city today en route to New York. Regarding the political outlook in California Mr. Hearst says the Democrats will probably carry the State at the coming election by about 3,000 maj. He says Republicans count chiefly upon gains from immigration to Southern California from New England States, and this is offset by Democratic immigration from Texas. He also claims from two to four hundred gain in San Francisco, principally on account of the Chinese Exclusion law.

Took the Long Voyage.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

BOSTON, MASS, Nov. 4th.—While four young men, J. Hayes, Henry James, Wm. Sellars and Charles Cogan were boating up Dorchester bay this afternoon, their boat was capsized and the first-named three were drowned. Cagan escaped by swimming to a vessel which lay near by.

The Southern Pestilence.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

DECATUR, ALA., Nov. 4th.—Three new cases to-day, all white. The health officer says the statements of distress in New Decatur made by Mayor Pray were simply false.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA., Nov. 4th.—Weather clear and cool; 11 new cases, 3 deaths.

Operations at the corn-canning establishment in Springvale, York county, have closed for the year. The company have put up about 150,000 cans, which amount is 50,000 cans or more short of what they would have put up had not the corn crop partially failed in consequence of the continued cool weather of the autumn, and the early frosts.

George M. Conarre of Philadelphia is to have erected for him at Bald Head Cliff, Ogunquit, Wells, a summer cottage to cost $10,000. He must be a newspaper man; ordinary people call dwellings costing $10,000 houses.

A Word With Our Readers.

In assuming the Editorship of the Portsmouth Daily CHRONICLE and the New Hampshire GAZETTE a brief announcement regarding the future policy of these papers is due their readers. As an earnest advocate of the principles of the Republican party since the days of Lincoln, in another section of the country, we enter upon our duties here with a more profound feeling of admiration for those principles than ever before. As the only Republican morning paper in New Hampshire the CHRONICLE has an important duty to perform, and how well that duty has been performed the future will answer. Under the new management the CHRONICLE will be aggressive, fearless and outspoken in advocating and upholding the principles of the Republican party, while in its treatment of its political adversaries it will be guided by fairness and good temper. We shall favor neither clique nor faction, and the Editorial columns will be under the control of no person but the editor, who enters upon his new field of labor unhampered by pledges, but with a determination to support that which is right and to combat with all the vigor possible that which is wrong.

We intend that the people of Portsmouth and vicinity shall have a first class morning newspaper, which they have never had, clean in its treatment of national and local affairs, and not given to personalities. In other words, a newspaper which shall be fresh, sprightly and readable, and safe to go into the family household without fear of containing articles exceptionable in character. It shall be our aim at all times to promote and advance the interests of Portsmouth, and we feel that in so doing we can safely rely upon the generous support of its citizens.

With the issue of the present number the CHRONICLE becomes a member of the Associated Press, thus enabling its readers to have the fullest and latest news from all sections of the globe, without any increase in the price of the paper.

W. SCOTT SMITH.

The First Congressional District.

We most heartily endorse every word contained in the article in another column from the Concord Monitor eulogistic of the Hon. Alonzo Nute, the Republican nominee for Congress in the First District. Mr. Nute is deserving of every statement made, and we greatly mistake the sentiment prevailing in the First District if the people do not by a very decided majority send Mr. Nute to represent them at Washington. This has been a very peculiar campaign, at least on the part of the Democrats in this part of the state. Recognizing that in the nomination of Mr. Nute the Republicans put forth their strongest candidate the Democratic managers became alarmed, and began a campaign of misrepresentation and falsehood, following up one lie with another as soon as the first was exposed.

We have before us a small "dodger" scattered broadcast throughout the District by the supporters of Mr. McKinney, charging Mr. Nute with having "opposed the ten hour law and the weekly payment bill in the legislature." This story is intended to influence the labor vote and to array them in hostility to Mr. Nute, and the author of the circular did not care whether the statements made were true or not so long as the purpose for which it was intended was accomplished. As a matter of fact Mr. Nute has ever been the friend of the laboring man. He never spoke a word or gave a vote in opposition to their interests, and did not oppose the ten hour law, or the weekly payment law. The falsity of the whole charge will be seen when it is known that Mr. Nute has not been a member of the legislature for the last fifteen years.

The workingmen of the First District must not be misled and deceived by this kind of campaign literature. It is their duty, in the interests of their families and of good government, to go to the polls to-morrow and rebuke the attempt of Mr. McKinney to climb into Congress over their heads, while posing as their particular friend, by voting for Alonzo Nute.

To The Republicans of Portsmouth.

To-morrow a President of the United States, members of Congress, and governors and legislatures in nearly all the states are to be elected. The outlook for the election of Gen. Harrison and a republican house is cheering, the probability being that of the "doubful" states, New York, Indiana, Connecticut and New Jersey, three if not the whole four will give their electoral votes for Harrison.

But the republicans of Portsmouth have no duty to perform in connection with those states, which must be won or lost by their own voters. Their duty in their own state even, is not to carry the state, but to poll every legal vote of the party in their own wards; if they do this, their duty will be well done.

And this should be done. The democrats have been working hard, and will to-morow leave no stone unturned to carry the state,—the legislature and first congressional district especially. It is not impossible, if improbable, that to-morrow's vote in this city might have a national bearing. The United States senate of the 50th Congress is composed of 37 democrats to 39 republicans; the change of a single vote from one column to the other would make a tie, and in that case, should Cleveland and Thurman be elected, the democratic vice president would have the casting vote.

The legislature to be chosen in this state to-morrow will elect a successor to Hon. William E. Chandler, whose term as United States senator expires March 4th, 1889. The present delegation from this city is solidly democratic—eight representatives and one senator; it is certain that these figures can be changed, at least to the extent of three republican representatives from ward two, and probably of a republican as senator, if the republicans will but come out. And come out they should at this juncture, for in case of the house being close three or four republican members from this city would be of importance in the senatorial election.

Let every republican do his duty, and he will then have nothing to blame himself for, no matter how the election may turn out.

Shall Bribery and Corruption Triumph in New York?

Inside information from New York leaves no doubt that the Democratic managers have all their plans laid for capturing the electoral vote of the State by the most unblushing frauds and corrupt use of money in New York city on Tuesday next. To cover up their designs and to divert suspicion they have resorted to the game of brag, claiming through the Democratic press that their canvass gives them the state by from five to fifteen thousand majority.

It is a fact well known to the Republican leaders in New York that if the vote had been counted in the city of New York, as it was cast four years ago, Grover Cleveland would have never occupied the executive chair. He owes his position solely to bribery and the corrupt use of money by Wm. H. Barnum and his Democratic co-workers. Of this there can be no doubt. The evidence has been in possession of leading Republicans for some time past, and its publicity is only a question of time. We violate no confidence in saying that on election day four years ago Mr. Stephen Elkins, one of Mr. Blaine's warmest supporters, was approached, and offered a certain majority, in a New York city ward where the Irish vote largely predominated, for five thousand dollars. He was given to understand that for this sum of money the election inspectors would count for Blaine votes cast for other candidates. Mr. Elkins declined to entertain the proposition, and the result was that fifteen hundred Irish votes cast for Gen. Butler for President were counted for Grover Cleveland, and the fraudulent transfer of those votes alone gave him the plurality of 1047 by which he received his title to the Presidency. Will Mr. Barnum again be enabled to defeat the will of the people as expressed at the polls? We think not, although every effort will undoubtedly be made to buy up the election inspectors and repeat the fraud of four years ago. Fore-warned is fore-armed, and the Republicans have been fore-warned.

LETTER FROM WASHINGTON.

Anxiety About the Election.—The Spoils System Displaces Civil Service Reform—Lord Sackville and the Administration.

[Special Correspondence of Daily Chronicle.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 2d.—As a general thing one has to go away from home to get the news of the day, as it usually happens that people outside the limits of home or city know more about our affairs, political or domestic, than we ourselves know. Of course it is conceded that Washington, as the capital of the nation, is the centre of light and knowledge, but by reason of its peculiar local laws and government its citizens, although enjoying all the benefits of administrative protection, have no voice or vote in the affairs of state, and while the outlying states and municipalities are at fever heat over the questions which agitate their inhabitants, and on which they will soon be called to cast their ballots, we so near the throne rest in its shadow, and scent the battle from afar.

It must not, however, be taken for granted that, though disfranchised politically, we, as citizens of the republic, take no interest in the impending election, and are content to exercise no personal preference in the issues which are at stake and which our loyal brothers in the fold are to-day proclaiming from every stump and platform throughout the land, for there are as tried and true Republicans here as can be found in any state or territory of this glorious Union; men who suffer for opinion's sake and wait with bated breath and hopeful prayers for the verdict which the American freemen are to render next Tuesday, trusting that the good sense of our people may reverse the present order (or disorder) of things, and place a Republican president in the White House on the next inauguration day.

With few exceptions the business men of this city, and they are largely of Democratic proclivities, complain that trade is dead and that times were never so hard as at present, all of which they attribute to the administration now in power, and while not openly expressing their desire for change are not less hopeful than ourselves that General Harrison may be the successor of Cleveland, and that the appeal of the people for protection of their industries may prevail and rout the legions of free trade and English supremacy from all American markets.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM THRUST ASIDE.

Every Democratic pledge and promise has been violated, and there has never been a time within the history of politics in this country when the spoils system was more openly advocated and practiced. The civil service question which was brought forward with great prominence in the last presidential campaign, and to which Grover Cleveland so thoroughly committed himself, is to-day ignored without excuse, and has become a by-word of reproach among those who advocated its endorsement four years ago. The practical working of civil service ideas, under democratic control, tends to exclude from public office those whom the powers that be do not want in, and to admit those who are known to be of the democratic faith. True, there are many republican "hold-overs" still in the executive department, but life is made a burden to them by petty persecutions to such an extent that they are afraid to call their souls their own, and they are kept in fear lest through inadvertence some isolated act or word may be construed as "offensive partisanship" and lead to official decapitation. They are afraid to speak their honest political sentiments; they dare not contribute to the support of the party to which they belong; and as for going home to vote the Republican ticket, some of them would as soon think of suicide. Yet they are loyal to their convictions, and pray in secret for the success of the Republican party.

Outside of politics the Sackville-West episode comes in for a large share of public attention, but the general opinion seems to be that the administration, through its secretary of state, has made a mess of the matter by delaying action so long after the offence with which the British minister is charged had been committed, and damaged, rather than repaired, the prestige of the administration by the recoil of the gun which was not thought to be loaded quite up to the muzzle. While Cleveland is desirous that the American people may not think him a coward, he has taken such a long time in getting off his coat and rolling up his sleeves for action the audience has come to the conclusion there is not going to be much of a fight, and that the president's attitude is a grand "bluff" after all. The disgrace of an English diplomat will not remove the impression that free trade democracy is the natural ally of free trade England, and no intelligent voter, be he native or foreign born, will be led away from the issues of the campaign by the side show of American diplomacy which Mr. Bayard offers to the public. The only issue which voters should contemplate at the present moment is whether they will vote for the protection of home labor and home industries, as set forth in the Republican platform on which General Harrison stands, or vote for the democratic idea as represented by Cleveland and open the markets of America to the competition of foreign manufactures and the pauper labor of Europe.

Self preservation being the first law of nature every man should consider his country's interests first, and in voting to protect them secure his own protection.

Mr. Brice of the Democratic National Committee is posing now as a would-be purifier of the ballot box, and trying to direct suspicion from New York to Indiana, by taking the forged letter of Col. Dudley as a basis for his action. His antics will deceive nobody. Our despatches give his side of the story.

As will be seen by our telegraphic columns there was another steamship disaster off Cowes, England, yesterday, and seventy two persons lost their lives. The number of ocean disasters have become alarmingly frequent of late, and in every instance it is the iron and not the wooden vessel which sinks, and carries to the grave passengers and crews.

A telegram to the CHRONICLE from Bangor says that at the meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association there yesterday $113,225 was raised. It is evident that the citizens have not been betting on the election, or else they are getting rid of their surplus cash won from the Democrats at the September election.

Alonzo Nute.

Alonzo Nute is one of the cleanest men ever nominated for Congress in this or any other state. He is one of nature's noblemen, true, honest and straightforward, kind, benevolent and helpful, able energetic and self-reliant. Not a man who knows him can be found to say aught against him. There is not a person in his employ but loves and respects him. He is an ideal candidate. He is a worthy representative of the people of New Hampshire. He stands for something. He has an interest in the prosperity and welfare of the state, for he has helped to create them. He is not a carpet-bagger. He is not an itinerant vote-beggar. He does not believe that his old comrades-in-arms should be allowed to become paupers. He does not believe in free trade. He will not vote for free wool, free lumber, free granite, and low wages. He does not make pledges in secret that he does not dare make in public, and then break them. He is incapable of joining every organization that will take him in simply to get its political support. In a word, he is the direct opposite of his democratic competitor, and that is the best of reasons for electing him. Give him a rousing majority. This good name of the first district requires it.

The Costa Rican's Piano.

The "marimba" is constructed of twenty-one pieces of split bamboo of graded lengths strung upon two bars of the same wood, according to harmonic sequence, thus furnishing three octaves. Underneath each strip of bamboo is a gourd, strung upon a wire, which takes the place of a sounding board, and adds strength and sweetness to the tones. The performer takes the instrument upon his knees and strikes the bamboo strips with little hammers of padded leather, usually taking two between the fingers of each hand, so as to strike a chord of four notes, which he does with great dexterity. I have seen men play with three hammers in each hand and use them as rapidly and skillfully as a pianist touches keys.

The tones of the "marimba" resemble those of the xylophone, which has recently became so popular, except that they are louder and more resonant. The instrument is peculiarly adapted to the native airs, which are plaintive, but melodious. At all of the tambos where the cartmen stop, "marimbas" are kept, and in every caravan are those who can handle them skillfully. Tourists generally travel in the cool hours of the morning and evening to avoid the blistering sun, and it is a welcome diversion to stop at the bodegas to listen to the songs of the cartmen, and watch them dancing with dark eyed, barefooted senoritas.—Harper's Magazine.

The Ways of Baby Elephants.

How the young elephants in the large herds escape from being crushed is something of a mystery, as they are almost continually in motion; but when a herd is alarmed the young almost immediately disappear. A close observer would see that each baby was trotting along directly beneath its mother, sometimes between her fore legs.

On the march, when a little elephant is born in a herd, they stop a day or two to allow it time to exercise its little limbs and gain strength, and then they press on, the mothers and babies in front, the old tuskers following in the rear, but ready to rush forward at the first alarm. When rocky or hilly places are reached, the little one are helped up by the mothers, who push them from behind and in various ways; but when a river has to be forded or swum, a comical sight ensues.

The stream may be very rapid and rough, as the Indian rivers often are after a rain, and at such a place the babies would hardly be able to keep up with the rest; so the mothers and fathers help them. At first all plunge boldly in—both young and old—and when the old elephants reach deep water, where they have to swim, the young scramble upon their backs and sit astride, sometimes two being seen in this position. But the very young elephants often require a little more care and attention, so they are held either upon the tusks of the father or grasped in the trunk of the mother, and held over or just at the surface of the water. Such a sight is a curious one, to say the least—the great elephants almost hidden beneath the water, here and there a young one seemingly walking on the water, resting upon a submerged back, or held aloft while the dark waters roar below.—C. F. Holder in St. Nicholas.

The Meaning of "America."

The meaning of the name Amerigo has often been discussed, the only thing certain being that it is one of those names of Teutonic origin, like Humberto, Alfonso, Grimaldi, and Garibaldi, so common in northern Italy, which testify to the Gothic or Lombard conquest. Americ, which occurs as early as 744 A. D., is probably a contracted form of the name Amalaric, borne by a king of the Visigoths, who died in 531. A Bishop Emrich was present at the Council of Salisbury in 807, and an Americus Balistarius is mentioned in the Close Rolls (Thirteenth century). It has been conjectured that the stem is im, from which we get the name of Emma. The meaning of this is not known with certainty, though Ferguson thinks it may denote "strife" or "noise." Since, however, the name is probably of Gothic origin, and since the Amalungs were the royal race of the Ostragoths, it is more likely that the stem is amal-, which was formerly thought to mean "without spot," but is now more plausibly connected with the old Norse aml, "labor," "work." The suffix ric, cognate with rex, reich and rick, means "rich" or "powerful," and therefore the most probable signification of Amerigo is "strong for labor."—Isaac Taylor in Notes and Queries.

Violinist Remenyi's Ways.

During his tour through the country several years ago Remenyi played at Whitewater, and while there was invited to the residence of T. D. Weeks, a prominent citizen of Whitewater. He took with him his famous Cremona violin, which he carefully deposited on a sofa in the parlor. Shortly afterward several young ladies who were there to meet the great violinist went into the parlor, and removing the violin from the sofa stood it up in one corner of the room. When Remenyi entered the room again he noticed his violin on the floor; he seized it and exclaimed, "My princess on the floor!" and then he turned to the astonished misses and scolded them roundly for putting his "princess" on the floor.

There was present at the same time a pianist who had joined Remenyi in this city, and who traveled with him during the balance of his tour. Whitewater was the first place where the new pianist played and on this occasion he sat down to the piano and gave an exhibition of his playing. When he had finished Remenyi was so delighted that he went up to the performer and embraced him in the most effusive manner, repeating this performance every time he played.—Evening Wisconsin.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS
The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.
Mason & Hamlin Organs, as demonstration of the unequaled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with the best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues $22 TO $900, free.
Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which they secure the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity to SOLICIT ORDERS for standing in tune and other important advantages.
A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians, and critics, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

Navies in a Transition Stage.

The navies of the world have been for years past in a transition stage—in fact, ever since the introduction of armor plating for ships of war, which necessitated the manufacture and use on board ship of heavier guns, which have since been competing with the thickness of armor until it seems probable that the extreme limit has been well nigh reached in either case, the ideal man-of-war has been sought for the continual change and improvement; but on looking into the future, nothing but further change can be seen ahead. It is, therefore, essential to find out, as far as possible, which of our various types of ships best fulfills the requirements expected of them.

The true solution of this question, and of many others waiting to be solved, conspicuous among them being the question, "What is the value of the torpedo as an offensive and defensive weapon?" will have to stand over till after the next great naval war. The wars of late years have not helped us much. The American civil war developed the defensive torpedo to a stage beyond which it has not since made much advance; but from the Franco-German and Russo-Turkish wars but little was learned, beyond the undoubtedly great value of torpedoes for purposes of defense, in each case the stronger fleet being rendered innocuous by their use. But such questions as "The best way to defend a large ocean trade from attack by cruisers?" which to England is of vital importance, remain as obscure as ever.—Blackwood's Magazine.

The Aquarium's "Happy Family."

In my largest aquarium five gold and silver fish, several shiners, three minute bullheads and a few tiny rock bass, found at the bottom of a deep well, dwelt amicably together. Two small turtles and three varieties of snail kept them company. All went merry as a marriage bell until I introduced a stickleback to the assembled crowd. This web monster proved the quintessence of malicious industry, nibbling the fins and tails of my choicest fish into an uneven fringe in an incredibly short time.

The brilliant, opaline coloring of the sunfish makes them specially attractive, but these ferocious creatures must have a tank to themselves. My fish came in time to know me, and although nearly all were shy of strangers, at a tap of my fingers on the glass they would sally from their hiding places and cluster together. Sometimes I fancied that even the snails recognized me; be that as it may, the intelligence of my hardshell turtles was an undoubted fact. One of them would manage by adroit climbing to somersault himself out of the aquarium on to the floor, where he strayed contentedly about, until a certain member of the family entering he would follow him from room to room, wherever he went. Six soft shell turtles from the Mississippi banks had special quarters of their own, and as genuine curiosities, were often the observed of all observers.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Bonds of Lesser Denomination.

The denominations and the distribution of railway bonds deserve criticism. Ordinarily the denominations are $500 and $1,000, but $10,000 bonds are not uncommon and some are issued for $100,000. These denominations hinder the wide distribution of the securities among the people, because they are too large to secure purchasers among persons of moderate means. Only the rich can afford $500 or $1,000 investments; many people of less means would gladly invest in safe railway securities of $50 or $100 denominations.

To reduce the denominations of railway bonds would enlarge materially the home market for them. It would give the railways a larger constituency of interested investors in the territories they serve, a constituency competent to restrain in a marked degree the excesses of ill considered hostile railway legislation, and to contribute in many ways to railway stability and prosperity. It is pertinent to inquire who is likely to be able most intelligently and effectively to participate in adjusting fairly the frequently strained relations of railways and the public, the Dutch bondholders in Amsterdam or the American farmer on the western prairies, who has invested a few hundreds in securities of the roads which carry his grain to market?—Forum.

Preparation of Fruit Syrups.

Everybody knows, says M. Manche, in The Archives de Pharmacie, that syrups prepared from the fresh fruit juices are far preferable to any others; but that these syrups in their fresh state contain a large amount of carbonic acid is usually forgotten. When the process usually in vogue is followed, and sugar is added to the juices in the cold, a liquid is obtained which soon becomes so dense that the acid finds it difficult to make its escape when heat is subsequently applied, and the consequence is foaming, and sometimes a partial caramelizing of the sugar, from the fact that the syrup makes a denser layer at the bottom while the lighter juice is forming on top. To avoid all this, M. Manche recommends that the juice be boiled before any sugar is added, replacing loss from evaporation by distilled water. The result is said to be better in every way.—Scientific American.

A Popular Boston Chestnut.

The tale is to the effect that Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes and the venerable Dr. Peabody of Cambridge, once had an appointment to see a statue of Eurydice. Dr. Holmes arrived first, and when a few moments later his friend drove up in a cab, he greeted him with the very obvious pun:

"Ah, you rid, I see."

Dr. Peabody was wonderfully pleased with this sally, and on his return home attempted to repeat it for the benefit of his family.

"Dr. Holmes was extremely witty this afternoon," he said. "We went to see the Eurydice, and when I drove up he said just as quick as a flash, 'Ah, doctor, I see you came in a buggy.'"

I do not vouch for the story, but tell the tale as it was told to me.—Arlo Bates in Providence Sunday Journal.

"Cleopatra's Needle."

Though we hear little about it nowadays, yet the monolith called Cleopatra's Needle is regarded as one of the sights of New York by country visitors. Every day throngs from the country go to the park to see this relic of the past, and the great majority of them express disappointment after looking at it. It is one of the first questions which country visitors hear when they get back to their homes: "Did you see Cleopatra's Needle when you were in New York?"—New York Sun.

Photograph of the Sun.

It is a singular fact a photograph of a sun or star taken through the big telescope recently constructed at Cleveland for the Lick observatory gives a view of the heavenly object much clearer and more distinct than that seen by the naked eye in looking through the powerful instrument.—New York Evening World.

Defenders of American Industry.

We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform. 1888.

Our manufactures require the systematic and fostering care of the government. * * Equally important it is to provide at home a market for our raw materials.—James Monroe.

An extensive domestic market for the surplus produce of the soil is of the first consequence. It is, of all things, that which most effectually conduces to a flourishing state of agriculture.—Alexander Hamilton.

We must now place our manufactures by the side of the agriculturist. * * Experience has taught me that manufactures are now as necessary to our independence as to our comfort.—Thomas Jefferson.

"For twenty years I have suffered with a severe bronchial cough, never lying down without a severe attack of the same. After much persuasion, I was induced to try Adamson's Balsam, and its good effects for six months are certainly marvellous. Please use this truthful testimony for the advantage of all sufferers like myself.

Mrs. Wm. Alden, Duxbury, Mass., Feb. 21, 1887

When our manufactures are grown to a certain proportion, as they will under the fostering care of the government, * * the farmer will find a ready market for his surplus produce, and, what is of almost equal consequence, a certain and cheap supply for all his wants.—John C. Calhoun.

One Fact

Is worth a volume of rhetoric, said an American statesman. It is a fact, established by the testimony of thousands of people, that Hood's Sarsaparilla does cure scrofula, salt rheum, and other diseases or affections arising from impure state or low condition of the blood. It also overcomes that tired feeling, creates a good appetite, and gives strength to every part of the system. Try it.

The issue of Protection is inexhaustibly stronger and greater than any man, as it concerns the prosperity of the present and of the generations yet to come.—James G. Blaine.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam, for Coughs and Colds, does it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles at 50c and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption.

SWIFT'S SPECIFIC

Has relieved thousands of cases of Mercurial Poisoning, Rheumatism and Stiffness of the Joints.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., June 27, 1888—Swift's Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: In the early part of the present year, a bad case of blood poison appeared upon me. I began taking S. S. S. under advice of another, and to-day I feel greatly improved. I am still taking the medicine and shall continue to do so until I am perfectly well. I believe it will effect a perfect cure. Yours truly,

DOC. P. HOWARD,
111 West Sixth St.

COLUMBIA, S. C., July 7, 1886—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: I was a great sufferer from muscular rheumatism for two years. I could get no permanent relief from any medicine prescribed by my physician. I took over a dozen bottles of your S. S. S., and now I am as well as I ever was in my life. I am sure your medicine cured me, and I would recommend it to any one suffering from any blood disease. Yours truly,

C. E. HUGHES,
Conductor C. & G. R. R.

WACO, TEXAS, May 9, 1888—Gentlemen: The wife of one of my customers was terribly afflicted with a loathsome skin disease, that covered her whole body. She was confined to her bed for several years by this affection, and could not help herself at all. She could not sleep from a violent itching and stinging of the skin. The disease baffled the skill of the physicians who treated it. Her husband began finally giving his wife Swift's Specific, and she commenced to improve almost immediately, and in a few weeks she was apparently well. She is now a hearty fine-looking lady, with no trace of the affliction left. Yours very truly, J. R. SEALS, Wholesale Druggist, Austin Avenue.

Healthful Bread.

Dr. E. G. Goodrich, a prominent physician of Augusta, Ga., writes the result of his investigation of the baking powder question. "I regard Prof. Horsford's powder as healthful and nutritious, it being composed of phosphatic acid and bicarbonate of soda. The excellence of this combination is so universally commended by physicians and chemists, that my indorsement is simply superfluous. Bread made from unbolted or Graham flour, is more healthful than that made from refined flour, simply because the latter has been deprived of the nutritious phosphates. Horsford's powder restores to the flour the phosphates removed in the bolting process and increases the food properties of the bread by that amount. The phosphates aid the digestion and nourish and invigorate the brain and nervous system, and Prof. Horsford's method of supplying them with our daily bread is certainly a wonderful triumph of scientific genius."

A Return to Duty.

This is always desirable, and the speedier it takes place the better. Doubly welcome is it in the case of those usually industrious little organs, the kidneys, which, when they go on a strike—so to speak—and drop work, seriously imperil health in more than one way. First and foremost their inaction begets their disease, which is hydra-headed, including such dangerous maladies as Bright's disease and diabetes. Next, when inactive they fail to assist in removing from the blood impurities that beget rheumatism, gout and dropsy. Third, their inaction weakens the bladder. All this is preventable and remediable by the pleasant promoter of organic action, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, at once a tonic and a regulator. This gently but effectually impels the kidneys to return to duty, and strengthens them and the bladder. Upon the bowels, stomach and liver it likewise exerts a regulating and invigorating influence, and it strengthens the system, and averts and remedies malaria and rheumatism.

Grover Cleveland has done more to advance the cause of free trade than any Prime Minister of England has done.—London Spectator.

Mr. Cleveland has taken his stand on free trade, * * and on that broad question Mr. Cleveland's candidature naturally and necessarily carries English sympathy.—London Globe.

Upon the success of our manufactures, as the handmaid of agriculture and commerce, depends in a great measure the independence of our country, and none can feel more sensibly than I do the necessity of encouraging them.—Andrew Jackson.

We shall be much mistaken if the effect of this state communication [President Cleveland's message] will not be to strengthen considerably the case of free traders in all parts of the world. It will be regarded as a step in the right direction by all who believe in the soundness of free-trade principles.—London Post.

It is to the New World that the Cobden Club is chiefly looking as the most likely sphere for its vigorous foreign policy. It has done what it can in Europe, and is now turning its eye westward and bracing itself for the struggle which is to come. It cannot rest while the United States is unsubdued.—London Times. July 18th, 1880.

The presidential election will be fought out on the lines laid down months ago. President Cleveland has been accused of having shrunk from the free trade policy he then advocated. The accusation is unjust. * * * President Cleveland is substantially in favor of a financial policy which will impose duties mainly for revenue purposes, will take duties off raw materials, and so widen the market of the American purchaser. These are the aims and this is the policy of the free traders of all countries.—London Saturday Review, Sept. 15th. 1888.

THE WEATHER.

For New England to-day:—
Slightly warmer, fair, southwesterly winds.

CLOSE OF THE CAMPAIGN.

This evening the political campaign which is to decide whether the protective system under which the people of the United States have so wonderfully advanced in prosperity during the past twenty-five years is to be set aside for the benefit of foreign manufacturers and American importers, will close in this city with a blaze of glory. Both parties will have torchlight processions, and in addition the republicans will have speaking in Music hall, and the democrats a big display of fireworks on the Parade, at the end of a long march.

How many votes will be changed by the speaking, the cheers, the processions or the fireworks no one can say; but we can say that we are glad the campaign is at its end, and that we hope, as we believe, that to-morrow's voting will give us after the 4th of next March a national administration republican in all its branches.

ATTENTION, COMPANIES.

All organizations intending to participate in the republican procession Monday evening, are requested to report to the chief marshal at the republican headquarters on Congress street at seven o'clock sharp.

W. H. MOORE, Chief Marshal.

REPUBLICAN NOMINATIONS.

The ward one republicans met at the headquarters Saturday evening, and made nominations as follows:

Delegates to constitutional convention, James W. Emery, George W. Pendexter, Henry J. Eaton;

Representatives, George B. Wallace, Frank L. Marks, ——;

Selectmen, John E. Milton, Thomas R. Martin, Albert M. Gray;

Moderator, Charles W. Shannon;

Inspectors of check lists, Clement M. Waterhouse, Washington Stott;

Clerk, James A. N. Rugg.

The ward two republican caucus, at the court house Saturday evening, organized with Aaron Young as chairman, H. P. Kent as clerk, and Wm. H. Sise and Wm. H. Moore as tellers; the following were the nominations:

Representatives, John Knowlton, Chas H. Sides, Moses Yeaton;

Moderator, Charles E. Batchelder;

Selectmen, Wm. J. Billings, Lewis G. Davis, Alfred Stavers;

Clerk, Samuel H. Kingsbury;

Inspectors of check lists, Daniel L. Randall, Henry O. Batten;

Delegates to constitutional convention, Edward P. Kimball, John Sise, Charles E. Batchelder.

Ward committee, ward two: Wm. J. Billings, Wm. O. Sides, Stephen L. Marston, Joseph A. Randall, Henry O. Batten, Warren P. Webster, Daniel L. Randall, James L. Parker, Samuel H. Kingsbury, Robert C. Sides, George I. Randall, Charles P. Abbott, Charles H. Sides, Fred L. Wood, Herman W. Oxford.

RYE'S NEXT REPRESENTATIVE.

The democrats of Rye to the number of between fifty and sixty met in caucus on Saturday evening. For candidate for representative there were two aspirants, Charles Rand and William Walker, and on a ballot the former received thirty-one votes to twenty-three for the latter, securing the nomination, which in Rye is of course equivalent to an election.

NAVY YARD ITEMS.

The orders directing the U. S. S. Kearsarge to be ready for sea by next Saturday and to proceed to Hayti to protect American interests there, have been countermanded, and she will remain at the navy yard for five or six weeks. The countermanding of the sailing orders is regarded with much satisfaction by the officers of the Kearsarge, and the prosport has gladdened their hearts.

The U. S. S. Boston, which has been reported as having arrived on the evening of the 1st inst. at Kingston, Jamaica, has been ordered to Port-au-Prince to perform the duty assigned in first orders to the Kearsarge. The run from Kingston to Port-au-Prince can be made by the Boston in twelve or fifteen hours, while the Kearsarge could hardly have arrived there in less than a month from the time she received her orders.

Lieut. Comdr. Charles H. Rockwell and Lieut. William I. Moore have been ordered to examination for promotion, and Lieut. Nathan E. Niles from the war college to the advanced course of instruction at the torpedo station—all formerly of this city, and attached to this navy yard.

PERSONAL.

Mr. William P. Young of Boston arrived at his former home in this city on Saturday, to remain over Tuesday, and vote in ward two.

Mr. Wm. B. Ogden of New York is visiting at Mr. James P. Bartlett's, on State street.

Mrs. Elbridge Gerry and Miss Bessie Gerry are visiting Mrs. Gerry's mother, Mrs. Richard Jenness, of Pleasant street.

AROUND HOME.

The Independent Democratic Club will have tickets at the polls in all the wards to-morrow.

The Dolge felt shoes and slippers advertised by Mr. J. C. Carr are a real comfort for persons who are troubled with cold or tender feet.

Do not mistake the sounding brass and tinkling cymbals you will hear this evening, as a Pope night celebration. It is the evening before election.

Mr. Everett L. Marston of this office, and Fred L. Martin, two of the youngest voters in ward one, are on the committee for the grand Republican Rally in Music hall this evening.

The Dover Democrat says: "The steamer Kicking Hannah, of Portsmouth, has been purchased by Eugene Smart of this city, who will use it as a tug boat on the lower river." The schooner Karen Happuch, of York, used to have a monopoly of the name "Kicking Hannah" among the sailors and river men, as the Wingaersheek had of "Window-shutter;" perhaps that is the steamer's real name.

It hardly needs that we should call the attention of our readers to the change in the make-up of the paper—the telegraphic news being on the first page, and the local on the fourth. This arrangement is being very generally adopted, and meets with universal favor. In making the change, some of our local advertisers may find their notices to be in not so good a position as they could wish; we ask their kind indulgence for a day or two, until we get things running smoothly on the new track.

The city was liberally papered last week with flyers, and copies of a Strafford county newspaper, urging the re-election to Congress of Luther F. McKinney on the ground that he is "the laboring man's friend," having supported the bill in regard to convict labor. Mr. McKinney may have supported the bill, but the administration which he supports uses, in the department of agriculture, paper bags made by convict labor, instead of linen bags whose manufacture formerly gave employment to 300 wage-earning women, and buys by the thousand, for the Indian department, wagons made in the Tennessee penitentiary.

The Weekly Protest, of Exeter, A. J. Hoyt editor and proprietor, has been for Cleveland and Thurman during the campaign, until last week, when some evil disposed individual, fearing not the law, neither regarding man—the editor man—nor what he might say, got into the office through a window after the forms were locked up, and taking from the head of the columns the names of Cleveland and Thurman, substituted those of Harrison and Morton. The papers were all printed, and most of them sent off, before the outrage was discovered by Bro. Hoyt. His remarks under the circumstances were no doubt characterized principally by their vigor.

ACROSS THE RIVER.

Mrs. Shadrach Littlefield of South Berwick is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Owen Pettigrew of North Kittery.

Miss Jennie Donnell, daughter of Mr. George H. Donnell of York Harbor, has gone to New Jersey for the winter, with a family which passed the summer season at York beach.

Miss Edith L. Amee, of Kittery Point, has been engaged as teacher in the primary department of school district No. 5, at the Point, and Mr. Edward E. Shapleigh to teath the grammar school in the same district. Mr. Jefferson T. Lewis is to teach the school in district No. 6 for the winter term. They are all excellent instructors.

Mr. George Dinsmore of Kittery was quite badly burned in the face recently by a gas explosion at the navy yard, where he is employed.

It is reported that Horace Mitchell, Jr., of Kittery Point, will teach the winter term of school in district No. 12. Miss Minnie Paul has been re-engaged as a teacher in the Austin school at the Lower Foreside, district No. 7. They are both experienced teachers, and have always been highly appreciated by the parents in the districts where they have taught. Miss Emma H. Gerry closes the this week; she is one of the best and most experienced teachers in the town, and is engaged for the year.

Franklin H. Bond of Kittery, one of the selectmen of the town, has in his official capacity been making some much-needed repairs to the highway at the Point. Mr. Bond has now gone to York, to take charge of a gang of men engaged in grading around the stations of the York Harbor & Beach railroad in that town.

Mrs. James D. Plaisted of North Kittery has been visiting her sister in Boston the past week.

The Chautauqua society of North Kittery met last week with Mrs. Frank Haley.

Rev. Charles Tenney, pastor of the Congregational church in Chester, this state, died on Oct. 15th, after an illness of only a week, he having preached on the 7th. He was pastor of the Pavilion church in Biddeford from 1858 to 1871.

Naval Intelligence.

Capt. L. A. Beardslee and Comdrs. W. S. Dana and George W. Summer, have been detached from the war college, and placed on waiting orders.

Check-List Notice.

THE Board of Inspectors of Check-Lists of the City of Portsmouth give notice that they have posted lists of the voters in the several wards of the city, in the corridor of the City Building; also, of Ward One in the Railroad Station, of Ward Three in the store of John Mitchell on Islington street, of Ward Four in the store of John J. Laskey on Pleasant street, for the inspection of the voters of the city.

They also give notice that they will be in session in the City Building on Friday, October 26th; on Wednesday, October 31st; and on Friday, November 2d, 1888, from 9 o'clock A. M. to 12 M., and from 2 to 5 o'clock P. M., on each of said days, for the purpose of revising and correcting the list of voters.

They will also be in session at the same place from 8 to 10 A. M. and from 1 to 2 o'clock P. M., on the day of election, for the purpose of furnishing certificates to any persons whose names may have been omitted, and who the board are satisfied have resided in the ward one year next preceding said election.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES.

A Supervisor of Elections Arrested for Fraud in Registration.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

BROOKLYN, Nov. 5th.—Supervisor E. L. Morrison was arrested to-night and held in $5,000 bail to answer a charge of fraud in registration. His accuser is Ex. Com. Drake who on being arrested for false registration claimed to have been acting under Morrison's advice.

Great Political Excitement in New York.

A RIOT AVERTED BY PRONPT ACTION OF POLICE.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5th. — Chairman Barnum has gone to his home in Connecticut to vote. Senator Quay will not go home, but remain here. Such a turbulent crowd gathered in front of the Republican and Democratic State headquarters tonight about 9 o'clock shouting wild for Cleveland and Harrison at different and at the same times and beating each other, until 60 officers were ordered out and the streets cleared to prevent a riot.

AN INTERVIEW WITH MR. THURMAN.

Says No One Can Tell What the Result Will Be.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

COLUMBUS, OHIO. Nov. 5th.—Mr. Thurman was called on this afternoon by our associated press correspondent and repeated the statements from him in these despatches several days ago. He says he is no prophet in election matters; he believes no one can prophesy with certainty, but he is fully expecting that the democratic ticket will come out ahead. A full vote is looked for by leaders of both parties.

The Polls Will Not be Blocked.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5th. — Judge Lawrence of the supreme court has decided in the test case of George S. Simpson against election inspectors of the eighth election precinct of the ninth assembly district, that voters had no right to deposit portions of their ballot at different times, after voting once; hence, if they have not carried the whole list, he decides they cannot vote again for the balance of the offices to be filled. This blocks the democratic scheme to introduce the South Carolina plan into New York.

Where Higgins Comes In.

Special to Daily Chronicle.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5th.—The Democratic National Committee were in the most earnest and secret conference all day yesterday with prominent politicians of that party from various parts of the country, and also with the representative men of the colonizing and repeating element. That something unusually important in the way of the perpetration of fresh frauds was uppermost in the minds of the Democratic managers was quite apparent, and that renewed efforts were to be made between then and Tuesday to inaugurate fresh schemes by which to overcome Republican majorities in various sections of the doubtful states, was a well known fact last night. Local Republican managers in Indiana, New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and West Virginia, and inspectors on election day, will do well to be upon their guard continually, or they will find themselves imposed upon and frauds perpetrated upon the ballot boxes.

The Republican National Committee are in receipt of despatches which state beyond all contradiction, as the information is secured from the most authentic sources, that the Democrats of New York and Indiana particularly will put their main reliance in the fradulent voting of double ballots. They also hope to secure like results in West Virginia and New Jersey. In the latter state, however, large numbers of colonizers have been planted in the strongest republican counties, with the hope that they may do effective work there. Repeaters and colonizers have also been sent to the western counties of Indiana by direction of the notorious Eugene Higgins of Baltimore, who is acting in this despicable business by direction of Senator Gorman, and Chairmen Barnum and Brice.

Col. Coogan, Labor Candidate for Mayor in New York, Creates a Sensation. Alleges Bribery.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5th.—Col. Jas. J. Coogan, the United Labor party's candidate for mayor, claims that he has been offered $1,000 to withdraw, but declines to name bribers. He published a flaring card in papers however, saying that nothing but death can take him out of the contest.

An Immense Political Demonstration in Boston.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

BOSTON, MASS., Nov. 5th.—The only political parade of any magnitude in this city during the present campaign was made to-night by the republicans and was successfully planned and carried out. Harrison and Morton clubs and other political organizations from all parts of New England were in line, including the Loyal league 125 men from Bangor, Me; Harrison and Morton battalion of Worcester; Plumed Knights of Providence, R. I.; Depew battalion from Yale college; Boothbay club from Boothbay, Me., and Harrison and Morton Zouaves from Milford, N. H., were prominent. Among the organizations from Boston and vacinity were Harvard college battalion numbering 500 or 600 men; Harvard medical college battalion; delegation of students from the Institute of Technology numbering 400 to 500, and battalions from Boston Latin school; English High school; Boston dental college; American Watch company of Waltham and Wool Sorters' Industrial club of Arlington Mills, Lawrence. About six o'clock Hon. James G. Blaine and accompanied by Mrs. Blaine, Walker Blaine, reached the city by the Boston and Albany R. R. and were met at the depot by a committee of four headed by Chairman Burden, Republican state committee, and under escort of Loyal league of Bangor of which Mr. Blaine is an honorary member, The party proceeded to Young's hotel where lunch was eaten. Subsequently Mr. Blaine was escorted to the Brunswick where he reviewed the procession from a stand. The hour fixed for the start was 8:30 p. m., but a little delay was experienced. The route selected was through the wide thoroughfares. The streets were packed throughout their entire length. Many residences were decorated and illuminated, while fireworks of various descriptions were discharged at frequent intervals along the route.

War in Gardiner, Mass.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

GARDINER, MASS., Nov. 5th. — Heywood Bros. brought a large number of men from Vermont today to take the striker's places in their shops. They are furnishing a large building formerly used as a ladies' seminary as a boarding house for their men, who will be kept at the hotel until the boarding house is ready. Forty special police have been sworn in by the town authorities, and the Heywood Guards, Co. F, M. V. M., have been ordered to sleep at their armory until further orders, and be ready at any moment. Great excitement prevails throughout the town.

Yellow Fever Did Not Scare Them.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA. Nov. 5th.—The colored republicans numbering about one hundred strong indulged in an impromptu parade to-night; first notes of band heard on the street and first sign of life after night fall for three months.

Very Poor Shooting.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

ST. LOUIS, MO., Nov. 5th.—Western Grove, a suburb of St. Louis, is greatly excited over an unsuccessfull attempt last night by three negroes, Grant Boyd, Will Stringer and Coon Rhodes, to criminally assault Alice and Emma Baker, daughters of Greenville Baker. Boyd and Rhodes were captured this morning. Rhodes was identified by Alice Baker. She scarely ceased speaking when her father sprang to his feet, and drawing a revolver fired point blank at Rhodes, the bullet grazing his head. The father was seized and prevented from doing further harm. The negroes fell on their knees crying piteously for mercy. Two revolvers were found on Baker. He evidently intended killing both negroes. Rhodes and Boyd were bound over.

Students Cannot Vote.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5th. — Forty-two students of Union Technology Seminary who registered as citizens have been indicted for falsely registering, but will not be arrested unless they offer to vote. In former years students from abroad have sometimes been permitted to vote, but under present interpretation of the law will not be regarded as citizens this year.

Which His Language is Plain.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

CHICAGO, ILL., Nov. 5th.—A communication from Mayor Pray of New Decatur, Ala., to Mayor Roche last Friday, appears to have stirred up a hornet's nest in Alabama. A telegram received by Mayor Roche this afternoon from Dr. Cochran says the town has had practically no yellow fever patients to care for, no nurses and no doctors to support and pay, and no dead to bury; there is no famine, no pestilence in New Decatur. He says: I do not pretend to know the real wants of the people of New Decatur, but believe they had a great deal more help than was really necessary. In Old Decatur we had about 120 cases of yellow fever, and 30 deaths, with the attendant expense of such a state of affairs; we have had, therefore, good reasons to call for help, but I never have undertaken to estimate the needs of our people; I left that to our relief committee, and helped them all; and have not changed my policy at all, have acted with committee from beginning, and am active with them still. This cannot be said of Mayor Pray and Rev. Dr. Gwinn; these gentlemen undertook to ignore the committee, and run the charities themselves. As to their motives I have nothing to say; so long as they looked after New Decatur, where there was no fever, I restrained from any interference, but they made persistent effort to take entire charge of both corporations. I can't understand why the mayor of New Decatur is so clamorous in appeal for our help. We prefer to take care of ourselves.

A Man Wantonly Run Down and Killed.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5th.—At College Point last night a respected market gardener named Joseph Krager was wantonly run down in the street, trampled and killed by half dozen drunken fellows mounted on mustangs, riding recklessly through the town. The men had been to a riding school in Brooklyn, but their identity is not yet known.

The Iowa Comparison.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

DES MOINES, IOWA, Nov. 6th.—Polls in Iowa open at 9 a. m. Close not earlier than 6 p. m. not later than 9 p. m. The vote for President will not be compared with the vote of 1884, as voting precints have been changed since then, but they will be compared with the vote for Governor last year, when Larrabee had 16,160 plurality. There are 1700 voting precincts in the state.

Fowl Proceedings.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

BIDDEFORD, ME., Nov. 5th. — The York County Poultry Association held another meeting to-night, and transacted preliminary business connected with its organization. It was voted to hold a poultry exhibit in Biddeford in January, and a committee of arrangements was appointed to arrange for the same.

The Mine Explosion Caused by Dynamite.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

LOCK HAVEN, PENN., Nov. 5th.—At the inquest this afternoon by the county Coroner on the bodies of seventeen victims of the Kettle Creek mine explosion testimony of witnesses showed that dynamite caused the explosion. No blame is attached to any one except the miners themselves.

Telegraphic Notes.

AUGUSTA, ME., Nov. 5th.—The friction of a broken cylinder caused a $300 fire in the mule room of the Edwards Manfg. Co. this afternoon; insured. The mill will resume work to-morrow.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5th.—An opinion was rendered by corporation counsel Beekman to-day, deciding the registration of non-resident students in Union theological seminary illegal, and they can't vote.

BRATTLEBORO, VT. Nov. 5th.—Mrs. Wm. Ahern was killed by the cars in the railroad yard here to-day, while picking up coal.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA., Nov. 5th.—Yellow fever bulletin: New cases 30; whites, 16; deaths, 2. Total cases 4319; total deats 366.

ST. JOHNSBURY, VT., Nov. 5th.—Geo. Ranney, administrator on estate of Mrs. Ruth H. Richards, killed at the station, has sued the St. Johnsbury and Lake Champlain R. R. for $15,000 damages.

MONTREAL, ONT., Nov. 5th. — Jack Kehoe was to-day found guilty of murdering Thomas Donnell, and was sentenced to be hanged next December.

THE WEATHER.

For Vermont fair, followed by rain in northern portions, warmer Tuesday, colder Tuesday night, winds shifting to the west. For rest of New England fair, warmer, except in Maine and New Hampshire stationary temperature, southwesterly winds. For eastern New York, warmer, fair during Tuesday, colder on Wednesday morning, southwesterly winds. Fair weather is predicted for rest of the country except upper Michigan and Wisconsin, where there will be rain; and Ohio, Indiana, eastern Illinois lower Michigan, southeastern Missouri, northeastern Arkansas, western Kentucky, and northwestern Tennessee, and the lake regions of western New York and western Pennsylvania, where there will be light showers.

There is not very much to know about western mortgages; and the little is easy to learn.

A pamphlet published by the Kansas City Investment Company, makes it so clear that one who reads perhaps knows quite as much of the business as the average man who goes a thousand miles to see for himself.

Read first and then go; which is better yet.

The pamphlet is sent free to all who ask for it.

Let the Voter do His Duty Intelligently.

The time for argument is past, and the voter who goes to the polls today to cast his vote for the one political party or the other certainly cannot complain that an opportunity has not been afforded him to become informed regarding the issues now confronting the American people. True, the Democratic party has sought to shift the issue to conform to localities, in one place being openly for free trade and in another an advocate of protective tariff, but in the main it has been obliged to stand on the free trade platform. The Republicans have made a noble fight in behalf of protection for American homes, and if today's contest results in the election of Harrison and Morton, as the best authorities believe it will, free trade will not show its head again for many years, and the British Government will have to conjure up some new way to try and destroy the American system of protection.

The Champion Political Acrobat.

The above title may safely be claimed by Grover Cleveland, to-day President of the United States, without fear of any rival arising to successfully dispute the championship. No other president—no other public man in this or any other country, ever made so many and so far-reaching political back somersaults as he.

He was elected as the especial champion and devotee of civil service reform, as expounded in the democratic national platform of 1884, and endorsed in his letter of acceptance. This platform was especially opposed to removals from or appointments to office for political reasons, holding that "a public office is a pulic trust," and the faithful official should be secure in his position. The non-intervention of federal officials in political affairs was also severely denounced, and the assessment of office-holders for political purposes was simply outrageous.

Yet Grover Cleveland has demoralized all branches of the public service by the appointment of incompetent and in many instances corrupt men to office, for the sole reason that they were democrats, displacing honest and able officials whose only fault was that they were republicans. There never before was a national campaign in which almost the entire force of federal officials was so openly engaged, as the one just ended; and never before were office-holders, even to women and children, so mercilessly "squeezed" to supply a corruption fund, as within the past few months under Reformer Cleveland.

Mr. Dimick Should be Elected.

If the republicans in the Portsmouth senatorial district will take off their coats and go to work this morning in earnest, and not suspend their labors until the polls close, Mr. John E. Dimick will be elected by a handsome majority. He is honest, a consistent republican, and would make a worthy senator, and should receive the active support of not only every Republican, but of all citizens having the welfare of the city and state at heart.

He Is Not Afraid.

Chauncey M. Depew made a ringing speech in Brooklyn, Saturday night. He had recently returned from a trip west, where he availed himself of the opportunity to ascertain the condition of political affairs. Mr. Depew said: "The Democratic leaders in New York, who have imagination enough to write the great American novel, talk of carrying Illinois and Indiana. Well, I came across Bob Lincoln, and I asked him, and he said everybody out there was sure that there would be 50,000 majority for us in Illinois. Then I met Gov. Alger, and he said Michigan was good for 10,000, and then I met Jerry Rusk, whose political forecast is always good, because he was for me for President, and Jerry said you could put down Wisconsin for 16,000, and in Indiana I met our next president, and he promised that this election would take Indiana out of the dust."

Mr. Dana's View.

Editor Dana of the New York Sun, while professing to support Cleveland manifests the greatest pleasure in thrusting a knife in the latter's vitals occasionally. Commenting on a report that the British government intends to leave the legation in Washington in the hands of a charge d' affaires, the Sun says: "This is good news, and we only wish Lord Salisbury had come to the same conclusion three years ago. It might have enabled Mr. Cleveland to relieve his administration of the necessity of keeping Mr. Phelps of Vermont as the representative of the American democracy in London. Some day, probably, we may have a democratic president who will understand the worthlessness of our so-called diplomacy, and take due steps toward abolishing these great, pretentious, and useless sinecures. But such democracy would appear to be unfashionable in Washington at present."

He Has Made No Mistake.

Events do count, even in the closing hours of a campaign, and with reason, when they are thought to afford evidence upon a vital point in dispute. If Mr. Brice could contrive to get General Harrison to do some act or utter some sentence hostile to American and in perfect accord with foreign interests, he would be exceedingly glad. But the Republican candidate, though speaking without preparation over one hundred times during the campaign, to audiences of every description and shade of opinion, has not yet uttered a single word which his adversaries find it of any advantage to them to repeat. His record is impregnable, because he is an honest, patriotic and clear-headed man, who longs and labors for the prosperity of his country, and knows that its prosperity depends upon the protection and well being of its working people.—Tribune.

The Locusts in Algiers.

This year the sirococo, that terrible hot wave of the desert, swept over Algiers with unusual fierceness, charged with the sand of the great Sahara, and with millions and millions of locusts. In a few days the whole country was covered with these pests. Their ravages are terrible. The cattle, of which the colony contained sixteen millions, are dying for want of nourishment, and a famine is threatening the European colonists. The government employs thousands of natives and all the available troops in a systematic effort to destroy the voracious little insects.—Philadelphia Times.

Uses of the Phonograph.

The phonograph is serving a number of uses. One instrument concealed under the coat was discovered to be employed surreptitiously in stealing the score of a new opera; it was ejected. Many phonographs, it is said, are being employed by a number of actors and actresses as automatic teachers of elocution. Through the instrument they obtain an exact idea of their vocal expressions, and learn by means of mimicry the precise qualities of their tones.—Chicago Herald.

Women Telegraph Operators.

There are 3,000 women telegraph operators in England earning anywhere from $300 to $1,000 a year. The telegraph being a branch of the civil service in England it is necessary for them to pass a competitive examination before

"GIVE ME A LIGHT!"

People Who Object to Doing So—Views of Various Nationalities.

"Will yer give me a little fire, mister?" said a tough from the Sixth ward to a reporter who stood on the front platform of a Court street car the other day. The light was given, and, with a "Tanks," the tough began pouring from his mouth a volume of smoke from a five cent cigar which was simply stifling. A well dressed man stood at the reporter's side, and, as the fumes from the tough's cigar reached him, remarked:

"It's pretty hard to have to give a light for such a cause. Do you know, I'm in the tobacco business myself. I am not in the retail business. I am an importer. Naturally I smoke and as naturally I smoke good cigars, but I do not smoke in public. Why? Well, for the simple reason that I do not wish to be compelled to give a light to any Tom, Dick or Harry that comes along. You know many men, and I am one of them, like to smoke a cigar so as to leave the ash on the end. Moreover, I am particular about my cigars. You can neither preserve the ash or be particular if you smoke in public, for a man is considered a boor if he does not cheerfully give a light when asked for one. This is the custom in all countries. For instance, in Spain, and this manner of giving a light is copied both by the French and Italian, when a man is asked for a light he bows most gracefully and, as if anxious to do the other a favor, presents his cigar, holding out the lighted end at a slight angle between the thumb and second finger. The other receives the cigar, and after getting the needed light from it, returns it with even a more graceful bow than that bestowed upon himself. Each then raises his hat and turns to go away. The Spaniard invariably smokes through his nose. He considers it wasteful to smoke through his mouth, and inveterate smokers of all countries agree with him."

"Do you agree with him in that opinion?"

"No, I can't say that I do, although I acknowledge that the sensation produced upon the delicate nerves of the nose is exquisite. I myself, however, am perfectly satisfied with smoking in the ordinary way. I suppose because I am accustomed to it. The Spaniards may be right, however, for any smoker must have noticed that if he shuts his eyes and smokes he cannot tell whether his cigar is lighted or not. This, I think, shows that the nerves of the mouth and palate soon become deadened or at least partially so."

"What nationality is the most reluctant in giving a light?"

"The average Englishman, I think, hates to do it. You just ask one for a light and see. First he looks at you as if wondering at your presumption. Then he takes his cigar from his mouth and looks at it as if hating to part with it even for a moment. Next he hands it to you begrudgingly and acts as if he had achieved a mighty feat in condescension. Instead of lifting his hat he is more apt to thrust his hands in his trousers pocket, and as he receives it back he stalks off with an air of indignation. Never ask an Englishman for a light if you can help it. The German asks for a light more politely than he gives one. No matter how urbanely willing he endeavors to appear, there is an expression of reluctance on his face which is amusing. Sometimes when his cigar is burned nearly to an end he will throw it away upon receiving it again. This act, among the Latin races, is considered extremely boorish and has led to duels.

"The American is always averse to allowing any one to take a light from his cigar. He regards it as his own especial property and does not like to be interfered with in its possession. Nor is this so strange when you think of the mixed classes of people in this country who think because all are on a legal equality every one has a right to do as he likes. It is rather surprising that the man to whom you just gave a light thanked you at all. Usually, one of his class thinks he has a right to your cigar. Recently I have noticed that Americans are apt to offer a match when a light is asked for. On the whole, I think this is the better way, although some ignorant persons take umbrage at this. They suppose, you know, that you object to their handling your cigars. In the majority of cases their supposition is correct."—"M." in Brooklyn Eagle.

Small Hands and Feet.

We infer from some of the letters received by us from our young readers that a number of them cherish the ridiculous opinion that to have small hands and feet is a sign of noble descent and high breeding. We can assure these deluded damsels that race and breeding have nothing to do with the size of the extremities. The biggest hand we ever saw attached to a human arm was that of a young officer, the scion of a family ennobled six centuries ago, and we have seen hands of the most delicate size and texture belonging to persons of the lowliest origin. Witness, also, the chubby paw of her most gracious majesty, Queen Victoria, whose race has been of royal rank for fifteen hundred years. Nature proportions the hands and feet, with the utmost exactness, to the other parts of the body. Consequently, the hands and feet are always just right. To change them would be to destroy the harmony of the frame. To be dissatisfied with them argues a real vulgarity of mind, a want of good sense, and, we may add, a thankless impiety.—New York Ledger.

The Stony, Hard Exterior.

It has been the fashion to assume a strong indifference toward strangers, even if one does not feel it, and not only toward strangers is this manifested, but toward those who are associated together in business, and the ones whom one meets every day. It is not necessary for two people to fall upon each other's neck every time that they meet in order to be civil, but in the short life that we live here why not give and receive all the good that we can? Strangers upon settling in a new place feel this stony and hard exterior, and when the cheery faced, really Christian man or woman is met with, what a blessing, and how one loves to remember the meeting and the kindly look. It is like a perfect June day, or the bursting out of the sun after days of cloud and storm.—Springfield Union.

Superstition Rife Today.

People are wont to boast of the enlightenment of this age and laugh at the superstitions of their forefathers. But it is quite safe to say that superstition is as rife today as it ever was, the only difference being that now people are ashamed to acknowledge their weaknesses. Said a real estate man: "There is nothing which gives a building a lasting black eye quicker than a report that it is or was haunted. The slamming of a door, the rattling of a window, the knocking down of a tin pan by pussy cat are all the work of ghosts in such buildings. And the worst of it is that people are just as

ECONOMY IN CHINA.

No Waste of Food—Not Choice as to Meat—Saving Fuel—Dress.

The Chinese are pre-eminently economical, whether it be in limiting the number of wants, in preventing waste, or in adjusting forces in such a manner as to make a little represent a great deal. The universal diet consists of rice, beans, millet, garden vegetables and fish, with a little meat on high festivals. Wholesome food in abundance may be supplied at less than a penny a day for each adult, and even in famine times thousands of persons have been kept alive for months on about a half penny a day each. This implies the existence of a high degree of culinary skill in the Chinese. Their modes of preparing food are thorough and various. There is no waste; everything is made to do as much duty as possible. What is left is the veriest trifle. The physical condition of the Chinese dog or cat, who has to live on the leavings of the family, shows this; they are clearly kept on starvation allowances.

The Chinese are not extremely fastidious in regard to food; all is fish that comes to their net, and most things come there sooner or later. In the north the horse, the mule, the donkey are in universal use, and in some districts the camel also does duty. It must be understood that the practice is to eat all of these animals as soon as they expire, whether the cause of death be accident, old age, or disease. This is done as a matter of course, and the fact that the animal has died of an epidemic malady does not alter its ultimate destination. Certain disturbances of the human organization, due to eating diseased meat, are well recognized among the people; but it is considered better to eat the meat, the cheapness of which is certain, and run the risk of the consequences, which are not quite certain, than to buy dear meat even with the assurance of no evil results. Indeed, the meat of animals which have died of ordinary ailments is rather dearer than that of those which have died in an epidemic, such as pleuro-pneumonia.

Another example of careful, calculating economy is the construction of the cooking pots and boilers, the bottoms of which are as thin as possible that the contents may boil all the sooner; for fuel is scarce and dear, and dear, and consists generally of nothing but the stalks and roots of the crops, which make a rapid blaze and disappear. The business of gathering fuel is committed to children, for one who can do nothing else can at least pick up straws and leaves and weeds. In autumn and winter a vast army of fuel gatherers spread over the land; boys ascend trees and beat them with clubs to shake off the leaves; the very straws get no time to show which way the wind blows before they are annexed by some enterprising collector. Similarly professional manure collectors swarm over all the roads of the country. Chinese women carry this minute economy into their dress; nothing comes amiss to them; if it is not used in one place it is in another where it appears a thing of beauty. Foreign residents who give their cast off clothes away to Chinese may be assured that the career of usefulness of these garments is at last about to commence.

Chinese wheelbarrows squeak for the want of a few drops of oil; but to people who have no nerves the squeak is cheaper than the oil. Similarly dirt is cheaper than hot water, and so, as a rule, the people do not wash; the motto, "Cheaper than dirt," which the soap dealer puts in his windows, could not be made intelligible to the Chinese. To them the average foreigners are mere soap wasters. Scarcely any tool can be got ready made; it is so much cheaper to buy the parts and put them together for yourself and as almost everybody takes this view, ready made tools are not to be got. Two rooms are dimly lighted with a single lamp deftly placed in a hole in the dividing wall. Chinese, in fact, seem to be capable of doing almost anything by means of almost nothing. They will give you an iron foundry on a minute scale of completeness in a back yard, and will make in an hour a cooking range, of strong and perfect draught, out of a pile of mud bricks, lasting indefinitely, operating perfectly, and costing nothing. The old woman who in her last moments hobbled as near as possible to the family graveyard in order to die, so as to avoid the expense of coffin bearers for so long a distance, was a characteristic Chinese.—The China Herald.

The Tree of Guernica.

The tree of Guernica is the tree of the Basque liberties, close to the town of Guernica, in Biscay. This symbolical tree dates back to the origin of Biscayan society. The lords of Biscay took their oaths on a stone bench placed at its foot. The general juntas are inaugurated here, and are continued in the adjoining juridical church of Santa Maria la Antigua. It is perpetuated like the Euskarian family, and is succeeded by its scions. The present tree is nearly a century old, since it was 30 years old when its predecessor, in 1811, fell down under the weight of over 300 years. The tree which is to substitute the present one was planted a few years ago. Several patriotic songs are dedicated to the tree. Rousseau sent it his blessing, and Tallien saluted it in the midst of the French convention.—Lippincott's.

The People of Roumania.

The Roumanians or Wallachians are a people of entirely different type from the Saxons. A conquered race, though they claim descent from the ancient Romans, they are nevertheless regarded with contempt by all their neighbors, and have become habituated by centuries of oppression and abuse to habits of cowardice, subserviency and deceit. Yet they are a race of singular vigor and fertility, noted for their longevity and personal beauty. Whereas the Saxon countenances look as if rudely carved from wood, those of the Roumanians frequently recall the faces to be found an old cameos and signet rings.

The forms assumed by their superstitions show that they are an imaginative and poetical people. They have cordial and gracious manners, and their family feelings are so warm that each miserable Roumanian hut, overflowing with children, is the home of kindness and affection. Each child is regarded as a new blessing from the Almighty, and to be childless as the greatest of afflictions. Their Saxon neighbors speak of them with contempt as immoral, and there is undoubtedly ground for the reproach, but it should be remembered that the Saxon maintains his superior morality at the cost of frequent divorces and amid domestic dissensions, while the Roumanian, to whom an early marriage is forbidden by military regulations, seldom breaks the informal union contracted in his youth, and preserves always a spirit of kindliness in his domestic relations.—"The Land Beyond the Forest."

King Kalakaua's Pastimes.

Kalakaua, the king of the Sandwich Islands, now divides his time between "literary work, poker, cigarettes and the bowl." He is said to be writing his "Recollections of a Dizzy Life," and to have acquired a knowledge of the American game that enables him to entertain Americans with spare cash and a disposition to play. He smokes an incalculable number of cigarettes and drinks like Bacchus. But this active life begins to tell on him. He is said to be thin and nervous, and it is thought that the state of his health will convince him of the necessity of giving up his literary work.—Chicago Herald.

PEARLINE is a great Blessing to the Woman,
mistress or servant, who wants to keep things clean. It washes clothes, dishes, glassware; cleans paint, varnish, carpets, oilcloth, floors, better than anything known, that is harmless to fabric or hands. It makes a saving of clothes and time that pays. Think of the guarantee we give you of its merits. Fifteen millions of packages are consumed annually. Think of your clothes and hands after a day of rubbing the dirt out on a washboard, (Pearline does away with that.) Think of the ease of washing clothes by the modern labor-saving method, which you will find on every package of Pearline. Think of the perfect cleanliness insured by the use of Pearline and you'll surely become a friend to Pearline. Certainly Pearline will be a true friend to you if you'll let it. Beware of the many imitations sold by means of prizes or peddling. There is only one Pearline and that is manufactured only by JAMES PYLE, New York. Sold Everywhere.

Defenders of American Industry.

We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform, 1888.

Our manufactures require the systematic and fostering care of the government. * * Equally important it is to provide at home a market for our raw materials.—James Monroe.

An extensive domestic market for the surplus produce of the soil is of the first consequence. It is, of all things, that which most effectually conduces to a flourishing state of agriculture.—Alexander Hamilton.

Mrs. Wm. Alden, Duxbury, Mass., Feb. 21, 1887.

When our manufactures are grown to a certain proportion, as they will under the fostering care of the government, * * the farmer will find a ready market for his surplus produce, and, what is of almost equal consequence, a certain and cheap supply for all his wants.—John C. Calhoun.

One Fact

Is worth a column of rhetoric, said an American statesman. It is a fact, established by the testimony of thousands of people, that Hood's Sarsaparilla does cure scrofula, salt rheum, and other diseases or affections arising from impure state or low condition of the blood. It also overcomes that tired feeling, creates a good appetite, and gives strength to every part of the system. Try it.

The issue of Protection is incalculably stronger and greater than any man, as it concerns the prosperity of the present and of the generations yet to come.—James G. Blaine.

MASON & HAMLIN
The cabinet organs introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.
Mason & Hamlin co'n, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, their ORGANS competed with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free, 222 to 8000, free.
Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This claim is based by the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRUNG," by means of which the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune and other important advantages.

Common Sense

Should be used in attempting to cure that very disagreeable disease, catarrh. As catarrh originates in impurities in the blood, local applications can do no permanent good. The common-sense method of treatment is to purify the blood, and for this purpose there is no preparation superior to Hood's Sarsaparilla. That this peculiar medicine does indeed cure catarrh is shown by the many testimonials from people who have found relief upon using it when all others had failed. THE MORN AND EVE OF LIFE.

"Oh, fame's a star of heavenly birth,
Enlightening every human sky
Commissioned to exalt mankind
And lift its low ambitious high.
And wealth's a bird, of plumage grand,
That soars unlimited and free,
Bedecked with power, with rank adorned
Who envies not its liberty?
And love's a flower, surpassing sweet,
That blooms in the fertile heart,
And to each thought and word and deed
Doth beauty, grace and balm impart.
Fame, wealth and love I'll seek and find,
They'll bring me joy and peace of mind;
A man's the maker of his fate."
Thus sings gay youth, with hope elate,
For the morn of life has come;
All things are bright
With a rosy light.
How fair is the rising sun

"Yes, fame's a star of heavenly birth,
That shines with an inspiring ray,
But stars are fickle, transient things;
They fade with coming of the day.
And wealth's a bird, of plumage grand,
That knows no law save its own lust,
And yet, its haughty pinions cleft,
How oft its feathers trail the dust.
And love's a flower, surpassing sweet,
That charms the gazer's heart and eye.
But, of the earth conceived, begot,
It blooms to wither and to die.
Fame, wealth and love tho' one may find,
They'll bring not joy nor peace of mind;
A man's the creature of his lot."
Thus sighs old age, by hope forgot.
For the eve of life is come;
All things are drear,
The night draws near.
How sad is the setting sun!

Curious Case of Insanity.

"Well, yes," said a well known medical practitioner, who lives within a day's walk of the city hall, "I do meet some very curious cases and people sometimes. I can hardly say what is the most peculiar malady I have ever seen, but a lady I am attending is suffering from a form of lunacy for which I can find no precedent. She thinks she is being starved to death and neglected by her relatives, who are in reality most devoted to her. She is about 40 years old, and not very long ago was quite a pretty little woman. Today I suppose she weighs 250 pounds, and has the most enormous and unnatural appetite you ever heard of. She has five grown up children and lives with a married daughter.

"I have known her wake up the entire household in the middle of the night and demand rice and milk. While eating it she wept and declared that her inhuman daughter was trying to starve her. It would have been laughable, but for the pathos of it all, to see this immensely stout lady seated on the floor, shoveling rice into her mouth with one hand, while with the other she wiped away the tears that the supposed cruel conduct of her daughter had caused to flow. When not craving for food she is a devoted mother and estimable lady. The least delay in attending to her cravings transforms her into a dangerous lunatic. She storms, shouts, and will attack any one. She will never be cured, but, except as to her food, her sanity is absolute.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Ancestors of the English.

England and the English do not, after all, derive their name from the Angles, according to the long rooted tradition, so declares a German government professor, Dr. Bening. After extensive researches, he has discovered that the word "English" originates from the "Engern," a numerous and powerful Saxon race living near the banks of the Weser, on the North sea. This theory rests also upon the authority of the old British monk Gildas, who lived much earlier than Bede, and who speaks only of the Saxons who colonized Britain. Further, Dr. Bening points out that our supposed forefathers, the Angles, dwelt on the Baltic, further off, and that their country was much smaller than the land of the Engern.—Frank Leslie's.

Novel Railway in Switzerland.

A Swiss engineering novelty—hitherto considered an impossibility—is an inclined railway on which the cars are drawn by cable round a curve. From the Lake of Lucerne the track curves upon an angle of 112 degs. to the summit of the Burgenstock—1,330 feet above the lake and 2,860 feet above sea level. The line is 8,050 feet long, and commences with a gradient of 32 per cent., which increases to 58 per cent. for more than half of the distance. The motive power is electricity, generated by two twenty-five horse power dynamos, worked by a water wheel three miles away.—Arkansaw Traveler.

To Have a Public Laundry.

The English people, in view of the vice and destitution existing in the lower quarters of London, which has been brought to public attention lately on account of the Whitechapel murders, are considering the question of erecting an immense public laundry, which would provide work for these classes, and intend to establish lodging houses for their protection and support.—Chicago Herald.

Disease of Grape Vines.

The vine growers of the Santa Anna and San Gabriel valleys of California think that a new disease has attacked their vines. They call it "sap sour." When attacked the vines wither and die at once. It is infectious and spreads rapidly. The best remedy thus far known is to pull up and burn the vines the moment they show the blight.—New York Sun.

An Electrical Problem.

In the ordinary sixteen candle power incandescent lamp, according to Professor Ernest Merritt, only from 4 to 6 per cent. of the energy actually expended is available as light, the remainder being wasted as heat. To lessen this waste is one of the greatest electrical problems now awaiting solution.—Arkansaw Traveler.

A Queer Name.

A curious local name for a plant is "John go to bed at noon," applied in England to the yellow goat's beard, which opens at 4 and closes just before 12 o'clock.

In four years the British museum has acquired 270,000 specimens in the department of zoology alone.

The last census of India indicates a population of 68,982,000. There are 6,000,000 more males than females.

The Population of Russia.

According to the Russian census taken in 1884 and 1885 the population of the empire at that time was 108,787,000. These figures are regarded as only approximative, since over a large portion of the field it is not possible to obtain exact data.—Chicago Herald.

One sinner destroyeth much good, if so disposed, and he does not need to be a very great sinner either. — Bar-Homan.

An Explosive More Destructive Yet.

W. T. Chamberlain, an American engineer residing in London, paid a visit to Woolwich in connection with a new explosive which he is introducing to the war department. He is the inventor of the newest and most powerful explosive known, namely, chlorine of nitrogen, whose destructive effects are terrible in the extreme, a very small quantity doing infinitely more damage than a much larger amount of any other explosive in use. It is very sensitive, a very slight concussion causing it to explode. He has more than once been injured and in danger of being blown to pieces, but kept at it, determined to conquer or die in the attempt.

He has completed a method of charging or filling shells and projectiles with chlorine nitrogen so that they may be fired from a gun using powder with perfect safety. Military men competent to judge in regard to the invention declare it to be one of the most remarkable inventions of the age, and are of the opinion that if any country had the monopoly of this invention it could defy the whole world. The invention, it is thought, will cause a complete change or revolution in warfare, while for blasting or mining purposes it will probably never be equaled. Mr. Chamberlain has had offers from parties on the continent which he will probably accept in the event of not coming to terms with our own government.—Woolwich (Eng.) Gazette.

The Rabbits Must Go.

Pasteur is, according to recently published accounts, in a fair way to win the big prize to go to the man who would banish rabbits from the big island of the southern Pacific. The Frenchman has made his lancet more potent than 10,000 shot guns, tons of poison or a million snares. He inoculates rabbits with the virus of a disease fatal to the little beasts. Before death overtakes them these rabbits beget a host of other rabbits, and these become the parents of millions. Heredity does the rest. The descendants inherit their progenitors' disease, and the second and third generation of rabbits die off even more surely than the inoculated first. If this method operates successfully with rabbits, why might not a somewhat similar process decimate the armies of bugs and worms that make the life of the American farmer one long warfare against things flying and creeping? Pasteur, if he has solved the rabbit problem, will be the St. Patrick of the great island. If he can vanquish insect pests he will find immortality.—Pittsburg Bulletin.

The "Towers of Silence."

Sir Jamsadji Jijibhai, a Persian banker, has sent a model of a "Tower of Silence" to the Anthropological museum at Berlin. The Parsees, or Fire Worshipers, hold it to be a sin to pollute air, water or earth with dead bodies. They, therefore, build high towers on hills, 800 feet in circumference. At the top is a platform sloping toward the center, where a cistern, 150 feet in circumference, is placed. This platform is divided into three sections, one each for men, women and children. Corpses placed here are at once pounced on by vultures, which soon leave only clean bones. These are swept into the cistern, and the water, after the bones are dissolved, is carried through a series of canals and disinfected. The Parsees have never yet been surpassed as a race of clean, pure, manly, energetic people. They reside now mostly in Bombay, but are few in numbers.—Globe-Democrat.

Crafty London Shopkeepers.

The other evening a native born Londoner, during a discussion of the mysterious Whitechapel murders, fell to talking of Petticoat lane. "It is," said he, "merely another name for one side of Middlesex street. The street forms the boundary line of old London town, and while the side next the city is known by its proper name, the opposide side is called, from the large number of second hand clothing stores, Petticoat lane. Very crafty are those dealers down the lane. A man may stroll past their shops and, seeing a handkerchief hanging outside that he fancies, step in and purchase it, then if he will turn and walk back on reaching the end of the street he will find the identical handkerchief in its old position. The thrifty seller has in his employ one or more small boys whose sole duty is to follow purchasers and 'prig' from them their newly acquired property."—Chicago Mail.

A New Calculating Machine.

A resident of Chicago, Mr. D. C. Felt, has invented a machine which will add, subtract, multiply or divide without error. It is said to work perfectly, and will secure a saving of time in commercial operations, quite like a type writer in the hands of letter writers. Babbage's calculating machine, which for generations was the wonder of philosophers, would, if invented now, be only a nine days' talk. Mr. Felt's invention will be of vastly more use than Babbage's, but will draw less oratorical attention. Meanwhile Edison turns from machinery to sanitary discoveries, and proposes by science to cordon yellow fever. Science is emphatically king.—Globe-Democrat.

The "Blue Black" Salmon.

According to The Walla Walla Journal, the red fish have for the first time in sixteen years disappeared from Wallowa lake, and the packers are idle in consequence. The fish are identical with the "blue black" salmon of the Columbia, and have been accustomed to making the lake their breeding grounds, where they swarmed in immense numbers. Like many other fish, they change color at the breeding season. The blue black is one of the finest species of salmon, and its utter extermination seems to be a matter of only a short time.—Chicago Herald.

Thought It a Disgression.

The Rev. Leonard Gaetz, of Alberta, who had a fine exhibit at the industrial fair, was once pastor of the Queen's Avenue Methodist church at London. At an evening service one of the choir soloists sang a selection that bordered very closely on the operatic, and it was noticed that Mr. Gaetz grew very grave during the singing, and when it was finished he rose and remarked with great deliberation: "We will now resume the worship of God."—Toronto Globe.

GRAMMAR'S BROKEN LAWS.

Foibles of Speech in Refined Social Circles—A Brief List.

The strangest of all the curious circumstances attendant upon the habitual disregard of grammatical laws is the unconsciousness of the offender. Our self made man and the wife he has tinkered into "a match article," court, as ornaments to their drawing room, eminent scholars and literary lights, domestic and foreign; admire intensely in them the facile propriety of expression in which they are themselves deficient, and never suspect the effect of the contrast they offer. Does the inability to discern the difference lie in the ear or the intellect?

I have called this insensibility the most singular of the paradoxes connected with our subject. May I retract the statement and substitute the anomaly of people, born well and bred well, educated according to the most approved methods, and moving in refined social circles, whose foibles of speech approach in number and rival in heinousness the direct lingual faults of illiteracy!

People who drop the final g from participles, and other words ending in "ing," with the constancy the cockney exhibits in misplacing h.

People who say "he don't like it," without a suspicion that the conjoined abbreviation stands for "he do not like it."

People who inquire "you ready?" "you going?" and sometimes "where you been?"

People who never by any chance say "between you and me," but with the steadfastness of a holy purpose, "between you and I!"

People who pride themselves upon the elegant accuracy of every sentence formed by their lips, and tell you in cultivated euphoniousness of accent, "I have traveled some in" England, Russia, Turkey, or Australia, and "I hare not coughed any all night."

People who have been on intimate terms with Lindley Murray and his colleagues for forty years, and not learned that ain't is not tolerated by any of them, being an un-parsable word.

People who consider the fact that they were born south of Mason's and Dixson's line warrant for ignoring the dictum, "After the words like and unlike, the preposition to or unto is understood," and crucify our ears by telling us on all possible occasions "I feel like I should do," so-and-so, and "He looked like he meant it." Who as musically and audaciously say, "I am a head better," or "a heap worse."

I heard a D.D. F. F. V. say in a sermon, "It does seem like the Lord has some great and gracious purpose to fulfill in," etc. And a few minutes thereafter, "I expect that this is the proper interpretation of this passage."

There are people, on the other hand, who, born and brought up in the shadow of Yale, roll the phrase "I want that you should," like a savory and insoluble morsel under their tongues, and not a few, who, as Mr. Howells' Minister Sewell regrets, will—albeit they are Harvard graduates—say, to the close of well spent lives, "I don't know as."

People—this final count is written with groanings unutterable—who, with the best intentions conceivable (benevolent and syntaxical), never let slip an opportunity of using the pronoun "they" when the antecedent noun is in the singular number. "If a person thinks they can do that." "If anybody has lost anything, they can apply at the desk." "I was talking with some one the other day, and they said," etc., etc.

None of the phrases cited as foibles of speech trench upon the debatable ground of language. One and all, they are glaring defects, flaws in gems which lessen their value irretrievably. The critical inspector instantly discounts the intelligence or conscientiousness of him who tenders them.

That those who are guilty of lapses of this sort know better, does not exculpate them or relieve the listener who respects his noble vernacular too truly to condone the unseemly familiarities that approximate insult. When the delinquents are those who assume to instruct others, the foible becomes guilt.

A distinguished author, at a reception given in honor of her visit to a certain town, pressed the hand of a sister writer who was introduced to her, with the cordial—"You and I had ought to have met before."

An eminent lecturer upon scientific subjects remarked at a dinner party, "The hall was not sufficiently het today."

The principal of a collegiate institute announced during the commencement exercises that the presentation to himself of a memorial from the pupils was a "change in the programme made entirely unbeknownest to himself."

He was taken by surprise by the testimonial, and the luckless phrase escaped him when off his guard. It should have been impossible for him to make use of it in any circumstances. If he had never said it before he would not have said it then.—Marion Harland in Once a Week.

Mourning Costume of Coreans.

Mourning in Corea is a most burdensome duty. When a father dies, for instance, the sons must dress themselves in a suit of sackcloth, with a rope girdle about the waist. On the head is worn an enormous hat, about the size of a rain umbrella, and made of basket work. This hides the whole upper portion of the body, and for further protection against obtrusion the mourner carries a large fan before his face. It was in this disguise that the Jesuits were enabled to enter the country and carry on their work. They have but recently laid it aside. Even the pipe is wrapped with white paper and white shoes are worn. The mourner is not expected to do any work, but at stated times he has duties to perform at his ancestor's tomb. All this is very hard for some to bear, as the whole resources of a fairly prosperous family may thus be exhausted. In the case of useful officials whom the king cannot spare from duty, the period of mourning may be shortened by royal decree.—Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.

Balance of power, to assure the independency of states and control the ambitions of sovereigns, was first laid down as a principle by Italian politicians of the Fifteenth century, on the invasion of Charles VIII of France, A. D. 1494.—Boston Budget.

Post Cards at a Discount.

A company has been formed in England to supply post cards at a farthing each, which will make communication cost next to nothing. It ought, in America, to be really less than nothing, for it is said that an American never knows the difference between a cent and nothing. Thus half a cent ought to be just half a cent—less than nothing. The Farthing Letter Card company prints advertisements around the margin of the post card and thus makes its profits. It is expected that

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., June 27, 1888—Swift's Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: In the early part of the present year, a bad case of blood poison appeared upon me. I began taking S. S. S. under advice of another, and to-day I feel greatly improved. I am still taking the medicine and shall continue to do so until I am perfectly well. I believe it will effect a perfect cure. Yours truly, DOC. F. HOWARD, 111 West Sixth St.
COLUMBUS, S. C., July 9, 1888—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: I was a great sufferer from muscular rheumatism for two years. I could get no permanent relief from any medicine prescribed by my physician. I took over a dozen bottles of your S. S. S., and now I am as well as I ever was in my life. I am sure your medicine cured me, and I would recommend it to any one suffering from any blood disease. Yours truly, O. E. HOUSER, Conductor C. & G. R. R.
WACO, TEXAS, May 8, 1888—Gentlemen: The wife of one of my customers was terribly afflicted with a loathsome skin disease, that covered her whole body. She was confined to her bed for several years by this affliction, and could not help herself at all. She could not sleep from a violent itching and stinging of the skin. The disease baffled the skill of the physicians who treated it. Her husband began finally giving his wife Swift's Specific, and she commenced to improve almost immediately, and in a few weeks she was apparently well. She is now a hearty fine-looking lady, with no trace of the affliction left. Yours very truly, J. E. SHAW, Wholesale Druggist, Austin Avenue.

IN A BLAZE OF GLORY.

The Harrison-Cleveland campaign, so far as torch-light processions, and verbal and gunpowder pyrotechnics are concerned, ended in this city on Monday evening, with parades of the uniformed campaign companies of both parties—the third party seems to have dropped entirely out of sight in this state this year, despite the agonized efforts of the democratic managers to advance the cause of prohibition for the benefit of their candidates—and a speaking rally at Music hall by the republicans. The republican procession was composed of the Winchester Guards of this city, and Harrison Guards of Rye, and made a good show, though their parade was merely auxiliary to the meeting at Music hall, where about 1000 intellectual people assembled, and listened to an address by Harrison Hume, Esq., of Massachusetts; the meeting was called to order by Mr. Wm. H. Moore, and Charles E. Batchelder, Esq., presided.

The Democratic procession was more extensive, a good deal of money having been expended on the parade, to make it a big thing—big enough to re-enthuse the recalcitrant former voters of the party, and awe the Republicans. The line included all the local Democratic marching organizations, the McKinney Guards of North Hampton and the Cleveland and Thurman Guards of Rye, and all the bands and drum corps that could be hired far and near.

The parade was a short one, and when it reached Market square, shortly before ten o'clock, several thousand people had assembled to witness the display of fireworks. After a delay that discouraged the crowd and largely depleted it, a fusilade of Roman candles, rockets and bombs began, each member of the uniformed paraders being loaded with packages of Roman candles. The scene was brilliantly beautiful, and well repaid the spectators who had been waiting impatiently for the spectacle. Then the crowd broke away quietly and the marching clubs soon left the square vacant. Nothing could be heard after their departure but the noisy horns of the Pope night celebration, and pumpkin lanterns and clubs took the place of torches and lights. It was the last opportunity the boys had to show their uniforms, exhibit their wheeling and drilling, and shake their petticoats—and the United States was abandoned to the republicans at a very early hour.

There was no general illumination of residences, and very little cheering outside of the procession. The Times office displayed candles profusely from its windows, and Sheriff Coffin's residence and grounds were gaily decorated with Chinese lanterns. Red fire was displayed at many points along the route.

"CAN THESE THINGS BE," ETC.

A most injurious rumor comes from Exeter, in regard to the apparent flop-over of the Weekly Protest last week, when after supporting Cleveland and Thurman all through the campaign, it came out with the names of Harrison & Morton at the head of its columns, for president and vice president—followed, however, by the names of the democratic candidates for presidential electors in New Hampshire. The rumor is to the effect that Bro. Hoyt had been printing bogus republican tickets, bearing the names of Harrison and Morton at the head of the slip, followed by the names of the democratic electors, all the rest of the ticket being democrats; and that in the hurry of making up the form of his paper, in replacing the list of democratic electors he omitted to remove the names of the republican candidates for president and vice president, and replace those of of Lord Sackville's candidates, and thus accomplished the disastrous flop-over which has been credited to the evil design and burglarious acts of some wicked, presumptuous republican printer who broke into the Protest office, "unlocked" the forms that were all ready for the press, made the injurious substitution of names that so roused the wrath of the editor, and again locked the forms up all right.

PASTORAL CALL.

The Second Advent society of this city have given a call to Rev. W. H. Lannin of Mechanic Falls, Me., to become their pastor; the call has been accepted. Mr. Lannin had extensive experience in missionary work, and also throughout Canada. He formerly was in charge of the State street Mission, Chicago, with Rev. A. H. Kirkland, the renowned leader of the Adelphi Mission. He will not be able to officiate in his new position for a few weeks, owing to present sickness in his family.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Ralph C. Jones is in this city on a short vist.

Prof. Bartlett of Cambridge, Mass., who has been passing a few days at Newcastle, returned to Cambridge on Sunday last.

It is stated that Jacob Wendell, Esq., contemplates the erection of a cottage for the occupancy of Prof. Barrett Wendell, upon the entensive Frost Fields at Newcastle.

Mrs. M. K. Shock and Mrs. S. T. Benjamin closed their summer residence on Islington street on Monday morning. Mrs. Shock will pass the winter at No. 232 Malborough street, Boston, and Mrs. Benjamin at No. 78 Quincy street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

J. W. Cram and wife, of Hanover street, returned on Saturday last from a visit of several weeks to friends in Newburyport and Amesbury, Mass.

Capt. James Burke, assistant lightkeeper at Boon island, arrived in from the island on Monday.

Manager Hill and wife, of the Rockingham house, will leave the latter part of this week for a two weeks' pleasure trip. During the trip New York, Baltimore and other places of interest will be visited.

Rev. George W. Bicknell of Lowell, Mass., formerly of this city, has declined the nomination as representative candidate from the twenty-fourth Middlesex district. He says that his church labors would not permit of his attending to the duties of the position.

Mr. Percy C. Fonda and wife passed Sunday with Mrs. A. C. Fonda of State street, Mr. Fonda's mother.

NAVY YARD ITEMS.

Hugh McDonough of this city, painter, and Charles Carroll, formerly a clerk in the office of Hon. Frank Jones, have shipped on board the U. S. S. Kearsarge at this navy yard, as yeomen it is reported.

One hundred and forty-seven men and boys from the receiving ship Wabash, at the Boston navy yard, arrived in this city on Monday afternoon, for the U. S. S. Kearsarge. A number of commissioned officers for the same ship came down on the train which brought the seamen, and went down street in procession to the navy yard landing carrying gripsacks of formidable size, umbrellas, overcoats and other impediment.

The boys of Portsmouth, who regard Pope night—"pork night," as most of them call it, with sublime ignorance of its signification—as being of more importance than any presidential-election display in which they cannot take part, were out in force with tin horns, and here and there a pumpkin lantern, at dusk on Monday evening, and kept up a very respectable racket until the campaign processions appeared. Even then they did not entirely go out of the business, frequently adding their "music" to that of the bands until the end of the political parades, when "silence like a poultice came, to heal the blows of sound."

One day last week, at Newmarket, a freight train on the Boston & Maine railroad was two hours late in arriving, and in the hurry of making up for lost time a little too much speed was put on, and a car was sent through the freight house doors, smashing them to atoms. But these doors are use to it, a train having been sent through them once a year on the average for the past four or five years.

Mr. Frank Chick, night watchman at Portmouth bridge, picked up adrift on Monday morning about daylight, near the Kittery end of the bridge, a centre-board boat named the "Unie," painted white.

Mr. Frank W. Hidden, always hitherto a Democrat, assured us on Monday that he should vote the Republican ticket today, and that his ballot is not for sale. We have known Mr. Hidden from his boyhood, and have never known him to falsify his pledged word.

The schooner Triton, Amee master, in coming down river with a load of bricks for Boston on Sunday forenoon, the wind blowing very fresh at the time, was driven against the up-river drawpier of the Portsmouth bridge, and had a good sized hole stove in her bulwarks by the anchor being driven through it.

Miss Mary Shannon of Newton, Mass., has in course of construction and nearly completed, on the Dodge farm so-called, in Hampton, on the Exeter road, now owned by Mr. Henry Wingate, a very handsome summer residence.

The board of inspectors of checklists will be in session at the city rooms today from nine to twelve o'clock A. M., and from two to five P. M., for the purpose of giving certificates to such legal voters as have not their names on the check-lists, but whom the inspectors know are entitled to vote.

George Rogaski, employed at the Boston & Maine freight yard in this city, was engaged in shackling cars on Saturday evening last when his lantern went out and both hands were caught between the bumpers, the third fingers of the left hand were caught by the couplings and badly jammed. The injured members were dressed by Dr. Whittier.

A quarter of a ton of Red Fire is ready for delivery at Preston's Pharmacy.

Our latest great bargain, Gentleman's Scarlet Shirts and Drawers at seventy-four cents. They are regular $1.00 quality. LEWIS E. STAPLES, 7 Market St.

It is safe to say that such employes as are threatened with discharge if they do not vote the Democratic ticket, will be promptly transferred to Republican care.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

Check-List Notice.

THE Board of Inspectors of Check-Lists of the City of Portsmouth give notice that they have posted lists of the voters in the several wards of the city, in the corridor of the City Building, also, of Ward One in the Railroad Station, of Ward Three in the store of John Mitchell on Islington street, of Ward Four in the store of John J. Laskey on Pleasant street, for the inspection of the voters of the city.

They also give notice that they will be in session in the city Building on Friday, October 26th; on Wednesday, October 31st; and on Friday, November 2d, 1888, from 9 o'clock A. M. to 12 M., and from 2 to 5 o'clock P. M., on each of said days, for the purpose of revising and correcting the list of voters.

They will also be in session at the same place from 8 to 10 A. M. and from 1 to 2 o'clock P. M., on the day of election, for the purpose of furnishing certificates to any persons whose names may have been omitted, and who the board are satisfied have resided in the ward one year next preceding said election.

Harrison

Republicans Claim New

York by 12,000.

CONNECTICUT, 450,

NEW YORK.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6th, 9:30 p. m.—The work of counting the votes in this city is being expeditiously pushed. At this hour five hundred and twenty election districts out of eight hundred and fifty-six have been reported. These give Harrison sixty thousand and fifty-five, and Cleveland ninety-one thousand five hundred and fourteen; the entire vote at this ratio will undoubtedly fall within the estimate previously made, and give Cleveland no more than fifty-five thousand plurality in the city; this insures the state for Harrison.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6th.—261 election districts in N. Y. state outside N. Y. and Kings counties give Cleveland 46216, Harrison 61952, Fisk 3362. The same districts in 1884 gave Cleveland 44912, Blaine 57941, St. John 36618.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6th., 8:20 p. m.—Chairman Quay of the republican national committee, at this writing estimates the republican plurality in New York state will be between ten and fifteen thousand. This exceeds somewhat the estimate made by Col. Geo. Bliss this afternoon, and which was based upon his personal observations as to the voting then going on in this city.

NEW YORK, 10 p. m.—270 election districts in New York state outside New York and Kings County give Cleveland 47,080, Harrison 64,165, Fisk 2448. The same districts in 1884 gave Cleveland 46,546, Blaine 59,843, St. John 3,193.

NEW YORK, 10:30 P. M.—299 election districts in New York state outside of New York and Kings county give Cleveland 51256, Harrison 69798, Fisk 3731. The same districts in 1884 gave Cleveland 50,700, Blaine 65,172, St. John 3,407.

NEW YORK, 10:45 P. M.—800 districts give Cleveland 149,011, Harrison 96,905.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6th, 10 P. M.—810 districts out of the city give Cleveland 151361, Harrison 98883. Brooklyn, 220 districts out of 375 electoral districts give Hill 41884, Miller 37556, Jones 731.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 6th.—This city gives Cleveland 2800 majority.

NEW YORK, 10:45 P. M.—173 election districts in New York state outside N. Y. and Kings counties give Hill 29,688, Miller 37852, Jones 2095. The same districts in 1885 gave Hill 24489, Davenport 30631, Bascom 2383.

NEW YORK, 10:50 P. M.—New York city and county complete, give Hill 160-682, Miller 96199; Hill's plurality 64483.

NEW YORK, 11 P. M.—Sun bulletin gives Cleveland's plurality as 55500 in New York city. The Tribune says that Miller is certainly beaten for governor. It gives Cleveland 55000 majority in New York city and 16000 in Kings county

POUGHKEEPSIE, NEW YORK, Nov. 6th.—Hill's majority 322. Blaine carried it in 1888 bo 236.

NEW YORK, 11:00 P. M.—Out of 856 election districts give Harrison 91,368, Cleveland 139,750, Fisk 1015. 133 election districts in New York state, outside of New York and King's county, give Cleveland 22,035, Harrison 30,472, Fisk 1458. The same districts in 1884 gave Cleveland 24,077, Blaine 29,531, St. John 1428.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Long Island city complete gives Cleveland 1145 plurality.

NEW YORK, 1 A. M. Nov. 7.—New York county complete gives Hill 64,483 plurality.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 6th.—All districts in Buffalo except one give Cleveland 21,234, Harrison 28,129; Rep. gain 919.

NEW YORK, midnight.—Returns already received indicate the Tammany city and county ticket elected by large plurality. Republicans run about even with county democrats. New York Tribune says Indiana returns indicate that Harrison has made gains in every county save one. Kings county complete gives Cleveland 82447, Harrison 70587, Fisk 1037. In 1884 it gave Cleveland 67667, Blaine 52360, St. John 1336.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7, 2 A. M.—700 election districts in New York state outside of New York and Kings county, give Cleveland 126,568, Harrison 161,292, Fisk 7901. The same districts in 1884 gave Cleveland 119,564, Blaine 146,117, St. John 7443. Net republican gain 8,171.

BROOKLYN, 2:30 a. m.—By the return of mugwump and prohibition malcontents of four years ago to republican party Clevelan's majority will not exceed 18000 in Kings county.

BUFFALO, Nov. 7th, 1 a. m.—Complete returns except one district which is estimated to give Harrison 1632 plurality. County outside city gives Harrison about 500 plurality. Hill carries city by nearly 6000 plurality.

NEW YORK, 3:00 A. M.—Sun says it seems probable Harrison has carried the State by from 7000 to 10,000.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

BOSTON, Nov. 6th.—One hundred and fifty towns give Harrison 47520; Cleveland 33785; Fisk 2648; scattering 40. Same towns in 1884 gave Blaine 38426, Cleveland 28778, Butler 6267, St. John 2961. These towns give Ames 47263, Russell 33789, Earle 29146, scattering 29, republican plurality 13379.

BOSTON, Nov. 6th.—With exception of one democrat in fourth and Andrews, dem., in third District, all congressmen elected are republicans.

BOSTON, Nov. 6th.—5th District is in doubt, indications favoring election of Banks, rep., over Higgins, dem. In 6th District Lodge, rep., re-elected by increased majority. In 7th District 22 towns out of 25 give Coggswell, rep., a majority of over 3000.

MAINE.

PORTLAND, ME., Nov. 6th.—40 towns give Harrison 14145, Cleveland 9432, Fisk 512, scattering 187. Against Blaine 13683, Cleveland 10407, St. John 449, scattering 337. Republican gain 1437.

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 6th.—Complete vote of Portland is Harrison 3810, Cleveland 2848, Fisk 154, labor vote 9.

PORTLAND, ME., Nov. 6th.—120 towns give Harrison 35,891, Cleveland 23,520, Fisk 1175, Scat. 712. Against Blaine 34,751, Cleveland 24,282, St. John 982, scat 142. Harrison's plurality, 12,371, against Blaine's 10,469. Rep. gain 1902, or 18 per cent, indicating over 23,000 plurality. Following has gone through:

Augusta, Me., Nov. 6th. — To Gen. Harrison, Indianapolis: Returns thus far received indicate that Maine has given you a majority of 23,000. It will be more than less. JAMES G. BLAINE.

PORTLAND, ME., Nov. 6th.—One hundred and fifty towns give Harrison 41,418, Cleveland 27,252, Fisk 1338, scat. 780; against Blaine 40,196, Cleveland 28,329, St. John 1166, scat. 1672. Harrison's plurality 14,166, against Blaine's 11,867. Republican gain 2299, or nineteen per cent.

PORTLAND, ME., Nov. 7th.—175 towns in Maine give Harrison 45148, Cleveland 30,355, Fisk 1431, scattering 784. Same towns in 1884 gave Blaine 43706, Cleveland 31,317, St. John 1296, scattering 1776. Harrisons plurality 14,893 against Blaines plurality 12,389. Republican gain 2504, or 20 per cent. This will make Harrisons plurality in this state 24,000. The vote in 1884 stood Blaine 72,211, Cleveland 52,153, St. John 2160, Butler 3952, scattering 6, a total of 130,488. The towns to be heard from gave in 1884, Blaine 28,117, Cleveland 2083, St. John 864, scattering 2176.

MINNESOTA.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

ST. PAUL, MINN., Nov. 6th.—Globe (dem) has returns from several townships of Minnesota, indicating, if same result is reached elsewhere, election of democratic governor by 1000 plurality.

ST. PAUL, Nov. 6th.—Weather throughout Minnesota bright and clear. Reports show that vote was largest ever cast. In this city there has been much complaint because number of voters registered was greater than could be recorded. At seven o'clock when polls closed several hundred voters failed to get ballots in.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., Nov. 6th.—Present delegation in congress from Pennsylvania is composed of twenty republicans and eight democrats. Under new apportionment of last legislature districts were almost entirely changed, and election for congressman to-day was the first under the new apportionment. Returns thus far received show election of following-named congressmen; those marked "*" are members of present congress:

First District, Henry H. Bingham, rep; 2d Dist., Chas. O'neil, rep.; 3d Dist., *Sam'l, J. Randall, dem.; 4th Dist., *Wm. D. Kelley, rep.; 5th Dist., *A. C. Harmer, rep.; 6th Dist., Smedley Darlington, rep.; 8th Dist., Wm. Mitchler, dem.; 9th Dist., D. B. Bruner, dem.; 10th Dist., Marriott Brosius, rep.; 14th Dist., J. W. Rife, rep.; 15th Dist., *M. B. Wrigat, rep.; 17th Dist., Charles R. Bickalew, dem.; 19th Dist., *Levi Maish, dem.; 23d Dist., Thos. M. Bayne, rep.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

CONCORD, N. H. Nov. 6th.—Indications at 7 P. M., are that Harrison and Morton have certainly carried the state. Goodell, republican, elected governor by the people. Republicans have carried both congressional districts, secured control of both branches of the legislature. Very heavy vote in Concord; owing to cutting it can't be counted and declared until nearly midnight. Hon. Stillman Humphrey, republican, elected mayor. Charles R. Corning, rep., elected senator in Concord district.

NASHUA, Nov. 6th.—Vote in this city, Cleveland 1683, Harrison 1696; Amsden, 1774, Goodell 1597; Moore, rep., Congress 1708, Mann, dem., 1672. Democrats elect Mayor and a majority of city councils, a state senator and three representatives.

LACONIA, N. H., Nov. 7th.—Election quiet in Belknap county. Republicans elected straight ticket in Laconia, the second time in thirty years. Large republican gains in the Countyp entire republican ticket for county offices elected making a gain of one republican from two years ago. Republicans are sure of representative in Meredith and Scranton for senator. E. C. Bean and H. B. Quimby, representatives in Laconia, and Winnepesogee are undoubtedly elected, making a gain of two senators. The prohibition vote in the county is light.

CONCORD, N. H., 1 A. M.—Returns indicate Harrison's plurality in state 3000 with majority for Goodell for governor of nearly 2000. Nute, rep, leads McKinney in first congressional district by approximately 300. Moore, rep., leads Mann, dem., in second district by 1500. Republicans will have more than 25 majority in lower house.

NEW JERSEY.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6th.—80 towns and wards in New Jersey give Cleveland 5117, Harrison 5674, Fisk 90; same wards and towns in 1884 gave Cleveland 4943, Blaine 4849, St. John 176.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Nov. 6th.—Estimated majority in Monmouth county for Cleveland is 1800, gain of 700.

OHIO.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 6th.—Over 96 per cent of registered votes in Cincinnati was polled to-day. Comparison in Ohio is made with Governor vote of 1884 when Foraker's plurality was 23,329. There are 2304 wards and precincts in the state. Nineteen precincts show net democratic gain of 181. Vote in Covington, Kentucky, shows heavier majority for John G. Carlisle than he ever had there before

CONNECTICUT.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 6th.—69 towns outside cities show republican gain of 1803; state will probably give about 1000 plurality for Cleveland.

HARTFORD, CONN., Nov. 6th.—Returns to midnight by Evening Post from 114 towns, show rep. gain of 1324 over 1884. The same ratio of gain in remaining towns will give the state to Harrison by about 450 Republicans elect three congressmen, probably four. The legislature is republican by a large majority and will elect republican state officers and U. S. senator.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 6th.—All but four wards in New Haven show democratic gain of 361 over 1884 19 towns in Connecticut show democratic gain of 278

HARTFORD, CONN., Nov. 6th.—Total vote. in this city on President is 11,434. Cleveland's plurality is 322 against 670 in 1884. Plurality of Buckley, rep. for governor in Hartford is 58. For Congress Vance, dem., has plurality of 249. Democratic state senator and two democratic representatives elected. One arrest for illegal voting.

INDIANA.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 6th.—First returns one precinct in Franklin township, Marion county, shows republican gain of 17.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 6th.—Gen. Harrison passed this afternoon at home. About three o'clock he went out for a walk the weather being chilly but threatening. The General is by all odds the coolest person about the household. Numerous correspondents called seeking to talk with him, but to all he sends polite declination. His house to-night will be as strictly private as any other citizen's, his friends having arranged to receive returns in the city and wire them out. He is sending no replies to his telegrams.

TENNESSEE.

MEMPHIS, TENN., Nov. 6th.—Election passed off quietly; very heavy vote polled. Memphis has gone democratic by about 2500, a gain of 900 over 1884. James Phelan, democrat, is re-elected to Congress over Eaton, rep., by not less than 2000 majority.

ALABAMA.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., Nov. 6th.—Scattering returns show solid democratic delegation to Congress. No serious contest by the republicans except in the first and fourth districts. Clark and Turpin, democrats, undoubtedly elected. Cleveland's majority will be as large as in 1884. There was not a full vote on account of the absence of republican opposition.

GEORGIA.

Special to Daily Chronicle.

ATLANTA, GA., Nov. 6th.—Indications are that Cleveland's majority in Georgia will be at least 25000. Solid democratic congressional delegation elected by from 3000 to 5000 majority.

ILLINOIS.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6th.—200 precincts in Chicago give Harrison 30218, Cleveland 32944, Fifer, Rep, for governor, 30036, Palmer, Dem., 36465.

MICHIGAN.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

DETROIT, Nov. 6th.—Thirty-nine townships in Michigan give Harrison 6836, Cleveland 5516. Same towns in 1884 gave Blaine 5623, Cleveland 5406.

DETROIT, MICH., Nov. 6.—63 townships in the state give a net republican gain of 1350.

VIRGINIA.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

NORFOLK, VA., Nov. 6th.—Norfolk city goes republican by 583, a republican gain of 181. Portsmouth gives dem. majority of 348, dem. gain of 381. Norfolk county gives 1900 republican majority, a gain of 406. George S. Bowder, rep. is re-elected to Congress by a large majority.

HARRISBURG, VA., Nov. 6.—Eighteen of 24 precincts, this county, show a net republican gain of 289 over 1884, indications are that the county will give Rolter, republican, a majority. This is a large republican gain.

RICHMOND, VA., Nov. 6th.—Estimated vote in state, in eight counties and cities, indicate democratic loss of from 12,000 to 15,000.

RICHMOND, VA., Nov. 6.—In the sixth congressional district, Edmonds, democrat, is elected; district last represented by Hopkins, labor candidate.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

RALEIGH, N. C., Nov. 6.—Scattering returns from various parts of the state indicate that the state has gone for Cleveland by about the same majority as in 1884, about 17,000. The indications are that the democrats elect congressman in all the districts except the first, second and fifth, from which sufficient returns have not been received to indicate the result.

Wilmington, N. C., Nov. 6th.—Returns show small democratic gain over 1884, when democrats carried state by over 18000.

RALEIGH, N. C., Nov. 7th.—Returns from 93 townships give democratic gain of 1236.

VERMONT.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, VT., Nov. 6.—125 towns give Harrison 28,941, Cleveland 10,386, Fisk 904, scattering 29. Same towns in '84 gave Blaine 25,030.

KENTUCKY.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

LOUISVILLE, KY., Nov. 6—Carlisle is re-elected by a larger majority than ever before.

LOUISVILLE, KY., Nov. 6th.—In spite of the rain Kentucky has given Cleveland usual democratic majority nearly 40,000. Democratic congressmen have been elected in first, second, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth districts, and almost certainly in third where heavy democratic gains are reported. Congressman Finly, rep. probably beaten Ex-Congressman Welford in the 11th. John H. Wilson rep. has carried the tenth and the ninth is uncertain. Congressman Caruth of Louisville has majority of 2500 against 140 two years ago.

WISCONSIN.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

MILWAUKEE, WIS., Nov. 7th.—Returns are coming in very slowly; 52 cities and towns in state outside of Milwaukee give net rep. gain of 683; estimated from these figures, the republican majority in the state will be about 15,000. Smith, dem. and labor, has undoubtedly defeated Van Schayck in fourth district. Barwig, dem., in second district, now represented by Guenther, is probably defeated by McFrydge, rep., by small majority. This will give dem. gain of one congressman in delegation,

MILWAUKEE, WIS, Nov. 6.—Chairman Usher of the democratic state central committee has 53 scattering precincts, giving a net democratic gain of 1842. He says the democratic estimate has been more than reached thus far. Chairman Baine of the republican state central committee says returns are too meagre to give any estimate yet.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 7, 1888.

The Verdict.

Our news columns will tell the story of yesterday's battle. At the hour of writing this the returns received show steady republican gains in New York state outside of the cities of New York and Brooklyn, and if this ratio continues, the election of Gen. Harrison seems assured, a result which is most devoutly desired.

Mr. Cleveland has, of course, carried every southern state, and the probabilities are that he has a small plurality in Connecticut, although this is not yet settled. But few returns have come in from New Jersey, and these are of a democratic tendency.

The reports from Indiana at this writing are very satisfactory to the republicans, although they are meagre in character and not sufficiently definite to justify any statement as to how the state has voted.

It looks very much as though the final result will depend upon the electoral vote of New York. If the upper part of the state has done as well as was expected by the republicans and conceded by the democrats, the election of Gen. Harrison is assured.

The democratic majority in New York city is about 56,000, or 10,000 less than has been claimed by the democratic committee, and the republican national committee are very confident that the majority above Harlem will be large enough to overcome the majorities in New York city, Kings and Queens counties.

We shall await fuller and more complete returns before commenting at length upon the result.

[Special to the Chronicle.]

NEW YORK, 1:30 A. M.—The republican managers at national headquarters are at this hour more confident than ever that Harrison has carried New York state. An official bulletin has just been sent to General Harrison by Chairman Quay stating that Republicans have carried the state by at least twelve thousand plurality.

Gen. Greely Entitled to Thanks.

Gen. Greely, the chief signal officer, is entitled to the thanks of the entire country for the good weather yesterday, by reason of which the vote polled was undoubtedly the largest ever cast at any presidential election. Had the weather been stormy there would in all probability have been a heavier democratic and a smaller republican vote cast. This is much to be thankful for, and we shall hereafter feel called upon to stand up for Gen. Greely's weather bureau.

In Mr. Cleveland's letter of acceptance of his first nomination, he strongly declared in favor of a constitutional provision to prevent a re-election, as "When we consider the availability a party finds in an incumbent whom a horde of office-holders stand ready to aid with money and trained political service, we recognize in the eligibility of the president for re-election a most serious danger." Yet the country has seen with shame that "horde of office-holders" forcing Cleveland's nomination in the convention, and afterward neglecting all their public duties to advance his election.

For two years President Cleveland proclaimed the justice and moderation of Canada's demands, and refused to enforce the retaliatory powers in his hands; and then he made a somersault clear over the Republican party, and landed on the other side with a demand that he be empowered to declare a state of siege

Defenders of American Industry.

We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection; we protest against its destruction as proposed by the president and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. We accept the issue, and confidently appeal to the people for their judgement. The protective system must be maintained. Its abandonment has always been followed by general disaster to all interests except those of the usurer and the sheriff.—Republican National Platform, 1888.

"American wages for American workmen."—Republican motto.

We are astonished at parties who introduce new remedies for coughs when they should know the people will have Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

"Kings are like stars, they rise and set." They have headaches, gouts, and hurts like meaner men, and are just as sure to call for Salvation Oil.

Our manufactures require the systematic and fostering care of the government. * * Equally important it is to provide at home a market for our raw materials.—James Monroe.

An extensive domestic market for the surplus produce of the soil is of the first consequence. It is, of all things, that which most effectually conduces to a flourishing state of agriculture.—Alexander Hamilton.

Be Your Own Doctor.

It won't cost you half as much. Do not delay. Send three 2-cent stamps for postage, and we will send you Dr. Kaufmann's great work, fine colored plates from life, on disease, its causes, and home cure. Address A. P. Ordway, & Co., Boston, Mass.

We must now place our manufactures by the side of the agriculturist. * * Experience has taught me that manufactures are now as necessary to our independence as to our comfort.—Thomas Jefferson.

"For twenty years I have suffered with a severe bronchial cough, never lying down without a severe attack of the same. After much pursuasion, I was induced to try Adamson's Balsam, and its good effects for six months are certainly marvellous. Please use this truthful testimony for the advantage of all sufferers like myself.
Mrs. Wm. Alden, Duxbury, Mass., Feb. 21, 1887.

When our manfactures are grown to a certain proportion, as they will under the fostering care of the government, * * the farmer will find a ready market for his surplus produce, and, what is of almost equal consequence, a certain and cheap supply for all his wants.—John C. Calhoun.

One Fact

Is worth a column of rhetoric, said an American statesman. It is a fact, established by the testimony of thousands of people, that Hood's Sarsaparilla does cure scrofula, salt rheum, and other diseases or affections arising from impure state or low condition of the blood. It also overcomes that tired feeling, creates a good appetite, and gives strength to every part of the system. Try it.

The issue of Protection is incalculably stronger and greater than any man, as it concerns the prosperity of the present and of the generations yet to come.—James G. Blaine.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam, for Coughs and Colds, does it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles at 50c and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption.

To-Night and To-Morrow Night,

And each day and night during this week you can get at all druggists Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs, acknowledged to be the most successful remedy ever sold for the cure of Coughs, Croup, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Asthma and Consumption. Get a bottle to-day and keep it always in the house, so you can check your cold at once. Price 50c and $1.00. Sample bottles free.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS AND PIANOS
The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the next 5 or 6 years with these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.
Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues $22 TO $900, free.
Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by means of which the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune and other important advantages.
A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians, and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.
Pianos and Organs sold for cash or easy payments; also rented.

Common Sense

Should be used in attempting to cure that very disagreeable disease, catarrh. Its catarrh originates in impurities in the blood, local applications can do no permanent good. The common-sense method of treatment is to purify the blood, and for this purpose there is no preparation superior to Hood's Sarsaparilla. That this peculiar medicine does indeed cure catarrh is shown by the many testimonials from people who have found relief upon using it when all others had failed. A book containing statements of cures sent on receipt of two cent stamp, by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

ANGELS UNAWARES.

In the hours of morn and even,
In the noon and night,
Trooping down they come from heaven,
In their noiseless flight,
To guide, to guard, to warn, to cheer us,
'Mid our joys and cares.
All unseen are hovering near us
Angels unawares.

When the daylight is declining
In the western skies,
And the stars in heaven are shining
As the twilight dies,
Voices on our hearts come stealing
Like celestial airs,
To our spirit sense revealing
Angels unawares.

O, faint hearts! what consolation
For us here below!
That angelic ministration
Guides us where we go.
Every task that is before us
Some blest spirit shares;
Watchful eyes are ever o'er us,
Angels unawares.

—J. F. Waller in The Quiver.

Malmaison Going to Pieces.

Malmaison, the famous chateau of the ill fated Josephine de Beauharnais, is simply going by piecemeal to the dogs, or rather to the rats, and it has been admirably suggested that the place should be converted into a museum containing historical relics of the first empire. In the beginning of the present summer Malmaison was offered for sale at an upset price of £10,000, but no bidder could be found. The park is now cut in small lots to builders, and hideous villas are rising around the chateau. The two facades of the mansion—that of the courtyard and of the garden—are intact, but the interior is like a barn. The salon of Josephine still exists, with its mural decorations of birds and gilt flowers, and so do the dining hall, the council chamber—shaped like a tent—and the library; but the furniture is all gone, and the "pleasure house" of old is a melancholy wreck.—Paris Cor. London Telegraph.

Ten Hours of Sleep.

James Payn, the novelist and correspondent, has come to the conclusion that the only salvation of our writers and literary classes in general lies in going to bed early, getting ten hours of sleep, and understanding that brain work needs more complete and certain recuperation than ordinary physical labor. The office and necessity of sleep is getting to be better appreciated. Little is heard nowadays about burning midnight oil. Obedience to physiological laws, alone, will enable a man to escape mental break down at an early age. Genius cannot override nature. It is impossible to turn night into day, or to habitually do two days' work in one. Common sense and method are better than brilliance, and judgment is in the end ahead of genius. —Globe-Democrat.

A Business Like Young Woman.

There is a young girl down in Mississippi who is destined to make her mark. Some one gave her 5 cents one day. She went at once to a dry goods store, bought a yard of calico, made it into a sun bonnet, and sold the bonnet for 40 cents. She invested the 40 cents in more calico, made more bonnets, sold them, reinvested, made other garments, and pretty soon had $10. With this $10 she bought a lot of potatoes, planted them, paid for their cultivation, harvesting and marketing, and came out with a clear profit of $40. Let the young men of the south look out for this girl. That $40 is still growing. It may run into the millions some of these days.—Columbus Dispatch.

Bombastic Style of Royalty.

The terms in which these ancient rulers addressed each other resemble in their bombastic style those employed in royal households in our own days to a striking degree. One begins: "To Nimmurija (a surname of Amenophis III), the great king, the king of Egypt, my brother, my son-in-law, whom I love and who loves me," speaks as follows: "Dushratti, king of Mitanhi, thy brother, thy son-in-law, whom thou lovest and who loves thee. Peace to me, peace to my brother and son-in-law, peace to thy house, to thy consorts, thy nobles, thy people, to thy chariots, thy horses, thy land."—Harper's Weekly.

Peculiar Form of Hysteria.

Dr. Richardson mentions a case of a young woman attending a consumptive patient and was so impressed with the paroxysms of coughing that she began to imitate them. The imitation was perfect and continued two years, her friends believing she had consumption, though not a sign of it existed in her lungs. At last she suddenly recovered. It was only hysteria of a peculiar form. Now many similar cases are cured, and from this the doctor thinks he has found the secret of arresting this malady.—M. L. Holbrook, M. D., in Herald of Health.

Woman as a "Hoodoo."

There is a mine near Leadville into which women are never admitted. If a woman were permitted to enter this mine I believe every last man on the premises would quit work. The mine has had an accident for every woman who has visited it. Every time a woman has been admitted immediately after her departure some mishap with damage to property or life has followed. Hence the superstition of the miners.—Globe-Democrat.

Little Cora's Warning.

Little Cora heard an older person remark that some one who was in trouble was "in a pickle." Shortly afterward her little brother attempted some difficult feat. "Oh, you mustn't do that," she exclaimed, "or you will be in a cucumber."—Youth's Companion.

A WONDERFUL NATION.

A Glance at the Past and a Prophecy of the Future—Growth.

Today the republic of the United States has no rival on the face of the globe in natural resources, in wealth, in the general intelligence of its people. There is little use in taking a glance over the past, for nearly every man of intelligence is familiar with the history of the country. He knows that a dozen years less than half a century ago the republic of the United States included thirty-one states and five territories, if we include among the territories the District of Columbia. The area then was, as it is now, not including the Alaska purchase, 2,092,869 square miles. The population was less than 25,000,000. West Virginia was the center of population. The population in the territory west of the Mississippi river, a territory 2,185,840 miles in extent, was at this time only 1,990,404. It was supposed that most of this extensive area was composed of desert lands and alkali plains.

The old school geographies displayed in conspicuous letters a "Great American Desert," which by the hand of man has since been transformed into as fertile and productive farms as any in the east. This trans-Mississippi region today includes twelve states and nine territories, and the United States census of 1880 gave it a population of 11,259,360. In 1850 the value of all property west of Mississippi was $224,036. In 1880 this had increased to $6,119,000,000 in the states and in the territories to $2,994,000,000.

The ratio of increase in values throughout the entire country was just as remarkable. In 1850 the value of real and personal property in the United States was $7,135,780,328. In 1880 the value was $43,642,000,000. The population has increased from 23,191,876 in 1850 to 50,152,866 in 1880. The center of population is in the vicinity of Indianapolis, Ind. The growth in the productiveness of the soil is just as phenomenal. In 1849 the corn crop was 592,071,104 bushels. In 1879 it was 1,754,521,678 bushels. The wheat crop in 1849 was 100,485,944 bushels and in 1879 it was 459,483,137 bushels. The corn acreage in 1849 was 25,000,000 acres; in 1879 it was 62,000,000 acres. The wheat acreage in 1849 was 10,000,000 acres; in 1879 it was 35,480,383. In 1853 the mileage of the railroads was 12,908. In 1882 there were in operation 114,930 miles of railroads.

If this percentage of growth continues in the next half century where shall we be as a nation? The immigration is increasing every year. It seems that Europe is already too full to hold with profit its rapidly growing population. Look at the immigration figures and note the remarkable increase. In 1881 the number of immigrants were 669,481; in 1882, 788,992; in 1883, 603,322; in 1884, 518,592; in 1885, 395,346; in 1886, 334,203; 1887, 509,281. Making a total immigration in seven years of 3,819,167. This immigration will increase rather than diminish. It will be many years—very many years—before the ratio of population in this republic equals that of the older countries today.

In 1880 the ratio of population per square mile of territory in the United States was 16.70. In the same year the ratio of population in the British isles was 269.49; in China it was 260.59; in Germany, 197.48; France, 176.89; Japan, 212.89; British India, 228.56; Belgium, 461.95. If the ratio of population in this country were equal to the present ratio of population in France we should have a population of 581,846,588. This growth, at the rate of increase so far observed in our material progress, would give us this population in a decade less than a century. Thirty years from now, at the same percentage of increase, our population will be 140,186,310. In fifty years it will be 186,214,864. There is, indeed, no limit to the greatness of the American republic.—Detroit Free Press.

True to Her Traditions.

Boston remains true to the traditions and practices of the fathers in some things, at least. I met one of the most prominent bakers of the Hub the other day. We talked of pork and beans. "Is the consumption of these falling off?" I asked. "No, indeed," he replied. "We are selling more every year, because our population is increasing. Everybody eats them. Strangers may hold off in scorn for awhile, but the first thing we know they are booking orders for the usual Sunday morning supply. It is a practice that no one who remains with us any length of time can resist. We are trying to get the people to take the beans and brown bread on Saturday night instead of Sunday morning, but they do not take kindly to the proposed change." —New York Tribune.

Woman's Position in Corsica.

Travel in Corsica, and enter whatever house you will—a shepherd's hut, a peasant's cottage, the doctor's apartment, or Monsieur le Maire's fine stone building—you will find the womankind keeping in the background, just visible in a faint chiaroscuro. At meal times wife and daughters will not sit down with the guests. Mothers and daughters are either entirely absent or hovering about as your attendants. This is an uncomfortable feature of the entertainment, but woe to the luckless wight who shows restiveness under these circumstances, and awkwardly hazards an inquiry as to the ladies destiny. His inquiries will be entirely ignored, or he will be frowned upon into rather uncomfortable silence.—Cor. Home Journal.

Homes of All Ages.

An interesting feature of the Paris exhibition will be a group of forty-nine structures intended to give a history of the human dwelling. The different types of dwellings represented will include those of the prehistoric period—under rocks, in caves, on water and on land; and in later times those of early historic civilization, of Aryan civilization, of Roman civilization in the east and in the west, and of rude civilizations disconnected from the general progress of humanity, such as the Chinese, Japanese, Eskimo, African, Aztec, etc. The interiors and surroundings will be those of the different epochs studied, and it is intended to people the dwellings with figures in representative costumes.—Arkansaw Traveler.

The Harp in Ireland.

The earliest allusion to the use of the harp in Ireland is made in a description of the hall of Tara, written (as Petrie informs us) in the Sixth century, wherein it is stated that in the Third century places were set apart in the hall for the harpers. There is still extant, also, a poem on the death of Colomba, written in 594, which was originally sung with a harp accompaniment and the fact duly chronicled. Later, a harp was found carved in an ancient stone cross in Uliard churchyard, County Kilkenny, which, from its battered and time worn appearance, is presumably older than the famous cross of Monasterboyce, which was erected in 830.—Musical Herald.

At the Beauty Show.

At the recent beauty show in Spa the maximum of possible points was twenty, two each for face, complexion, hair, teeth, bust, figure, hands, feet, expression and deportment. Competitors were admitted between 16 and 35 years, and the three prizes were awarded to women of 18, 16, and 23 respectively. A critic says that the marking system there recalls that adopted by a former examiner for Oxford fellowships. He allowed 25 marks for information, 25 for lucid style, and 50 for "gentlemanly feeling."—New York Sun.

Fiber of the Nettle.

Among the products which science has put to valuable service is the nettle, a weed which is now even being cultivated in some parts of Europe, its fiber proving useful for a variety of textile fabrics. In Dresden a thread is produced from it so fine that a length of sixty miles weighs only two and a half pounds.—New York Sun.

Duration of Dreams.

German savants have been discussing the duration of dreams. They conclude that, while most dreams are momentary, they may be extended over years to the BEAUTIFUL CREOLE GIRLS.

Many Perfect Blondes Among Them Contradict a General Belief.

We are not hidebound nor narrow minded in our admiration for female beauty. The fair and the dark, the blondes and brunettes, all have their special charms and admirable points. Besides the beauty of feature and color there is also a spiritual and intellectual beauty which is quite as potent as the other. In the presence of a pure and lovely soul or a sparkling intellect and a delighting disposition, one may be so completely enchanted as to be utterly blind to material things. But whatever may be our liberality in matters of love and admiration for the beautiful sex, and we recognize their claims without regard to the ethnological or geographical limits, we are bound to reserve a special homage for our own southern women, and we are moved to this by the following tribute to Louisiana beauty. It was contributed to The Boyce (Rapides parish) Headlight by one who signs herself a "Cane River Girl." This is her verdict:

"Many of our northern friends picture all creoles with dark, swarthy skins, hair black as the raven's wing and eyes of ebon darkness. Now, this is altogether an erroneous fancy. Why, some of the girls have lily white complexions, golden locks and eyes of heaven's own blue! In the little village where I live there are four sisters, all of the purest blonde type, and it would be difficult to find anywhere in the wide world fairer, sweeter, lovelier maidens than they. Whenever I read of 'the dark skinned creole' a smile crosses my face, and I wish the readers' eyes could rest upon my 'rosebud garden of girls.'

"As I write these lines a dainty creole maiden enters my presence. She has come, like a gleam of sunshine athwart a murky sky, to chase away the clouds which sometimes surround me; and truly she is a fair vision to gaze upon, sitting where the sun shines full upon her, revealing the glint of gold in her wavy brown hair, which ripples above a broad, fair brow. Her pearly cheeks are slightly tinged by the sun's kisses, and her eyes of 'passionless, peaceful blue,' are gazing tenderly upon me, utterly unconscious of her own picturesque loveliness. The mind of this gentle girl is as pure and bright as her face. Altogether she is one of earth's fairest flowers.

"I have lived among the creoles nearly all my life, but I am not one of them. I am what they call an American." Why that term should not be applied to them is a mystery which I cannot solve. I have a penchant for creole girls. They are usually dainty and refined, sensitive and sympathetic, light hearted and sunny tempered. Then the marks of deference they pay to old age is truly something to be admired, and might well be imitated by many of my American sisters. A creole girl rarely ever sullies her lips with that slang which is so generally used nowadays. She is usually reared in seclusion, and her days glide by peacefully and tranquilly. The tranquillity is seldom disturbed by a storm cloud. She is content to remain at home, where there is always a wide field of action, and do her duty in that state of life unto which it shall please God to call her."

There are many other fine characteristics which the creole girl possesses, and I regret that I have not time to mention them. I have had to steal the moments to write even these few lines. But before closing this article I must admit that the majority of creoles are dark; there are many nut brown maidens, but some of them are 'fair, very fair.'"—New Orleans Picayune.

Farming on the Plains.

At a fair in Wray, Washington county, was an exhibit of eastern Colorado agricultural products. It was a creditable display and showed that the farms of that part of the state are producing good crops in spite of the assertion that all of the "rain belt" region is burnt up.

This is the third year of success in farming without irrigation on the plains. The most skeptical must be convinced from the experiences of these three years that the experimental stage is passed, and that "rain belt" farming may be depended upon.

The farmers in the vicinity of Wray are not the only men who have met with success, for exhibits are made of products grown near Akron and Yuma. Both of these places are centers of agricultural districts that have been tested during the past three years and found to be worthy of the praise that was given them three years ago by the more conservative settlers who have made their homes there.

The truth seems to be that, except among the sand hills, the whole of the plains lying within seventy-five or one hundred miles west of the Kansas line are susceptible of cultivation without irrigation.—Denver Republican.

Against the African Slave Trade.

Cardinal Lavigerie's crusade against the African slave trade is already producing good fruit. The war against the Arab slave stealers in Central Africa has begun in earnest. Twenty-six white men, with several hundred native allies, will soon take the field against this Arabian traffic in human flesh. The missionaries in Africa have taken sides with the leaders of the humane movement and are using voice and influence to rally the natives against the Arabs. There is no doubt that a well organized movement will follow and that in a little while slave trading in Africa will be an extremely dangerous business. But the campaign against the Arabs will by no means be mere boy play. The Arabs are well stockaded and armed and it will require some hard fighting to get them out. —Detroit Free Press.

"The Spider and the Fly."

Every one has by heart those charming little verses of "The Spider and the Fly." They have always been accredited to Mary Howitt, and naturally, for they are always published over her name. Mrs. Howitt was a charming writer of prose as well as verse, but in this instance is guilty of the sin of plagiarism. The verses are adapted with but little change from a song by the English comic poet Hudson, which is to be found in the "Universal Songster or Museum of Mirth" (London, 1826), set to the music of Thomas Moore's "Will You Come to the Bower?"—Pittsburg Bulletin.

The Mother in China.

In motherhood alone does the Chinese woman find protection and honor. Yet even here Chinese customs and laws are peculiar, and even grotesque. A mother can claim absolute obedience from her children, even when they are gray headed and themselves fathers of families, but she is still only a servant and a drudge to her husband. In the event of her death, her sons must, by Chinese law, wear mourning, and go about with unshaven heads for a hundred days; but her husband would render himself an object of ridicule among his friends if he put on mourning for her.—Chester Holcombe in

SWIFT'S SPECIFIC

Has relieved thousands of cases of Mercurial Poisoning, Rheumatism and Stiffness of the Joints.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., June 27, 1888—Swift's Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: In the early part of the present year, a bad case of blood poison appeared upon me. I began taking S. S. S. under advice of another, and to-day I feel greatly improved. I am still taking the medicine and shall continue to do so until I am perfectly well. I believe it will effect a perfect cure. Yours truly, DOC. P. HOWARD, 111 West Sixth St.

COLUMBIA, S. C., July 7, 1888—The Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Gentlemen: I was a great sufferer from muscular rheumatism for two years. I could get no permanent relief from any medicine prescribed by my physician. I took only a dozen bottles of your S. S. S., and now I am as well as I ever was in my life. I add my mite to your testimonies cured me, and I would recommend it to any one suffering from any blood disease. Yours truly, O. E. STOUTE, Conductor C. & G. R. R.

WACO, TEXAS, May 9, 1888—Gentlemen: The wife of one of my customers was horribly afflicted with a loathsome skin disease, that covered her whole body. She was confined to her bed for several years on account of this affliction and could not help herself at all. She could not sleep from a violent itching and stinging of the skin. The disease baffled the skill of the physicians who treated it. Her husband began finally giving his wife Swift's Specific, and she commenced to improve almost immediately, and in a few weeks she was apparently well. She is now a hearty, fine-looking lady, with no trace of the affliction left. Yours very truly, J. R. SEARS, Wholesale Druggist, Austin Avenue.

Weather Indications.

Associated Press to Daily Chronicle.

Light rains, clearing during Wednesday afternoon and evening to decidedly cooler, westerly winds.

ELECTION DAY, NOV. 1888.

Election day opened in this city with a few sprinklings of rain, but before the polls opened the sun was out, and the day was as favorable as though made to order for the occasion. The political workers were early on hand, and feeble and doubtful voters did not lack free transportation to and from the polls, nor earnest appeals to vote the straight ticket. The throngs at the polling places were much larger than for some years past. Besides the regular republican and democratic tickets, there was at the polls in all the wards a ticket headed "Independent Democratic Ticket," the candidates on the same being those on the republican ticket; this was carried by a considerable number of old-line democrats, while some others preferred to carry the regular republican ticket, without any different heading. The prohibitionists also had a ticket at the polls, but there was no great rush for it. There was much interest evinced, but no trouble worth mentioning was reported.

There were about the usual number of incidents, amusing to some and annoying perhaps to the ones most immediately concerned. In ward two, in the forenoon, Mr. Israel Marden, formerly for several years city marshal under a democratic administration, and always a democrat, presented the "independent" ticket, which was really the straight republican ticket. The moderator accepted it, of course; but the ward clerk failing to find Mr. Marden's name on the checklist, the ticket was thrown away. Mr. Marden, who knew beforehand that his name had been left off the list, had procured from the inspectors of checklists an order that it be put on, and as soon as his ballot was rejected procured another one, and again "went through." this time presenting the inspectors' order; and this time his ballot was deposited in the box instead of being thrown on the floor.

Hon. James G. Blaine passed through this city, on his way to Maine, Tuesday forenoon about eleven o'clock, no notice having been given that he was going to arrive. Several democrats were in the depot, and insisted on shaking hands, although asseverating that they were democrats. One of them spoke sneeringly to Mr. Blaine and was collared by an indignant expressman. Mr. Blaine withdrew into his car, and the incident soon ended with loud talk and no bloodshed.

A democrat drove around town with a horse adorned by a flyer of' cotton cloth, on which was printed the legend: "Democrats! Do your duty. Vote against William Conn." At the court house the flyer was removed by the democrats, who were annoyed by it, whereupon the owner of the team had the inscription printed on white paper, and pasted on his vehicle so that it could not easily be torn off.

Mrs. John L. Randall, Bertie Randall, Susie Randall, Mrs. Walter Brown and Mrs. Frank P. Muchemore left this city on Tuesday for Fitchburg, Mass., to be present at the wedding in that city of Mr. George G. Randall of Portsmouth and Miss Cornelia Austin of South Newmarket on Wednesday, the 7th inst. The bridegroom is son of Mr. John L. Randall of this city. The young couple, after a wedding trip to New York and Washington, will take up their residence here.

The treasurer of the Home for Indigent Women, known as "Faith Home," acknowledges with gratitude the receipt of fifty dollars from the South Parish charity fund.

Francis Parkman, the historian, who passed most of the season with his daughter, Mrs. Coolidge, at Little Harbor, is in such impaired health that he has been obliged to resign his position on the board of overseers of Harvard college. He is unable at present to do any literary work.
